

COUNCIL TAKES UP LOCKER CLUB CRUSADE

Rebels Close in on Mexican Capital CITY LACKS FUNDS TO HUNT CRIMINALS

FINANCIAL PLIGHT AID TO CRIME

Owner Forced to Pay All Expenses of Recovering Auto and Arrest of Thieves.

A peculiar situation in the financial affairs of the city, county and State, which is set forth as an explanation of the numerous brazen thefts of automobiles from the streets of Atlanta, has been charged since the arrest of three young men in Valdosta Tuesday for stealing a machine belonging to Joseph W. Hill, No. 186 North Jackson street, last Thursday.

An absence of funds, according to Mr. Hill, renders the police department of Atlanta powerless to hunt thieves once they escape from the jurisdiction of the city laws.

Thus when the Hill car was finally discovered in Valdosta, Mr. Hill himself was forced to finance a detective to go after the three men who were held there as the thieves, and also had to pay numerous other expenses incurred before the capture was effected. The amounts expended by the automobile's owner aggregated $100.

Police of No Help. Yet, Mr. Hill charges, not one cent was expended by the city police department in effecting the recovery of the machine that was stolen from within the city limits, which he as a taxpayer aids in policing.

Mr. Hill, in making this declaration, did not accuse the Atlanta force of incompetency, but claims that after the theft had been committed, the city should have furnished money to recover the property.

That such money was not forthcoming, it is claimed, was due entirely to the lack of an appropriation for that purpose. This, it is asserted, is common knowledge among men who make a practice of stealing automobiles, and hence they laugh at the city limits. Mr. Hill said he went to all the expense and trouble because he believed it his duty as a citizen and was praised for his stand by Chief Beavers.

The method by which Mr. Hill recovered his machine is interesting. Three men, who afterward gave their names as Cliff Hart, Thomas Brown and J. R. Hagin, all of Atlanta, drove a two-seated Buick automobile into the garage of M. M. Belet in Valdosta last Tuesday.

Reads of Theft in Georgian. The theft of Mr. Hill's car had been published in The Georgian previously and the description of the stolen car given in the article, which Mr. Belet had read, tallied with the car occupied by the three men.

Mr. Belet notified Chief Beavers, who in turn notified Mr. Hill. According to Hill, when he requested the city police department to arrest the men and return his car, he was informed that it could not be done unless he financed the move.

"But I have already paid for production from such mishaps with my taxes," replied Mr. Hill. "My car should be returned to me without additional cost."

Puts Up All Money. Then, it is declared, the situation was revealed. Hill was forced to put up the money necessary for the trip. He was also forced to pay the expenses incurred by the three men who stole his machine. These were as follows:

To Chief of Police Calvin Dampier, of Valdosta, for the arrest of the men, $15.

To the Belot garage, where the machine was kept pending its return to Atlanta, $17.50.

To the city of Macon, where the three men slept on the floor of the jail one night and ate breakfast the following morning, $4.35.

The remainder of the $100 was used by city detectives in going to Valdosta after the men and bringing them back to Atlanta.

Volume of Mails At Atlanta Office Continues to Grow

The volume of mail handled by the Atlanta postoffice continues to increase and records are being smashed every day. Tuesday night nearly 200,000 pieces of first-class mail were handled, and about 45,000 parcels, exclusive of circulars, calendars and other second, third and fourth class mail that swamps the office at this season of the year. Tuesday night's record of first-class mail is slightly lower than one day about ten days ago, but is considered enormous, in view of the fact that as Christmas approaches the volume of first-class mail usually decreases as other mail increases.

Superintendent of Mails Hart said Wednesday morning that he is now working 60 extra men, with seven weighing and rating clerks in the lobby, the largest number ever used there. Next Monday Mr. Hart expects to more than double his force of extra men.

Hoke Smith's 275 Lbs. Hit Floor of Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The dreary routine of the Senate session was broken this week when a chair in which Senator Hoke Smith was seated collapsed under him and precipitated the Senator's 275 pounds on the floor.

In falling the Senator struck a vacant desk and did some damage to that, but apparently was unharmed. He also struck a chair, which rolled into the Democratic cloak room and started a group of Senators who were being entertained by Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

Italy Expected to Release U. S. Singer

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. ROME, Dec. 17.—As a result of representations made to the Foreign Office by the Ambassador, Thomas Nelson Page, the Italian Government is expected to order the release from military surveillance of Dorothy MacVane, the Boston singer, suspected of being a French spy.

Increase in Postal Service Fund Denied

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—All proposed new expenditures of any consequence for the postal service were stricken from the postoffice appropriation bill to-day by the House Committee. Among the items lost is the $2,000,000 increase in pay for rural mail carriers. The bill carries about $300,000,000.

$14,000 Voted Widow Of Builder of Canal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Senate to-day passed a joint resolution to pay Mrs. Katherine Davis Gaillard, widow of Lieutenant Colonel David DuBose Gaillard, a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, one year's salary, amounting to $14,000.

RADIUM CURE STIRS DIXIE SURGEONS

Opinions Divided Among Experts on Heralded Absolute Specific for Cancer.

Heralded as the only positive—in fact, the sole—cure for cancer, the radium method of treatment for the dread disease was the topic of spirited discussion among the members of the Southern Surgical Association in session at the Georgian Terrace Wednesday.

The surgeons were divided in opinion over the announcement of Dr. Howard A. Kelly, of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, that he had by the means of the radium treatment been able to cure a man of cancer within a space of 48 hours, and that, more remarkable still, all signs of the cancerous growth had disappeared within that time.

Great Accomplishment. "It is certainly one of the greatest accomplishments of modern surgery," Dr. Kelly is quoted correctly, said Dr. J. M. T. Finney, also of Baltimore, in commenting upon the discovery announced by Dr. Kelly.

Dr. Finney is one of the distinguished surgeons of the East and was at one time spoken of as president of Princeton University. "I can hardly believe it possible that a cure of this malignant disease could be obtained in such a magically short space of time. On the other hand, I know that Dr. Kelly is not given to making announcements that he can not back up in every respect.

Great Boon if True. "While I live in the same city, I have made no specialty of the treatment of cancer, and for that reason have not followed Dr. Kelly's work closely. I will say, however, if the treatment by the radium rays will do what Dr. Kelly says they will, it will be the greatest boon to humanity in the age and it will take away the horrors of search to do as nothing else has been able to do in spite of the years of search by the physicians and surgeons of the world."

Dr. Kelly made his announcement only last Monday night. Speaking before the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Philadelphia, he declared that he and Dr. Robert Abbe, of New York, by a series of experiments extending over nine or ten years, had demonstrated beyond any doubt that the gamma rays of radium were positive cure for cancer except in its most advanced form.

Radium Rays Powerful. "The power of the rays over cancer is appalling, almost unbelievable," Dr. Kelly is quoted as saying. "We tried the experiment on a character by the name of 'Uncle John,' of Missouri. While the rays were being applied he said that he felt the cancerous growths growing smaller. We laughed at him. But the next morning we were able to notice a decided change ourselves, and within 48 hours he was a well man, with the growths entirely gone."

Dr. Charles Mayo, one of the foremost surgeons in the treatment of cancer in the country, would not make comment on the announcement of the Baltimore surgeon.

Dr. Mayo discussed at length before the session Wednesday the technique he pursued at his famous sanitarium in Rochester, Minn., in operating upon cancerous growths.

Haze Enshrouding City Mostly Smoke, Says Weather Man

The dense fog that enshrouded Atlanta Wednesday morning wasn't fog at all, C. F. VonHerrmann, weather director, asserted.

"That is, very little of it was fog. We don't have any such fogs in this part of the country. This isn't London, you know.

"Most of the haze was smoke, pure and simple, and more simple than pure. There doesn't happen to be much wind this morning; a velocity of one mile an hour is next to nothing at all, and the smoke just rose out of the chimneys and floated around a while and then came down."

Mr. VonHerrmann added that the smoke would stick around until a breeze came up.

Shreveport Banker Hunts Originator of $40,000 Theft Yarn

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 17.—President Andrew Kerbes and other officials have been busy to-day denying a report widely circulated this morning that the First National Bank was robbed of $40,000.

A reward of $50 has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the person originating the story. If it is learned who put the false report into circulation he will be prosecuted under the Federal banking laws, according to President Kerbes.

Girl-Wife Brands Husband Bigamist

SAVANNAH, Dec. 17.—In a petition asking for the annulment of her marriage to Thomas L. Crawley, Mrs. Clara Crawley, a 16-year-old Savannah girl, stated that the day of the marriage she learned her husband had a wife living and that he had never been divorced.

Mrs. Crawley asked that her maiden name, Clara Cregan, be restored.

CELEBRATING HUERTISTAS SURPRISED

Zapatistas, Chased to Hills, Rally and Rout Federals Almost at City Gates.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—Rallying their forces in the foothills of the Federal district, Zapatista rebels made simultaneous attacks to-day on several Government forces and inflicted heavy losses on the Huerta troops.

The sharpest fighting was at Milpa Alta, seventeen miles from the capital, where the Federals were victorious on Tuesday. The Federals were taken by surprise while celebrating in the manner customary among Huerta's forces now, and were routed.

The rebels, led by Felipe Tijera, a former Federal officer, captured the greater part of the town in a three hours' attack, and killed more than 100 Federals, troops of the Twenty-first Cavalry and mounted police sent to Milpa Alta from the capital.

The towns of San Lorenzo and San Gregorio were captured by other rebel bands and looted.

More than 1,000 reinforcements joined the rebels early in the day, and attacks also were made on Tlalpam and Jacala. The rebels seem to have plenty of ammunition, but are lacking in artillery.

They are gradually closing in on the capital, and if they had a few field guns, undoubtedly would drive straight to the gates of the city.

Loan to Huerta. French Balk at

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. PARIS, Dec. 17.—The offer of General Huerta to pledge his private fortune and the fortunes of members of his Cabinet as security for a loan to the Mexican Government has been rejected by a French group of financiers, who were approached by Senor Aldape, former Mexican Minister of the Interior, according to a letter to The Paris Herald to-day.

It is understood that the French Government advised the group to turn down the proposition because of the attitude of President Wilson toward the Mexican dictator.

Confiscation of Estates Cheered.

EL PASO, TEXAS, Dec. 17.—"Viva Villa" was heard on every side in Juarez to-day when the confiscation of the vast estates of the Creel and Terrazas families was officially proclaimed. The rebels cheered for their leader at every opportunity and at times the enthusiasm became so boisterous that the street patrols had to make arrests.

If Villa succeeds in holding the greater wealth that he has declared confiscated, the treasury of the Constitutionalists will be swelled by a vast sum, variously estimated at from $500,000,000 to $700,000,000. This is not in ready cash, of course, but the value of the big mines and ranches owned by the millionaires who have supported the Huerta administration.

Mayor Intimates His Message Will Be Hot

Mayor Woodward Wednesday gave the first intimation of his thoughts regarding his annual message. "I suppose they expect something hot, and I never like to disappoint," he said. The Mayor would not discuss his committee appointments. He said that would be the last thing he would consider before the new Council is sworn in.

ADAMSON IS HAILED AS HERO OF N. Y. ELECTION

'Bob' Adamson, former Atlanta man, who was guest of honor at New York banquet.

Mayor Kline and Mayor-elect Mitchel Honor Former Georgian at Dinner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Hailed as "Father Knickerbocker's fair-haired boy," Robert Adamson, secretary to Mayor Kline and manager of the Fusion Campaign Committee, was honor guest at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria at which a silver service valued at $1,000 was presented to him.

In addition, Mayor Kline declared that whatever success he had attained during his brief term as Mayor was due to the advice of the former Atlantan, while Mayor-elect Mitchel said: "I will go further and say that I expect I shall have the benefit of the advice and service of Mr. Adamson in my administration."

William F. McCormick, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, after telling of the aid Adamson had been to the national campaign in 1912, added:

"I was glad to hear the Mayor-elect say he expected to have Mr. Adamson's services in his administration. I desire to say that, no matter in what department the Mayor-elect is fortunate enough to get Adamson to serve, he will be of the greatest service to the people of the city."

700 New York Leaders There. More than 700 of New York's leading business and professional men, to say nothing of politicians, gathered at the Waldorf to attend the dinner.

It was the first time since election that Mayor Kline and Mayor-elect Mitchel dined together. Both made speeches, and both violated their rule of coming late, appearing before the diners were seated.

Mrs. Mitchel, Mrs. Kline, Mrs. Adamson and Miss May, Mrs. Adamson's sister, occupied a box in the grand ballroom and watched the proceedings. The silver service was presented to Mrs. Adamson. It was borne into the banquet hall by two waiters, preceded by Oscar, and deposited in front of Mrs. Adamson. William H. Edwards, Commissioner of Street Cleaning, made the presentation speech.

Hedges Pays Tribute. Job Hedges presided. "Nobody is better than Bob Adamson," he said, "and the good thing about him is that he never denied it. Adamson has been tried and never found wanting—anything he didn't get." Mayor-elect Mitchel declared he was glad to join in a tribute to Adamson. He referred to the fact that an effort was made to get Hedges to manage the campaign, and that Mr. Hedges declined because of poor health. "I am glad to note a great improvement in his health, now that the campaign is over," said Mr. Mitchel.

MOVES TO TIGHTEN PERMIT RULES

Reformers Would Give Recorder Power to Revoke Licenses in Cases of Conviction.

The locker club war took an important turn Wednesday when Police Chief Beavers announced that when the Council Police Committee started its investigation the first of the year into the merits of applicants for locker club licenses he would furnish all the facts revealed by the recent raids.

If the seven clubs against which cases have been made are convicted of violating the prohibition law when they are tried before Recorder Broyles Christmas Eve, the chances are a renewal of their license will be denied.

There was a disposition among a large number of Councilmen to weed out the clubs before the police took any action. The determination of the Councilmen was based on belief, rather than actual proof, that some of the clubs were violating the law. Conviction of these clubs will make it very hard for any of them to get a new license.

Likely to Strengthen Law. The attitude of Council is emphasized by the promise of the present Police Commission to strengthen the law against locker clubs. At the behest of leaders of the Georgia Anti-Saloon League, the Police Committee promised to offer an ordinance giving the Recorder the right to revoke any locker club license upon conviction of a violation of the prohibition law.

That ordinance was to have been introduced in Council Monday, but, for some unknown reason, luckily for some of the locker clubs, it was not. The law already applies to "near-beer saloons, and there is no reason to doubt that Council will make it apply to locker clubs as soon as the Police Committee proposes it.

If it had been offered at the last meeting of Council it would have been a law, in all likelihood, by the time Recorder Broyles tries the cases, and very probably more than one license would have been revoked in the Recorder's Court.

Locker clubs already are presenting their applications for renewal of licenses. These applications will be taken up by the new police committee to be appointed by Mayor Woodward the first of the year.

Committee of Liberals. Much depends on the temper of the committee Mayor Woodward will appoint. Following the recent Councilmanic election he threatened to appoint a very strict committee, but indications now are that his committee will be composed of the most liberal members of Council.

Mayor Woodward himself refuses to discuss the matter. But whether the committee is liberal there are a number of members of Council who are going to insist on rigid investigations and demand that the licenses of some of the clubs be revoked.

The clubs against which cases have been made and with which Chief Beavers' report will principally deal are the Metropolitan, the Theatrical, the T. M. A., the Central, the Owls, the Beavers and Eagles Clubs.

Mrs. Sayre Will Push Uplift Work in U. S.

BECKER GUNMEN IN DEATH CELL ASK RETRIAL

"Gyp the Blood" and Confederates Deny Conspiracy in Plea on Appeal.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 17.—The appeal of the four gunmen now in Sing Sing awaiting death for the murder of Herman Rosenthal in New York City on July 16, 1912, was heard in the Court of Appeals today. The convicted men are Jacob Seldenshner, alias "Whitey Louis"; Frank Crofoco, alias "Dago Frank"; Louis Rosenberg, alias "Lefty Louis"; and Harry Horowitz, alias "Gyp the Blood." It was the prosecution's theory that Rosenthal's death was a result of a conspiracy between former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker and the gamblers who turned State's evidence, and the gunmen.

Money Needed for Poor's Xmas Dinner

A falling off in Christmas contributions and an increase in the number of needy families to be supplied with holiday cheer is the perplexing situation that confronts the Atlanta barracks of the Salvation Army, according to a statement Wednesday by Brigadier General A. W. Crawford. Mr. Crawford feared that the army would be forced to borrow money in order properly to take care of the families it has investigated.

Wants State Primary For Alabama April 6

MOBILE, Dec. 17.—Tyler-Goodwin, chairman of the Alabama State Democratic committee, now favors April 6 for the State primary. He also suggests that nominees for long and short terms in the United States Senate be selected at that time and plurality vote decide all contests, doing away with the double primary.

SUPREME COURT SETS TO UNRAVELING RED THREAD OF TRUTH IN FRANK CASE

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Impartial observers, people with minds unprejudiced and free of bias, must have sighed a weight of sincere relief from their souls when, at last, the arguments closed in the Supreme Court hearing of the Frank case, and that famous cause had been given finally into the keeping of Georgia's highest court of review.

The public generally will incline to think that little if anything of further light was thrown upon the case by either side to the controversy, so far as the oratorical efforts pro and con were concerned in the Supreme Court. And, after all is said and done, the court will proceed to its duty upon the written records in the case, and not otherwise—and so, if there was nothing much gained by the superabundance of eloquence rehearsed before the high court, there likely wasn't much lost. And there you are!

It is the opinion of one observer, at least, that neither side to the Frank hearing exactly festooned itself with glory in the matter of the Supreme Court arguments.

Its Rulings the Law.
Those people of high or humble estate, who love their country, who keep their patriotism pure and undefiled, who please to linger lovingly over such phrases as "the majesty of the law" and all that sort of thing, see in the Supreme Court of this Commonwealth the majesty of the law in its ultimate dignity!

Whatever that court says, that then is the law of the land! Its decrees and judgments are beyond dispute—it speaks from out the most appalling chaos the ineffable and isolated word of truth and right necessary to restore reason and bring sanity to its own again absolute and impartial justice.

Far from the madding crowd's ignominious strife sits the Supreme Court, serene and unafraid! The Frank case, in the hands of the most august tribunal within the State, is utterly impersonal. Whatever may have been the passion and the pride of opinion characterizing the attorneys and their methods, their utterance and their movements, in the hearing before the trial court below, they appeared small and inconsequential things, indeed, to lug into the presence of the Supreme Court!

Squabbles Out of Place There.
Somewhat faintly out of place seemed the squabbles and the vehement charges lodged this way and that in the trial court, when one sat there in the presence of the final court of review and thought upon the tremendous significance of the matters then under consideration, and what they mean eventually to every citizen of the Commonwealth—for upon the findings of the Supreme Court in the Frank case depends, perhaps, far more than some easy-going and loose-thinking citizens may imagine.

It was not surprising, therefore, that at one point in the hearings Mr. Justice Evans expressed a measure of the court's coldness toward outbursts of feeling in the Supreme Court, and rather sharply reminded the attorneys engaged that the court they then were dealing with and addressing directly cared for none of that!

The sheet anchor of the Ship of State is the law—the impersonal and unimpassioned law. That, and nothing more nor less! And it is the mighty province of the Supreme Court to say what IS—and equally what is NOT—the law!

If Leo Frank was tried according to law, the Supreme Court of Georgia will say as much—and that will end the matter. If he was not tried according to law, the Supreme Court will say as much—and Frank will be tried again.

Honor of State Involved.
A man's life, a man's liberty, and a man's dearest honor are involved in the decision of the Supreme Court—yes! But over and beyond that, as far above it as the stars are far above the sea, the dearest honor of the sovereign State of Georgia—Georgia that boasts a proud ancestry among the original thirteen States—is involved.

It is that sacred honor of Georgia, the guarding of which has been placed in the hands of the Supreme Court!

The sovereign—Georgia—can do no wrong. Nobler and braver than that, Georgia WILL do no wrong! She will go in the Frank case as her accredited ministers direct—as the Supreme Court shall say.

And in directing a course of conduct for Georgia, that course must be right, though the heavens fall. It must be remembered that the Supreme Court of Georgia is not serving Leo Frank in this matter, save in so far as he is the hub about which mighty principles of law temporarily revolve—it is the people of Georgia the court is serving!

Franks may come and Franks may go, but the supremacy of the law abides forever! At last, "the tumult and the shouting dies; the captains and the kings depart." Into the austere keeping of the highest court in the State the last word of argument in the Frank case has been confided.

Weighted With Dignity.
Much of that which has gone before now seems utterly confusing and vague. Where are the storms and ragings of yesterday? The winds have blown them all away.

Sitting in the presence chamber of the Supreme Court, over in the grim and grimy old Capitol, callous indeed must have been the spectator who failed to feel heavily the full significance of the proceedings.

When the honorable Court filed in the morning there was no need to admonish those present that it was their part to stand while the Court seated itself. Instead, one instinctively rose to his seat and remained silent as the Court settled itself to work. The law does not design to be spectacular—it is of purpose to be dignified in the extreme, however.

Less and less attorneys incline nowadays to proceed to Supreme Court hearings by way of verbal pleadings. More and more they incline to appear by brief and written arguments alone.

Those few who heard the oral pleadings in the Frank case probably all agree now that the written method is the better—certainly it appears more in keeping with the spirit and intent of the high Court's functions.

For one thing, human beings are more careful in what they write than in what they say. The written word stands a permanent witness to it, and the afterlife may arise to confound or affirm the writer if he fails to consider carefully the things he writes. The spoken word, reckless of consequence and mindful of later confusion and possible indefiniteness of meaning, lend itself inevitably to error and miscarriage of justice.

Looks to Records for Truth.
And so, in considering this famous miscarriage of justice in the final word the Supreme Court speaks.

Once again and again the admonition of Mr. Justice Evans—the warning word that, after all, the Supreme Court will look to the WRITTEN RECORD for the truth of the Frank case's history and may forget entirely the passionate vehemence of attorneys in partisan argument.

And so, in considering this famous Frank case in its final analysis, those who wish to see it ended—and their name is legion—will do well to remember that the Supreme Court is not going to put Dorsey's construction upon the evidence, nor yet Rosser's, nor Feider's, nor Arnold's. The Court will make up its own mind in its own way.

Dorsey may shout and Rosser may imagine vain things—the one may say thus and so proves this and that, and the other may beat himself to willful fragments contending that this and so mean nothing of the kind. The Supreme Court still will decide for itself.

From out the warp and woof of this curiously and amazingly complex weave of the Frank case, the Supreme Court will unravel the red thread of truth that surely MUST be somewhere tangled therein.

You, reader, believe this and so be the truth of the Frank case, and in that conclusion you do violence to

EMPTY STOCKING FUND TO GET BIG BOOST FROM TECH PLAYERS

Al Roberts (left) and Walter Troy, two of Tech's star dramatic cast, who will help Empty Stocking Fund Friday.

One-fourth of Receipts From 'The Magistrate' Is Promised—Play Friday Night.

Another delegation of friends of Atlanta's poor boys and girls turned up Wednesday. They are the members of the Georgia Tech Society, who made announcement that 25 per cent of the gross receipts at their annual play Friday night would be devoted to The Georgian-American Empty Stocking Fund for the youngsters of the city who otherwise would not have a visit from Santa Claus this year.

As the Tech play is one of the events of the winter season and invariably attracts a big house, the fund will be swelled materially by the generosity of the students. On Sunday another substantial addition to the Empty Stocking Fund will come from The Georgian's great free concert in the Forsyth Theater.

The play at the Grand Friday night by the Tech student-actors promises to be even more of a grand and delightful affair than it was last year.

when the house was packed from pit to gallery.

College Girls to Attend.

The annual dramatic effort by the collegians is to be graced this year by the presence of several hundred young women from Atlanta's famed educational institutions. Not that they have not attended before, but Friday night they will be here in larger numbers than ever before; they will be in their prettiest of gowns; they will come in solid delegations from the various schools they represent, and they will be decked out with the colors of their schools.

Washington Seminary, Agnes Scott College, the Girls' High School, Miss Woodberry's and Miss Hannah's schools all will be at the Grand with large representations.

The Tech actors, as soon as The Georgian made public its plans for raising an Empty Stocking Fund for the poor children of the city, immediately fell in with the idea and decided to make a contribution on their own account. It was agreed that one-fourth of the gross receipts would be turned over to The Georgian to be used in filling the empty stockings in the poor homes of the city.

Some of Players.

Al Roberts, who starred last year in "Brown of Harvard" will have a leading part in this year's production, which is Piner's famous comedy, "The Magistrate." It will be the professional ranks of Theaters for Roberts after his school days are over, according to the report of his friends.

He is regarded as one of the best actors that the Tech drama society has ever had. Besides possessing an impressive personality on the stage, he has unusual ability for an amateur and has decided to use his talents professionally. Roberts is prominently connected with the Players' Club of Nashville, his home.

Free Concert Sunday.

And remember—The Georgian-American's free concert at the Forsyth Theater next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Every seat in the house will be free. The concert last year was attended by as many as the house would hold.

Some of the best musical talent in the city will have places on the program. Musicians from other cities also will perform. Altogether it will be one of the most enjoyable affairs that Atlantans have been privileged to attend in months.

Here are the latest contributions to the Empty Stocking Fund:

MONEY BILL TO BE PASSED BY SATURDAY

Debate Now Only 'Vain Repetition,' Asserts Senator Kern, Asking Time for Vote.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Senator Kern, Democratic leader, asked consent in the Senate to-day for a vote on the currency bill not later than 6 o'clock Friday evening. Senator Bristow objected. It is believed, however that the bill will be passed in any event by Saturday night.

Senator Kern reviewed the currency debate and said it had now reached a stage "of vain repetition." He asserted that men now out of work will be recalled to work as soon as the bill is passed.

Senator Gallinger said the tariff bill was a partial failure and he doubted if the currency bill would give the expected relief.

"Were my questions absurd because they revealed faults in the bill?" asked Senator Burton in reply to Kern's criticism.

"Must the Senator from Indiana swallow a measure whole no matter how crude or unjust it may be, merely because a caucus so decided? Must we become here an aggregation of ciphers to accept without question every measure that comes from the Executive department or the caucus? If so, the Senate sinks from its high estate to deserved contempt. If the Senator from Indiana had given attention to the questions he would not have made the criticism."

Senator Bristow inquired why Senator Kern had wasted an hour's time when he knew that the bill would not have unanimous agreement would not be granted.

65,000-Horsepower Moves Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Dec. 12.—Current from the $10,000,000 lock and dam at Hale's Bar, Tenn., operated all cars upon the lines of a local traction company and furnished lights for Signal Mountain for the first time last night.

Although more than 65,000 horsepower has been available, for several weeks, operating current was not turned into the transmission lines until last night.

Bishop and Council Of Elders Rapped For Removing Pastor

Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va., and his council of presiding elders, especially the Rev. W. P. Lovejoy, the presiding elder of the Atlanta district, are caustically censured in the current issue of The Park Street Messenger for their removal of the Rev. S. R. Bell from the pastorate of the Park Street Methodist Church to the position of presiding elder in the Gainesville district.

The change was made at the recent North Georgia Methodist Conference in Elberton and came as a total surprise to Dr. Bell, the stewards of his church and the entire congregation. It was understood up to the last moment that he would be returned to Atlanta.

The action of the conference is described as autocratic and was on. Dr. Lovejoy is criticized because, knowing presumably of the proposed change, he failed to give the stewards of the Park Street Church an intimation of it so that they might make protest.

Dr. Charles M. Heller, secretary of the order, stated today that this far had received any resignations from either army or navy officials who are members of the order. He intimated strongly, however, that he believes some may be received because of the hostile attitude taken by President Wilson and members of the Cabinet against the order's burlesque of Thursday.

C. & ST. RY. HEADLINES OF PNEUMONIA

Brother of Milton H. Smith Likely to Succeed John W. Thomas, Jr., as Chief.

NASHVILLE, Dec. 17.—John W. Thomas, Jr., president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, the fourth head of a big railway system in the South to die within two months, passed away here this morning at 2 o'clock following a week's illness of pleural pneumonia. His death, following so closely upon that of J. R. Parrott, the late Henry B. Flagler's successor as head of the Florida East Coast system, William W. Finley, president of the Southern Railway, and Thomas M. Emerson, president of the Atlantic Coast Line, makes it all the more notable. And the fact that it is the second time a president of the system has died in office, is also noteworthy. The Louisville and Nashville Railroad also makes it a conspicuous coincidence, the Louisville and Nashville being dominated by the Coast Line and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis by the Louisville and Nashville.

H. F. Smith in Line. Who will be President Thomas' successor is a question that local men have not seen fit thus far to answer. However, it would not be surprising to see H. F. Smith, vice president and traffic manager of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis and a brother of President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville, step up to the office.

President Thomas was born at Murfreesboro, Tenn., August 24, 1858 and was educated here, attending Montgomery Bell Academy and later Harvard University. In 1878, at the age of 22 years, he secured his first important railroad position, although previous to that time he had been in the railroad service.

Served in Ranks. He labored in the ranks for several years, steadily advancing. After an assignment to the road Mr. Thomas served in the machine shop, then advancing to agent and dispatcher, purchasing agent, assistant general manager, finally succeeding his father as general manager in 1899. On March 1, 1906, when the Louisville and Nashville was elected president of the road.

Mr. Thomas is survived by his wife, former Miss Dillie Dunbar of Nashville; three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Marie Thomas and Mrs. Helen Thomas, all of this city, and one son, John W. Thomas, of Philadelphia.

Car of Whisky Adds Fuel to a $100,000 Blaze at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Dec. 17.—The Lippman Building, one of the oldest in the city, is a scene of destruction, the result of a fire which broke out last night. A revised list of the losses does not bring the figure below $100,000, the underwriters estimate. The losses follow: C. C. Brinkman, building, $40,000; insurance, $35,000; Nicholas Lang, grocery, $25,000; insurance, $22,500; Selig Brown, dry goods, $2,000; Little Insurance, Grand Union Tea Company, $25,000; Little Insurance, $10,000; Harry Graber, grocery, $5,000; half insured; the loss of the large grocery, according to Fire Chief George Munsey, which has been the only one made it impossible to control the fire.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 17.—A favorable report was ordered by the House District of Columbia committee today in its report on the bill of Congressman C. C. Brinkman, of Savannah, Ga., which provides that the United States treasury shall contribute one-half of the running expenses of the district.

This amount to about $6,000,000 annually. The C. C. Brinkman district should be self-supporting and that other communities should not pay a part of its upkeep. During his campaign he promised his constituents to make an attempt to repeal the law.

Quoted Pastor Says Poes Packed House

GADSDEN, ALA., Dec. 17.—Dr. J. G. Dickinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who failed of re-election Sunday, has issued a sensational statement in which he charges that only 90 of a membership of 600 were in attendance and that the house had been "packed" to defeat him.

He also charges that unfair methods were employed to bring about a majority of the church meeting. Adequate notice of the church meeting had been given and no advance announcement had been made from the pulpit.

LOVERS OF MUSIC HAVE REAL TREAT

Second Concert by Philharmonic Orchestra Charms—Much Improvement Shown.

The second concert by the Philharmonic Orchestra of the Atlanta Musical Festival Association at the Atlanta Theater Tuesday night was easily one of the leading musical events of the season. Since the last concert more musicians and new instruments have been added to the orchestra and the result was apparent in a greatly improved balance of the parts of the orchestra and a greater variety of effect.

Emma Bunting.

In her present vehicle at the Lyric Miss Bunting has one of the best plays in which she has appeared in Atlanta. The role of "Eloisa" gives her exceptional opportunities for the display of her versatile talents, and the supporting company, including Leslie P. Webb, Sam Miller, Eva Sargent, John Bailey and George Whitaker, is excellent. Matinees will be given on Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

The Girl of My Dreams. A pleasing comedy with music will be given at the Atlanta for three nights and Saturday matinee, opening Thursday night. This musical comedy is "The Girl of My Dreams," which has scored a big success where it has been presented. Only one company is in town this season and the play is certain to please. The cast is well worth while with a number of well-known players among the sixty who appear on the stage. The chorus contains many pretty girls. So few musical comedies are on the road this year that the managers had an easy time picking over those who applied.

"Denver Express" a Hit.

The Bijou Stock Company is scoring a splendid hit with the week at the Bijou with Holden Bros' American melodrama, "The Denver Express." The play is brimful of startling situations and intensely dramatic climaxes, the scenic effects are well taken care of, and the company has been splendidly cast. "The Denver Express" promises to be another successful play for the stock company.

P. R. R. AGENTS SEEK FREIGHT BUSINESS

System To Be Extended in This Section—Atlanta Will Be Southern Headquarters.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has a delegation of its prominent freight officials in the South looking over the possibilities of increasing materially the freight business over the Pennsylvania lines.

They were in Atlanta Wednesday getting acquainted with the local situation and Wednesday night will go to Jacksonville, Fla. In the party visiting Atlanta were Walter Thayer, general freight agent of the Pennsylvania; J. L. Eysmans, assistant general freight agent; Walter Franklin, Jr., former soliciting freight agent at Pittsburgh, and W. J. Peebles, special agent for the Pennsylvania, and M. S. Connolly, general freight agent of Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Mr. Thayer, in discussing the purpose of the trip to the South, said that the officials of his road appreciated the increasing importance of the South in manufacturing and commercial enterprises, as well as in agriculture, and that it was proposed to take advantage of the situation by going after the business of the Southern merchants and shippers.

DR. KING AGAIN IN OGLETHORPE WORK LEAD

Many Encouraging Features Lend Impetus to Final Spurt to Raise Required Fund.

Dr. J. Cheston King was an Oglethorpe hero again Wednesday, reporting at the noonday luncheon $1,850 for his last 24 hours' work for the fund. It was largely by reason of that fine report and the gift of the Constitution—$1,000—that the workers were able to announce a total of $5,000 for the day.

But there were many other encouraging features for the gathering to exult over. It was announced that the subscriptions from members of the Boys' High School had passed the $750 mark and still were coming in. The boys in the Tech High School also had started a fund of their own and their subscriptions had reached $275, with more to follow.

Syrian and Jap Aid. Then there was a Syrian, Mike George, who had asked that his name be put down for $50, and that recalled the story of a little Jap citizen who had given $10 to Oglethorpe. "We're going strong," Ivan E. Allen said. "And now that the end is almost in reach, we are likely to double up and clear the whole thing off in a hurry."

Dr. King's total was verging on the $11,000 mark after his report Wednesday.

"My committee is all worked up over this thing," he said, "and they certainly are working."

Cafeteria Gives $291.65 to Charity

Gross receipts from the two opening days of Falk's Cafeteria were turned over to charity on Wednesday by J. H. Falk, proprietor of the new Peachtree street establishment.

Falk's receipts, aggregating $156.20, were given to the Hebrew Orphan's Home. Those of Tuesday, amounting to $135.45, were donated to the Home for the Friendless.

The cafeteria was crowded on both days with friends of the two institutions which were to be the beneficiaries of the opening, and its popularity continued unabated Wednesday.

To Run City Plants 'On Their Own Feet'

EUFALA, ALA., Dec. 17.—In order to determine whether or not the municipal waterworks, electric light and gas plants are paying propositions and can "stand on their own feet," a proposition to run them separately from the general city government is now being considered by the Council.

The change may be made to become effective January 1.

First of Parcel Post Depots in N. C. Open

SALISBURY, N. C., Dec. 17.—The first parcel post depot or terminal in North Carolina was opened here today, the first sack of parcel mail handed being from Cincinnati. The depot opened before the building was ready in order to handle the Christmas business.

Chief Mail Clerk Shultz, of Greensboro, is here to start the depot. R. L. Mauney, of this city, will be in charge.

CHATTANOOGA, Dec. 17.—Sampson Perosett, president of the Derossett party, destroyed by the September fire, has been bound over to the Grand Jury under bond of $5,000, upon a charge of arson following an investigation of the fire.

Insurance claims totaling $27,000 are involved.

ROMANCE GONE, FIFTEEN SEEK DIVORCE

Fulton Superior Court Record Is Broken—Cruelty Charged in Most Cases.

Dan Cupid wore a wry expression upon his face Wednesday when the breaking of the record for the filing of divorce petitions in the Fulton county Superior Court. A total of fifteen suits were filed during the morning.

Here they are: Mrs. Henrietta Green vs. William P. Green; Mrs. Ola Cook vs. Charles Cook; Mrs. Hattie Harris vs. W. H. Harris; Mrs. Amanda M. Doyal vs. Samuel H. Doyal; Mrs. Minnie Porter vs. Thomas Porter; Mrs. Ellen Louis Hardeman Dingelhof vs. Otto VonB. Dingelhof; Mrs. Vina Marilissa Lacey vs. Arnon Benjamin Lacey; P. M. Young vs. Mrs. Mary A. Young; Mrs. E. E. Wilson vs. Everett E. Wilson; Joe Wright vs. Mrs. Frances Wright; Mrs. Minnie Porter vs. Thomas Porter; Mrs. Ella Pattillo vs. H. C. Pattillo; Mrs. Florence A. Kent vs. Thomas J. Kent; Mrs. Alice Childs vs. Will Childs; Anderson Scott vs. Mrs. Sallie Green Scott. Charges of cruelty and desertion were the allegations made in many of the petitions. That his wife deserted him twenty years ago was the charge made by Anderson Scott. A special hearing in the divorce suit of Mrs. Grace V. Nash vs. John Joseph Nash is set for this week. The couple were married July 22, 1913, and separated October 5, 1913. Nash, who is a Servian, came to America fifteen years ago and accumulated considerable property. The petition charges he beat and choked Mrs. Nash and threatened to kill her if she attempted to leave his house, and that it was necessary for neighbors to call upon the police to get her out.

Announcing a Display of Gift Linens of Surpassing Beauty Many Pieces Under Price

Someone has said that the heart of the good homekeeper is in her linen chest—one way of expressing the great pride she takes in her table's dress.

So a display of table linens to-morrow admirably suitable as gifts for homekeepers. Table sets and separate pieces selected with the good taste that characterizes those who know worth, who appreciate that elegance in linens, depends first of all upon superior quality. Every piece is genuinely fine, and therefore a gift to be proud of.

That some of these pieces are under-price is more "a state of mind" of the linen buyer than anything else.

He will keep fresh stocks coming in, though the new patterns are often very much like those that must have their prices cut to make room for these new ones.

If you would give linens, read on—

Early Morning Hours Are Best for Shopping

We are doing all in our power to make your Christmas shopping a pleasure, and profitable to you.

The stocks have been selected with the idea that people want to give things that are really worth while—let it be as small and as inexpensive as you will.

Good taste, we believe, is expressed in the merchandise throughout the store; nothing tawdry or showy finds place here.

And the service—capable, pleasant, willing sales-people to serve you quickly if possible, but WELL by all means.

Also we have augmented our delivery service by installing two new automobiles to whisk things to you on time.

We are doing our best, and our best this year is better than it has been during any of the many Christmases we have served you.

Elegance

Characteristic of a Display of Luxurious Comfortables

We take particular pride in presenting the Christmas stocks of fine comfortables. We doubt if such a display has ever been made in Atlanta:

One notable point is that though the coverings are the richest, most exquisitely patterned silks, the quality of the fillings warrants years on years of service—choose from those filled with lambs' wool and with down—the cover may be a brocaded silk, a heavy gros-grain silk edged with silk passementerie.

Indeed, such a display strikes a new note of elegance in comfortables. Prices go from $5.00 to $45.00.

Will the toys last through the days of Santa Claus' shopping?

We hope they will for the sake of those who just can not do their Christmas duty to the little folk until the day before the day.

But, with no desire to shout "wolf," we would urge all who can finish the toy end of their shopping right now to do so.

This new toy store has won favor, great favor.

The toys are more attractive, it seems, than those Atlanta had been shown before.

They are going rapidly. Be advised.

The usual rush for Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. handkerchiefs, gloves and neckwear is on in earnest.

Varieties must grow smaller as Christmas comes on.

The Gift Umbrellas Are Attractive

Umbrellas that are different from the ordinary kinds! For men and for women. Neater and more artistic than those of other Christmases, and in greater variety. Indeed, those who turn to Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company this season for these splendid gifts will have finest choice.

The stock shows exquisitely traced silver and gold and pearl handles for women, and natural wood, gold and silver mounted and plain wood handles for men.

Nor have the children been forgotten, nor has all the worth of the umbrella been put into the handles—the covers are the wear well kind.

Women's

26-inch tape edge silk cover, natural wood handles, at $2.25, $2.50 and $3.00.

26-inch tape edge silk cover, mission handle, silver mounted, at $2.50, $3.00, $4.00, $5.00 to $6.00.

26-inch tape edge silk cover, pearl and sterling silver and plain gold-trimmed handles, $6.50, $7.50, $8.50, $10.00 to $12.50.

26-inch silk cover, pearl and gold-filled handles, and sterling and solid gold trimmed handles, at $10.00, $12.50, $15.00, $20.00 to $25.00.

Men's

28-inch tape edged silk and wool cover, plain handles, $1.75, $2.00, $3.00 and $3.50.

28-inch tape edged silk cover, natural wood handles, sterling mounted, $4.50, $5.00, $6.00 and $7.50.

28-inch silk cover, ivory handle trimmed with sterling—others gold plated, $7.50, $10.00, $12.50 to $15.00.

28-inch silk cover, solid gold handles, $12.50, $15.00 to $17.50.

THE GEORGIAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

AT BAY

A Thrilling Story of Society Blackmailers.

(Novellized by)

From the play by George Scarborough, now being presented at the Thirty-ninth Street Theater, New York. Serial rights held and copyrighted by International News Service.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"A Filipino boy—his name's Barnadino—but I've cut off the 'dino' and made him a Christian."

Barney smiled vaguely at the witticism and departed.

"Flack has just died—suddenly—an hour ago," went on the Captain. "I want Shannon to call Flack's death a murder. I called it a suicide."

"Well," asked the doctor, quietly. The diagnosis of this case was very imperfect as yet.

"There'll be an autopsy. The Coroner will be under the domination or at least under the influence of the police. I want an independent surgeon present—a man of personal courage and of authority in his profession. I WANT YOU THERE!"

"I can't do that," said the doctor firmly. There was no anger in his tone—only surprise that such a man as Holbrook should ask a favor like this.

"You can't do that—you can't do what?"

"Assist in an autopsy."

"You can witness it, can't you?"

"I don't care to."

"Who does care to? But as a duty."

"Why, I've a vital interest in believing this man a suicide."

"Are you asking me to distort the facts?"

"Do you think I'd insult you? To prevent their distortion—I want a man of my own there to see all that's done or discovered. . . . It's a matter of life and death, doctor—and every move he the best lawyers money can get and they'll want to confer with a man of their kind—the best surgeon money can get—not a coroner—but Doctor Francis Elliott—the last word in his profession."

"When is this?"

"At daylight, I think—I'll find out!"

"My assistant could—," began the doctor, moved in spite of himself by the plea—by the ring of desperate earnestness in Holbrook's voice.

"Your assistant won't do. . . . Come, now, doctor, would you send your assistant if I was to be cut open myself?"

"No—but—"

The Warning.

"THIS IS A THOUSAND TIMES MORE IMPORTANT TO ME . . ."

"Who's that?" asked the doctor, nervous as if caught in some flagrant wrongdoing, as he heard the sound of a knock on the door.

"How can I be telling through a walnut door?" laughed Larry, easily. He went toward it, nodding toward the decanter of whisky the while. "Help yourself—it's a fine brace, they tell me."

But Dr. Francis Elliott knew well that the "brace" might stimulate for the moment—but the pendulum would swing back and the doctor's nervousness would ray in greater nervousness for the toll the "bracing" drink had demanded for its moment of warmth.

He smiled—and poured himself a cup of tea.

"Ah, Father Shannon—come in," cried Larry in the warm tone of affection that crept into his voice at the sight of this fine man and friend and preacher.

"I've very urgent business, Captain," said the father in a voice whose hidden pain betrayed that the business that brought him was indeed "urgent."

"I'm leaving," said the doctor, dryly. "Not without your promise to do what I asked you," interposed Larry. Into his voice came some of that commanding quality that had kept Tommy Gilbert from telling too much at the "third degree" in the spider's den.

There was a pause—and none of the men could dream how much hung on that moment of silence.

"I promise," said Doctor Francis Elliott.

"God bless you—I'll phone the hour."

And Lawrence Holbrook closed the door after his guest—after the guest whose visit had meant so much, much more than he could have dreamed.

"Larry," said the father with slow meaning. "There's a lady in my taxicab downstairs."

Eagerly and anxiously the Irishman spoke.

"Here!" cried the son of the land of mist and dreams—and action, when there was a cause that caught the tender Irish heart. "Here!"—and in all the world there was but one woman that could mean to Captain Lawrence Holbrook.

The father nodded. "To see you."

"Bring her now," he said, "and I'll see you."

"What if she should be seen by some midnight marauder . . . in what if some one found her out? Tommy Gilbert outside of Washington's greatest cabouter exults . . . if the deeds of that black night had left Alne Drane one shred of reputation, all who loved her must seek to preserve it now!"

She Arrives.

"Are you alone?" asked Father Shannon.

"Only my Filipino boy—he'll not come until I call him."

The father went to fetch the lady—and the man who gave her rooms that were soon to be honored by the presence of the woman he loved—slayer and fugitive from justice though she might be—a critical inspection. He whisked up the decanter and the said "subtle in peace just where you are."

And to the flourish of returning the decanter he added a question aloud in the silence.

"No! Why, all this—finesse?" He tested his mood a bit, wryly started and walked to the door and stood waiting to welcome his guest.

"Alone!" cried the father aloud. Then he closed the great doors of circassian walnut and followed the girl across the room.

Alne was again in soft brows of the copper hue she loved. She rose in the pale moon of a bit wryly started and walked to the door and stood waiting to welcome his guest.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT snowed yesterday & wen Pa calm hoam last nite he was two (2) hours late for dinner.

Ware have you been? sed Ma.

With the Sons of the Snow, sed Pa, my deer old pals. Once I was pure like the snow, but I fell, sed Pa. Hoorary.

Who in the world are the Sons of Snow? sed Ma.

It is a jolly bunch of fellows, Pa sed, that get together onst every Fall wen the first fall of snow cums, & we have a littel celebrashun. They are grand fellows, all of them, sed Pa, & I have belonged to the order for yeers. I thought you knew about them.

No, I didn't, sed Ma. Between yure lodges & yure clubs you are a busy cup of tea. Well, sed Ma, come now & eet yure dinner.

Wen Pa was eeting his dinner he was telling us how he cam to join the Sons of the Snow. All of the boys in this order was Wisconsin boys, sed Pa, & you, of course, know that it snows a grate deal in Wisconsin. We think of each other often in the summer, too, Pa sed, but wen the first flurries of snow cums out of the hevyns, the telephone gits busy & we all git together in sum snug tavern and drive duti care away for three or four hours, while the Wintry blast is howling outside.

The snow, the snow, the beautiful snow, sed Pa. I believe peepul shud git together moar. I believe in fraternity.

So do I, sed Ma, & and that makes me think, the Sisters of Song are cumming up to the house aggen to nite. I am glad you are here for one of the new members is a famus sut-rajet from England, & she wants to talk to you about suffrage.

Then Pa went to look kind of blue. I am afraid that will conflict with an engagement I made, he sed. The last thing befor I left the Sons of Snow I asked them all to cum up to the house to nite. I wanted my wife & littel boy to see my noabel comrades. I know they will not be at thare ease with a suffrage around. They hear all of that they want to at hoam, sed Pa.

I don't think any of them will git here if they feel as sleepy as you look, sed Ma. But if they do cum I am sure they will enjoy meeting my frens.

Then Pa went into the library & lit a seegar & sat down in his big chair & started to smook. Pa never wares carpet slippers like the married men wch I have red about that put on thare slippers wen they git hoam at nite. Bobbie, Pa toid me onst, never ware carpet slippers if you git married & have a hoam. A good soldier shud always be under lite marching orders, & maybe you mite want to beat a retreat on sum winter nite. You wud never be abel to git far in yure carpet slippers, Pa sed, & the enemy mite have yure shoes hid.

Pa talked to me a few minits, & then he went to sleep in his chair. The Sisters of Song cam to visit Ma, but I shut the door into the library & Pa didn't wake up. Ma & me let him sleep until her frens had went hoam, & then we wook him up & asked him ware the Sons of Snow was.

Didnt the boys cum? sed Pa.

No, sed Ma, the boys did not cum. I knew they wudnt cum. The girls was all here & have went. Cum on, nite, I am glad you are here for one of the new members is a famus sut-

THIS was on a trolley car, where you hear lots of things! A sweet little voice—that sounded like it usually used better grammar, but was so excited that it forgot—piped out right behind my velvet back: "Ain't it awful—WHEN YOU'RE HERE AND HE'S THERE?" And I knew right away what was the matter, and I knew that it was AWFUL.

Oh, all lovers who are far away from the smile of one another's eyes, here's all kinds of wishes—wishes that a special letter is starting love-ward this very night; for fortune that will suddenly, in good humor, twist your destiny so that you may be where she is and she where you may be; for a private wire to girle around the world; a lover's line with gold-dusty head Danny for Central to fire every other folk off. Oh, all good, good wishes. For when there are two lovers and the two of them make one, and the One is divided into Two—and one half's on one coast and the other half is almost on the other—nothing's right! The sunset is a faded thing. It used to be a heart of flame and feathery fire when she watched it with you—and now it's brown—just BROWN! The end of day used to be "twilight" and the hills turned tender purple in that short season between night and day—but now it just "gets dark!" You watch the theater go dark at a moving picture show. The square of Speechless Romance flashes on the screen—the girl in the picture looks like HER! The passing stranger who hustles by you on the street makes your heart trip up and hold its breath for a dizzy moment. It looked like HIM—just as tall—with a coat belted in—could it be that lover of yours himself? This is a station, and it's a wild innate thought for you got a letter an hour ago and he was clear across the continent then, but maybe he has conjured himself right here. And then he turns the face of him around—and, oh, my gracious! how could you ever think a plain chap like that could be the only man in the world?—IT IS AWFUL—WHEN YOU ARE HERE AND HE IS THERE! And one mile might as well be ten thousand and three thousand feels like two!

A Talk to the Male Jilt

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I have been calling on a girl for three years, and now I have fallen in love with somebody else. The somebody else is a cousin who is visiting the other girl. I think the cousin knows that I am in love with her, and I know that the other girl is very jealous. What am I going to do about it? EMBARRASSED.

Why, you aren't worth a tear—you aren't worth a sigh—you aren't even worth a little crooked quirk of a smile.

What in the world would any woman of any sort of character do with a poor weakling like you?

Fidelity is the one great virtue a woman asks of a man and a man demands of a woman. Without fidelity you are no more use to any one than so much straw scattered by every wind that blows. Run along, little man, run along. Nobody wants you or your kind anywhere in the family.

"Eating" the Evidence.

The counsel for the prosecution in a recent trial had a frightful cold, and when he rose to make his appeal to the jury he had in his hand a box of lozenges. In the course of his speech he had occasion to pick up a pistol bullet, which was a very important piece of evidence.

"Gedlebed," he said, "this is the bullet estraggred frob the body ob der bad. Dow, gedlebed"—he took a lozenge—"id is gontended by the dedfede dat der brisorder dever had a bisdol dat dis bullet wud fit, ad—ad— He stopped suddenly; his bosom heaved, his eyes seemed starting from their sockets.

"Oh, gedlebed, gedlebed!" he cried in agonized tones; "I've swallowed the bullet!"

Advice to the Lovelom

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

CERTAINLY. Dear Miss Fairfax: In keeping company, do you think it is proper if a girl is about a year older than a young man? STEADY READER.

A year's difference in age is too little to think about.

LET HIM DECIDE. Dear Miss Fairfax: We are two very attractive young girls and have many admirers, but both of us seem to be infatuated with the same young man. He is very bashful and shy, and for that reason we can not tell which of us he loves the more. ANXIOUS.

That is something he alone knows and the fact that he is impartial in his attention indicates that his love for both is the same. When he learns his own heart he will make the discovery known, and there is nothing you can do to hasten the discovery.

THAT IS NO BAR. Dear Miss Fairfax: I have been in love with a girl for three months. When I asked her if she would marry me she said she would marry me next January. My mother said I should not marry because she is blind in one eye. J. B.

It is not clear to me who is afflicted, the girl or your mother, but in either case it is no bar to your marriage.

So Changed. "I gave up smoking to please her."

"Good!"

"And drinking."

"Well?"

"Now she says she finds me very uninteresting."

Up-to-Date Jokes

When at Brecon the other day the Archbishop of York told this story. He said he would not say anything against Yorkshiremen, but they possessed one characteristic which might be considered as a virtue or as a defect, according to the view they took of it. One Yorkshire native, who had become well-to-do, was asked by some one for a subscription. He demurred, and was pressed with the observation: "But see how you have been prospered in your business." Whereupon he remarked: "Don't you come any of your religion on me. The Almighty wouldn't have trusted me with so much brass if He didn't think I could keep it!"

A well known university professor was lecturing to some students on hygiene some time ago when one of the class—from the provinces—asked him how he, the student, could safeguard himself in drinking Croton water. The professor rather startled him by replying: "First boil it, then filter it, and after that—drink beer."

Mr. Closecyme (during his wife's reception): "She gives 'em lights; she gives 'em music; she gives 'em food, flowers, champagne; and that's what she calls receiving."

Tabloid Tales

What, Mother Dear, is meant by leading the double life?

If a man, Innocent One, earns $100 a month and gives his wife only $99.50 of it, she suspects him of leading a Double Life with the remaining half dollar.

But has she grounds, Mother Dear, for such a suspicion?

As a woman learns the other sex better, My Child, she learns she has grounds for every suspicion that enters her head.

What, Mother, is the test of the success of a woman's dinner party?

If every guest, My Dear, hunts a dream book next day.

In what, Mother Mine, does the housewife find her most engrossing occupation?

I can not determine, Daughter; but it seems to me to be one of two things: Either in keeping her spare room ready for guests or in roaring because guests are coming.

Why, Mother, did you order the maid to put the eggs in the bedroom? Surely a sleeping room is no place for eggs.

Hush, Little One—there are burglars about, and we'll sleep to-night with the eggs under our pillow.

What, Mother, is a bandit? Are there any these days?

In olden times, Inquisitive One, a man rode up to a house on a bold black charger, and, picking up a maid, galloped off with her. In these days the bandit is a woman who in a sweet, gentle voice gets the maid at her friend's house at the telephone, and steals her away by offering her more wages. The modern bandit is an object of greater hatred than the bandit of old.

What, Dearest Mother, is the Yule Tide?

It is an expression of sentiment used commonly just before the 25th of December for the purpose of hypnotizing Father and getting his mind off the bills.

In what respect, Mother Mine, do you think the Bible shows most that it was written in ancient times?

In no place, Staidous One, does it say in relating the downfall of Adam that Eve was a blond.

What, Mother, is Hospitality?

It is a virtue, My Child, that has its origin in lonesomeness and careless housekeeping. The woman whose idol is an immaculate house and a spotless tablecloth is never out looking for guests.

WOMEN'S NEWS — THE SOCIAL WORLD

The presence in Atlanta of the noted surgeons and physicians who are here for the convention of the Southern Surgical and Gynecological Association has been the occasion for some very brilliant entertaining.

The visiting ladies were tendered an elaborate luncheon Wednesday at the Capital City Club by the receiving committee, composed of the wives of the eight local members of the association. Mrs. Floyd McRae, Mrs. W. S. Elkin, Mrs. Willis Westmoreland, Mrs. George Noble, Mrs. W. S. Goldsmith, Mrs. J. G. Earnest, Mrs. Edward C. Jones and Mrs. W. P. Nicolson.

The luncheon table was adorned with a long oval platoon of Killarney roses, with smaller baskets of these roses at either end of the table, and pink-shaded candelabra. The placards were hand-painted in pink roses, and every detail was beautiful.

The dinner dance at the Piedmont Driving Club Wednesday afternoon will be a brilliant event for the visitors, and in addition there are to be several private affairs.

Mrs. Floyd McRae will give a luncheon at home Thursday in honor of Mrs. Charles Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., who, with her husband, is at the Georgian Terrace. The other guests will be Mrs. McCarty and Mrs. Mitchell, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Clammon, of Boston; Mrs. Vance, of Kentucky; Mrs. Winslow and Miss Winslow, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Hayward, of Nashville.

Mrs. Charles Remsen was hostess at an informal luncheon at the Capital City Club Tuesday, given in honor of a few of the visiting ladies, the luncheon table being prettily decorated with pink roses.

For Miss Wood. The informal bridge at which Miss Margaret Northern entertained Wednesday afternoon was a delightful compliment to Miss Rosalind Wood, of Savannah, the guest of Mrs. Luther Rosser, Jr.

Miss Cooney's Debut Dance. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Cooney entertained the younger set at a 9 o'clock german at the Piedmont Club, the dance having been preceded by the afternoon reception, when all the married friends of the family were present.

A special feature of the evening was the cabaret performance at the dinner served at 11 o'clock in the large dining room. A group of Hawaiian mandolin and guitar players furnished music for this unique event and danced about the tables.

A corsage bouquet of orchids and narcissi marked the place of each lady guest and the favors for the dance were drums, horns and sleighbell reins.

The ballroom was entered through a forest of pines, the walls of the loggia being completely concealed by these fragrant young trees. The hanging moss mingled with pink roses and asters, suggesting the Louisiana marsh lands. Little rills filled with goldfish, ferns and small palms on the moist banks formed the decoration of the side porch. Red flowers and narcissi added their charm to the wonderful gardenlike appearance of the convalesced-in portion.

Mrs. Cooney's dancing gown was of gold satin brocaded in silver and embroidered in rhinestones. She wore a corsage of violets and valley lilies. Miss Dorothy Judine received with Miss Cooney at the afternoon reception and Mr. and Mrs. Inman Gray, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sisson were among those entertaining the guests during the evening.

About one hundred were present, among them being a number of out-of-town guests.

A Successful Entertainment. The entertainment given yesterday afternoon by Chapter No. 7 of the Woman's Guild of All Saints' Church was an artistic as well as financial success. The musical program was contributed by Mr. VonSkylinski, the well-known violinist, and Walter Stanley, the singer. Dr. Memlinger read the Christmas story, "The Mystery of Christ."

Miss Stewart's Reception. Miss Nellie Kiser Stewart gave a reception Wednesday afternoon at her home on Juniper street for three debutantes, Misses Jessie McKee, Anne Akers and Katherine Ellis.

American Beauty roses and palms formed the decoration in the reception rooms, and in the dining room, where tea was served by Misses Caroline Muse, Alice May Freeman, Elizabeth Morgan and Nell Prince, the red and white idea was carried out exquisitely with Richmond roses and lilies of the valley.

A large mahogany basket of these graceful flowers adorned the center of the tea table, and the bonbons were in red and white. The silver candelabra held red-shaded tapers, while vases of roses and valley lilies were artistically placed on the buffet and cabinets.

PEG TOP HAT, LATEST FROM PARIS, TO ADORN OUR SPRIGHTLY GIRLS

And now it's the "peg-top hat." The style, direct from Paris, of course, has just struck America. Fashion experts admit that the hat will attract attention.

It can not fail to do that, they said, because the hat has a real "punch." It is not fluffy, like the creations with aigrettes and such things on 'em. The make-up of it is more like that of a prizefighter's fist.

The "peg top" has an outward coating of velvet. Its interior composition is of good steel wire, guaranteed not to break or bend when it comes in contact with a human face. There is a distinct list to starboard in the new style. The "list" is what makes the hat catchy and "fetching."

It gives the general appearance, like that of a boat which has just struck a coral reef during a heavy storm and doesn't know where it is going thereafter.

Persons interested in styles said to-day that the new headwear for women really is an off-shoot of the Tam o' Shanter.

From the Tam o' Shanter there grew the picture hat, then the "cavalier" and finally the "peg."

Halstead. The little flower girls will be Jacqueline Moore, Marlan Bryan and Cornelia Orme.

Among the former Atlanta women contributing dolls to the enterprise are Mrs. Daisy Peck Blodgett, Mrs. Agatha Sheehan Kress, Mrs. Nannaline Holt Duke, Mrs. Joseph Gattins, Mrs. Sarah Peel Tilt, Mrs. Kate Robinson Butler, Jr. and others. Contributions in money have been sent for the Chapter House fund to which the proceeds of the Dolls' Congress will be applied, including $50 in gold

Miss Stewart was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Thomas Stewart; Misses Margaret Grant, Marian Vaughan, and Dorothy Harman served punch in a little den.

An orchestra played during the afternoon. The guests included the debutante set, a small number of the young married contingent, and a number of young men.

Mrs. Stewart was lovely in powder-blue charmeuse with tunic of net embroidered in gold threads. The high girdle was of copper-colored satin, and she wore a corsage of Parma violets and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Stewart was gowned in black charmeuse draped in brocaded velvet, with touches of Normandy lace about the corsage.

Mrs. Draper Entertains. The Dresden luncheon given by Mrs. Jesse Draper Wednesday at the Piedmont Driving Club complemented three debutantes, Miss Katherine Ellis, Miss Margaret Grant and Miss Jessie McKee.

The table decorations observed minutely the Dresden colors, the entire service being of Dresden china with many pretty details. A large platoon of maidenhair ferns, bordered with little Dresden urns, filled with pink and lavender sweetpeas and blue forget-me-nots formed the centerpiece. A larger Dresden urn filled with these flowers arose from the platoon and at each plate was a little Dresden figure, in whose voluminous skirts was concealed a tiny pin cushion. These figures were dressed in Dresden colors with the names of the guests on white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Draper wore a gown of black velvet with a close-fitting hat of black velvet trimmed in fur. The three honor guests wore handsome winter costumes.

Lilliputian Wedding. When the Congress of Dolls meets at the home of Mrs. William Lawson Peel Friday and Saturday afternoons there will be a Lilliputian wedding in which little Sarah Tilt will be the bride. The attendants will be Mary Goddard, Helena Calloway, Elizabeth Cole, Murdoch Walker, Josephine Scott, Margaret Moore, Adelaide Wirt, Harry Grant, T. B. Felder, Jr., Lindsey Hopkins, Jr., Joe High Williams, Henry DeGlove, Jr., Morris and Inman Brandon and William sent by the regent of Illinois, Mrs. Lawrence. A charming program of dancing will follow the wedding when Miss Constance Larue will dance "Piccolato," and Miss Phillis Wilkins the "Highland Fling." Mrs. Williams. The public is invited to attend the congress and take part in the festivities.

Keller Lecture Tickets. Tickets to the Helen Keller lecture, to be given under the auspices of the United Daughters of the Confederacy at the Auditorium Saturday evening, are on sale at the Cable Company's store in Broad street at the intersection of Peachtree.

The officers of the Daughters of the Confederacy will occupy seats on the stage. They are Mrs. Williams McCarty, president; Mrs. Helen Plane, honorary president; Mrs. J. R. Mohr, vice president; Mrs. W. T. Williams, second vice president; Mrs. W. S. Coleman, recording secretary; Mrs. Laurie S. Weddell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Dalton Mitchell, registrar; Mrs. A. Joseph Derry, auditor; Mrs. Lillian Belle Wylie, historian. The executive board will also sit on the stage.

Church Class Meets. The Baraca and Philathea classes of the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church held a meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Martin at Clarkston. After business matters were discussed a delightful supper was served.

"The Damsel" at Driving Club. The second in the series of "The Damsels" arranged for members of the Piedmont Driving Club, was held Wednesday afternoon, and was largely attended by club members and their friends. Miss Donna Bain, of New York, and her assistant, Donald Crane, again gave exhibitions of the latest dances and their beautiful interpretations of the most difficult dancing was greatly enjoyed.

Concennial groups were seated at small tables, and, as on Monday afternoon when the initial "The Damsel" was held the ballroom was filled with interested spectators.

On Friday afternoon Miss Bain and her assistant will again appear at "The Damsel." The exhibitions will continue next week.

Executive Board Meeting. A meeting of the executive board of the Atlanta Woman's Club will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the clubhouse on Baker street.

For Mrs. Percy Taylor. The informal bridge party given by Mrs. Howard Muse Wednesday afternoon was one of a series of delightful parties tendered Mrs. Percy Taylor who was formerly Miss Louise Watts. Silk hose were prizes, and refreshments were served after the game. Only the close friends of the honor guest were entertained.

Parent-Teacher Association to Meet. The Parent-Teacher Association of the Forrest Avenue School will meet Thursday, December 18, at 3 p. m. at the school building. W. M. Slaton, Superintendent of Schools, will be the guest of honor.

For Miss Mary Gude. A series of parties is being tendered Miss Mary Gude, whose marriage to Algernon Coleman, of the University of Chicago, takes place next Tuesday. The informal bridge which Miss Lucy Harrison gave on Wednesday afternoon was a happy occasion and assembled a group of Miss Gude's intimate friends to meet her. The game was followed by afternoon tea and cordial hospitality was extended by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Raine at Home. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raine, Jr., will observe their annual custom of keeping "open house" on Christmas morning, when their friends will call informally.

Miss Stearns to Entertain. Miss Marion Stearns will entertain during the holidays in honor of Miss Eloise Robinson, who returns Saturday from Notre Dame, Baltimore, to spend the holidays at home.

Parent-Teacher Club Meeting. Those interested in Child Welfare are invited to attend the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Neighborhood Club of Ira Street School to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the

HARRY CHAPMAN IS HAVING GOOD TIME AT THE CRACKERS

If You Don't Believe It, Read This Letter From the Crackers' Great Backstop.

THIS is the fourth of a series of letters from members of the Crackers, the Southern League pennant winners. It is from Harry Chapman, the great young backstop.

Thomas, Okla., Dec. 12, 1913. W. S. Farnsworth, Sporting Editor, The Atlanta Georgian.

Dear Bill: I guess you think I am a little slow in answering your letter, but I have just come home from a big hunt of 24 days on which I had a dandy time. You asked me to write a letter for your paper, telling what I have been doing since I left Atlanta. Well, here goes.

I left for Cincinnati from Knoxville and stayed two weeks with a boy friend in that city. We put in most of our time going to shows while in the city, and when not in the city we were at his camp on the Miami River fishing, boating, kodaking and eating large feeds that the cook would have fixed for us when we came in, and we sure did enjoy them—at least, I did, and I am most sure my pal did, as he was not used to the out-of-door life as I was. Sure was a great treat for me to have a place that kind to go to after being cooped up for hard fought battles at old Ponce DeLeon, in which I gave the manager and fans everything I had, even if I did have two ribs broken in. But there was too much at stake to think of as small a thing as two broken ribs. But at times they would make me think of Fred. But I should worry, they are all right now.

Speaking about giving everything I had, I want to say that my fan gave everything that had, if not a little more. In fact, all the boys on the bench thought the world had or was coming to an end, the noise was so loud. There were times when we could not understand each other without talking in a loud voice, and I think I was what I call rooting, and I hope they keep the good work up next season, and I am sure they will. The Crackers will give them something to root for.

So, get ready for that big day when the umpire yell "Play Ball." I landed home in Cincinnati O. K., and was glad to get back, as anyone would be after they are away for seven months. Was home only two days and went to Texas for a prairie chicken hunt. Was gone a week. Drove through in a dandy time and killed 33 chickens in one day and part of the night to make the trip, as we were heavily loaded and could not get out of there until about 10 o'clock. I was a little sick on the north and that makes duck shooting good here, so I hit out for a good lake 42 miles from here. The storm did not last but a short time, so I did not stay long. We got there at 3 p. m. and at 10 a. m. the next morning we were getting on the train for Dallas, Texas, and that is more than any other two hunters have ever brought in. So I guess we are champs. Have taken a number of small duck hunts since, but never had such good luck. And by that time the quail season had opened, and three of us had been planning on a big hunt as soon as the season was open for quail, which was November 15. In the 17th we loaded our wagon for the trip, so we could get an early start on the morning of the 18th, on which we left in a covered wagon, and landed back home the 10th of December. Now anyone that never took a trip of that kind does not know what fun and good times are. I used to use and see for themselves. So you can see to tell you what it is like, and how much you will eat and how good you will feel. Of course, I mean if you like the out-of-door life and to hunt, camp out and sleep in a tent or in a sleeping bag. I will take a sleeping bag for mine.

We had one big time, killed a world of quail, but very few ducks, as it was not duck weather while we were gone. We salted a lot of quail down while we were out and they were fine and dandy when we landed back home. So we can have quail and not have to hunt them for some time.

Think I have enough hunting to do for a while. So think I shall sit around the fire and rub off some of those foul tips I got at Ponce and try to gain a few more pounds. I have gained 100 pounds, and that is about all I need for now and I love a fat man—not at Ponce, anyway.

The Georgian's Expert Golfer Picks Sixteen Greatest Performers EVANS SELECTS OUMET AS BEST U. S. GOLFER

By Chick Evans.

THIS is the season of the year when golf writers are busily engaged preparing lists of the best sixteen players in America and the peculiarity of the lists is the wide divergence after the first three names. This fact immediately brings us to the question of standard and it shows us that without a generally recognized standard lists of players are likely to become mere registers of prejudices and unstudied opinions. I give a practical golfer as well as a theoretical reporter of the game, have spent the last few weeks painstakingly devising my own list of the sixteen greatest players in America and the peculiarity of the lists is the wide divergence after the first three names. This fact immediately brings us to the question of standard and it shows us that without a generally recognized standard lists of players are likely to become mere registers of prejudices and unstudied opinions. I give a practical golfer as well as a theoretical reporter of the game, have spent the last few weeks painstakingly devising my own list of the sixteen greatest players in America and the peculiarity of the lists is the wide divergence after the first three names.

- 1. Francis Ouimet, Boston. 2. Warren K. Wood, Chicago. 3. Jerome Travers, New York. 4. W. J. Travis, Garden City. 5. John G. Anderson, Boston. 6. Fred Herreshoff, New York. 7. W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburg. 8. E. Sawyer, Chicago. 9. R. A. Gardner, Chicago. 10. Oswald Kirby, New York. 11. Paul Hunter, Chicago. 12. P. W. Whittemore, Boston. 13. Harry G. Legg, Minneapolis. 14. Chandler Egan, Medford, Ore. 15. Jack Neville, San Francisco. 16. A. V. Macan, Victoria, B. C.

Warrent Wood has mastered the secret of wooden club control that constantly evades Travers. The latter, no doubt, can play more consistently than Warren, the longest iron shot, and he may have a trifle the edge on putting; yet Warren is an excellent putter and from 200 yards down to the green he is undoubtedly the better player. In recovery from trouble Warren is also the better of the two, and I have never known him to "shank" a shot—something Travers did several times at Garden City.

Travers is assuredly a better match than Warren and he has the advantage of more constant practice. Warren is a business man with a most exacting business. Indeed, few Western players, after their school days, have the leisure of Eastern golfers. Last June, for nearly a month, I had an opportunity to watch Warren's game under conditions of leisure during the tour of the mid-West, and the result satisfied me as to his great ability. When he is really going he has all the shots in his bag.

Travis gives Fourth Place. The fourth position on my list belongs to Mr. Travis. He is still one of the greatest golfers in the country, and a dangerous opponent for any player in the world, for time has not destroyed his skill, but merely lessened his endurance.

Wolcast Expects to Stop Charley White. CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Ad Wolcast was in town today for the purpose of allowing the fans to give him the once over before he steps into the ring at Milwaukee with Charley White Saturday night. Ad says he is as good as the day he fought Nelson and that he will stop White. Ad is styling himself lightweight champion again. He contends that since White can not do 135 pounds plus any more and since he was the last holder of the title, that honor reverts to him. The promoters have taken advantage of this and are staging the fight as a life affair.

'Johnny Evers Not To Be Traded'—Murphy. CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—President C. W. Murphy, of the Cubs, today said the report that he was considering swapping Manager John Evers for Tinker with a Schenck. The great defeat I ever experienced in my life was at the hands of Mr. Travers, and conceivably might lead me to say that I considered him in consequence a very great player, but the truth is the weather on that day and the course were meticulously adapted to those two perfect strokes of his and that is a very different thing to saying that a man has adapted skillful strokes to unfavorable weather conditions. As Mr. Evers has pointed out, match play rounds at Garden City were not very good this year.

N. C. & ST. L. RY. HEADS OF PNEUMONIA

Brother of Milton H. Smith Likely to Succeed John W. Thomas, Jr., as Chief.

NASHVILLE, Dec. 17.—John W. Thomas, Jr., president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, the fourth head of a big railway system in the South to die within two months, passed away here this morning at 2 o'clock following a three-weeks' illness of pleural pneumonia. His death, following so closely upon that of J. R. Parrott, the late Henry B. Flagler's successor as head of the Florida East Coast system; William W. Finley, president of the Southern Railway, and Thomas M. Emerson, president of the Atlantic Coast Line, makes it all the more notable. And the fact that it is the second death of a president of a system closely allied by ownership with the Louisville and Nashville also makes it a conspicuous coincidence, the Louisville and Nashville being dominated by the Coast Line and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis by the Louisville and Nashville.

H. F. Smith in Line. Who will be President Thomas' successor is a question that local railroad men here do not seem fit thus far to answer. However, it would not be surprising to see H. F. Smith, vice president and traffic manager of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, and a brother of President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville, step up to the office.

President Thomas was born at Greensboro, Tenn., August 24, 1856. At an early age he moved to Nashville and was educated here, attending Montgomery-Bell Academy and Vanderbilt University. In 1878, at the age of 22 years, he secured his first important railroad position, although previous to that time he had been in the railroad service.

Served in Ranks. He labored in the ranks for several years, steadily advancing. After an experience on the road Mr. Thomas served in the machine shop, then advanced to agent and dispatcher, purchasing agent, assistant general manager, finally succeeding his father as general manager in 1899. On March 1, 1906, shortly after the death of his father, he was elected president of the road.

Mr. Thomas is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Dille Duncan, of Nashville; three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Martha Thomas Riddle and Miss Ellen Thomas, all of this city, and seven, John W. Thomas, of Philadelphia.

Car of Whisky Adds Fuel to a $100,000 Blaze at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Dec. 17.—The Lippman Building, one of the oldest in the city, is in ashes to-day from a fire which burned throughout the night. A revised list of the losses did not bring the figure below $100,000, the underwriters estimate. The losses follow: H. C. Brinkman, building, $40,000; insurance, $36,000; Nicholas Lang, grocery, $16,000; insurance, $12,500; Selig Brown, dry goods, $7,000; little insurance; Grand Union Tea Company, $25,000; little insurance; Samuel Bernstein, china, $10,000, half insured; Harry Graham, grocery, $5,000, half insured. Hobson continued speaking and made an attack on Judge Sands in the form of a motion asking that he excuse himself on the grounds that he is biased and prejudiced.

Crisp's $6,000,000 Cut Gets Approval

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 17.—A favorable report was ordered by the House District of Columbia committee today on the bill of Congressman Crisp of Georgia repealing the law which provides that the United States treasury shall contribute one-half of the running expenses of the district. This amounts to about $6,000,000 annually.

Mr. Crisp contends the district should be self-supporting and that other communities should not pay a part of its upkeep. During his Georgia campaign he promised his constituents to make an attempt to repeal the law.

Ousted Pastor Says Foes Packed House

GADSDEN, ALA., Dec. 17.—Dr. J. G. Dickinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who failed of re-election Sunday, has issued a sensational statement in which he charges that only 90 of a membership of 600 were in attendance and that the house had been "packed" to defeat him.

Footpad Beats and Robs Atlanta Man

BIRMINGHAM, Dec. 17.—R. C. Bradbury, of Atlanta, a traveling man, has a bruised head this morning as a result of being held up, beaten and robbed by a negro last night on Second avenue and Twenty-sixth street near the Terminal Station.

Shoots Husband of Mistreated Sister

EATONTON, Dec. 17.—Isam Jenkins, a negro tenant on the plantation of Mr. Mattie Hargrove, near this place, lies at the point of death from a gunshot wound in the breast at the hands of Jones, another negro. Jenkins had been mistreating his wife, a sister of the other negro, it is claimed, and she previously resented interference on the part of Jones, threatening to kill him.

Whip Man Who Said Father Was Graftier

MACON, Dec. 17.—For saying that former Police Chief Chapman, who retired to-day, had made a fortune by grafting while in office the last four years, Policeman Pat Pierce was knocked down in their drug store today by Holt and Arthur Chapman, sons of the former Chief.

On Monday morning he will speak at the court house here. Tomorrow he will deliver an address at Center and at Cedar Bluff that night. On December 20 he will speak at Collinsville and Fort Payne and on December 31 at Eiberville, Boaz and Gunterville.

S. C. Canning Girl Is Second Best in U. S.

UNION, S. C., Dec. 17.—Miss Lizzie Kelly, the 13-year-old member of the Kelly No. 2 School Girls' Tomato Club, who won the State championship and free trip to Washington, has been awarded second prize in the national contest in which girls from all over the Southern and many of the Northern and Western States competed, according to a telegram received here from O. B. Martin, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has charge of this work.

Hobson Misses Train To Finish His Speech

GADSDEN, ALA., Dec. 17.—Urged by a crowd of almost 1,000 persons who had gathered at the courthouse to hear his address not to leave when the hour for the departure of his train arrived, Captain Richmond P. Hobson continued speaking and made the trip to Wellington this afternoon in an automobile.

Trial of Senator For Bribery Opens

VICKSBURG, MISS., Dec. 17.—A. W. Shands, of Sardis, appointed by Governor Brewer as special judge to preside at the trial of State Senator G. A. Hobbs, charged with bribe-taking, reached here at noon, called court to order and announced that the case would be taken up at 3 o'clock. The defense is planning to make an attack on Judge Sands in the form of a motion asking that he excuse himself on the grounds that he is biased and prejudiced.

FIVE MORE ROADS CURTAIL MILEAGE

Thirteen Companies Now Under Citation by Railway Commission for Rules Violation.

Five more railroads going business in Georgia filed Wednesday morning the notice of their prospective withdrawal of interchangeable mileage books, to take effect that day, and in consequence came promptly under the order of the State Railroad Commission, ordering them to show cause on January 12 why suit should not be filed against them for violation of the commission's ruling.

The roads were the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, Macon and Birmingham, Hawkinsville and Florida Southern, Atlanta and West Point and Georgia Southern and Florida. The list of railroads in disfavor with the commission now totals thirteen of the sixty odd transportation companies in the State. Those put on notice Tuesday were Central of Georgia, Georgia Southern, Wrightsville and Tennille, Macon, Dublin and Savannah, Seaboard Air Line, Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic and Georgia and Florida.

The violated rule is that providing that railroad tariffs shall not be altered without first submitting the proposed change or changes to the commission for approval.

Hobson Raps Donovan In Underwood Fight

ANNISTON, ALA., Dec. 17.—In his address before the largest political gathering of the year in this city, every available seat in the Circuit Court room being occupied, Congressman Richmond P. Hobson opened his final tour of the Fourth Congressional District with a reiteration of the allegation that Oscar W. Underwood, his opponent, is a tool of the liquor interests and of Wall Street.

SOUTH TO LOSE 63 REPUBLICAN DELEGATES

Committee Recommends Reduction in Representation—Georgia to Lose Six.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A reduction of 79 delegates for the 1916 Republican National Committee from the number in 1912 was recommended today in the report to the national committee by the subcommittee of nine named to decide the question of representation. The reduction is chiefly in the South.

The report of the subcommittee, compiled after an all-night session, recommended that each State which cast over 25 per cent of its vote for the Republican ticket at the preceding election will be allowed two delegates for each Congressional district, whereas it shall be entitled to but one if the Republican vote falls below 25 per cent. The election of 1908 is to be the standard in 1916, because the elections of 1912 are held to be "abnormal."

The plan recommended by the subcommittee will reduce the total number of votes in the convention from 1,024 to 824. The 79 votes eliminated will be lost in the following States: Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 1; New Jersey, 1; New York, 4; Alabama, 8; Florida, 2; Georgia, 6; Louisiana, 7; Mississippi, 8; North Carolina, 2; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 7; Tennessee, 4; Texas, 14; Virginia, 5. It was at first planned to have the basis of representation 25 per cent of the vote cast. This, however, was found to eliminate but 32 votes and the percentage was raised to 35 per cent.

SCORES OF CLEVER IDEAS MAKE GIFT CONTEST SUCCESS

By MARY LEA DAVIS.

Now that the contest is practically at an end—to-morrow will mark its close—I am satisfied that the object I had in view when I started it has been realized. I wanted to aid the married readers of The Georgian in dealing with that perplexing question, What is the best gift for a husband or wife?

Of course, I could have written out lists of things to give, but that would not have accomplished my purpose. I thought that if our readers could have the benefit of the experience of others who had solved the problem to their own satisfaction their ideas surely would be of value.

I am free to confess that I was not prepared for the flood of letters which my offer brought forth. I have been simply overwhelmed with suggestions. I realized early that it would be impossible to print all the letters, but I have tried to publish as many as space would permit. All letters received have been read and will be considered.

Here are some that have come to hand:

A "CHEERFUL HOME."

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I think a Christmas gift should be one that would fill the home with cheer throughout the year. A pet bird or puppy or kitten would do this. I am going to make my wife a present of a pet this season, probably a singing canary bird. D. C. L.

A FOUNTAIN PEN.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The most appropriate gift for a husband is simply what he needs the most, be it wearing apparel or anything else. My husband is a railway postal clerk and writes a lot, and as his fountain pen is broken I shall replace it with a new one for his gift this year. MRS. P. E. E. Atlanta, Ga.

A COOK BOOK.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: In our national life we are confronted with three great problems, viz., the high cost of living, domestic disturbances, resulting in divorces to an alarming extent, and extravagance. To remedy these evils and create perfect harmony in the homes, would suggest as a suitable gift to present your wife Christmas Day would be a modern cook book. A. K. H. Atlanta, Ga.

SOMETHING FOR HOME.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: We have been married only three years and have just commenced to furnish a home of our own, and have decided, between ourselves, that we will buy some necessary articles to give each other for this home on Christmas. MRS. A. Rome, Ga.

THE GREATEST GIFT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: Just what present a husband should give his wife depends altogether upon circumstances. It does not matter so much what the gift is, if it is tendered in the right spirit and reflects past conduct and future course. A faded rose, given with a cheery smile and a loving kiss, would be more appropriate than a diamond ring offered as a peace-maker. A loving word from a loyal husband is calculated to bring more pleasure to a trusting wife than a purse of gold from a rake, a scold or an inebriate. When a wife has her husband's love and respect she is already the possessor of the greatest gift he can bestow and any present within his means, however inexpensive, will give her pleasure, and is always appropriate. H. M. S. Atlanta, Ga.

A VACUUM CLEANER.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The most useful gift a husband can give his wife is something she needs and wants. Owing to circumstances, different people need different things. My wife does all of her work. Therefore I am going to give her something to make her work lighter, and it will be a vacuum cleaner. Also a box of candy to remind her of old times, and tell her that she grows dearer to me as the years roll by, for she does. And a promise not to be broken, that I am going to try to be a better husband every day. L. F. L. Atlanta, Ga.

WHAT HE NEEDS.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: What a wife shall give a husband depends upon the income. Men like to buy their own things generally. A duplicating letter book with a dozen stamped envelopes is a good present, or a pocketknife or fountain pen—whatever he needs most, but she must not expect a costly present in return so he will not dread what should be the happiest time of the year. MRS. L. E. Atlanta, Ga.

FOR A HUSBAND.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The best thing to give to your husband Christmas morning is to tell him to sleep until he feels like getting up, give him a good breakfast, hand him a box of cigars and tell him you wish him a Merry Christmas and as many more as the good Lord will grant him. MRS. L. M. K. Kirkwood, Ga.

CLEAR OF ALL DEBT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The most appreciated gift from a wife to her husband would be a clean expense account for 1913. And if she can not do that, give him a promise to help him get clear of all debt and let him know how much help she is to him.

A saving wife is a godsend to her husband. MRS. E. V. S. Atlanta, Ga.

CONSIDERATION.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: Christmas comes but once a year and I hope and pray it will bring good news to me. If I can bring it I will do so by telling my wife I will get up with the kiddies Christmas morning and for her not to worry and take a good rest, as I know she will be tired enough before night, after seeing to dinner and supper. T. J. K. Kirkwood, Ga.

HER SUGGESTION.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I would suggest that to take one's husband out to dine with his mother on the farm and be a good and appreciative listener to his after-dinner remarks and suggestions would be a gift of thoughtfulness any husband would consider more precious than a diamond pin with platinum setting for a Christmas gift. Union Point, Ga.

ALSO A BIBLE.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: Let the wife give the husband the assurance that he has a religious, true, energetic, hygienic wife who will be worthy of her situation and a Bible as a light to their pathway. C. B. C. Atlanta, Ga.

A RAINCOAT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I wish to present to my husband a nice raincoat and a pair of overshoes and a nice umbrella, as I think that is as useful a gift as I can give. MRS. P. C. H. Atlanta, Ga.

KEEP DOWN EXPENSES.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The gift that would be appreciated by the largest majority of husbands would be for the wife to restrain her Christmas enthusiasm to such an extent that the bills the first day of January will not give him heart failure. M. W. Atlanta, Ga.

ANYTHING IN JEWELRY.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: If the husband is not sure of some particular article which the wife desires and is worried about something to please her, anything in jewelry is appropriate and is sure to please. E. H. W. Atlanta, Ga.

A CHRISTMAS TURKEY.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I can think of nothing my husband would appreciate more than a nice turkey for Christmas dinner and to have me tell him what a good husband he has been, how I appreciate his loving deeds and that I love him better now than the day I became his bride. That was 40 years ago. MRS. S. B. K. Atlanta, Ga.

A DIAMOND FOR WIFE.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: There is nothing money could buy that would be more appropriate and appreciated more highly than a pure white sparkling diamond about the size of a pea. It is a weakness of the female sex, the love they have for the sparkle of a bright "gem." A gift of this kind will never deteriorate from age, neither will it grow cold in her memory. It will always carry a cash value and your wife could at any time, should it be necessary, realize cash money. However, she would part with any of her worldly possessions, almost her husband, before she would the diamond. TRAVELING SALESMAN. Macon, Ga.

FOR HIS COMFORT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: My Christmas gift to my husband will be two nice outing nightshirts, one dozen linen handkerchiefs, half dozen ties and a real good dinner of my own cooking, which he enjoys so much, with plenty of love with it. MRS. J. K. Carrollton, Ga.

SOME OF HIS TIME.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: As my wife loves her flower yard and puts all her spare time in it and every thing to make her home look nice I know what will please her for a present above all gifts—about three of four days of my time in and around our home. I do this because I have so little time to help her. She buys anything she wants, so my time is present enough for her. J. J. Quitman, Ga.

HER BEST GIFT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The best thing a wife can give her husband is trust, love, honor and obey him. MRS. C. M. W. Atlanta, Ga.

TO PAY HIS POLICY.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I think the best Christmas gift for my husband would be to pay his life insurance in advance for one year with the money I have saved out of my allowances. This will be an appreciation, a surprise and a help for him. Atlanta, Ga. MRS. H. C.

DEVOTION.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: The most appropriate gift a wife can bestow on her husband as they both journey through life is devotion, a care for her husband's health, kind words, neatness in dress and cooking meals, not lazy, not caring if school keeps or not. A wife having such virtues, a husband would mean indeed who would not appreciate such qualities in a wife. Not a spendthrift to squander money. B. East Point, Ga.

A WATCH DOG.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I believe the most appropriate gift for my wife is a fine dog to guard her and keep her company, as I travel a great deal. Atlanta, Ga. W. J. C.

Let the Spirit of Music Pervade Your Home This Christmas and Throughout the Years to Come! The MELODIGRAND PIANO or PLAYER-PIANO Is the Answer!

In the church, at the theater, almost everywhere, music is synonymous with Christmas, but there are many homes which will not feel the influence of music this Christmas—the influence that every day in the year makes your house worth calling a "home," that makes the children better men and women, that brings out the best in all of us. We want every house to be a real home this Christmas, and will do everything in our power to make this possible. A Melodigrand Piano or Player-Piano will bring to you all the real music which for centuries has been recognized as masterpieces.

The "High Cost of Stupidity" Is the Problem.

Men Know How to Produce, How to Collect, But They Have Not Learned How to Distribute.

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

Plenty of water in the ocean. Plenty of it rises, travels with the clouds, falls as rain and goes back to the ocean again—wasted. Men do not know how to save it and distribute it, and great tracts of land are desert.

Plenty of knowledge in the books—enough to raise the average of human intelligence many hundreds per cent.

But men have not learned to distribute knowledge on a big scale—the books are dusty and millions of human minds are "deserts" for lack of irrigating knowledge.

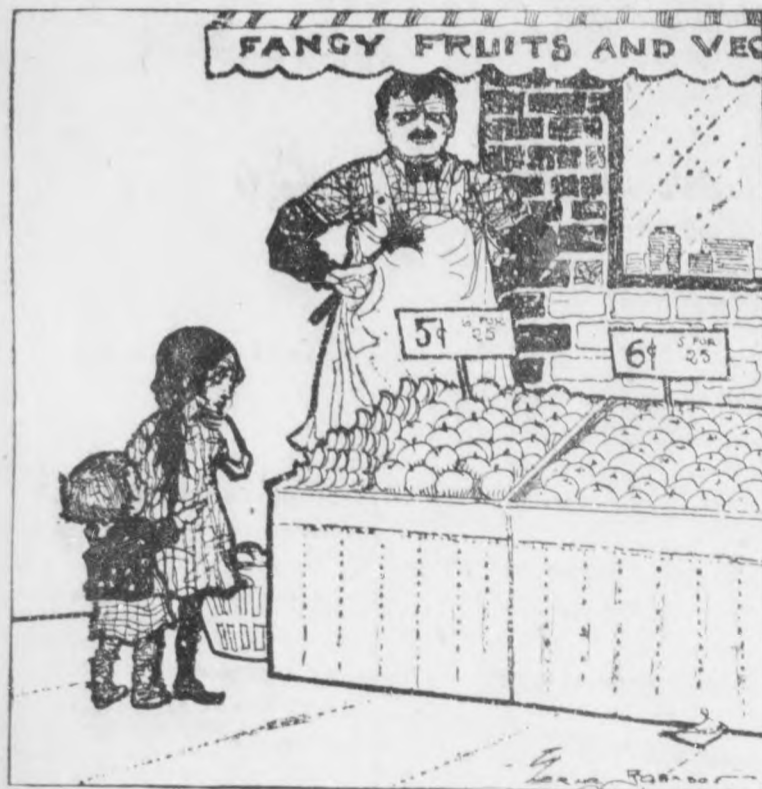

And with the so-called high cost of living the trouble is the same—plenty is produced, a thousand times as much CAN be produced. But men have not solved the problem of distribution.

Here are two small pictures of real life, concerning which you might well write a book—and a thick one.

"NOT WORTH SENDING TO MARKET."

Ten thousand farmers look at the fruit bending the branches of their trees, or at the vegetables rotting on the ground, shake their heads and let fruit or vegetables rot. It does not pay very often to ship them. When the railroad, the commission merchant, the retailer, the barrel maker are paid there is nothing for the farmer. Think of that and then look at the next picture.

"HAVEN'T YOU GOT ANY FOR A PENNY, MISTER?"

Here is a picture that goes with the one above. If you could only move that apple tree from the country to this corner of a hot city! Or if you could move these poor children from the hot city to the shade of the apple tree—BUT YOU CAN'T.

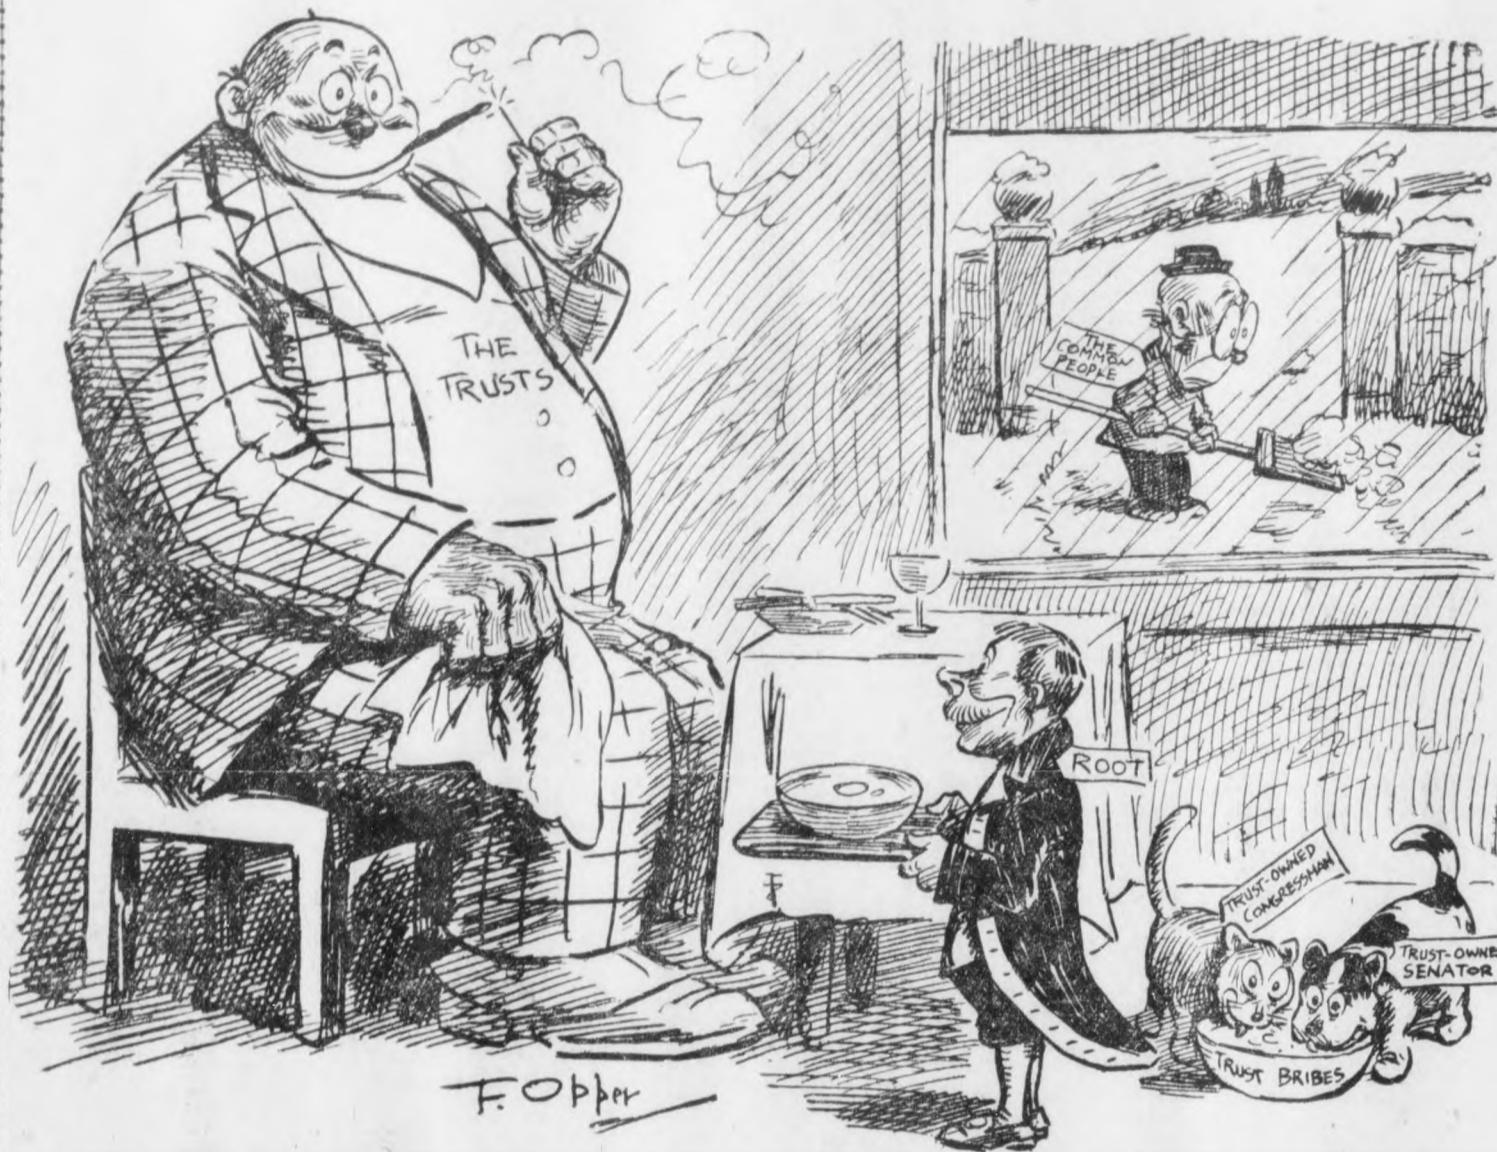

You've got to find some way of getting around that brass god of commerce called "the law of supply and demand."

You've got to find some way of getting the man who PRODUCES nearer to the man and to the child who EATS.

Between the producer and the consumer to-day stand the railroads—and their tax, by the way, is comparatively slight where food is concerned.

UNCLE TRUSTY!

"Well, Elihu, I've got to hand it to you! You certainly put one over on me, grabbing off that Nobel Prize of $40,000 for 'distinguished services in promoting peace!' Har, har! I don't know whether I'll let you keep it or not! It really belongs to me, I've been supporting you so many years! But this glad holiday season always makes me feel liberal, Elihu! Pour out some more milk for the dog and cat, and if that poor gink outside has got the snow shovelled off give him a cup of coffee and a hard boiled egg, with my compliments! As Villon, the great French poet, remarked:
 "Prince, let us seek the cabaray;
 Let's dance the tango and be gay!
 Let's fill the feed bag with good cheer!
 Where are the snows of yesteryear?"

An Ultimatum to a Dictator

Our Victories Are in Our Daily Work

By EDWIN MARKHAM

WILLIAM BAXTER OWEN'S book, "The Humanities in the Education of the Future," discusses the problem of efficiency with the emphasis upon a somewhat unusual aspect of the rise and fall of the aspirant.

"In doing the work of the world we see that men must go up or in the long run they must go out. Take the simplest illustration, the men that make the fires in locomotives on our railways; out of every hundred, seventeen step forward to the throttle of the locomotive; six of this seventeen are advanced to locomotives on what are called 'passenger runs.' There is this sifting of men on the basis of their capacity to take responsibility. What then becomes of the 85? Well, there is room for them to rise in firing, and so long as they increase in efficiency on their own level they are safe; but if they do not so increase there is other work for them—in the switching crew, or the roundhouse, or on the road-bed, and they must go out.

"This is true of every level of labor. It is a law, inexorable, rather a grim law, it would appear at first glimpse, but really benevolent and cheerful; for it is the basis of the noblest optimism that we can entertain, and for this reason: It is easier to go up than to go down. Note the rise of a man in his business or his profession, and you will see that every step of ascent brings him to his own, to that in which he is at home.
 "This is the hope of humanity, that men can go up and be at home. We can go down, too, of course, but the whole atmosphere of a lower situation is striking and offensive to us, and we can only by degrees and with resistance settle down to it.

"It is so in social adjustments, so in culture, so in art. Raise a man to better social conditions than those to which he has been accustomed, and he will feel an expansive thrill of adaptation that will make him instantly at home. Let there be an uplift in culture, in literature, music or any art, and the soul flutters with the joy of a new possession, a new and congenial environment; but you can't go downward in society, in culture or in art without a chill.
 "It is so in morals, so in the achievements of the spirit. There is no compulsion toward the downward way. No man can plead his evil inclinations as an excuse for his fall.

"It is the very nature of spirit to be qualified by inspiration for those sudden betterments of condition. Any upward movement is in response to the natural aspiration of the soul, and universally we go upward with joy, downward with regret and chagrin.
 "This point may well be earnestly pressed, for it is the secret of efficiency—the animation of young life with a reasonable incentive to improve. None are more open to such wholesome ambitions than the young, and it should be a ruling factor in the aim of those who teach to set for those they teach high standards in the best things."

MRS. W. L. PEEL

Writes on

Needs of Atlanta

Let's get a microscope in place of the horn and take an inventory of what should be done in the matter of civic improvement, she says.

By MRS. W. L. PEEL

SOME TIME ago a gentleman from Richmond, Va., called at our home one evening by appointment. He was three-quarters of an hour late, and said he had lost his way. This was on Peachtree street! He came on the trolley and said he had asked the conductor to put him off at the 1300 block, whereupon the man grinned at him and said: "We ain't got nothin' like that in Atlanta!"
 Last Sunday a gentleman from Nashville arrived half an hour late for a dinner engagement. He, too, had been making a house-to-house canvass looking for our number. He was a timid man, and explained that it was a little unusual but very nice after you got used to it!

Has Registered Protest.

Now, we read every day in the papers that Atlanta is far ahead of Richmond and Nashville in bank clearings and postal receipts and yet how far behind in this trifling particular, which could be remedied in a week at small cost!
 Our distinguished postmaster has himself registered a protest against this disgusting and unnecessary waste of time by the postman and every other man.

In August, 1912, constrained by my great love for this city—of which I am one of the oldest inhabitants—at your request I wrote several articles along this line, after making a thorough study of the subject at the Russell Sage Foundation. In the meantime, a visit to Panama, with its horrible climate, caused me to wonder at our high death rate and our short life average (54 years) with our splendid climate. Mr. John D. Patterson has lately returned from a short residence in Panama—he is overcome with the dirt. He says there is more filth on one block on Alabama street than in the whole Canal Zone. Mr. Patterson was born and raised in Atlanta, but Atlanta has become a stench in his nostrils since he has seen the possibilities of the better way.

Well, my suggestions about a city plan, a social survey, an expert engineer marking the streets, numbering the houses and fixing things so they would stay fixed, and a few other little things, served to bear a little fruit, but it was only for a short time that there was a small stir, some discussions, some resolutions, some committees, and then we had a relapse, and our civic temperature went down again to zero. The only result apparent, so far as I know, was that we did have a social survey.
 Gave It Publicity.
 As for the social survey, that part of my suggestion was adopted, more than a year later. Three experts came, saw, and reported. What then? The report was read and pigeon-holed! It is unbelievable, but true.
 Why? There was nothing drastic or extreme in the report—it was far more gentle and kind than could have been expected. The finger was put firmly but tenderly upon the spot, the disease diagnosed, the remedy named. Then what? That seems to have been all.

How different in Syracuse, as I formerly pointed out. When they had their survey, some years ago, they had a map made of it, sixty feet long, and hung it in the largest retail store in town, showing plainly every weak point in the municipality. The four largest organizations in the city, the Ministers' Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Federation of Trades and the Associated Charities took it up and gave it PUBLICITY!

Sermons were preached in every church, essays were written in every school, mass meetings were held every night in different localities, and in one year's time Syracuse blossomed like a rose.
 Now what possible end is to be gained by concealment? Much is already known about Atlanta. It is public property, published by the Government of the United States that in spite of our unrivaled climate we are the THIRD TYPHOID city in the country, ranking next to Birmingham and Nashville. Why then conceal the enemy? The disease is not necessarily fatal, the remedy is simple enough, all that is needed is to follow the wise prescription that we have secured and all will be well.

Of course, Mr. Editor, I am nothing but a woman, but I demand to know what right any body of men has to withhold vital information, fraught with all the issues of life and death, from their fellow-citizens, when a little time, a little attention, a little money and a little knowledge would change our whole complexion.

The Law That's Needed.

Said a distinguished gentleman to me yesterday: "Madame, if Atlanta were put on the footing she deserves, I verily believe you would see 400,000 people here in two years."

Let's stop talking so proudly about our clearings and our post-office and our skyscrapers, and get us out a microscope in place of our horn, and see if by next Christmas we can not reduce our typhoid and tuberculosis.

Now, wouldn't it be nice if we could walk out New Year's Day and find that Santa Claus had brought us the century plan for numbering our homes, such as is in use all over the civilized world, Atlanta excepted?

Atlanta is so free and easy, do as you please, go as you please. Perhaps that is why we are so popular. A gentleman on the street car the other day asked the motorman if he had been vaccinated. "No," he said; "I am just taking the place of a friend who is in the pesthouse." If we had a law requiring that everybody be vaccinated, especially those who come in contact with the public as street car men, wouldn't it prevent the spread of loathsome smallpox? Wouldn't it save the city some money and the people some trouble? Have we not a right to demand such a law and its proper enforcement?

RARE AND SWEET

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK.

RARE and sweet, like some old wine
 Near Belshazzar's heathen shrine,
 Sweeter 'an the roses crushed
 In their nest
 On her breast
 When Love reigns and all is hushed;
 Sweeter than the million kisses
 Sirens promised to Ulysses;
 Rarer than a loyal friend
 When misfortune comes to rend;
 Rarer than were Virtue's bowers
 'Midst the Babylonian flowers;
 Sweeter than a balc's carress,
 Rare one, sweet one, whisper "Yes."

In-Shoots

Because a girl has a baby face it is no sign that she does not possess a grown-up disposition.
 When you are patting yourself on the back someone may be longing to kick you.
 Do not borrow trouble, unless by so doing you can relieve some sufferer of the burden.
 As a rule, the dietetical cranks are the fellows who can afford to eat often.
 It is difficult to put talk in the mouth of any man and have it come out as you desire.
 There are lots of alleged piano players who ought to be moving 'em.
