Leaders Expect to Raise Average to $500 a Day as Workers' Ranks Grow.

Nine of Atlanta's most attractive young women in four automobiles left the Gould Building at 9 o'clock this morning with 150,000 Red Cross Christmas seals to be distributed among the public schools of the city.

By Monday practically every school child in Atlanta will be offering Red Cross seals for sale, and the keen rivalry manifested among them last year undoubtedly means a splendid harvest for the open-air school fund to which the proceeds of the sale by the school children will be devoted.

Friday Lucky Day. With the splendid co-operation of the teachers of the public schools, there is no doubt the children will sell $1,500 worth of the seals and more, which, added to the $1,000 already in hand, will be sufficient to maintain an open-air school at least for one year.

Government Figures Over 500,000 Short of What Traders Had Expected.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Georgia's cotton crop this season will be 2,275,000 bales, according to the official estimate issued by the Department of Agriculture at noon.

This puts Georgia second only to Texas as a producer of cotton. Last year Georgia was in third place, being outstripped by Oklahoma.

The total crop of the United States this season will be 13,677,000 bales, compared to 14,076,430 last year and 15,692,701 in the record year, 1911.

Western States Fall Off. These figures are exclusive of linters and repicks. The commercial crop, therefore, will be about 14,277,000 bales, allowing 600,000 bales for these grades.

The most interesting feature of the figures is the remarkable falling off in the Western States' yield. Texas will get but 3,930,000 bales this season, as against 5,120,252 last, and Oklahoma drops from the 1912 mark of 1,974,149 to 820,000 bales this year, a slump of 1,000,000 bales and more.

Georgia's gain is 426,000 bales over last season. No other State made anything like such a gain. Mississippi is nearest with 100,000 bales gain.

The following table shows the Census Bureau's annual cotton crop for the season of 1913-14, as compared with the actual yield of 1912-13.

Governor Returns From Financial Centers Highly Optimistic Over His Refunding Program.

Governor Slaton returned to Atlanta Friday, after a two weeks' business trip to New York.

He reached the city at noon, and drove directly to the Executive Mansion in Peachtree street, where he and Mrs. Slaton will reside for the remainder of the winter.

Governor Slaton was in the happiest of spirits when he reached the Capital, and expressed himself as more than well pleased with the results of his visit to the East.

"I found the people in the East intensely and vitally interested in the South," said the Governor, "and particularly in Georgia. Whatever may be their opinions with respect to other sections, it is known that Georgia is prosperous—remarkably so.

Sees Ready Sale for Bonds. "Hankers told me that Georgia generally has greatly anticipated its indebtedness to Eastern financial concerns this year, and that this happy state of things was to them a sure sign of genuine prosperity.

"I am very optimistic with regard to the forthcoming refunding of Georgia's bonds. I am sure, from what I learned in the East, that our bonds shall be eagerly snapped up. Georgia's credit is far and away ahead of that of most States.

"I have not yet, of course, perfected my ideas with respect to this proposed refunding of Georgia bonds. I am going to get all sorts of information in hand before I even begin to think seriously of writing my recommendations for the Legislature's consideration.

"I am glad to get back home. There is no place that ever looks so good to me as Georgia. Up East, everybody is getting ready for the coming of Santa Claus, and I am glad to see that Georgia is doing the same thing.

"I came home from New York a better and a more enthusiastic believer in Georgia than ever before. This was my first trip East since I became Governor. I had sources of information open to me this time that I never had before—I had the ears, and in the main the sympathetic ears, of many people who are deeply interested in Georgia and her material prosperity.

"After a while, when I have more leisure, I may have some interesting and welcome news to tell Georgians. Just now—well, please excuse me from going into details as to that."

MOB TRIED FRANK, IS DEFENSE CHARGE

Both Sides Criticize Court in Long Briefs Filed in Appeal to Supreme Court.

Judge L. S. Roan, presiding judge in the famous Frank trial, Friday found himself between two raking fires of criticism.

The bombardment was opened by the defense in the great legal battle. Weak and vacillating in his conduct of the case, disposed to shirk his duty as a judge, unable to rule his court with a firm and just hand—these are the charges hurled at him in the brief and argument of the defense lawyers.

If the judge fancied he was to escape with this, he was mistaken. He was yet to receive a broadside from the State's attorneys. When the brief of Solicitor Dorsey was made public Friday it was found to contain a severe attack on Roan's action in expressing his doubt of Frank's guilt and incorporating it in the bill of exceptions that went up to the Supreme Court.

This procedure was wholly gratuitous and uncalled for, the Solicitor General intimated.

"Dangerous," Adds Solicitor. "It was worse than this, it was unusual and dangerously unprecedented.

Here is what Mr. Dorsey had to say about it: "It is unusual, and so far as we know, unprecedented for a court to incorporate a statement similar to this in a bill of exceptions.

"It is not the office or function of a judge, as such, or his private views, nor is it a vehicle for carrying the mental processes by which the court below reached its conclusions. We submit that it would be as dangerous a precedent to permit a judge to impeach the integrity of his official finding after the judgment is concluded, as it would be to permit the juror, after having been discharged from consideration of the case, to impeach his own verdict."

Solicitor Dorsey, however, was not disposed to give Judge Roan's expression of opinion as much legal weight as the defense had attached to it.

He did not think that the Supreme Court should interpret it as indicating a firmly fixed and compelling doubt on the part of the trial judge. Arguing on this point, he said:

Quotes Judge's Words. "Judge Roan stated, according to the bill of exceptions, that 'he had thought more about this case than any other he ever tried. . . . He was not thoroughly satisfied that Frank was guilty or innocent.' This

APPEAL CHARGES MOB SWAYED FRANK JURY

Defense in Plea to High Tribunal Scores Judge for Not Clearing Courtroom.

Language clearly shows that he may have overruled the motion reluctantly, but to use his own language, 'The jury was convinced. There was no room to doubt that, and so further says that he felt it his duty to order that the motion for a new trial be granted, and he did.'

Herbert J. Haas, of counsel for Frank, Friday filed with the Clerk of the Supreme Court the defense's brief and argument, together with Solicitor Dorsey's acknowledgment of service. The brief of evidence, consisting of about 600 pages, probably will not be completed until Monday. The defense also later will file a reply brief in answer to Dorsey's brief and argument, which reviews the case with unusual thoroughness from start to finish.

Counsel for Frank in the brief and argument, greatly amplify the charges of a "mob trial," which they assert their client received, and assert their accusations that Judge Roan's conduct of the case was marked by indecision and lack of proper firmness.

The hearing before the Supreme Court is set for next Monday. The Frank case is the eighteenth on the calendar and probably will be reached during the day.

The argument prepared by Frank's lawyers contends that Judge Roan exhibited weakness in failing to clear the courtroom during the demonstrations that were made against the prisoner and in behalf of Solicitor Dorsey, who was conducting the prosecution.

Should Have Been Mistrial. Further, it is argued that the only just course left open to Judge Roan when the crowd wildly cheered during the polling of the jury was to send the jury back to its room or then and there declare a mistrial. The stand of the defense is that the verdict is not complete until every member of the jury has been polled, and that if any man had possessed a mind to dissent from the verdict he would have been frightened out of it by the riotous demonstration against Frank that was in progress outside.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

"There are, I suspect, many hundreds of automobiles in Georgia that are not properly licensed and numbered, and if the owners thereof knew they were guilty of a misdemeanor in this matter, I feel sure they would apply and get their tags," said Secretary of State Phil Cook to-day.

"I have had reported to me from one town alone 26 unlicensed cars. I, however, am not the man to whom these reports should be made. If they are made to the Sheriff of the county it will be his duty to arrest the owners of unnumbered cars.

"The punishment for using an unlicensed car is $1,000 fine or twelve months in the chain-gang, either or both, or any part of either or both. Do not think there should be a single unnumbered car in the State, and a few arrests would bring about such a condition, I feel sure.

"We have issued nearly 24,000 numbers so far, and I guess we should have issued over 25,000.

"There is another very widespread misapprehension about the automobile law that is going to get somebody into trouble sooner or later, and this should be regulated, too. Many people seem to think that the State gives a courtesy of 30 days to all cars brought into the State bearing the tag of another State. The State does do that; provided the owner of the car is a non-resident and is simply sojourning in Georgia temporarily. But if the owner of the car lives in Georgia he has no courtesy extended to him, 30 days or otherwise—he is immediately subject to tax.

"Sometimes people buy cars in, say, Alabama and they come into Georgia bearing Alabama tags. These tags are no good in Georgia if the owners of such cars live here. The 30 days' courtesy merely applies to outsiders visiting in Georgia, and if they remain more than 30 days they must get a Georgia number."

Governor Slaton reached Atlanta Thursday afternoon from a ten-day visit to New York. He is in the executive offices of the Capitol to-day.

Miss Constance Schley, a graduate of the Georgia Normal School and an authority on educational matters, rather severely arraigns the common school system of Georgia in a recent statement, and what she says, while it will not be agreed to in all quarters, nevertheless will command respect generally. There are a good many people who realize that there is much truth in part, at least, in what she says.

In part, Miss Schley says:

"Almost the first indication that a people manifests of awakening interest in children is their willingness to tax themselves locally and liberally for better schools, better school-houses, better teachers and better teaching.

"The school of permanent influence is dependent upon local pride, local initiative, local self-sacrifice and local tax in behalf of good schools, and the problem can be solved in no other way.

"Only two States in the Union attempt to solve the common-school problem with great lump sums appropriated out of the State Treasury. Mississippi is one and Georgia is the other; and the rank of these two States in the column of illiteracy is forty-fifth and forty-sixth. During the last twenty years the common-school appropriation of Georgia has been nearly quadrupled, but Georgia's place in the illiteracy column remains exactly the same.

"Ours is a mistaken policy. Nothing is clearer than this. The common-school problem can not be solved in this way. It never was solved this way in any State of the Union.

"Local taxation for schools has begun in Georgia and local school systems are multiplying, but our reliance is still mainly upon legislative appropriation.

"The policy is futile and foolish, and this ought to be said bravely and convincingly in every community in Georgia.

"We shall never have country schools of permanent influence without the local pride that is equal to a local school tax. Twenty-nine counties in the State have county-wide local-tax school systems. There ought to be 148 such counties in Georgia, all of them under adequate, efficient supervision."

"Had I Known He Wrote That Book He Never Would Have Been Confirmed." He Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Senator Bacon, of Georgia, will appoint a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to read all of the works of Brand Whitlock, former Mayor of Toledo, to learn whether there is anything in them which might disqualify him for the position of Minister to Belgium.

"The Thirteenth District," dealing with political conditions in Toledo, and the "Turn of the Balance," a newspaper story criticising the courts, will be a part of the reading of the subcommittee when appointed.

The censorship established by the Senate committee began shortly after the confirmation of Walter H. Page as Ambassador to Great Britain, especially in regard to his novel, "The Southener."

"If I had known in advance that Mr. Page wrote that libel on the South, he would never have been confirmed," said Senator Bacon, to-day. Recently Senator Slattery, of Indiana, was assigned to read all of the published works of Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, of the University of Wisconsin, who was sent to China as Minister.

The members of the Senate committee sympathize entirely with Senator Bacon's plan of literary censorship, but it is probable the subcommittee will get down to work when appointed.

Hollis, of Rutledge, Ga., started for his home this afternoon with his sister, Miss Mamie Hollis, the school teacher, whose mind broke down while teaching at Fort Bude, near here, she insisted that he intended to harm her and made him take her to the Sheriff's office, where she appealed to the chivalry of the deputies, saying that if they did not protect her she would make England turn its guns on this country. She insisted her brother was intoxicated, though it was apparent to all that this was not true.

Ladies! Men! Here's the Quick-est, Surest Dandruff Cure Known.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scourge. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now any time—will surely save your hair, get a trading bottle of Knowledge's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.—Adv.

TURNER LIKELY TO GET ONLY A REPRIMAND

Committee Investigating 'Graft' Charges Not Expected to Consider Impeachment Action.

Reports in political circles are that the conclusion of the sensational 'graft' investigation of City Electrician Turner will be a severe reprimand for Turner by the investigating committee.

Mayor Woodward has been a constant attendant at the meetings, and even he has no positive opinions about what should be done.

The investigating committee, composed of the Board of Electrical Control and the Council Electric Light Committee, will meet Friday to make up its report.

Turner Put on Grill. The most interesting feature of the close of the investigation Thursday afternoon was the grilling of Electrician Turner.

He presented a large number of receipts showing, he said, his campaign disbursements.

"The receipts don't seem to correspond with the dates on which you received the payments from the Electric Company," said Chambers.

"I can't help that," replied Turner. "Can you tell me a single man or corporation to whom you paid this money?" insisted Chambers.

"The receipts show it," said Turner. "The question was repeated several times with no more direct response from Turner."

"Mr. Chairman, interposed Attorney Carl Hutcheson, "he has answered that question forty times."

"No, no, not that many," said Chambers. "I think the attorney must be confused by thinking of 'Forty Thieves.'"

"Now, you need not get so personal," replied Hutcheson, coloring. "You're a young man," said Chambers.

"Yes, and able to take care of myself," answered Hutcheson. Chairman Haverty said such remarks would not be permitted and the hearing was resumed.

Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripes or sicken.—Adv't.

General Wood to Tour World After He Retires in April

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—When Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States Army, retires from active service on April 22 next he will make a tour of the world, it was learned today. General Wood will make a study of the armies of the great powers.

Secretary of War Garrison served notice today that friends of army officers had better not attempt to use political influence when a successor to General Wood is picked, saying: "I consider it just as much of an impertinence for anyone to try to influence me in my selection of a personal military aide, which is the function of the chief of staff, as it would be to try to influence my selection of a wife."

Lauds Prison Here as He Sentences Robber

SAVANNAH, Dec. 12.—In sentencing George A. Sheppard paid a unique tribute to the management. "I shall send you to the Atlanta prison to cure you of this morphine habit," said the judge. "There they give prisoners in a case like this the best treatment and proper care. I have seen other men in your condition go to this place and come out cured."

Burns was ready to undertake the search provided enough money was forthcoming. There is earnest talk of raising it by subscription.

HAMMOND URGES U. S. TO KEEP TRUST LAW

But Would Put Federal Curb on Capitalization and Permit 'Agreements.'

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Maintenance of the Sherman anti-trust law and Federal control of corporations was advocated today by John Hays Hammond, capitalist and mining expert, before the New York City Federation. Mr. Hammond, who spoke on the subject, "Should the Sherman Anti-trust Law Be Amended?" said: "To remedy the potential evils of trusts the Federal anti-trust law—the Sherman act—was passed in 1890, but until the past few years it has been in a state of innocuous desuetude."

"Unfortunately, it has been invoked too frequently in recent years to punish the offenders rather than to prevent the offense. Its application has been destructive, rather than conservative and constructive."

"I favor maintaining the basic principle of the Sherman anti-trust law until a new, substantial law shall be enacted to protect the interests of the public against possible aggression on the part of the trusts."

"One of the most serious evils resulting from 'big business' is ascribable to the overcapitalization of industrial corporations, which results in the enhanced cost of their products to the consumer, since the cost of production is based not only upon the actual cash invested, but also upon the watered stock issued upon the promoters' profits."

"The public does not so much object to paying prices which would allow adequate earnings on the actual financial investment as it does to overcapitalization on the basis of overcapitalization."

"For Federal License. This is a strong argument in favor of the enactment of a Federal incorporation law—or of a Federal license, which directly attains the same end—having as one of its functions the power to determine the amount of capitalization of industrial corporations. We believe the certain classes of industrial corporations doing interstate business should be compelled to incorporate under such a law."

Mr. Hammond said he believed that the Government should sanction business amalgamations (agreements, he called them), and cited the fact that independent coal operators throughout the South and Middle West were losing money through competition.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The proposal that the Government appropriate for an exhibit at the Panama Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915 which had been agreed to by the budget committee yesterday was withdrawn today instead of being put before the Reichstag for debate, as had been planned.

The proposal, which called for an appropriation of $500,000, was opposed by members of the Cabinet.

DEBUT AT BENEFIT FOR ELLERY BAND

Noted Musical Organization Comes to Atlanta for Series of High-Class Concerts.

Channing Ellery is in Atlanta with his big band to begin a series of concerts Friday night at the Auditorium-Armory, after being introduced in a special performance at the Star Matinee at the Atlanta Theatre Friday afternoon, given for the Empty Stocking Fund.

Mr. Ellery, his band, and two celebrated Scotch singers will be on the Star Matinee bill—a feature the like of which never has been offered in vaudeville. After the matinee Mr. Ellery is to be the guest of honor at a reception by the Atlanta Music Festival Association at Hotel Ansley at 5 o'clock.

The programs to be offered at the Ellery concerts will be a careful selection of artistic and popular music. Perhaps the most remarkable features of the big band are its instrumental combinations, as heard in the perennial sextet from "Lucia," and that equally popular quartet from "Rigoletto."

The opening program includes "William Tell Overture," Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," selections from "Madame Butterfly," and Liszt's great symphony, "Les Preludes."

The two Scotch singers, Thomas Wallace and Bayne Young, tenor and baritone, have been decided features of the present Ellery concert tour, their repertoire including operatic work, ballads, and—especially in the case of Mr. Young—humorous songs.

Tickets in advance for any performance may be had at the Cable Music Company and at Phillips & Crew.

TO SET 30 MINUTES AS PARKING LIMIT

Council Expected to Pass Ordinance Monday as Recommended—Zones Are Fixed.

The only important change in the new traffic law that will be recommended to Council Monday will be of interest to the women shoppers who drive their own automobiles. No machine will be allowed to be parked in the shopping district for more than 30 minutes at a time, but the section of the bill as drafted by the joint committee of the Council and the Chamber of Commerce prohibiting the parking of machines on Peachtree and Whitehall and several tributary streets unless in charge of a chauffeur has been stricken. This provision was considered to be especially discriminatory against women who drive electric cars.

Beaumont Davidson, representing the Whitehall street department stores, insisted that this change be made, and that the parking limit time be made 60 minutes. He said that no woman could shop in 30 minutes.

The zone in which parking is to be restricted was changed. On Peachtree and Whitehall streets it is to be from Forrest avenue to Mitchell street. The eastern limit is Pryor street and the western Forsyth street. This provision reduces considerably the limit prescribed in the original ordinance.

No street car will be allowed to stand within the zone for more than two minutes at a time. These changes were made by the Aldermanic Board, acting as a committee of the whole, and indications are that the ordinance will be adopted as recommended by the committee.

HUERTA MADE CZAR OF MEXICO BY CONGRESS; HIS POWERS ABSOLUTE

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—General Huerta's authority as dictator of Mexico has been strengthened by extraordinary powers conferred upon him by the Chamber of Deputies, which adjourned early to-day after a stormy session.

Huerta's power was made absolute during the recess which the Chamber will take from next Monday until April 1. The legislative and executive branches of the Government will be under the absolute domination of Huerta, and he will have authority to change the 1914 budget at will.

Several of the Deputies protested against the action of the Chamber because of the affront it gives to the United States Government, but they were shouted down.

A committee was appointed to call upon General Huerta at the National Palace to-day and inform him of the action taken by the Chamber.

General Huerta is allowed to sell government property at his own discretion, as the result of the sweeping privileges conferred upon him.

The Chamber also approved the electoral law calling for another Presidential election next July, and granted a concession to a British group of capitalists to build a railroad from Ameca to Porta Pena on the west coast.

Federals in North Rally for Campaign.

PRESIDIO, TEXAS (By United States Army Telephone to Maria), Dec. 12.—The Federal army, which fled to the border and is now occupying Ojinaga, has been ordered by General Huerta to try to retake Chihuahua City from the Constitutionalists, under General Villa.

General Pascual Orozco, commander of the Federals in Ojinaga, said today that a council of war would be held upon the arrival of General Merino, Military Governor of the State of Chihuahua, and plans will then be made for a campaign.

It is probable that the Federals will try to get between Juarez and Chihuahua City in an effort to take both cities.

"We will have 12,000 men here in a short time," said Orozco. "That is more than Villa has, and we are better equipped."

Senor Pinada, a wealthy Mexican ranch owner who is temporarily living here, is entertaining Luis Terrazas and members of his family. Senor Terrazas, who is one of the wealthiest men in Mexico, received word to-day that his son, Luis Terrazas, Jr., who was taken from the British consulate in Chihuahua City by the Constitutionalists, had been executed, but he doubted the truth of the message.

Anxiety is felt for General Mercado, and scouts have been sent southward to look for him. General Mercado and General Rojas commanded the rear guard of the troops defending the caravan of refugees and have with them about 2,500 troops and a battery of artillery. Rebels under General Huertera pursued Mercado's troops, but the Federal generals in Ojinaga believe that the Federals could give a good account of themselves.

The Federal soldiers were put into better spirits to-day by an announcement that the Mexican Government has $200,000 on deposit in El Paso banks and that it will be used for the payment of the troops.

Terrific Fighting Still on at Tampico.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Terrific fighting continues at Tampico, according to wireless dispatches from Rear Admiral Fletcher received at the Navy Department to-day.

The wireless, dated last night, stated that 150 British refugees had sought refuge on board the steamer gunboat Wheeling and the cruiser Cecille and 150 Americans on the gunboat Wheeling and the cruiser Chester. Five hundred more foreigners have sought refuge in the neutral zone, which is guarded by the guns of the foreign warships.

The Federal gunboat Bravo shelled the Constitutional position all day yesterday, Admiral Fletcher reported, but apparently did little damage to the rebel stronghold. No Americans or other foreigners have been injured and their property has been respected by both sides.

NURSES WARN AGAINST COLORED XMAS CANDY

Miss Nellie Middleton, Grady Hospital nurse, telling Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Griffin, dangers of eating candy poisoned with coloring material.

Child Welfare Experts Tell Why Dyed Goodies Are Poisonous to Young Stomachs.

"Warn that brightly-colored Christmas candy!"

Not wishing to cast the slightest shadow on the happiness of the children in the approaching holidays, the women in charge of the Child Welfare Show nevertheless were impelled to issue this solemn warning to the fathers and mothers of Atlanta Friday.

Candy—if it is in judicious quantities—is not the worst thing that can be given to the little folks, the Child Welfare experts will admit grudgingly.

But one must be sure that it does not contain any of the poisonous coloring materials used to make attractive the well-known confections of variegated and eye-stunning hues.

Striking Exhibit Shown. They have rather a striking exhibit in the old Lyden house at No. 128 Peachtree street to drive this warning home.

There are candies of the most brilliant carmine, blue, green, yellow, and red, and candies of every color of the rainbow. They are attractive. It is no wonder they hypnotize the youngsters.

But along with the candies are pieces of cloth and whole garments that have been dyed deeply with the poisonous coloring matter taken from small quantities of the candy. Coal tar dyes, for the most part, are used in the cheaper candies.

How Does It Look Inside? "How do you suppose your child looks on the inside after eating this candy?" is one of the pertinent queries on one of the placards near a can of green confections.

"Buy candy for the children, if you wish," said one of the women Friday, "but when you do so, be sure it is of high grade and is without deleterious dyes. It is not unusual for children

GUNMEN BATTLE OVER THIEVING AT BIKE RACE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—More than 100 shots were fired early to-day in a battle between rival gangsters outside of Madison Square Garden, where the six-day bike race is being held.

One man was wounded, but he was whisked away in an automobile and the police did not learn his name.

The fight is said to have arisen over the "strong arm" privileges. These are "privileges" of gambling and stealing watches and jewelry from the crowds watching the race.

Passengers on a southbound Madison avenue car, which passed at the height of the battle, threw themselves

CONGRESS PLANS TO BAR RADICAL IMMIGRANTS

Believers in Sabotage and Members of Revolutionary Societies Under Ban in Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Absolute exclusion of militant suffragists, believers in sabotage and all members of revolutionary societies in Russia and other foreign countries, is provided under an amendment recently adopted by the House Immigration Committee to the pending immigration bill.

When the adoption of this amendment became known here this afternoon it caused the utmost surprise. Its acceptance by Congress would prevent the United States becoming a haven for political refugees.

The amendment debar from the United States all persons believing in the destruction of property or belonging to revolutionary organizations. It is the most sweeping ever proposed by a committee of either house.

Representative James Mahan, of Minnesota, Progressive Republican, led the fight against the amendment. Representative A. P. Gardner, recently a Republican candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, is reported to have voted for it, along with the Democratic majority. Representative Burnett, of Alabama, is chairman of the committee.

This attempt to abolish the traditional "right of asylum" for political radicals fleeing from foreign lands to the United States is expected to arouse instant protest throughout the country. When the immigration bill was before the Senate last year, Senator La Follette attacked Senator Root for having placed in the bill a mild provision which might exclude revolutionists.

Burglars Get Little In 2 Peachtree Raids

Proprietors of two Peachtree stores opened their places of business Friday morning to find that burglars had been there during the night. Nothing of value was taken.

Burglars forced an entrance into the Yancey Hardware Company at No. 134 Peachtree street and ransacked the stock. They got four revolvers. They entered on the Forsyth street side of the building. The L. W. Rogers store at No. 109 Peachtree street also was visited, presumably by the same persons. The cash register was broken open, but the robbers got nothing, because the day's receipts had been banked the night before.

Methodists Oppose Carnegie's Millions

TALLAHASSEE, FLA., Dec. 12.—Resolutions indorsing the action of the bishops in refusing the offer of $1,000,000 made by Andrew Carnegie to Vanderbilt University, were passed by the Florida Conference of the Methodist Church, in session here. This follows similar action by conferences in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and other States.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS.

By JAMES B. NEVIN

"There are, I suspect, many hundreds of automobiles in Georgia that are not properly licensed and numbered, and if the owners thereof knew they were guilty of a misdemeanor in this matter, I feel sure they would apply and get their tags," said Secretary of State Phil Cook to-day.

"I have had reported to me from one town alone 36 unlicensed cars. I, however, am not the man to whom these reports should be made. If they are made to the Sheriff of the county it will be his duty to arrest the owners of unnumbered cars.

"The punishment for using an unlicensed car is $1,000 fine or twelve months in the chain-gang, either or both, or any part of either or both. I do not think there should be a single unnumbered car in the State, and a few arrests would bring about such a condition, I feel sure.

"We have issued nearly 24,000 numbers so far, and I guess we should have issued over 25,000.

"There is another very widespread misapprehension about the automobile law that is going to get somebody into trouble sooner or later, and this should be regulated, too. Many people seem to think that the State gives a courtesy of 30 days to all cars brought into the State, and a few arrests would bring about such a condition, I feel sure.

"The Governor has been requested to increase the Georgia committee on next year's world-wide celebration of the peace part of Ghent, which was concluded between England and the United States, following the unpopularity of 1812—from five to fifty or a hundred.

"This committee was named originally several years ago by Governor Joseph M. Terrell, but since that time the scope of the proposed celebration has been very greatly widened, and it is the very earnest desire of its promoters to make it of as great significance as possible.

"The Governor will comply with the request and will name two or more members from each Senatorial district in the State. After the committee has been named those at the head of the movement will inform the committeemen of the program as at present outlined and as to the work yet remaining to be done.

HARRIS DEFENDS POISON ANALYSES IN CRAWFORD WILL CONTEST HEARING

Defending the color test as an authoritative method of determining approximately the amount of morphine and meconic acid in the human body, reiterating his former testimony that undoubtedly much of the morphine which originally was in the body of Joshua B. Crawford must have disappeared in the four years intervening between death and the post-mortem examination, and expressing the expert opinion that the seed farmer did not die of pneumonia, Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the State Board of Health, gave the most important testimony at the concluding session of the famous Crawford will contest hearing Friday.

The hearing was brought to a sudden close Friday by the announcement of Auditor James L. Anderson that he was "going to conclude the case to-day." Attorney James then announced that he would, under these conditions, just place two witnesses on the stand.

They were Dr. Harris and Dr. John Funke, professor of pathology and bacteriology at the Atlanta Medical College.

Defense Evidence Attacked.

They were placed on the stand in rebuttal of the testimony of the defense, and the questions propounded of Dr. Harris by Attorney James were met with constant objections from the defense's counsel.

The defense scored on Dr. Harris' testimony when he admitted that a

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was Miss Georgia Owen, of Douglasville; brothers, John D. Wester, president of the Western Music Company, of this city; W. P. Wester, of Palmetto, and Frank Wester, of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. James Nell, of Palmetto.

Mr. Wester for the last fifteen years had been connected with the Industrial Life Insurance Company of this city.

The body will be taken Saturday morning to Palmetto for funeral and interment at Sardis, the family burying ground.

Dorothy Arnold Now Missing Three Years

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—This is the third anniversary of the disappearance of Dorothy Arnold, a mystery which will go down in history as a parallel of the famous Charley Ross case.

The Dorothy Arnold case was recalled with marked vividness because of its similarity to the disappearance of Miss Jessie McCann, for whom the police are hunting now. They believe she is safe and will be found. The Arnold family has spent a fortune searching for Miss Arnold, but every clue proved fruitless.

3 Cities Dark After Fire in Power Plant

ANDERSON, S. C., Dec. 12.—Fire at the hydro-electric plant of the Southern Power Company at Portman Shoals, ten miles below Anderson, has seriously crippled that plant, which supplies electricity to Anderson, Greenwood and Abbeville, and power to two of the cotton mills and the street railway system of Anderson. The cotton mills have been forced to shut down, but the street railway is operating through power from Ware Shoals.

The damage is estimated at $25,000.

LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS HURT OR YOU'RE BACKACHY AND RHEUMATIC

Meat Forms Uric Acid, Which Clogs Kidneys; Causes Rheumatism and Irritates Bladder.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weakened, thus suffering with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here and use a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Advt.

MISTRIAL IN LEE SUIT; JURY OUT 24 HOURS

Sisters' Contest - Over $40,000 Estate, in Court Three Weeks, Entails Heavy Cost.

The Lee will case, in which the two daughters of Mrs. Emma G. Lee were contesting over her $40,000 estate, was declared a mistrial Friday morning by Judge Bell after the jury had been out 24 hours without arriving at a decision.

The vote throughout the jury's deliberations was reported to have stood seven in favor of the contention of Mrs. Maud Lee Thompson, and five for Mrs. LaRue Lee Mizell.

After deliberating several hours Thursday afternoon the jury asked Judge Bell for a recharge on the question of "undue influence" and the soundness of mind required in the signing of the will. The judge gave the charge.

At midnight, after much argument, which could be heard beyond the confines of the jury room, the balliffs in charge were advised that some members of the jury were sleeping, and the jury was escorted to a hotel. At 7 o'clock Friday morning they resumed consideration.

The case has occupied three weeks in the Superior Court. The cost of the litigation has totaled several thousands of dollars to be paid out of the estate of Mrs. Emma G. Lee. The cost of the jury alone will amount to more than $800.

Plenty of Drinks For 'Maddest Night'

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Mayor Kline to-day announced that he would issue all-night liquor licenses to saloons and restaurants for New Year's eve, which is the merriest, maddest night of the entire year in New York.

From a benevolent standpoint, the celebration this year promises to be a great success. Only twenty all-night licenses were issued last New Year's eve by Mayor Gaynor.

Society Aroused Over Dance Matron Law

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 12.—Society of this city was indignant over the new ordinance requiring a dance matron appointed by the superintendent of police at every social event at which dancing is permitted.

A. C. Duff, in whose place twelve casks of whisky were found, was sentenced to six months in the work house and fined $50. The judge suspended five months of the sentence until the next term of court, when it will be decided whether he shall serve the full six months.

Thief Gets Woman's Auto From Street

The mother advertised for the return of the picture without question.

First Money Sent Under Parcel Post

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—The first shipment of cash by parcel post known to the postoffice authorities was made to-day when a purse containing $862 was mailed at the Chicago postoffice. Hunt went home, forgetting the purse, and wired back asking the hotel management to forward it to him by parcel post.

So let everybody who will play the role of Santa Claus, and all the children come and see the new, fresh toys that are going to gladden young hearts on Christmas morning.

Atlanta seems to have wanted and needed such a toy store as this—the crowds that have been coming and laughing and admiring attest it.

The toys are different!

Have you heard the kitty meow? A little girl hearing it the other day, looked all around and not finding it, asked: "Muvver, where is kitty?"

Have you seen the sly bunny that pushes her head out of a cabbage and nibbles it, then suddenly hides herself again?

It's a fine toy store—and all is ready for the busiest day of the season—Saturday.

There Is a Window Display of Gift Furniture

that we would call to the attention of all who would give a gift to be serviceable and elegant for years. It reflects the comprehensive variety of small pieces that were gathered for the Christmas season. Are you undecided as to what to give mother, father, wife—a good friend who delights in her house-keeping? No question but this display will be helpful. See it.

Tabloid Tales

WHAT, Mother Mine, is meant by "becoming philosophical?" It means, Little One, the realization that we are joggling along very comfortably and happily without that to-day which yesterday we were convinced we could not live without.

Why, Mother, do you think it is such a good thing for every man to marry? Because, My Child, most men would swell up and burst with conceit if they did not marry and have some of the conceit taken out of them.

Who, Mother, is your ideal of a Happy Man?

The crazy man, Daughter, with the State taking care of him, and unlimited time to talk and handle big enterprises. He is the happy man; it is his same kin who are the miserable ones.

What, Mother, is the difference between a woman's conscience and a man's?

A woman's conscience, Little One, hurts her when she tells a lie. A man's hurts him when he had a chance to tell a lie and didn't.

Who invented the cooking stove, Mother Dear?

A man, My Child, and ever after that when he saw something good coming out of the oven he said to himself, "What a good cook I am!"

Why, Mother, is a man always called a woman's protector?

For the reason, Little One, that it is his natural inclination to protect her from other men imposing on her, preferring to do all the imposing himself.

Was ever a compliment entirely satisfactory, Dearest Mother?

Never never, Child, for if the wording gave satisfaction there is always the complaint that those who pay us compliments don't talk loud enough. The man who has mean things to say always makes himself heard.

What, Mother, is a genius? There are many kinds, Little One, but in one particular they are all alike. A genius is one who makes life uncomfortable for all around him.

Is it true, Mother, as the men claim, that the ink bottle at home is always empty and the pen never to be found?

Not always, Child. When a man's foolstreak is in control, and he wants to write something he shouldn't, the ink pot is never empty and the pen is always lying beside it and in perfect repair.

The Gold Witch finds an old harp—an instrument she loves. In the dimming twilight Tom and his father steal in to listen. As the exquisite notes throbb out, shadowy pictures form in the dusk. To Tom they are visions of a happy future; to his father bitter-sweet memories of the past—of his ward's mother, whom he loved but did not marry.

Wearing Kimono to Breakfast

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Is it proper to wear a kimono to breakfast in a boarding house? What do you mean by "proper"—what sort of a boarding house do you live in?

I have seen girls come down to breakfast in a mob cap and a hooded jacket, and by the way they crooked their little finger and had such a time tipping their coffee, it was easy to see that they imagined themselves the most charming and fascinating of creatures—but they weren't.

They really were not—at all! It takes the prettiest woman in the world to look pretty in a kimono—it is almost as bad as a bathing suit when it comes to showing up every defect that a girl has and ought not to have.

Besides, it really is a bit negligible for a boarding-house table—don't you think so, Morene?

It is all very well to read about the charmers in satin peignoirs and dainty gold heeled slippers—that's in a book where a girl can cry and look pretty at the same time.

Out of a book a peignoir or a kimono, or a dressing jacket, are fit for just exactly one place in the world, and that is in your own room.

NO USE.

You won't fascinate the young book-keeper who sits opposite with that kimono—you'll just make him wish you would take time to dress yourself before you come to breakfast.

Don't make any mistake, my dear, the one thing a man really ever gets it into his head that you are lacking in that, nothing in the world that you can do will make him really respect you again.

Get yourself a couple of neat pretty little house dresses. You can find them in the wash frock department of any of the big shops.

THE WASH DRESS.

Blue and pink and lavender and flowered—all colors, all styles, all prices—I have seen very neat, pretty little blue wash dresses for sale at a dollar and a half—get one of those, do your hair in a pretty simple knot and you'll look as sweet as a peach and feel sure that you are doing the right thing at the same time.

Hang the kimono up on the last nail in your closet and never think of wearing it outside your own room. That's a nice, sweet, sensible, modest girl.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT

"Twenty-five dollars! Why! You ain't a bad sort! Thank you." He went slowly toward the door, revolving the whole matter in his sudden old mind. Suddenly he stopped, took off the old gray cap he had donned preparatory to exit, and stood a moment twirling it in his hands—seeking for some adequate expression of a strange gratitude he felt.

"Say!" he cried a bit huskily, at last. "You ain't a bad sort—you sure ain't! Go home, kid!"

"No!" cried the boy from behind his barrier of trembling hands. "TOMES A SWELL PLACE, BOY! YOU'LL KNOW IT WHEN YOU GET OLD LIKE ME, AND AIN'T GOT ONE!"

And so good-bye to Jim! And so good-bye to all the fotsam and jetsam of life—the men and women who, having no ideals, have none to give their children—who, making no home for their children in their youth, are given none by their children in old age.

Kenneth sat alone, sunk in his posture of helpless, hopeless weakness and despair. The sunlight streamed in his window—the golden sunlight of the high meridian of noon and the high tide of life and day that follows it.

At last the boy raised his gray young face from his hands. He looked curiously—inquiringly—at the sunlight. His own life lay in gray shadow—in black despair—and regret—but the sun went on shining.

Deserted! The dull curiosity and question remained a moment longer on his face. Then he looked about him. Deserted! How tawdry the room in which he sat—how tawdry the causes that had brought him here. His face hardened. What was the use of thinking about it all?

"The moving finger writes—and having writ— Moves on. Nor all our piety and wit Shall lure it back to cancel half a line— Nor all our tears wash out a word of it!"

Quaintly the old strain from the verse of Omar the Tentmaker sang its mournful cadence through his brain. What was the use? he thought again. A deadly determination came over his face. His eyes took on a faraway look—a look of one who has no concern in life—who sees some goal—beyond—beyond. And unless some one who loved him truly and wisely and well could banish that look—and banish that look SOON, Kitty May's revenge on the house of Nelson must be so horrible that even she would look on it in sorrow and terror and remorse.

At last the boy got up. On his face the deadly determination deepened so that the shadow of it must fall across the mind of whoever beheld him. But would any one come in time?

He crossed over into his unkempt bedroom, and came back at last with a writing case. He sat at the table and began a letter. His pen trembled across the paper for a few lines. He could not summon the strength or the coherent thought to go on. He crumpled the sheet and threw it on the floor.

The Mother's Appeal.

He walked over to the window and looked down—eleven flights—there was sunshine down there on the cold white stone—he could almost see a black thing lying huddled there—a stream of red ooze, oozing—the boy shuddered back from the window and his own horrible vision as if some power to impel him lay in the frame of the window.

Not that way! He came back and picked up the phone. "1111 Plaza," he said—the Alpine Apartments—his father. His mind worked on remorselessly while the operator was calling.

"No! No! Wait! I don't want it—it is a mistake—I don't want it!" He put the phone down—and crossed slowly toward the door—at the other side of the corridor lay Kitty's room—perhaps that was the place—the place—for doing it!

There was a knock at the door toward which he was advancing with slow, haunted footsteps. He stopped with a frightened gasp, and stood tense and quiet—listening.

The knock was repeated. He made no noise—he scarcely dared breathe. A look of cunning crossed his face. There was a side door—he could go down the back corridor and reach—and reach Kitty's room. He would do it that way, on tiptoe, noiselessly he crept toward the door. He reached it, turned the handle, took one step out into the corridor.

The other door opened—and his mother stood just within his room. She hesitated, frozen with a nameless foreboding that she saw him.

The boy turned, looked at his mother on tiptoe, noiselessly he crept toward the door. He reached it, turned the handle, took one step out into the corridor.

look like that? Where is—the woman?" "Gone! You will be glad of that!" Something in his voice impelled her—frightened her—drew her! She came forward toward him—toward the wayward son for whom sweet Mary Burke had pleaded with the eloquence born of her love, adding softness to her gentle voice. Emily Nelson spoke tenderly now.

"Ken! Come home!" "The boy's voice seemed to come back to her from far away." "HAVE YOU A HOME? I DON'T THINK SO! IF YOU'D EVER HAD A HOME—THINGS MIGHT HAVE BEEN DIFFERENT! I'M GOING NOW—GOOD-BYE!"

"Going where?" "Quite a journey, mother—and I have a lot to do—so—"

Emily Nelson came closer; that nameless terror was clutching at her heart. She wondered if it were something she could fight.

"I can't let you go. I could not remain away any longer. I scarcely needed Mary to tell me to come—to come at once—Kenneth, I am a foolish woman, I know, but I need you. Mary and I will love you—love you like mother and sister—we'll make a home for you."

"Mary—love me! I'm not fit! And like a sister!"

The boy laughed as one who sees a vision of treasure he may never own—of the promised land he may never enter.

"I need you, Ken!" "His Determination." "I'm sorry—but I can't help you. Sorry—but I can't! I must go. I must make sure that Kitty has not left any of my letters. She was—was always careless—and I don't want anything more in the papers to humiliate father after I have gone away. HE HAS HAD ENOUGH OF HUMILIATION. I UNDERSTAND ALL OF THAT NOW!"

He turned and walked toward his bedroom—there was a sort of strength in his weakness. There was implacable determination in his step.

"I brought you some money, dear," ventured the mother hopefully.

"Thank you, no. I have all that I shall need," answered Kenneth quietly. He spoke with a slow dignity. Perhaps Socrates, with his cup of hemlock in his hand, looked like that. Perhaps the young martyrs died in the arena with such a look of far-away exultation—the end could only mean peace—and rest.

terror seemed to fill the room with a chill mist through which she could just see her son—but through which the warmth of her love could not penetrate to reach him. He stood far aloof—wrapped in cold dignity.

"Yes—I will come back for a moment. Then I must go." But would he come back—ever? Emily Nelson walked over to the table and looked about anxiously—there must be some clue—some alien presence in the room to make her feel as she did.

The Letter.

Finally she sat in the great chair drawn to the table—she picked up Kenneth's pen lidly enough. There was ink on it. It marked her white glove. Fresh ink! But no letter—no scrap of writing on the table! She looked around.

On the floor lay the crumpled letter. She stooped and picked it up. Smoothing it out, she read the few lines Kenneth had traced there. As she read her face blanched with fear—and horror. She looked fearfully toward the inner room—Ken's bedroom. She heard nothing. She could scarcely rise from her chair to walk toward the room. At last she trembled to her feet. Then she heard Ken moving about—heard a sound of tearing paper. A moment's respite! He had said he would come back. She must keep him—from that long journey—that journey that knows no return—she must keep him somehow. She stood thinking—a mother's love—was that strong enough? Strong! Strong! A father's strength! For one second only she hesitated—then she seized the telephone.

"Plaza 1171! Quickly! Quickly!" Her accents were agonized. Her voice was tense and low and as she waited her tortured nerves telegraphed for energy to her brain which was being drained by the steady demands on it for power to meet this torture.

"Hello Mr. Nelson? Mr. Charles Nelson! Oh, are you sure? Where? Yes, yes, thank you."

She rang off—then at once she called again. "Hello! The Engineers' Club! I don't know the number—but it is so important. Thank you!"

She put the phone down—then crept across the room, with fear and trembling and horror marking every step for agonized waiting—and stood listening for signs of life from her son's room. Then she went back to the phone, waiting in an agony of impatience, sinking weakly at last into the chair as the faint ring she must muffle from Ken's ears came to her own strained hearing.

"The Engineers' Club? Mr. Charles Nelson is lunching there. Please call him—it is of great importance."

"Yes, you will come back," she insisted. "You promise me." The nameless

"Yes—fine fellow, too, Mike—how long you been on the force?" "About five years—goin' on five," replied Donnell precisely.

"It's a meal ticket," replied the policeman, grinning confidentially. "Which is the best on the average—the salary or the pickings?" asked Larry.

Donnell grinned. "Pickings. What's that?" in a tone of great innocence. "A policeman who doesn't know what 'pickings' is. Let me illustrate"—and the air suddenly had a large chunk of itself removed between a rapacious thumb and forefinger.

"Have a cigar, Donnell." Slowly a scarlet handed perfecto was switched from a pocket and carried through the air to just where Donnell could get its full fine aroma. Then, as the Captain tried to hand his gift to the waiting recipient, his fingers became very stiff and awkward and the cigar slipped to the floor. Still clutching the camera with his left hand Donnell stooped after his "pickings"—and that was Holbrook's cigar. By the time Donnell had acquired his cigar, the tell-tale plateholder had gone to join the booty in the pocket of the Captain's dinner coat.

As he stooped Donnell managed to articulate: "Yes, but you know this ain't New York."

And as he slipped the plate holder into his pocket Larry answered with knowledge: "Yes—but a policeman is a policeman the world over."

"I guess that ain't no lie," replied Donnell. Larry was fairly bursting with jubilant friendliness now.

"You're all right, Donnell—and if anything ever happens to you here—your foot slips—and you never can tell when it will—maybe I could help you get a start in the BIG town."

"Think you could, sir?" "Indeed—and I do."

And Larry was ready to welcome back to the room even such a dangerous foe as the chief and the inspector. "Chief, I don't suppose we can get back to the filibustering matter to-night?" he queried.

"No—captain—this has put a crimp in it."

"Well, any time I can assist you—"

"Not to-night. . . ."

"Oh, I guess we have the matter fairly well in hand," answered Dempster. For one moment that gave Holbrook pause. But he thought of the pockets of his dinner jacket and the sleeve of his topcoat and took heart of grace.

He looked his coat over his arm and set his gray fedora on his head after a comprehensive sweep and salute.

"Well—if you're sure there is nothing I can do—good night."

And he thought the battle won. But the battle had not yet begun. Over the table in his den sprawled the dead spider—poisonous, dangerous even in death. And in a dainty bedroom not far away a girl was starting out into the night with eyes that were learning to look on horror.

The men Holbrook led behind him in the spider's den went on with their grim business of tracking every possible clue that led to the destroyer of the poison creature before them. And the sprawling thing that had once been called by his fearful victims a dangerous and powerful man lay undisturbed across the table where he had fallen.

In one dead hand he still clutched the file on which he had carefully pinned letters that might wreck for fair women a possession more precious than the poisoned and venomous life that had just been taken from him. And the rich trappings and comforts of the great den were masterless until the law should give them to the frightened boy to whom Flagg had left a dangerous heritage—the knowledge that human weakness may be preyed upon by that most despicable of all human weaknesses—greed.

The sleuth hounds of the law went on with their work.

"Have you looked over that safe?" said Inspector MacIntyre.

"Not thoroughly—no," answered the chief.

Tommy volunteered a bit of information now. "Oh, there's a box there—that will help you, I am sure." Now that Holbrook had given the boy's attitude of reticence had changed. What influence had this "world man" whom Almie loved and her father hated over the boy Tommy? Was it the strength of a man who had learned in far and strange lands to control weak natures to his own uses—or was it some power stronger than his very self working through Lawrence Holbrook for the protection of a cowering victim turned destroyer when at bay?

"What box?" asked the inspector.

"A tin box, sir, with my uncle's private papers."

"What kind of papers?"

"Why papers, sir—letters."

JACKSON-ALSO P WEDDING TO BE PRETTY SOCIAL EVENT

The wedding of Miss Ella Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Jackson, of Atlanta, and Edward Alson, son of Edward B. Also, of New York, will take place Friday evening, and will be one of the most brilliant affairs in the history of Atlanta society.

A large number of guests from a distance are here for the wedding, and prominent young people from many cities will be in attendance.

The list of bridesmaids includes several of this season's debutantes, Miss Edith Bryson, of Savannah, and Miss Ella Vaughn Patterson, of Montgomery, who are Miss Jackson's guests.

Miss Margaret Grant will be maid of honor, and Misses Adgate Ellis, Harriet Calhoun, Katherine Ellis and Mamie Anselmy will be bridesmaids.

John E. Murphy, Clark Howell, Morris Brandon, Colonel William Lawson Peel and Reese Also, of New York, will be ushers. Dr. Also, of Brooklyn, and Dr. John Molloy, of Tennessee, uncles of the bride and bridegroom, will officiate.

The ceremony will take place at the First Methodist Church at 8:30 o'clock. Admission to be by card. A reception for a limited number of guests will follow at the Capital City Club.

Among those here for the wedding are the bridegroom's father, Edward B. Also, of New York, and Mrs. Also; Mr. and Mrs. Reese Also, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Howell Jackson, of Nashville; Mrs. Van Lear Kirkman, of Nashville, and Miss Eunice Jackson and Baxter Jackson, of Nashville, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Granberry, of Nashville.

The series of brilliant pre-nuptial parties for the young couple was started Thursday evening when Miss Katherine Ellis gave a dinner party, preceding the church rehearsal, and Miss Margaret Grant presided at a "souper d'ansant" following the rehearsal.

Final Entertainments Brilliant. Miss Ellis and her guests, Miss Dorothy Aleshire, of Washington, D. C., received in the rose drawing room, and later dinner was served at a table representing an Italian garden, with a fountain decorated with turtle doves and little white pergolas wreathed in pink roses and asparagus fern. Little bisquit urns filled with narcissus and tiny urns holding miniature plants, were further decoration, and little French Cupids were souvenirs. The place cards were turtle doves. The cakes and ices represented valley lilies and orange blossoms, and every detail was artistic and beautiful.

Miss Grant also entertained at her home, where dancing was enjoyed in the ballroom. Later, supper was served in the dining room, where the table was graced with a shower bouquet of bridesmaid roses, Enchantress carnations and narcissus. The cakes and ices were embossed in pink candle shades and other details in pink added to the beauty of the table.

Brice-Douglas. Miss Katharine Brice and Alexander E. Douglas, of Rocky Mount, N. C., formerly of Blackstock, S. C., were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Roshorouh, 33 Washington street, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The house was decorated with palms, ferns and Southern amilax, with a touch of pink in the dining room.

The bride's attendants were her cousin, Miss Caroline Roshorouh, and Miss Hulda Decker, of Lumber City, Ga., both wearing lavender crepe gowns trimmed in pearls and carrying pink carnations.

Miss Mae Cotton, of Cordele, Ga., played the wedding music, and she also wore lavender crepe trimmed in pearls, with a corsage bouquet of pink carnations.

Clyde E. Minges, of Rocky Mount, N. C., was best man. Dr. S. L. Morris, a relative of both the bride and bridegroom, officiated.

The bride entered with her father, W. Watt Brice, wearing her going-away gown of blue cloth with hat of the same shade and she carried a bouquet of bride roses. She wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the bridegroom.

After an informal reception the couple left for Florida on their wedding trip, after which they will be at home in Rocky Mount, where the bridegroom is connected with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

Philharmonic Orchestra Concert. A group of prominent Atlanta singers will assist the Philharmonic Orchestra at its concert Tuesday night by producing the well-known and much-loved sextet from "Lucia," Mrs. Benjamin Elmes, who takes the soprano role, has a voice of beautiful quality and dramatic power; Miss Sylvia Spritz, who will second her, is not only an excellent singer, but a violinist of ability.

Messrs. Bates, Cundell and Ward were all popular and valuable church singers, while Mr. Walters, the baritone, will appear as soloist as well, singing the beautiful "Evening Star," from "Tannhauser," and arias from Mozart's "Figaro" and Verdi's "Falstaff." The latter selection has been made popular by the famous baritone, David Bispham.

For Mrs. Jesse Draper. Mrs. LeRoy Childs will give a tea at the Piedmont Driving Club Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Jesse Draper, a recent bride.

Beautiful Birthday Party. The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Nelson was the scene of a very pretty children's party on Friday, when Miss Margaret Nelson entertained in honor of her eleventh birthday. Christmas colors prevailed in the decorations. The table had as a centerpiece a mound of red roses and silver candlesticks holding tapers. At each cover were miniature Christmas trees holding bonbons and a gift for each guest.

DR. MONTESSORI TELLS HOW TO TRAIN CHILD

Famous Woman Psychologist is Seeking Fund in U. S. for Great School in Rome.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—A wonderful school or laboratory in Rome for the study of child psychology and child development is the aim of Dr. Maria Montessori, the originator of the Montessori method of teaching children, who now is in the United States.

Dr. Montessori, a sweet-faced, motherly little woman, stated that part of the funds for the laboratory project will be raised by a lecture tour in this country.

"As a physician," said Dr. Montessori, explaining the method, "I came to the realization that any pedagogical system that was to be of any permanent value must be based upon the observation of life in the individual. Only by knowing life in the individual could we hope to develop it, and to that end it must be studied during the formative period."

As the biologist drew his conclusions, so Dr. Montessori decided to work. To that end she placed the children in an environment where all the equipment was reduced to such a small measure that they could manage it without assistance and be as responsible as grown-ups.

The children were then permitted to gain impressions through the sense and appropriate the world around them accurately, getting a proper foundation for their lives. They thus gain their education by a natural process of living, and not artificially. They are not taught, but develop and grow, learning being incidental.

"They do exactly what you do after leaving school," was the way Dr. Montessori summed it up. "No rewards or punishments are necessary, and there is no truancy. The children have freedom, but not license. The road to freedom merges into the road to discipline."

EAT NUTS AND SAVE, ADVISES CONGRESSMAN

Food experts to-day heartily endorse the advice, "Eat nuts and live cheaply," given by Congressman B. P. Harrison, of the Sixth Mississippi District, as a solution for the high cost of living.

Representative Harrison is following up his advice by distributing among his colleagues bushels of Mississippi pecans, grown in his home district, and named for him, "The Pat Harrison Pecans."

According to Representative Harrison, a bushel of pecans contains many times the nourishment of a like amount of beef, and is cheaper and easier to handle, besides requiring no cooking and only a good digestion and appetite for sauce.

Young Merchant, Ill With Typhoid, Suicide DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 12.—J. W. Matthews, a prominent merchant, 23 years of age, committed suicide by placing a pistol in his mouth and pulling the trigger.

Matthews had been critically ill for some time with typhoid fever and had small chance for recovery. As the trained nurse stepped out of the room, the patient jumped from the bed, pulled open a washstand drawer, secured the gun and shot himself. Death was instantaneous.

SCHOOLS TEACH COMMERCIAL EFFICIENCY

Los Angeles Pupils Receive Training in Modern Business Ethics in Sixteen-Week Course.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—Los Angeles to-day is the first city in the world to adopt, as a serious proposition, a commercial efficiency course for public schools.

Suggested by business men and approved by Superintendent J. H. Francis and the committee of the whole of the Board of Education, the course was ordered into operation in the public schools by the Board of Education.

Twenty teachers in the intermediate schools—men and women—have begun the study of the new commercial efficiency course in a special class. The course will last sixteen weeks. It will finish about the middle of January and the new course will be placed in operation in the eight intermediate schools at the beginning of the spring term in February.

The course will be taught in the seventh grade of the intermediate schools and in the high schools, and later on will be added to the seventh grade in the grammar schools.

The course as outlined so far includes: 1. Great emphasis on business arithmetic, business, English and penmanship. 2. Efficient business methods applied to the ordinary things of everyday life. 3. Business ethics. 4. Cost of living. 5. Psychology of business. 6. Habits of thrift. 7. Choice of occupations. 8. Different kinds of business conducted in Los Angeles, and opportunities for young men and women in the different occupations. 9. Qualities and qualifications necessary to success. 10. The dignity and importance of a business career. 11. The obligations of a business man or woman to society.

BALL MAGNATES STILL TRYING TO PULL OFF TRADES

Ebbets' $30,000 Bid Goes to Waste as Tinker Refuses to Join Brooklyn Club.

By Frank G. Menke.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Ever been around the Waldorf-Astoria during the National League's baseball work? No? But you'd like to be, eh?

Yes, right you are; there is a crowd there. The regular league season concluded last night, but the game is remaining over for a day or two in the hope of making some sort of trade. How many? Oh, there are perhaps 200 men here connected in one way or another with major league baseball.

What's that? Why have they got that red danger light down at the end of the corridor? Where? Oh, that's not a danger signal; that's Hughie Jennings, of the Tigers, with his hat off.

See that heavy-set, smooth-faced gray-haired fellow over there—the one with a sort of relieved look on his face? That's Charlie Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn team. The reason for the relieved look came last night in the form of a telegram from Joe Tinker, who said that under no circumstances would he submit to being traded to Brooklyn.

Tinker Will Not Join Dodgers.

You see, Ebbets for the past three days has been offering from $25,000 to $30,000 for Tinker's services and he did it so persistently that some folks began to think he was serious about it. But now that Joe announced he wouldn't play with Brooklyn, Charlie won't have to make good his large offer and he's got a large amount of publicity.

That little chap with the bristly mustache is Barnie Dreyfuss, who owns the Pirates. Right, it would be easy to tell him. Most every fellow from Pittsburgh smokes those stogie. See that short, stocky man with the worried look? That's Garry Herrmann, who comes from Cincinnati. Garry is very much worried just now. In the past few days there has been such a mad scramble for the services of Joe Tinker that most magnates have been offering Garry nearly all their worldly possessions in exchange. That caused Garry to have rosy dreams. But now it turned to a nightmare by that Tinker telegram. Now that Garry must make a deal with either the Cubs or the Pirates Garry fears that he may be bamboozled and draw only a couple of bags for Tinker.

Murphy Appears on Scene.

Put your fingers to your ears—no! Here comes that noisy C. Walcott Murphy. If you don't protect your eardrums they'll be in danger of splitting whenever C. Walcott is around. You've murmured it—those clothes that C. Walcott wears certainly are loud.

That ministerial-looking fellow over by the desk—the fellow with the cane and the black-rimmed glasses—that's Harry Hempstead, president of the Giants.

In that group over there are John Foster, secretary of the Giants; Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore International League team; Wilber Robinson, new manager of the Brooklyn; George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves; Jake Daubert, the Brooklyn's first baseman; and Tim Murray, old baseball star and now president of the New England League.

That dark chap standing over by the cigar stand with a cigar in his mouth—yes, the one who just said, "Anybody got an outfielder who can hit 500 they want to sell me?" That's "Chick" Griffith, manager of the Washington team.

Charlie Doan, manager of the Phillies, is the fellow over by the water tank. Charlie is now appearing in vaudeville here this week. The red-faced, portly gentleman talking to him is "Old Cap" Anson, who also is doing a vaudeville stunt in town. "Cap," as you may remember, led the famous Chicago Colts to many a victory back in the eighties and early nineties.

Governor Tener—haven't seen him yet. He was up quite late last night, but he'll be around the lobby here very soon.

The little fellow sitting over there at the writing desk is Miller Huggins, manager of the Cardinals. You'll notice he looks very quiet and subdued, but he can't help that now. He wasn't always that way. Such mannerisms have attached themselves to him since he took up the job of managing a ball team owned by a woman—Mrs. Helen Britton.

MIKE GIBBONS TO KEEP AFTER P. McFARLAND

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Dec. 12.—Following his knock-out win over "Wildcat" Ferns in two rounds here Wednesday night, Mike Gibbons stated this morning that he would renew his efforts to drag Packey McFarland into the ring with him.

Gibbons is being touted here as the greatest welterweight in years, and there are many here who would back him against even George Chip. Gibbons, however, wants to get McFarland into the ring with him. Packey's recent refusal to make weight for Britton proves that the Chicago boy is a lightweight no more, according to Mike.

There is little doubt among fans that a bout between Gibbons and Packey would draw a banner house. It is also likely that Promoter Tortorich will make a stab at landing the choice card. Billy Gibson, of New York, is also not after the scrap, and he is as a personal friend of Packey. It looks as if he has the best chance to match the boys.

Gibbons says he will leave here in a day or two for New York. He has several hours pending there and when asked about his newly developed wallop, Mike simply smiled.

"Wildcat" Ferns is a much disheartened fighter. He does not know yet how it all happened, and is simply pleading with Tortorich to give him a return fight with Gibbons. Ferns says he was led to believe that Gibbons lacked a punch, and therefore failed to guard himself properly. All he asks for is a chance to redeem himself.

NEW CAPTAIN OF TURTLES PLAYER OF JORDAN TYPE

Mike Finn's Field Leader Has Sure Had a Varied Career on Baseball Pastures.

By X-Leaguer. MEMPHIS, Dec. 12.—Jimmy Mullen, the new second sacker secured by Finn, and who will be appointed captain of the club...

Mullen has had the benefit of having played under two of the most successful managers that handle clubs in the American League today.

Mullen first attracted attention as a substitute on Connie Mack's Athletic team. This was in 1904, and he put in the most of his time on the diamond that season as an understudy to Danny Murphy at second base...

While Mullen fielded well enough for the Athletics, he did not do as well as Connie Mack requires, and he was turned over to the Washington team.

Mullen left the Washington team in the middle of the season and joined the Baltimore club, which was under the management of Hugh Jennings. He remained with the Baltimore team until 1905, when he again moved his baseball paraphernalia to another locker, that locker being in the clubhouse of the Newark baseball club.

He only remained with Newark one season, when he again hit the trail. This time his destination was Toronto, to the same league as the two cities in which he had previously played, namely, Baltimore and Newark.

He remained in the Canuck city for two consecutive seasons, and played consistently good ball, being accredited one of the steadiest men in his position in the league.

Toronto disposed of Mullen before the summer of 1912, and he joined the Florida club of the New York State League. His work was quite a factor in landing a pennant for that city in one of the closest races that ever occurred in the New York State League, the last game of the season deciding the winner.

Mullen's valuable player. While Mullen never leads any leagues in hitting nor winds up a season with anything remarkable in the way of a fielding average, he is what is known as a valuable ball player and his work is more appreciated by the ball players than by the spectators.

He has a thorough knowledge of the game and should certainly be of benefit to Stanley this season and will a steady influence over that brilliant but erratic young player.

He is the same type of player as Otto Jordan, who covered second several seasons for the Atlanta club. The effectiveness of this kind of player is greater than is apparent to the average occupant of the grandstand or bleachers.

'Nooga' Boys Expect To Down Athletic Club Five To-morrow

The Atlanta Athletic Club basketball team had better be prepared for a fierce struggle to-morrow night. Advance reports from Chattanooga state that the visitors are prepared to put up the toughest sort of a fight, and really expect to defeat the local boys.

Joe Bean, coach of the Athletic Club boys, is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to get his players in the best of shape. Joe is putting them through a long drill every afternoon and says the boys are showing much improvement in their work.

Following is the line-up of the rival teams:

Table with 2 columns: Name, Position. Includes A. C. C. Pos. 'Nooga' Smith, R. F. McCollum, Dubard, C. Spencer-Brockhall, Carter, R. G. Gambill-Harris, Weaver, L. G. Gambill-Harris.

Doc Seabough To Be Let Out by Turtles

MEMPHIS, TENN., Dec. 12.—Doc Seabough is slated for the grassed chute. The veteran receiver of the Memphis Turtles, formerly occupying the leading position behind the wood for the Vols, is about to be let out.

Doc's grizzled hair is due to be clipped off by Manager Mike Finn during the next few weeks, and just as a change can be otherwise than beneficial.

Seabough's berth is as yet unsettled, as Manager Finn is looking around and intends to do the best he can for Doc. The passing of Seabough takes another of the old guard away from the South, and in Nashville the veterans have hundreds of friends who remember him for what he has done in the past.

Auburn Announces Football Schedule For Season of 1914

AUBURN, ALA., Dec. 12.—The Auburn athletic authorities to-day announced the football schedule for 1914. It will be noticed that this schedule is the same as the 1913 schedule, with the exception of the game with Louisiana State University.

The authorities deemed it advisable to drop one S. I. A. team, and inasmuch as the L. S. U. game was the poorest game from a financial standpoint, it is not to be on the 1914 schedule.

Auburn played eight S. I. A. teams the past season, which is practically double the number of S. I. A. teams played by the other leading teams of the association. Vanderbilt played only two teams in the Southern Association, namely: Auburn, Tennessee and Sewanee; whereas, University of Georgia only played one-half the number that Auburn did. Georgia played Alabama, Clemson, Georgia Tech and Auburn.

The Auburn schedule as announced for 1914, is as follows: October 3—Montgomery Athletic Club at Auburn. October 10—University of Florida at Jacksonville. October 17—Clemson at Auburn. October 24—A. & M. of Mississippi at Birmingham. October 31—Mercer University (probably) at Auburn. November 7—Georgia Tech at Atlanta. November 14—Vanderbilt at Birmingham. November 21—Georgia at Atlanta.

INDIANA FOOTBALL PAYS. BLOOMINGTON, IND., Dec. 12.—Indiana made $14,000 out of the football season this year. The receipts from the Marion contest were nearly $3,000. Baseball, track and basketball show a deficit of $2,000.

WORGIN TRIMS MAHONEY. BURLINGTON, Vt., Dec. 12.—Al Worgin of Milwaukee defeated Kid Mahoney of Racine, in ten rounds last night.

Baseball Stars Shine on Gridiron Forward Passes Were Easy Money

By O. B. Keeler. BEFORE the football gab has silted too far back into the discard for the year, and the sporting columns are given entirely over to alleged boxing and the prospect for a stone-walled infield for 1914, it appears to us a good time to say a few words about the relation of football and baseball; that is, the occasional aid that training in the summer sport is able to slip the practitioner of the gridiron.

Most people take it (and with much reason) that the two great American games are so unlike each other that proficiency in one can have no bearing on the other.

And that's pretty nearly the case, so far as football training helping a baseball player is concerned.

BUT when it comes to football, we have just had quite a season of illustrations in which baseball training has helped football players in action.

There is Bob McWhorter, Georgia's great half-back. Bob played the outfield on the Red and Black baseball team, and his unerring judgment of punts and sure handling of passes bore witness to the value of his experience in the outfield.

IF there must be such a thing as compensation, according to our esteemed and ex-fellow countryman, Mr. Emerson, we beg to put forward the other hand that constant contact with Mrs. Mother Earth while playing football ought to add confidence and daring to a baseball player's method of "hitting the dirt."

And most of all, there's the old heart: the old determination, as Bob Unglun used to put it—the old English-for-viscera, the demand for which is the same in both these games, and in all others.

THOMAS MAY MEET WAUGH. NEW ORLEANS, LA., Dec. 12.—Joe Thomas, local lightweight, may be seen in a Fort Worth, Texas, ring on Christmas Day. Joe received a wire yesterday morning of a match with Bobby Waugh there, and has wired the Fort Worth promoters for their best terms.

New Orleans Club Reported Sold to Frank's Friends

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Dec. 12.—The New Orleans baseball club has been acquired by local men who heretofore have never been mentioned in any of the negotiations during the recent changes of the club and will be run next year as an independent organization free from entanglements with any outside club, according to information received from apparently reliable sources last night.

According to these authorities, those who have secured control of the local club have gone about the matter very quietly and after getting together the necessary financial backing, simply beat the time of the Helmsman-Newman interest and completed the deal with Mr. Somers while the latter was in New York. At the same time it is understood Secretary Helmsman was waiting in Cleveland for Mr. Somers to return and confer with him about the deal.

Details of the plans of the new owners were withheld, but it is understood that there is a strong probability that Charles Frank will return to his old place as manager.

Kling and Weston In Cue Match Again

CHICAGO, ILL., Dec. 12.—Johnny Kling and Charles ("Cowboy") Weston have been matched for a 600-point match at pocket billiards. Four years ago the baseball player won the championship from Weston at Kansas City and a square deal.

TWO KNOCKOUTS ON BILL. TERRE HAUTE, IND., Dec. 12.—Two boxers were knocked out on the bill put on by the Washburn Athletic Club last night. Spot Davis, of Kokomo, stopped Jimmy Watts, of Indianapolis in the third round of the opening bout. Jack Watts, a local negro, knocked out Bill Donovan, of Indianapolis, in the third round.

Champion Returns to the Ring Ritchie's Story of His Career

This is the fifth of a series of stories of the Lightweight Champion Willie Ritchie, written exclusively for The Georgian. By Willie Ritchie.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—After witnessing a few of the four-round fights, I simply could not resist the temptation to get back into the game. I fought against it and tried my best, but the feeling was there, and that settled it, besides, my friends kept coming to me and telling me how foolish I was to quit just when I had a chance to go to the front. They refused to give me a rest.

Finally I went to my boss and threw up my job. He was sorry to let me go, and in fact he offered me a nice raise if I would stick with the automobile business. I told him plainly that I wanted to be a fighter; that I had had some experience and that I intended to try again.

One-Round Hogan was the big star then. He had the reputation of being a whirlwind and a knockout, and he was getting his name in the papers. He was getting the big money and beating all comers. They touted him as a champion and he was swelling around the town as the whole show.

Now, I had seen Hogan fight several times and I was sure that I could beat him. I figured it out in my mind that he was just made to order for me. The fans cried at me and said that I was crazy, but this did not change my opinion. I wanted Hogan, that was all, so I started out to issue a few challenges for a four-round fight.

Passed Up by Hogan. I was a full-fledged lightweight by this time, strong and healthy and full of pep. Maybe I looked too strong for Hogan, for he passed me up. He kept after him, but he only laughed at me and told me to go and get a reputation. He said that he was the champion and that he would not have anything to do with dubs like me.

Label was also a star then, and he kept at it harder and longer every inch of the way. He was rough and strong, and he tossed me all around the ring. I could not box him at all, but when a weak champion like me, the better of the mixups, for that sort of going was just what he liked.

After that battle I gave Reilly another chance, and again won the decision. Then I started after McCarthy once more, hoping to do better with him; but our second meeting resulted in a draw. It was almost the same old thing over again. He was too rough and too strong for me, and I did not seem to be able to hit him hard enough to make him slow down.

Label was a hard hitter and knew more about the game than I did. The fans told me that I was foolish to go on with him, that he would beat me up and send me back to work, and that I would be through with the game for keeps.

But nothing could stop me. I signed up for the match and worked hard to get into shape on about four days' training. I took something like $50 for my end. All I wanted was expense money and experience.

It was a tough old battle, and I won the decision on points. Yes, I did run into a few of Label's right-hand jolts to the jaw, and they sure did shake me up. But I knew that I must win, and kept right on after him and boxed as cleverly as I could. I guess that my condition counted, as I had a nice lead at the end of the fourth round.

Label set up a cry for a return match, claiming that he was out of the ring.

PLANS FOR U. S. TO OWN WIRE LINES GROW

Administration Likely to Back Move to Take Over Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Postmaster General Burleson today strongly intimated that the administration would give its support to the proposition of Government ownership of telephone and telegraph companies. Mr. Burleson said that his own mind was open on the subject, and added:

"I have taken up the matter with President Wilson and he also has an open mind. There will be no hasty action, but I believe we will arrive at a conclusion on this subject that will meet the people's approval."

Investigating in Europe.
"I shall have something to say on the question in my annual report," he said. "We are carrying on an investigation of Government ownership of these facilities in European nations. When we begin to think of taking over for ourselves property valued at from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000, we see how gigantic the project is and we must make haste slowly. I desire to do the work in such a way that it will meet with the approval of those in charge on Capitol Hill. Everybody's right must be protected."

While no definite program for the purchase of the various telegraph and telephone lines has been formulated as yet, a preliminary survey is being made and indications point to considerable congressional support under the leadership of Representative David J. Lewis, of Maryland, for the project.

Three Senators Out for Plan.
Three Senators, two Democrats and one Republican, came out today in favor of Government ownership of telegraph lines. They gave expression to the following views:

Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee—"I think the project entirely feasible. However, I do not expect a bill bringing about Government ownership of telegraph companies at this session of Congress."

Senator Johnson, of Maine (Democrat)—"The proposition has my indorsement. It would be bad judgment for the Government to start competing lines."

Senator Jones, of Washington, (Republican)—"The matter is handled satisfactorily, but could not the telegraph lines be handled by the Government?"

Seeks Daughter as White Slavery Victim

LEXINGTON, KY., Dec. 12.—Led by a crew through a letter mailed on a train near Lexington, John Neville, of Marion, Ohio, accompanied by a United States "white slave" agent, arrives here today searching for his 18-year-old daughter Eunice, who disappeared November 14. Neville believes she is a victim of "white slavery." The letter said she was working in a big department store, but none here has heard of her.

If not found here the father says he will continue the search all over the country.

English Tongue Best For Opera, Says Diva

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—"English is the real language for song," said Maggie Teyte, prima donna, the guest of honor at ladies' day at the National Press Club.

"They tell you that foreign languages are musical and that English is incapable in highly musical expression. Nothing could be further from the truth. If the American and English singers will only study their own language they will be surprised at its flexibility and power."

GIFT SUGGESTIONS POURING IN AS END OF CONTEST NEARS

By MARY LEA DAVIS

It's now only a few days until Christmas. If you haven't selected that present for your husband, it's about time you were thinking about it. Also, if you are a married man, it behooves you to select a gift for your wife.

Hundreds and hundreds of readers of The Georgian are interested in the present-giving question. I know, because I have read all the letters on the subject which have come to my desk. I am trying to print as many of these letters as possible because lots of them contain excellent suggestions which may be of use to YOU.

If you haven't written a letter, read the following offer and let us have the benefit of your ideas.

HERE IS MY OFFER.
To the wife who writes the best short letter telling what is the most useful gift for a husband, one $10 gold piece.

Three cards of $5 each will be given to husbands who write brief letters outlining the most appropriate gift for a husband to give his wife. For the husband's letter that is judged the best the writer will receive a $10 gold piece. Husbands who write the three next best letters will receive, each, a $5 gold piece for their thoroughness.

Send your letters addressed to MARY LEA DAVIS, Editorial Department, The Atlanta Georgian.

Here are some letters just received:

VACUUM CLEANER.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
After thinking for weeks what would be a useful present for my wife I have just decided to make her a present of a Vacuum Cleaner. Atlanta, Ga. D. C. L.

HIS GIFT TO HER.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
Of all the gifts my wife gets on Christmas, she says this is the one she most appreciates. We have been married a quarter of a century and I have never yet failed to tell her on Christmas morning how much I loved her and how dear and necessary she is to me. And I take the opportunity to mention the particular ways she has pleased me the past year, and if she has saved me any money by good management—and she always has—it is in her stocking with my other gifts to her. And that is what I will do again this year. SOUTHERN-MAN.

BANK ACCOUNT FOR WIFE.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I should be happy to present my wife with a bank account to which there were no "strings tied." I have often thought how unpleasant the past year, and if she has saved me any money by good management—and she always has—it is in her stocking with my other gifts to her. And that is what I will do again this year. SOUTHERN-MAN.

JUST WHAT HE WANTED.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
In my mind's eye, the following scene is brought before me, which illustrates my idea of useful gift-giving. Frances, our small daughter, is standing by the bed Christmas morning, shaking Daddy and saying: "Ere, Daddy, Santa Claus bring you dia." Daddy opens his sleepy eyes and sees in her tiny hands two small packages. He investigates. Monogram cuff buttons. He smiles. He has been wearing cuffs and since since Mamma sent him perfectly good ones to the laundry and they never came back. Daddy laughs and unfolds a large, black, silky square. "Oh," he says, "that muffler I needed a month ago so badly to sling my arm when I nearly lost two fingers," and he grins. I am watching out of the corner of my eye and I am happy because I know they are just what he wanted. Atlanta, Ga. MRS. F. T. K.

QUILT AND RUG.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I think a nice present would be a quilt made of old woolen cloths past wearing, cut them into squares and stitch them down to an old blanket, and take the waste pieces and make him a rug to put beside his bed. And a pound cake and layer cake made of parched peanuts ground and stirred in the butter or spread between the layers with letter. McDonough, Ga. MRS. E. H. G.

A WARM OVERCOAT.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
As the husband is exposed to all the bad weather in going to and returning from his daily work to provide for the family, I think the most useful present will be a good overcoat, raincoat, pair of rubbers and a good pair of gloves. Atlanta, Ga. MRS. L. E.

HIS BEST GIFT TO HER.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I think it depends entirely upon the taste of the party concerned and upon the amount you have to spend. No gift from a husband to his wife should be a financial sacrifice. One Christmas when "things were all wrong" with us financially I bought my wife a few flowers and a box of candy with a love letter in it, and the wagger that your wife will think that you are the best Santa Claus that ever lived. A. C. Atlanta, Ga.

HER SELECTIONS.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
Wives, the majority, are dependent on their husbands to settle the bills. When selecting my husband's present I keep in mind this fact, and try to get something he could not select the same as I. I give hem-stitched handkerchiefs, pajamas, bathrobes, collars and laundry bags. I make these. MRS. E. G. A. Atlanta, Ga.

HOME MADE HASSOCK.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
The most appreciated and least expensive gift I ever gave my husband was a homemade hassock. I got a box 19 by 12 by 15 inches, one coil cotton, box brass-headed tacks and set castors and used some old plush I had, cretonne will do. After it was covered, using cotton for a padding for the top, I put on the castors. By using two hinges the top may be made as a lid, and stool used to keep bedroom slippers, shoes, etc. in. MRS. G. E. Waycross, Ga.

GOLD HAIRPINS.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
My Christmas gift to my wife will consist of two dozen gold hairpins, two gold hairpins, studded with one diamond and twelve pearls each, a gold comb and a hair brush, the back of which is a mirror wreathed in gold, studded with 25 small diamonds. After mature reflection I concluded this gift was the most suitable, most appreciated and most useful to any woman and it completely absorbs the nature of a Christmas gift restricted to femininity. My gift is based upon the fact that woman's hair is her glory. Warehos, Ga. R. B., Jr.

A USEFUL GIFT.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I have not decided just what I will give my husband for a Christmas present. I can't give him anything expensive, although I would like to. I shall give him something useful. Whatever gift we are able to give let us give ourselves with it. For the gift without the giver is bare, and she remembers it yet as "The best present I ever gave her." W. J. BRADLEY. Valdosta, Ga.

with the stitches. Surely there is both use and sentiment in this gift. Opelika, Ala. MRS. A. D. F.

FOR THE WOMAN.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I think any man can please his wife Christmas by giving her something that beautifies her person: nice clothes, toilet articles, or that which will beautify her home, nice furniture, silverware, china, pictures. Just let him remember her taste in such matters. W. R. Atlanta, Ga.

A HAPPY HOME.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I am going to give my husband as happy a home as I can make for him and have his meals on time, and a kind and loving heart. Mountain City, Ga. MRS. H. C.

MAKE HER HAPPY.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
The best suggestion I can give is to make your wife the happiest she has ever been during married life. Make her feel as if you were just beginning to fall in love with her and if you know of anything she would dearly love to have, be it silver or gold, be it ever so small, just so it appeals to her, that will make her have a happy Yuletide. J. H. K.

LOVE FROM A WIFE.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
I shall give my husband the same old gift, but always new to him. It is the candle of love, brightly burning on the altar of a wife's devotion and the dove of peace to always hover around him. Then some little present that will be useful and that he will enjoy. MRS. J. F. B. Stillersboro, Ga.

PAJAMAS.
Miss Mary Lea Davis:
The Christmas box which I shall place at my husband's breakfast table the morning of December 25 will contain two pairs of pretty outing pajamas that I have made for him with great care. The collars, cuffs and pockets are embellished with my handwork and the pockets are marked with his initial. I will include a card of Christmas greetings, telling of the love served in

By MARY LEA DAVIS

It's now only a few days until Christmas. If you haven't selected that present for your husband, it's about time you were thinking about it. Also, if you are a married man, it behooves you to select a gift for your wife.

Hundreds and hundreds of readers of The Georgian are interested in the present-giving question. I know, because I have read all the letters on the subject which have come to my desk. I am trying to print as many of these letters as possible because lots of them contain excellent suggestions which may be of use to YOU.

If you haven't written a letter, read the following offer and let us have the benefit of your ideas.

HERE IS MY OFFER.
To the wife who writes the best short letter telling what is the most useful gift for a husband, one $10 gold piece.

Three cards of $5 each will be given to husbands who write brief letters outlining the most appropriate gift for a husband to give his wife. For the husband's letter that is judged the best the writer will receive a $10 gold piece. Husbands who write the three next best letters will receive, each, a $5 gold piece for their thoroughness.

Send your letters addressed to MARY LEA DAVIS, Editorial Department, The Atlanta Georgian.

Here are some letters just received:
