

WILSON SCORED FOR SUNDAY TRAVEL

Holderby Declares President Set Bad Example on His Trip to Mobile.

There was a good deal of discussion and some difference of opinion Sunday among the congregation of the Moore Memorial Church concerning the sermon Sunday morning by Dr. A. R. Holderby, in which he criticized President Wilson for traveling on Sunday to keep an engagement in Mobile.

Holderby asserted that the president had made a mistake of the head rather than of the heart, and while criticizing the action as a blunder, paid a high tribute to the moral force and uprightness of President Wilson.

He drew a conclusion from his sermon, "The Making of Manhood," that neither the nation nor the church of the United States was right with God. The church was in setting a right example to the people, he said, and the people were lax in following such example as was set, except in a wrong direction.

Danger to Nation Seen.

Dr. Dunbar Ogden also decried a danger to the nation, and in a strong sermon at the Central Presbyterian church before the largest congregation assembled there in months, he criticized the "weaving of the nation" as a wonderful pattern, but with a thread that was weak.

The whole cloth, therefore, must be woven, Dr. Ogden concluded, "and unless the individual member of society be held up to a high standard of honesty and responsibility, the entire fabric is destined to fall, and the nation to go down in ruin."

Two very large congregations at St. Paul's Methodist Church Sunday morning, B. E. Fraser speak in the morning on "The Heroic Spirit" and in the evening on "Burning the Bridges Behind You."

The church has a membership of 2,500 and has been growing rapidly. Of 400 members admitted within the last year more than half were on profession of faith.

More than 50 Confederate veterans in full uniform attended the memorial services of General Wheeler Sunday evening at the Park Street Methodist Church, where the Rev. S. R. Bell delivered a striking eulogy on the famous leader.

Wheeler as Example. Dr. Bell praised General Wheeler as "citizen, lawyer, statesman, patriot, soldier, and above all, Christian—an example that all may follow with profit, as one of the highest type of true and noble gentlemen the world ever has seen."

Sidelights on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

Commissioner of Agriculture James D. Price gives it as his opinion that John Whittaker, of Quitman County, is the prize farmer of his vicinity—or, at least, one of the prize winners.

Mr. Price has just returned from the Quitman County Fair, and there he became very much interested in "Uncle John's" exhibit. It has been assembled in a large tent, and is made up of nearly 300 different articles of one sort and another, every one of which either was raised or manufactured on the exhibitor's farm.

There is every imaginable article of agriculture in the tent, and besides that there are baskets, plows, quilts, churns and all sorts of household articles.

"I have been preaching diversification of crops to farmers for years," said the Commissioner, discussing this exhibit, "and I am glad to have met one farmer who practices diversification to the limit."

This man has to buy nothing whatever that possibly may be raised or made on a farm. He makes enough to live on, and he sells dozens of surplus things at a handsome profit.

FINDS BROUGHTON FAMED IN LONDON

Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, saw a great many interesting persons and things on his recent jaunt through Europe. Two of them, and having no connection one with the other, were Dr. Len G. Broughton and a tipless hotel in London.

"I was amazed to find the degree of popularity to which Dr. Broughton had attained in less than a year of preaching in London," said Mr. Cooper. "Not only popularity, but I may add, prestige. Why, when I asked the commissioner—the information bureau of a London hotel—where the famous old Spurgeon Tabernacle was, he couldn't tell me. But when I asked him where Dr. Broughton preached, he knew at once—and knew his full name, too."

Mr. Cooper dined with Dr. Broughton while in London.

"I found him much improved in health," he said. "Here in Atlanta, we remember him as a frail, nervous man, consumed by the fire of his energy. He has the energy still, but he told me he was 28 pounds heavier, and he looks it. There is a fine golf course near his home, and he reserves one day a week for golf. Usually it is Monday or Tuesday—but always a whole day. The sport has a great hold on his fancy, and he says it keeps him keyed up mentally as well as physically."

The "tipless hotel," which shall be nameless lest an unworthy suspicion of advertising creep in, is on The Strand in London.

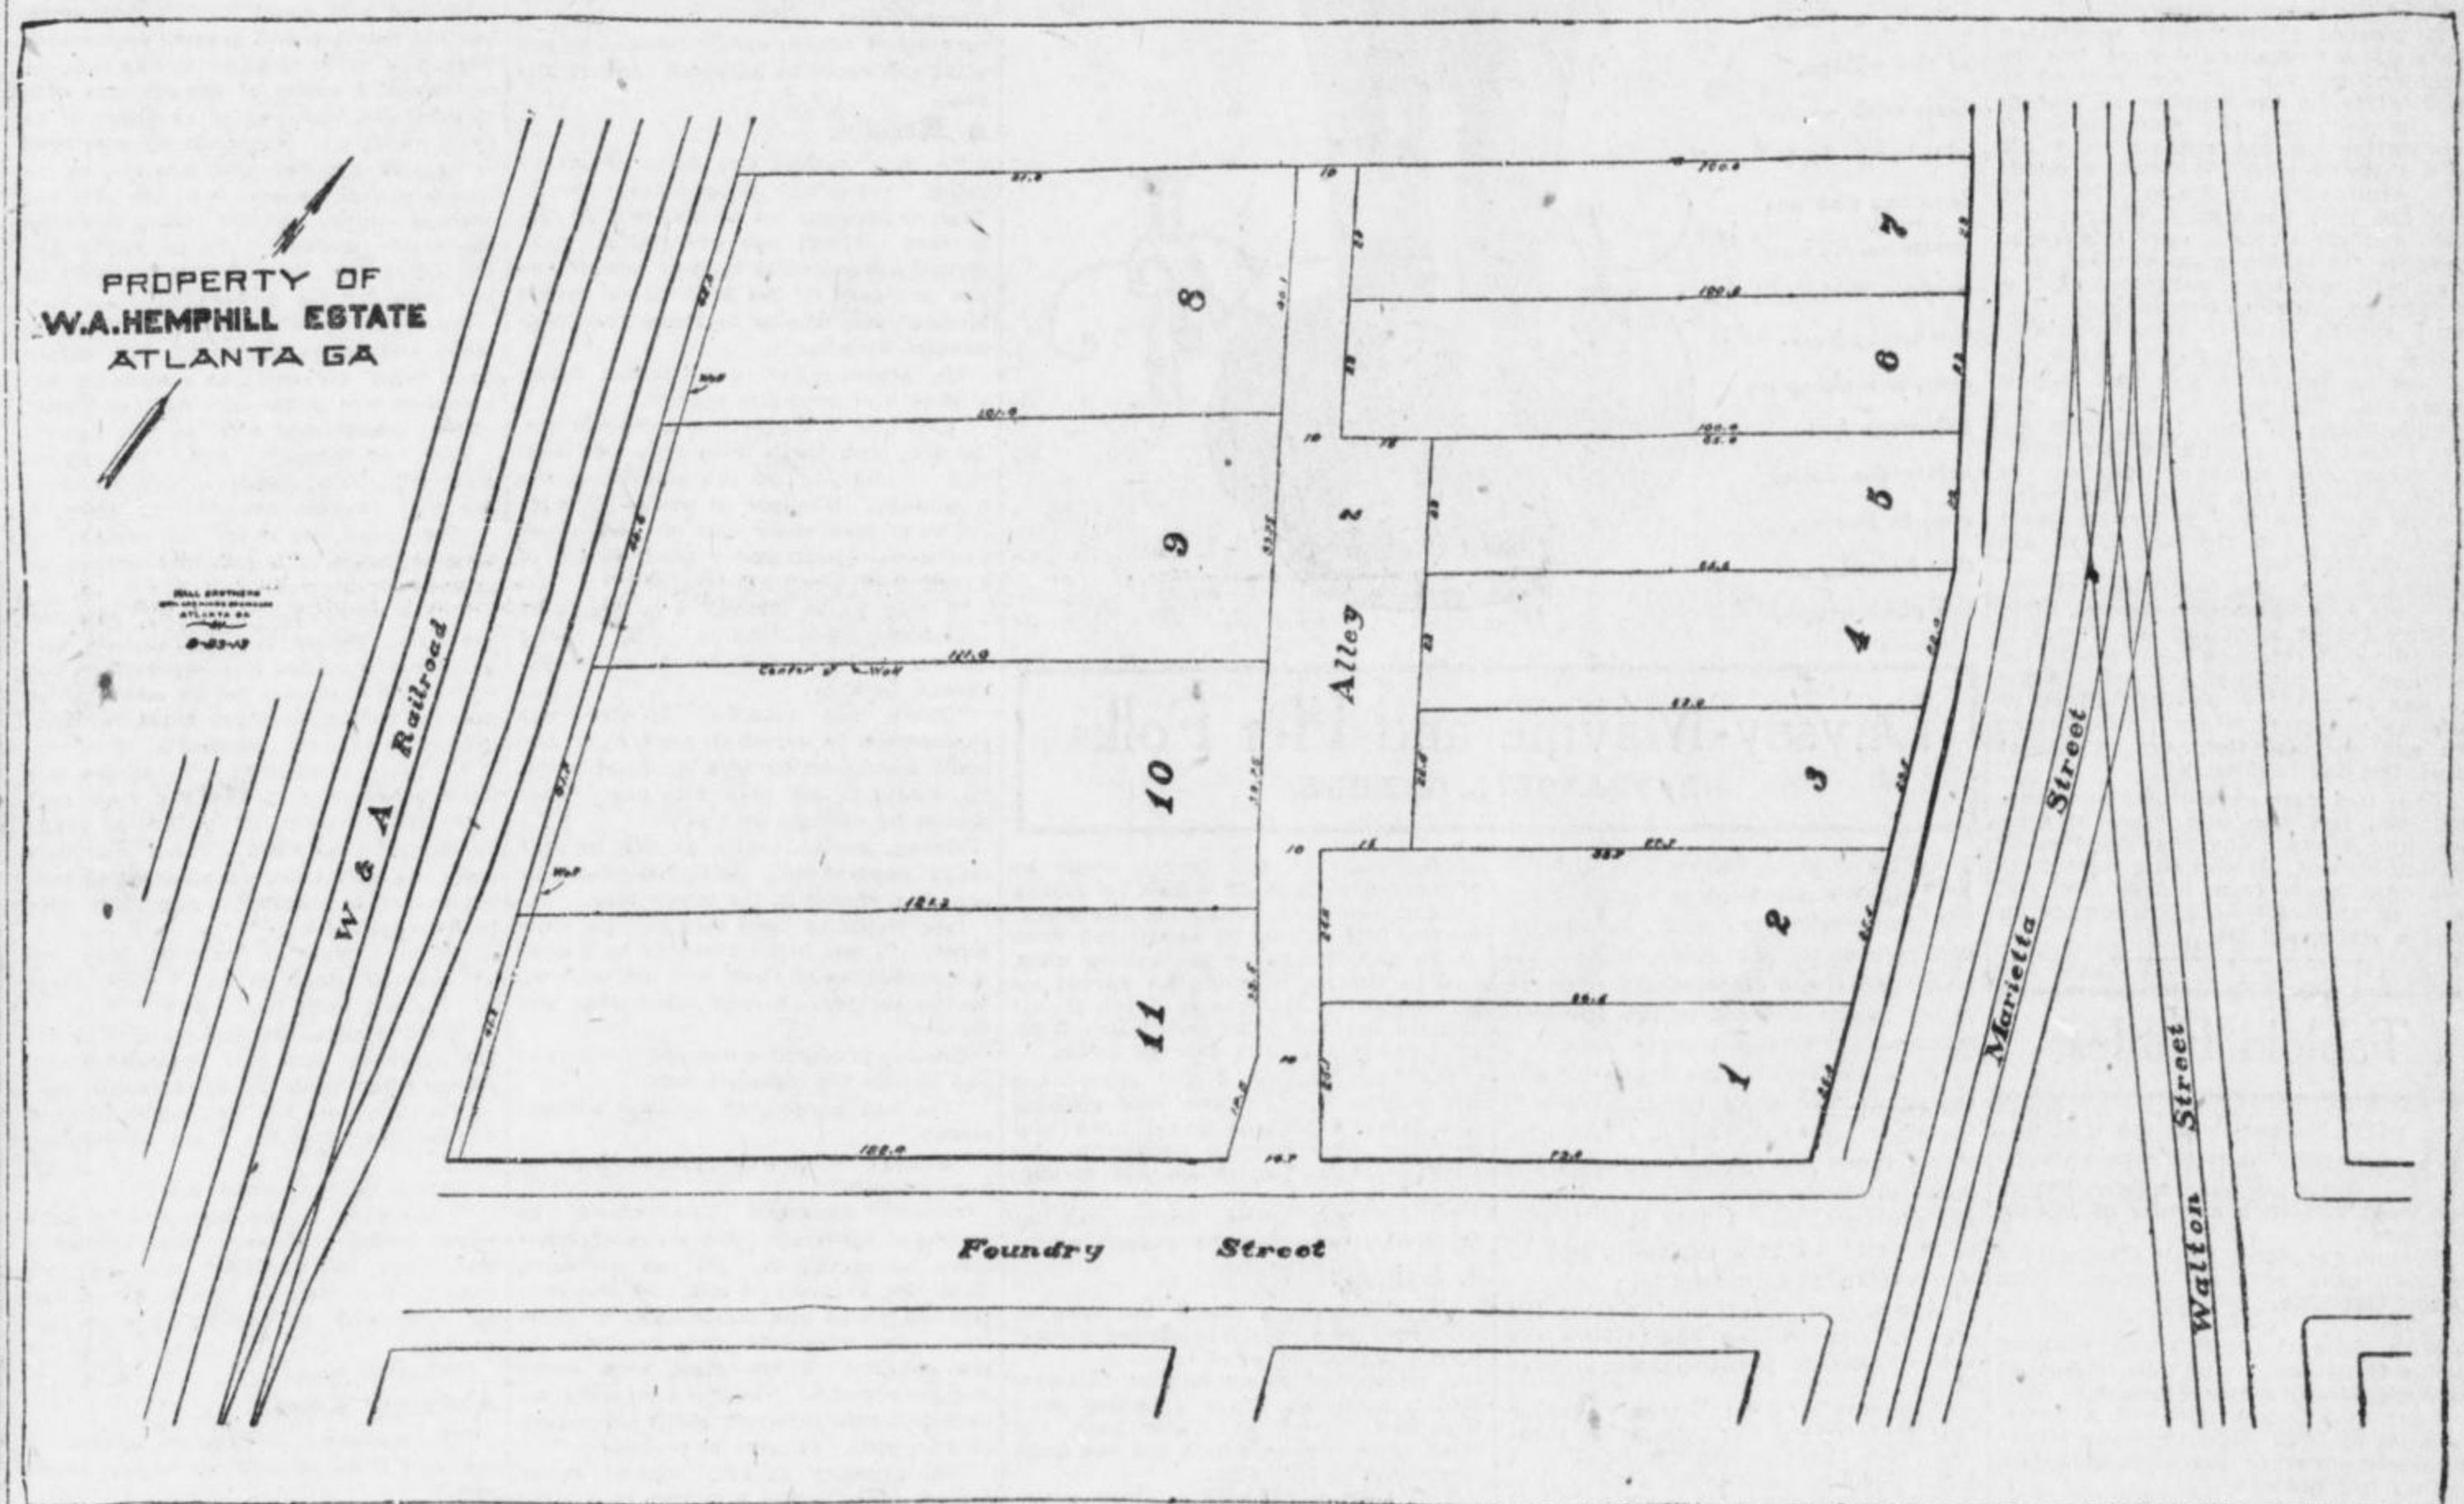

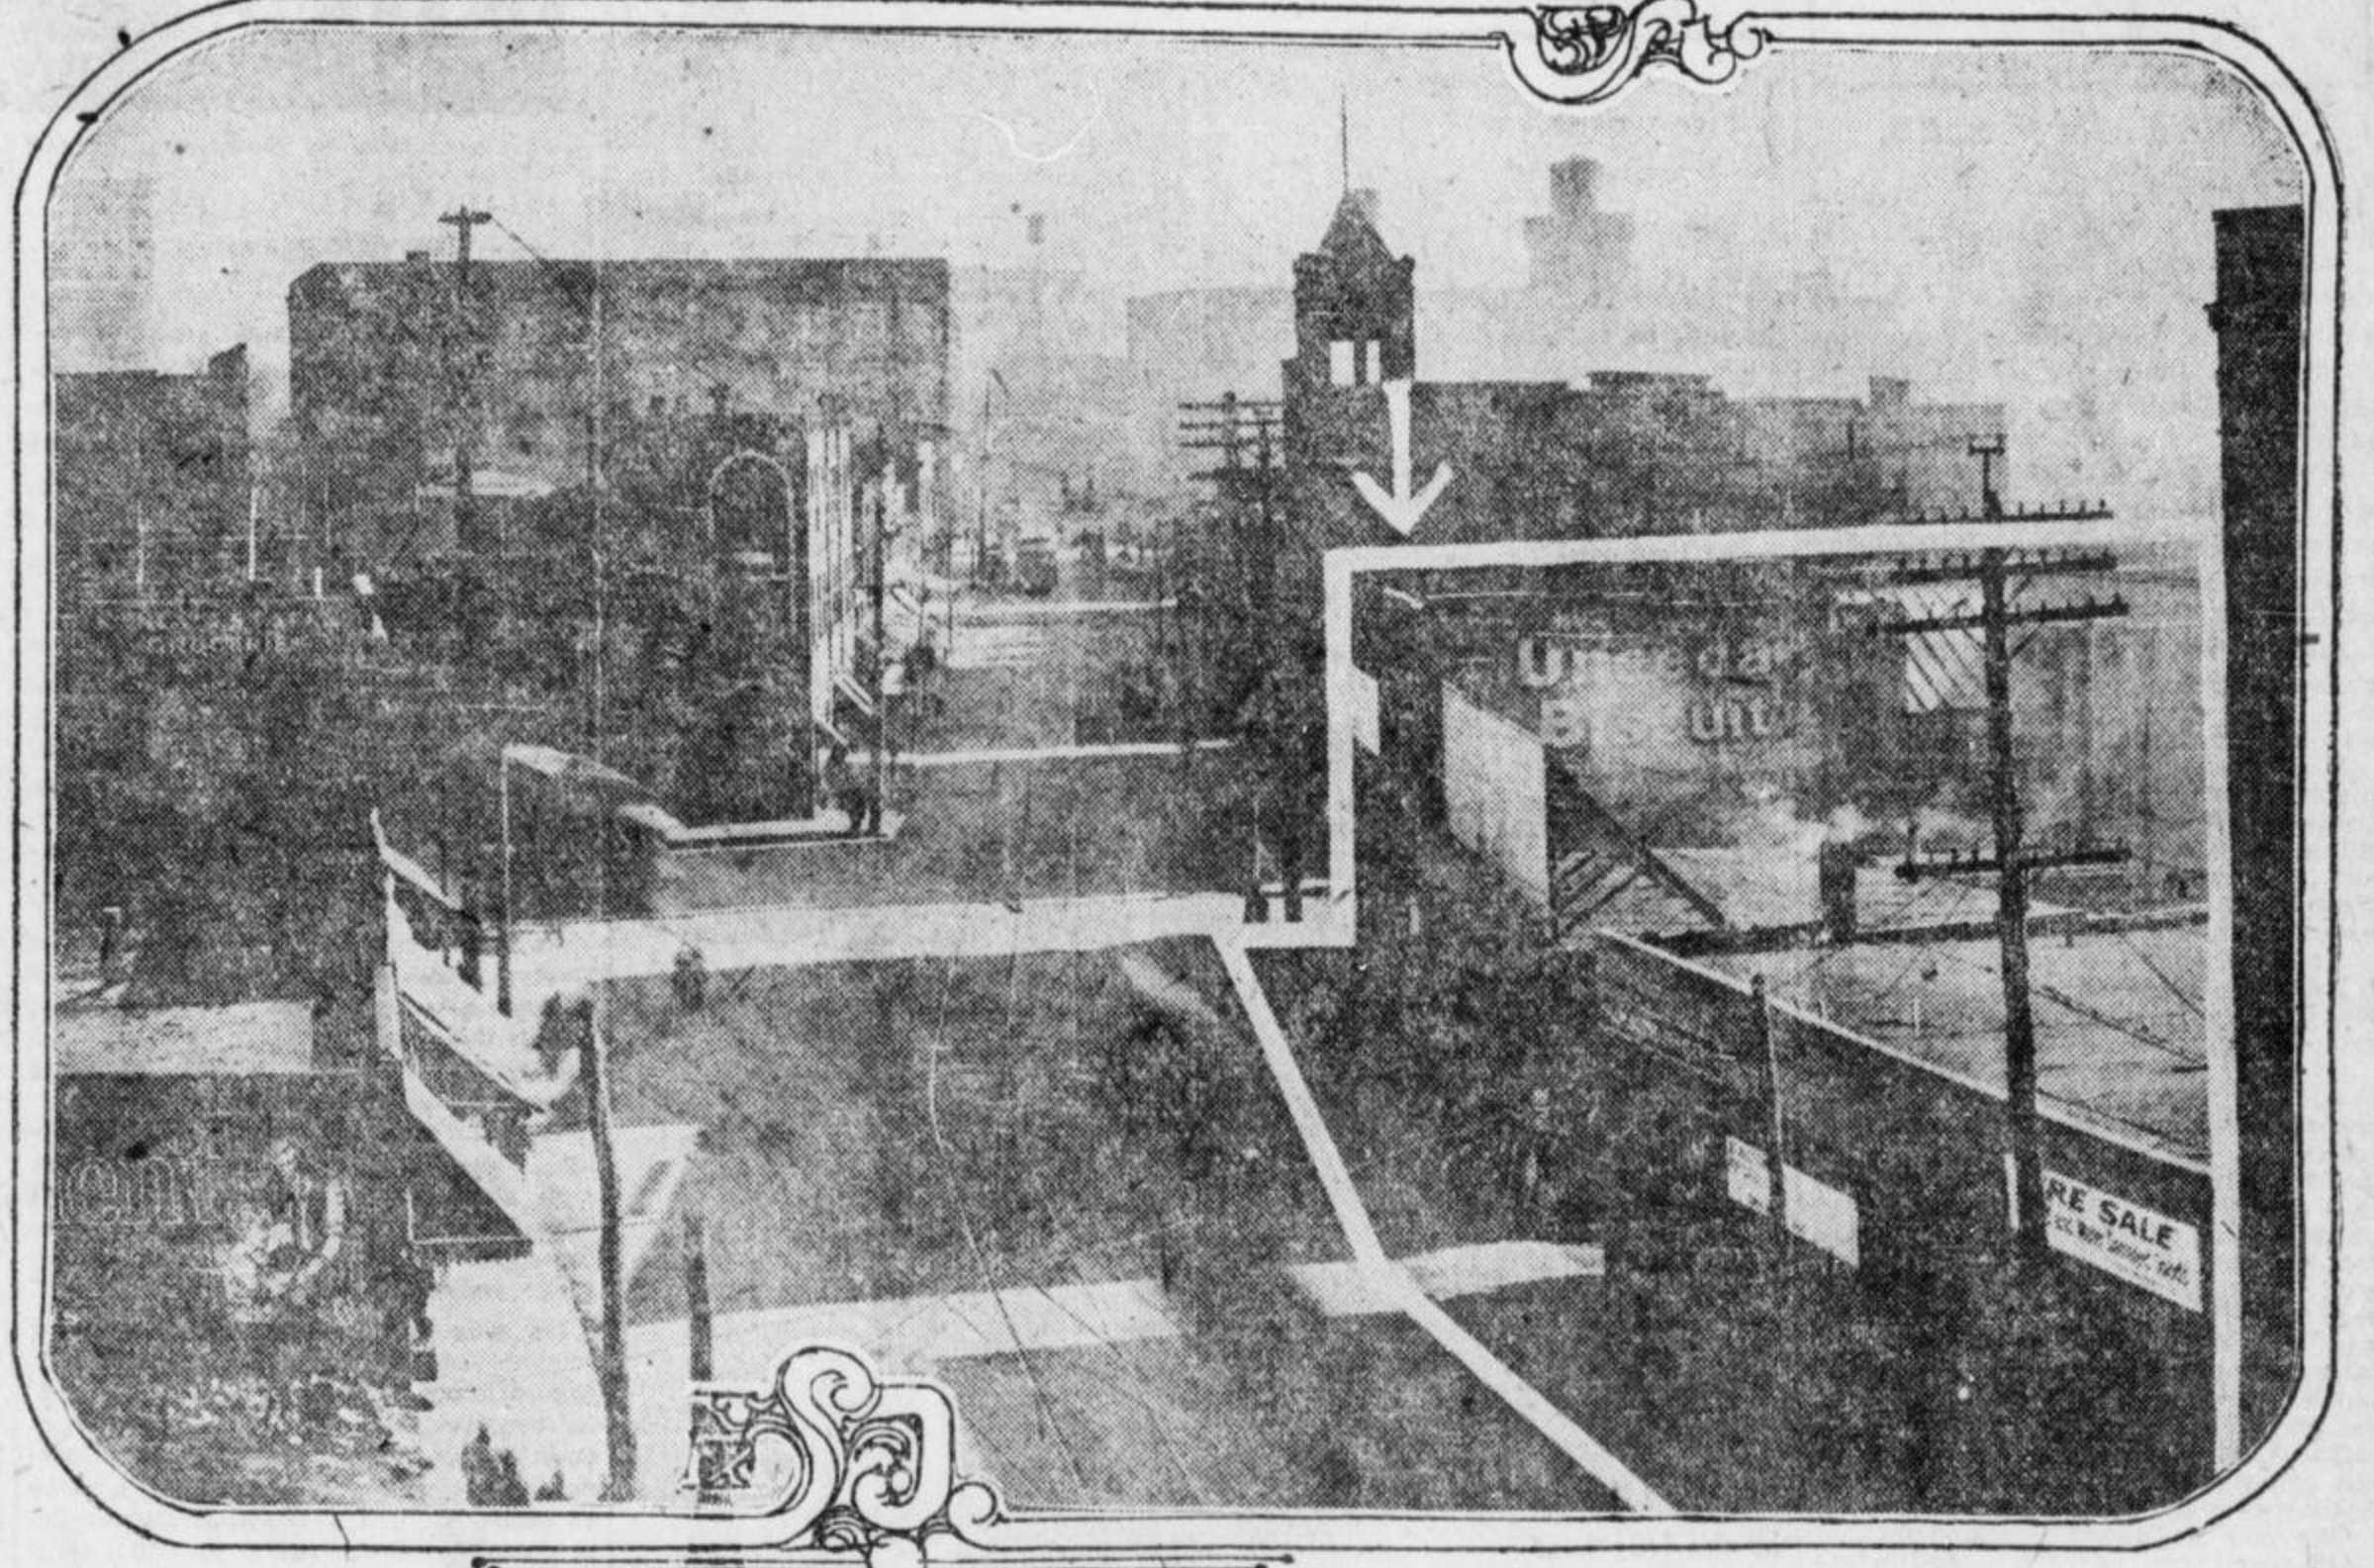

"And it really is tipless," Mr. Cooper said. "All around, in the lobbies, in the rooms, in the dining room, are signs to the effect that tipping or feeling is not expected and is against the rule of the establishment. The rule goes a step farther than in other so-called tipless hotels. It adds that the attendants are adequately paid by the hotel, and that instant discharge will be the portion of anyone accepting a tip."

Old Hemphill Property to be Sold at Auction To-morrow, Tuesday, Nov. 4, 10 A. M., Courthouse Door

This picture shows half a block of property in the estate of the late W. A. Hemphill, which is to be sold at auction before the courthouse door Tuesday, November 4, at 10 a. m., by Edwin P. Ansley. The location is the southwest corner of Marietta and Foundry streets. This property has been in the Hemphill estate for the past forty years and will be sold to divide among the heirs. It fronts 189 feet on Marietta St., 200 on Foundry and 196 on the railroad. There are seven stores on Marietta street and four warehouses abutting the railroad. The development of this section of Marietta street, with Spring street viaduct improvements and the proposed plaza scheme, is expected to revolutionize realty values. The property is at the convergence of five streets and just a few blocks from Peachtree. A large crowd of bidders is expected.

Gliding Boats a New and Novel Invention

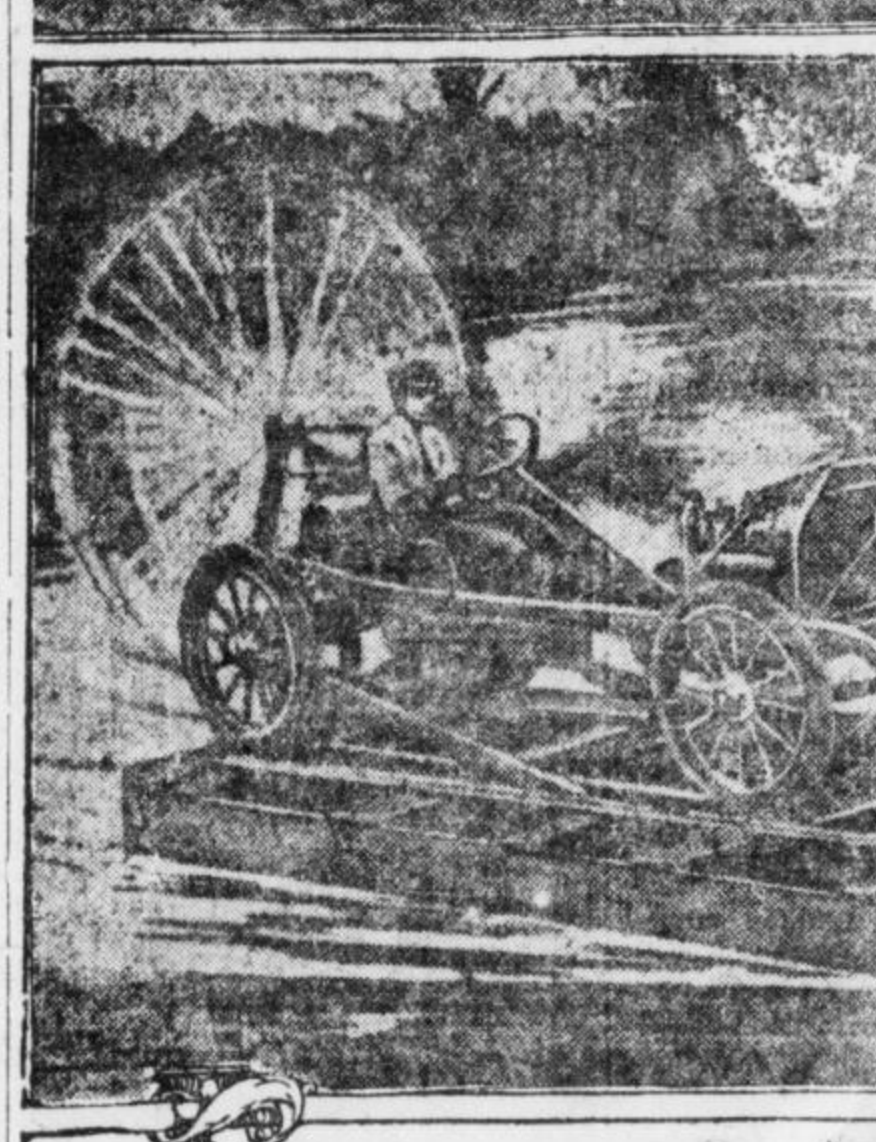

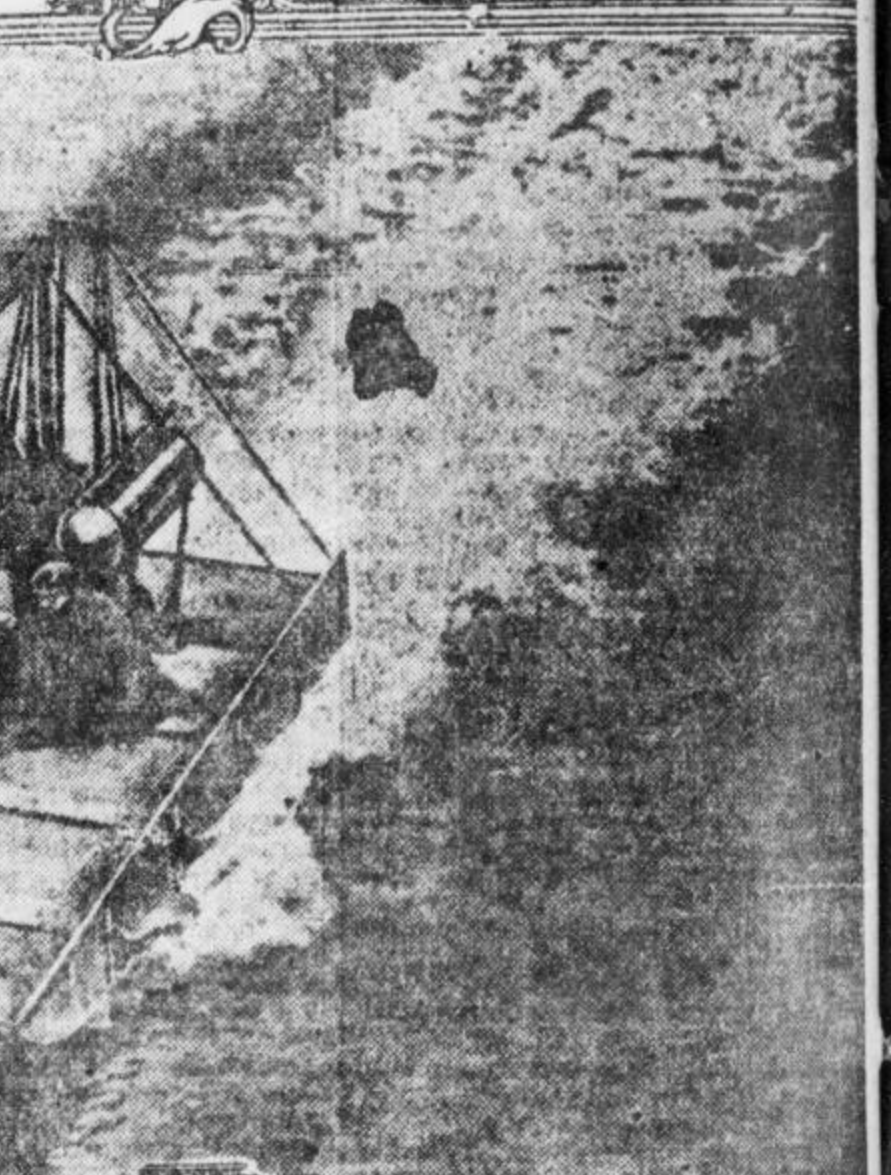

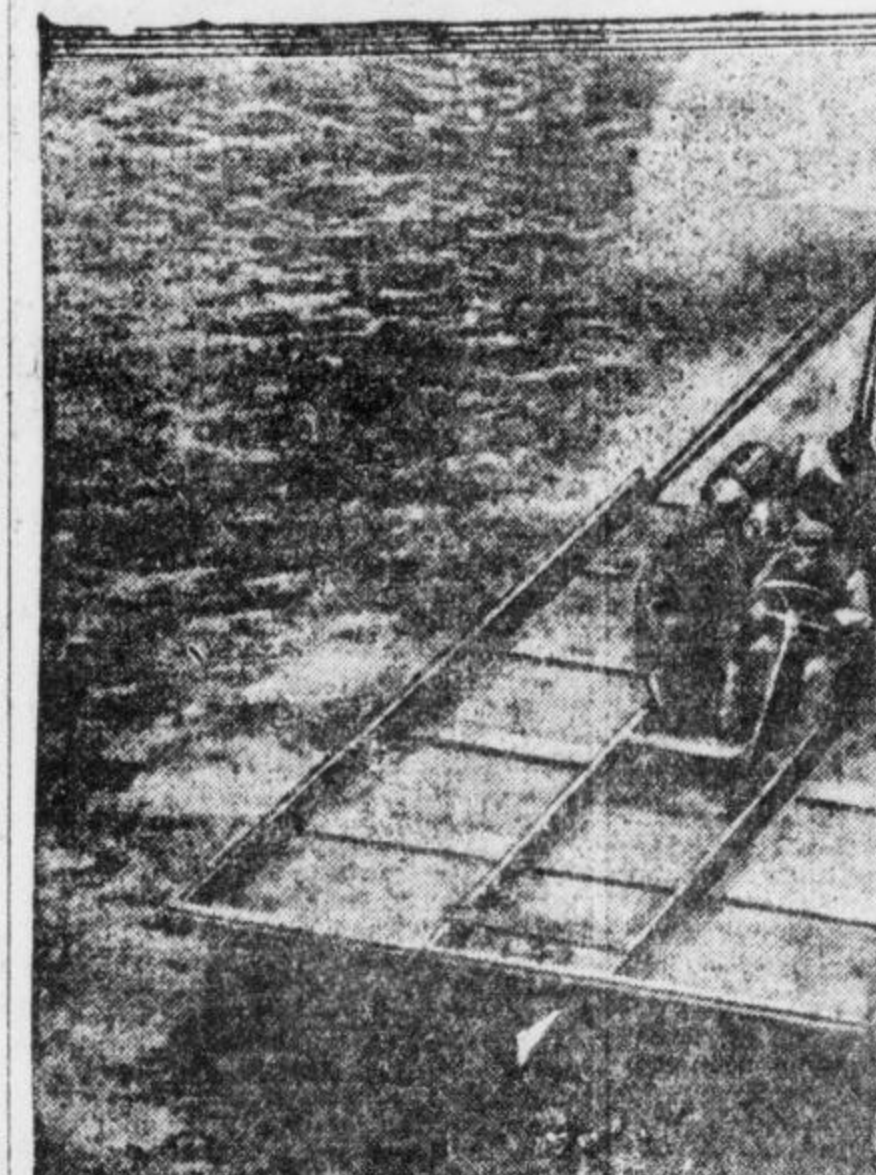

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

It is a discovery as old as the oldest philosophy that in human affairs, as in the operations of physical nature, things have a tendency to revolve in circles. The earth goes round the sun; the moon round the earth; the earth turns upon itself day and night, and Winter, Spring, Summer and Autumn run around like a belt. In like manner "history repeats itself," and the revolution of the moral world shows mankind apparently travelling in a circle.

proving to the uninitiated is this: An aerial propeller is nearly twice as efficient in driving power as a water propeller. This results from the far greater elasticity of the air as compared with water. If two currents, one of water and the other of air, moving with the same velocity strike a plane which is immersed in one case in the water and in the other case in the air, the impulse produced by the air will be double that produced by the water.

HARVARD MUST DEFEAT TIGERS NEXT SATURDAY

Football Hardest Sport in World to "Dope" Out—Crimson Eleven Looks Best.

By Frank C. Menker.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The undeniable fact that football is football is about the only thing that to-day checks the impulse to order an "eastern championship" banner, the handing out to that Harvard gang and the ringing down of the curtain on the 1913 gridiron season in the East.

But football being football makes it the hardest sport in the world to "dope" out—a game that furnishes more surprises than a temperamental prima donna—and therefore it behooves one to curb such impulses and let the boys fight it out for several weeks longer, firstly to provide the boys with a titanic exercise, and secondly because the near future may hold some very unexpected result.

RIGHT now, however, the Crimson tint of Harvard shows so brightly along the football horizon that it obscures all else, and there seems to be nothing left to do but slip the honors along to the Cambridge institution of learning. Yale has been twice tried and once beaten by "inferior" Princeton has been beaten, but Harvard, the other member of the "Big Three," has lammed the Jaywalkers out of each and every team that it has tackled so far this season, and in each game the Crimson has shown better. Despite the fact that Harvard, on account of injuries, has been unable at any time this season to put its full varsity team into action, critics are calling it one of the greatest aggregations that ever cavorted along the chalk lines.

HARVARD, with its smashing defense, collides with the speedy Princeton aggregation next Saturday in the first of the three big games in the East. Judged by their respective showings so far this season Harvard ought to triumph by a score around 19 to 6. But, football is football—so don't hook your overcoat and bet the proceeds on Harvard, unless you want to take a chance on going lighter and thither this winter overcoatless.

Atlanta Fans Average 2,660 Game 'Best Ball Town' Theory Fixed

By O. B. Keeler.

THIS bit of repetition isn't by way of being a ghost. It's just a matter that we thing is worthy of a place in the memory of Atlanta fans, and fans all around the Southern League circuit.

Here are the official figures on the paid attendance for the season of 1913:

Table with 2 columns: City, Attendance. Atlanta: 191,273; Birmingham: 152,135; Memphis: 110,441; Nashville: 101,659; Mobile: 101,409; Chattanooga: 85,343; New Orleans: 79,804; Montgomery: 64,494.

And the total (if anybody cares) is $85,557. But that is not the point. There is a little moral to the tale.

ATLANTA IS THE BEST BASEBALL TOWN IN THE SOUTH. We made that statement a few times, also in capital letters, during the attendance competition with Birmingham in the last few weeks of the season.

We now submit Judge Kavanaugh's figures in proof. We are not running away with any wild ideas, because Atlanta had a good ball club last year, and made a rousing finish that brought out some prodigious crowds.

BUT allowing for all of that, and taking into consideration the fact that 1912 was a "slack" year in baseball everywhere, Atlanta's average of 2,660 persons to the game looks mighty big for a town of Atlanta's size—or a bigger town.

An average of 2,000 persons to the game is considered good, out in the American Association, which has Kansas City, and Minneapolis, Louisville, and Toledo, and a lot of big cities in it.

Atlanta's average in 1913 was 2,660. Don't forget it. It's worth remembering, as a tribute to the town, and as a TRIBUTE TO A FIGHTING BALL CLUB.

People will go to watch a fighting ball club play ball. Particularly in Atlanta.

SHIFTING with some abruptness to the training season of 1914, we note with regret that the Brooklyn Dodgers probably will side-step Augusta as a warming pan next spring. The floods in the park there are given as a reason, and in the effort to escape that inconvenience, President Ebbets may go as far as Texas, although he has invitations from half a dozen Southern towns in more civilized communities.

ALSO, we have it pretty straight that C. W. Somers, president of the Cleveland club and owner of the Toledo American Association club, has offered Cholly Frank the handling of his baseball "farm" next year. Whether this has anything to do with the reported holding up of Kid Elberfeld's engagement to manage the Pelicans is not generally known at this time.

BE that as it may, the opportunity of adding deals with Toledo to others with the Naps is not a concession lightly to be sneezed at, and if the Dutchman can't make a fight for the top on 1914 with that lay-out—well, he may assist the Crackers to another rag, lay-out isn't settled yet.

POOR old Chattanooga! Just one blamed thing after another. No sooner is Boots Williams disposed of for a fair margin of profit to the Lynn club in the New England League than Mike Balent goes to Alaska to spend the winter. Aside from Alaska not being our idea of a winter resort, it will cost the Chattanooga club about two hundred bucks to get Mike back to the stable next spring. And if there is any hook in the preliminary arrangements, think of the telegraph toll!

Poor old Chatty!

EVERS TO RULE CUBS WITH IRON HAND IN 1914

Jawn Declares He Will Change His Managerial Tactics When Season Starts Next Year.

By Davenport.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—From November 1 to April 10, or thereabouts, is some jump, but the festive fan who follows the doings of the heroes of the diamond is accustomed to jumps and almost any old thing is possible in the Hot Stove League. Hence this brief tale deals with what may happen when the tar begins to ooze out of the bleacher seats about five months from to-day.

When the Cubs answer the clang of the gong next April they will find a decided change in the makeup of their boss, Jawn Evers.

It goes without saying several of the Cubs who took orders from the Trojan last season will be on the payroll next April 1, but they will hardly know their former boss. Experience is a great little teacher and wise is he who sits at his feet and drinks in wisdom.

Profits by Experience. The experience Evers had last season in the way of managing a real ball club has opened his eyes and he will profit by it.

Up to the first day of last August Manager Evers had not assessed a fine upon a member of his club. He tried to get along without the unpleasant task of kidnapping some player's coin and the players soon abused the kindness.

True, he assessed a fine of two hundred cool simoleons upon the great Zim when the two clashed at St. Louis, but after sleeping over the proposition, Jawn rescinded his action and remanded the fine the very next day.

Upon several other occasions he threatened belligerent members with a fine, but never carried out the threat.

This little courteous plan of action proved a boomerang, for the players soon began to take advantage of Evers' kindness and then came a decided change in the Trojan's methods.

Rules With Iron Hand. He cast aside the cloak of kindness and became an austere manager, a real boss, at some of the trouble makers began to tremble.

There was a reason, for Evers had learned from experience that the only way in which to manage a club was to manage it.

Then came the exit of the veterans, Overall, Richie and Reubach heard the tinkling of the tinware.

One hot day in July when Evers was being pestered with suggestions from his men, he said to the writer: "Why, I have pitchers on my staff who know so much about pitching that they will not permit me to offer even a suggestion. What's a fellow going to do?"

"They know more about baseball than I do, and they do not hesitate to tell me so."

It did not take Jawn long to decide upon a course of action. The disgruntled went their way and straight-up there came a period of peace on the Cub club.

England Ready to Offer $25,000 For Twenty-Round Bout Between Rival Ringmen.

By Ed Garley.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The twinkle of the stars was the only murmur that disturbed the quietude of yesterday evening until H. Connolly Pollok, accompanied by his walking stick and H. Arry Burke, the playwright, hove into the office.

"This only a few words I would have with thee," sayeth H. Connolly, and then I will leave my party in the blackness of the night."

"Now, Ritchie says he will accept the offer and six articles as soon as the money is posted. I don't think he can be dragged into the same ring with Welsh, but if he is on the level the money will be posted with any bank in this city or with any reputable stakeholder as soon as he says the word. All Ritchie has to do is to cable to England that the offer is satisfactory and the bout is as good as on."

"Now, as long as Ritchie announced after he got the title from Volgaist that he would only defend it at 133 pounds ringside Welsh will agree to those conditions. As to the division of the purse, Welsh will fight him, winner take all or divide the money as Ritchie desires."

"We will forget all about his running out on us in Vancouver if he accepts this chance to make good. You know Welsh has a decision over Ritchie, and he should only be too delighted at a chance to wipe that bluish off his coat-of-arms."

"You know I have christened Ritchie the 'No decision' champion for the plain reason that he delights in manage it. Welsh will fight him, winner take all or divide the money as Ritchie desires."

"Welsh, on the other hand, prefers the other kind of a word, for he is confident that he can whip any other lightweight in the world, but if any lad gets the decision over him, why, that's part of the game."

"TAKE a tip from me, however, that if he loses to one of the lightweight stars in this country he will fly back to his mansion in Wales."

Maroons vs. Gophers For Gridiron Title

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The football championship of the Middle Western conference colleges will be decided one week from next Saturday, when Chicago and Minnesota meet at Minneapolis. The defeat of Wisconsin by Minnesota and the trouncing of Illinois by Chicago on Saturday eliminated two of the final contenders for the title. Chicago will meet Northwestern this week, but the battle is not considered a hard one.

Chicago has gone through a hard schedule this season without a defeat. Minnesota has been defeated once by the strong Nebraska team. Since 1895 Minnesota has defeated Chicago five times and Chicago has administered four defeats to Minnesota. This year Minnesota has scored 99 points against opponents to 10 scored by opposing teams. Chicago has made a total of 78 points to 30 scored by opponents.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 3.—Tommy Burns is not going to take Arthur Pelky to New York at once if he can put through plans he is making for a match between Pelky and Gunboat Smith to be staged here. He wants Pelky to meet Smith over the derby route, rather than in a short bout, and is negotiating with Jim Corbett to that end. If Smith can't be had he will consider a Pelky-Willard match, but prefers that all bouts be over the twenty-round route.

Frank Baker and Lee Picked to Win Bouts in Athens Wednesday

ATHENS, GA., Nov. 3.—Local fans are picking Charley Lee and Frank Baker to win their bouts here Wednesday night. Lee has been made a 10 to 8 favorite over Young, while Baker rules a 10 to 7 shot against Payne.

It is surprising the way the fans here are stringing with Young. Although Lee is the favorite at the present time, it would not be surprising to see the Atlanta newsboy fighter enter the ring an even money bet. Baker's great speed is expected to bring him home a winner over Payne.

RARE GIFTS FOR PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER

Fur Coat Made of Pelts of 1,000 Chipmunks Is One of the Handsome Presents.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—All ordinary occupations at the White House have been superseded by the preparations for Miss Jessie Wilson's wedding to Francis Sayre on the 25th.

The invitations are already out and Miss Wilson is waiting for the wedding gown. This is of softest creamy satin, trimmed with a quantity of rare lace, the color of the life of the Vice President, Mrs. Marshall, and is being made in New York, as are the dainty bridesmaids' costumes.

All sorts of rumors are rife as to the color scheme of the wedding. The decorations in the east room are soft, warm gold and yellow, and certain high authorities declare that the attendants' gowns will be soft cream and yellow to harmonize.

"Mums" in Evidence.
Quantities of yellow chrysanthemums are being grown at the National Botanical Garden, presumably for the event. These "mums" range from the palest cream to the deepest saffron, and some of them have beautiful variegated pink centers.

No matter what may be the color of the gowns, it has been learned that the hats will be of gold lace and black velvet, with tiny sprays of velvet roses in front.

Little can be definitely learned of those who will attend the bride. It is generally believed here that Miss Margaret and Miss Eleanor Wilson will be co-maids of honor, and that four bridesmaids will be chosen from the girl cousins of the bride.

Only about seven hundred and fifty guests can be comfortably entertained in the East Room, and the members of Congress and their families, the Cabinet and their families, the Supreme Court circle and the all-important diplomatic circle, will count up to that mark. Rumor has said that the wedding proper will be witnessed by only a selected company, and that a general reception to Congress and resident society will follow.

To Observe Precedence.
The master of ceremonies will have no easy time, for the foreign representatives of the various countries will have to be placed in order of precedence determined by the number of years of service in the diplomatic corps. Then that old troublesome problem of the placing of the Chief Justice and the Supreme Court Associate Justices, the Cabinet and the Army and Navy will arise again.

Among the gifts which Miss Wilson will receive is a sealskin coat lined with chipmunk, which took one thousand of the little animals to make. There are, too, numerous rare and costly gifts from foreign powers, which have already arrived.

Mr. Sayre will come to Washington early next week, and several informal affairs have been arranged in honor of the future White House bride and her bridesmaids. Miss Wilson will suspend her busy operations on her trousseau for a few days, so as to see that her fiancé meets her Washington friends and has a good time generally.

While no announcement has been made as to the honeymoon trip, it is rumored it will be passed in Bermuda. Dr. Wilfred Greener, the Labrador Mission for deep sea fishermen, will be the best man for Sayre, and it is expected that Dr. Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., the President's aide, will be one of the ushers.

Fitzwilliam M. Master Woodrow, of Princeton, N. J., a young cousin of the bride, will be in the party.

Mrs. Wilson Buying Books for Bridal Pair

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson visited a local book store and purchased a number of standard books, presumably for the new home of Miss Jessie Wilson, who will be married to Francis B. Sayre, of New York, November 25.

A set of Shakespeare in pocket size, bound in dull morocco and dark red leather, set of poets and de luxe edition of Dickens were among the purchases.

Boll Weevil Ravages Put Under a Curb

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The ravages of the Mexican boll weevil, which annually causes losses of millions to cotton growers have been successfully combated by modern science, according to an announcement made by President Finley, of the Southern Railway.

"Farmers in the territory infested," said President Finley, "have been able to raise profitable crops despite the pest through modern farming methods. This is of the utmost importance to farmers of the South. It means that cotton will remain the staple crop in Southern territory, and that prosperity will flourish undiminished."

Secretaries' School Will Begin Friday

The school for secretaries, the first institute of its kind ever organized, will open in Atlanta Friday night. It is to be conducted by the Chamber of Commerce. Three sessions will be held on the opening date and two on Saturday.

Press agenting, getting conventions, office system and other subjects secretaries should be acquainted with will be discussed. More than twenty speakers have been "booked."

Tremendous Goings-On Here To-morrow

Velvet Suits (Fashion Favored) Come to Us and to You At Lowered Prices
Silk Dresses (For Street Wear) Come to Us and to You

An Exposition of the Furs That Are the Vogue This Season

A day to reckon with, one to turn to your profit---since such momentous happenings are scheduled. For they are happenings such as are seldom told of, but which must recall to Atlantans' minds the fact that when such opportunities do break, it is Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. that, never offering bargains except when bargains are bargains, comes through with the best news of the season.

There has been no such announcement here this season, for the reason there has been no such news.

But now!

---But it is best told simply and plainly just as the fine facts are, women who know what Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. values are will know what to do the first thing in the morning; others will do well to join them---in hurrying to the store. Here---

The Velvet Suits

There Are Twenty-eight of Them, Copies of Paris Models

The $60.00 Values Are $39.50

The $75.00 Values Are $49.50

The $95.00, $100.00, $110.00 and $115.00 Values Are $75.00

Being copies of Paris models tells much, but not enough, not so much as your eyes will. You have heard, you know, how the powers that be in the world of fashion look upon velvets and pile fabrics this season.

It is such suits as these that have won velvet its favor.

Plain chiffon velvets, brocaded velvets, silk plushes and broadtail cloth are represented.

The colors are those that you would expect in such a representative lot of suits, black, navy, Copenhagen, marine, plum, tete de negre, mahogany and brown---black predominates.

Much fur is used---skunk and fitch---most fetchingly about collars and cuffs. There are vestees as rich as orientalism knows, there are cutaway coats and jaunty blouses that had their origin in Russia, draped skirts with the grace that only Paris could effect.

Wonderful suits to be priced so.

The Silk Dresses

$18.50, $20.00 and $25.00 Silk Dresses $12.50
Make Up This Likable Lot Now Marked

Just such dresses as women want for street wear and for those other occasions when a smart silk dress has no equal.

To buy them so advantageously could hardly be expected thus early in the season. For the reason that their price could never be discovered in the styles, the fabrics, the trimmings.

A list of the kinds of silks reads much the same as a list of the most fashionable silks.

Crepes de chine predominate, then come crepe meteors and Canton crepes.

These colors---navy, Copenhagen, marine brown, green, taupe, wistaria and black.

Many with smart colorful Scotch plaid belts, sashes and collars; others frilly about the yokes, collars and cuffs, with sheer laces and plaited nets.

There are many styles, vestee effects, draped skirts, many of them slashed a bit; there are button trimmings that add wonderfully to the completeness of a style.

$12.50!

That amount is reached before the cost of the materials is added up!

Fashionable Furs

To-morrow we present the furs that are fashionable in this good season of 1913. This means much more than a similar announcement in other years, for furs are enjoying a favor that they have never before known. This display is to do full justice to them. Novelty or fancy furs have the call. High colors are used, the fur dyers have responded splendidly to the colorfulness that dominates the fashions. Neckpieces, muffs, coats are more graceful than before.

That bulkiness and weight that we were wont to associate with fur coats is not, they drape, they follow the slender lines; neckpieces are supple, to be used in many, many "effects." Muffs are in novel shapes---some one described them as "one-sided"---the tendency is away from the conventional.

Er'er Fox is notably present! Red Fox, Cross Fox, Pointed Fox sets are rich and beautiful, not to mention the ever-popular and serviceable Black Fox.

Fitch, a fur of favor a generation ago, is back, more beautiful than ever---its soft gold to dark brown shadings make a strong appeal to women. The Tiger Fitch is another novelty.

Lynx, Jap Mink and Baum Marten retain the place they have won.

Building Permits. No. 63 Peachtree street, make repairs. Day work.

Next Tuesday morning, November 3, legal sale day, we will sell before the Courthouse door (old Chamber of Commerce Building), at 10 o'clock, a splendid piece of others is expected out. The sale starts at 10 o'clock. Edwin P. Anslie will offer the southeast corner of Marietta and Foundry streets for the W. A. Hemphill estate, and Forrest & George Adair will put up a parcel of the W. B. Lowe estate, at the corner of Castleberry street and the Central of Georgia Railway. There will be other auctions.

Tech Hemphill property fronts 189 feet on Marietta street, 200 on Foundry and 196 on the railroad, and improvements consist of four warehouses abutting the railroad and seven stores on Marietta street. The seven lots will be offered together and are expected to bring $150,000 to $175,000.

Big Transactions Pending. Announcement of several big deals, two of which involve the establishment of large industrial plants in Atlanta, is expected to be made this week. Real estate firms have caught the spirit of the times and are going after manufacturing concerns. This plan usually works out well, since local real estate men are in the best position to provide sites for concerns which are seeking desirable locations.

To Improve on Peachtree. Edward H. Imman has been granted a permit by Building Inspector Ed R. Hays to make repairs at No. 63 Peachtree street, a store occupied by Ludden & Bates, real estate dealers, and Henry Muench, jeweler.

Building Permits. No. 63 Peachtree street, make repairs. Day work.

Next Tuesday morning, November 3, legal sale day, we will sell before the Courthouse door (old Chamber of Commerce Building), at 10 o'clock, a splendid piece of others is expected out. The sale starts at 10 o'clock. Edwin P. Anslie will offer the southeast corner of Marietta and Foundry streets for the W. A. Hemphill estate, and Forrest & George Adair will put up a parcel of the W. B. Lowe estate, at the corner of Castleberry street and the Central of Georgia Railway. There will be other auctions.

Tech Hemphill property fronts 189 feet on Marietta street, 200 on Foundry and 196 on the railroad, and improvements consist of four warehouses abutting the railroad and seven stores on Marietta street. The seven lots will be offered together and are expected to bring $150,000 to $175,000.

Big Transactions Pending. Announcement of several big deals, two of which involve the establishment of large industrial plants in Atlanta, is expected to be made this week. Real estate firms have caught the spirit of the times and are going after manufacturing concerns. This plan usually works out well, since local real estate men are in the best position to provide sites for concerns which are seeking desirable locations.

To Improve on Peachtree. Edward H. Imman has been granted a permit by Building Inspector Ed R. Hays to make repairs at No. 63 Peachtree street, a store occupied by Ludden & Bates, real estate dealers, and Henry Muench, jeweler.

Small Sales Total $11,150. The Atlanta Land Investment Company has sold to a client of the A. J. & H. F. West Real Estate Agency, No. 452 Piedmont avenue, a six-room cottage on a 50 by 140 foot lot for $5,000.

George W. and Addie Finch have bought from A. J. & H. F. West a seven-room house at the corner of Jackson and Chamberlin streets, 60 by 170 feet, for $2,500.

Warranty Deeds. $39,142—Lath & Hulse, et al. to Enoch C. Jones, sixth-seventh interest in No. 33 Marietta street, 28 by 105 feet, September 25.

$550—W. H. Whaley to I. C. Clarke, lot 25 by 117 feet, west side Newport street, 180 feet south of Neal street, March 27, 1919.

$9,500—Mrs. Letha E. Houston to J. P. Kennedy, lot 57 by 145 feet, west side West Peachtree street, 57 feet north of Peachtree place, November 1.

$1,300—Fannie Roper to L. B. Lillenthal and Gus Hoffman, No. 39 Jones avenue, 33 by 238 feet, west side of Broyles street, 47 feet south of Sydney street, November 1.

$1,000—A. L. Barry to Mrs. Fanny B. Callaway, lot 32 by 100 feet, southeast corner of Plum and Nisbet streets, November 1.

$1,200—Mrs. M. E. Jones to Dr. J. R. Dykes, No. 500 Spring street, 55 by 190 feet, November 1.

$4,000—George H. Boynton to Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, lot 59 by 140 feet, east side of Courtland street, 144 feet south of Linden avenue, October 1.

JUDGE HILL WRITES A SPLENDID EDITORIAL That
 All the People Should Read,
 Study, and Try to Remember

Judge Benjamin H. Hill's letter addressed to Governor Slaton is so able, timely and carefully thought out that we republish it in its entirety to-day in these columns. It is a SPLENDID EDITORIAL—the best perhaps that has appeared in The Georgian in many a day.

The capitalized words are ours. We wish to emphasize them, and we ask our readers to study them and try to grasp their full meaning.

JUDGE HILL'S LETTER:

His Excellency, John M. Slaton,
 Governor, Atlanta, Ga.
 My Dear Governor Slaton:

I cannot content myself with merely a formal expression of appreciation of the honor conferred upon me in my appointment as one of the judges of the Superior Court. The honor is all the more valued because it comes from one who, in his own career, has so well illustrated the loftiest ideals of a noble profession, and who has on frequent occasions publicly expressed his high conception of the character and dignity of the judicial office. I trust that it will not be inappropriate for me to state to you as the alter ego of the people of the State the reasons impelling me to give up the high judicial position to which they have so recently re-elected me, without opposition, for a term of six years.

Briefly, these are, less responsibility, less work, more compensation, and a closer association with members of the Atlanta bar, to whom I am so great a debtor. TO A JUDGE WITH A CONSCIENCE, THE ULTIMATE DECISION RESPECTING A MAN'S LIBERTY, REPUTATION AND PROPERTY IS ATTENDED WITH FEARFUL ANXIETY. THE POSSIBILITY OF ERROR IS A CONSTANT AND HARASSING MENACE TO PEACE AND CONTENTMENT. I do not mean in any degree to minimize the responsibility of a judge of a trial court, for in my opinion the office of judge of the Superior Court is in some respects the most important in the State. If, however, the judge of that court errs in his judgment, he can confidently and happily rely upon the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals to correct his error. Not so with the judge of a court of last resort. His error is irremediable.

The work of the Court of Appeals, heavy in the beginning, has so rapidly and greatly increased that now it taxes the physical endurance and mental ability of the judges, and leaves no time for leisure or recreation. Since the organization of the court January, 1907, nearly six thousand cases have been determined, the opinions filling thirteen volumes. All these cases have been decided, and on Monday the court will face a clear docket. From data obtained from the clerks of the courts of last resort of the different States, the number of cases which come annually to the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals largely exceeds any other court of last resort in the United States. This is not due to any exceptionally litigious spirit on the part of the people of Georgia, but is attributable to the fact that there is in Georgia no restrictions whatever on the right of appeal, and any case, no matter how small the amount involved, can be taken on a pauper's affidavit to either the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals. From the same source of information it appears that the average salary paid to the judges of courts of last resort of the different States of this Union is $6,500 a year, and the States of equal wealth and population with the State of Georgia pay to the judges of the courts of last resort salaries of from $9,000 to $10,000 per annum. On leaving the bench I venture to say this much in the hope that Isn't that a splendid letter? It is the platform of a just judge and an honest man; one who has never compromised conscience with cowardice, who knows the law, who is unafraid, and who will interpret the law, and enforce it.

We are glad Judge Hill has written this letter. It is a great pleasure for us to publish it here. It clears the atmosphere. It is an inspiration to those who believe in law and order, and announcement to evil doers that they will get JUSTICE—no more, no less—from a fearless man whom neither blatant lawyers can browbeat, mobs intimidate, nor the maudlin sympathy of the community turn from the path of duty.

It may be of some service to greatly underpaid, overworked and faithful public servants.

I leave the Court of Appeals with reluctance and sadness. I have become attached to the work of the court, and I have enjoyed and been greatly benefited by collaboration with my able and conscientious associates.

In going on the trial bench I shall endeavor ever to bear in mind the characterization of the "Ideal Judge" as given in the old Visigothic Code: "HE SHOULD BE ENERGETIC AND CLEAR OF SPEECH; CERTAIN IN OPINION; READY IN WEIGHING EVIDENCE; SO THAT WHATEVER PROCEEDS FROM THE COURSE OF THE LAW MAY AT ONCE IMPRESS ALL HEARERS THAT IT IS CHARACTERIZED BY NEITHER DOUBT NOR PERPLEXITY. THE JUDGE SHOULD BE QUICK OF PERCEPTION, FIRM OF PURPOSE, CLEAR IN JUDGMENT, LENIENT IN THE INFLECTION OF PENALTIES, ASSIDUOUS IN THE PRACTICE OF MERCY, EXPEDITIOUS IN THE VINDICATION OF THE INNOCENT, CLEMENT IN HIS TREATMENT OF CRIMINALS, CAREFUL OF THE RIGHTS OF STRANGERS, GENTLE TOWARD HIS COUNTRYMEN, HE SHOULD BE NO RESPECTOR OF PERSONS, AND SHOULD AVOID ALL APPEARANCE OF PARTIALITY."

All of us can, at least, emulate the kindly attributes enumerated.

Even in this enlightened age I doubt if anything of substance can be added to what has been so well formulated in this code of the barbarians of the fourth century. IF I SHOULD ATTEMPT ANY ADDITION, IT WOULD BE THAT THE JUDGE IN THE TRIAL OF CASES SHOULD NEVER ASSUME THE ROLE OF PROSECUTOR, NOR INVADE THE SACRED PRECINCTS OF THE JURY BOX, AND, WHILE ENFORCING THE LAW, SHOULD ALSO PROTECT AND PRESERVE THE INALIENABLE RIGHT OF THE CITIZEN TO PERSONAL LIBERTY, PERSONAL SECURITY AND PRIVATE PROPERTY GUARANTEED BY THE CONSTITUTION.

In conclusion, I trust that I shall not offend the canons of good taste by stating that my judicial work as Judge of the Court of Appeals has found both helpful and grateful inspiration.

Horseback riding, basket ball, tennis, golf, croquet, water sports, running races, skating—all of these amusements are encouraged and taught. Parents and teachers will be benefited personally if they arrange their time in such a manner that they can study such amusements and act as guides and instructors for the children entrusted to their care. The tendency of the time is more and more toward outdoor life; and this means increased vitality and more power, mental and physical, for the race. In my daily walk through the corridors of the Capital to my place of labor, I have been cheered by the marble memorial to my father, erected by the loving contributions of the people whom he served. In my new field of public service it will be my happy privilege to find daily strength for useful endeavor from a like inspiration. In the room in which I shall work I will see the image of a beloved brother, placed in the splendid Temple of Justice by the loving thought of the members of the Atlanta bar. In the manner in which I have served the people of the State of Georgia, and the manner in which I may be permitted to serve the people of Fulton County, may win for me in some small measure the love and esteem so generously given to these, my nearest kinsmen, I shall, indeed, be grateful and happy.

With high personal regards,
 Yours, sincerely,
 BENJ. H. HILL.

"Ah, Johnny, these are lively times! I notice that Theodore is going to cross the Andes in an automobile! He thinks if he keeps on doing stunts and gets lots of space in the papers for the next three years he can get the Republican nomination! No stunts, no space! No space, no nomination! Har, har! And there's Woodrow, too, handing out a slick line of talk on the Mexican situation. Woodrow has evidently found out that SOMETHING must be done! I've got a great ostrich farm here! This breed of ostriches is small, but their feathers are fine! They don't need much food, and they're amusing! When they stick their heads in that sand bank they think I can't find them and pull their feathers out! Haw! That greased pole of yours is a scream, Johnny! Every time that fellow tries to climb it he falls down and it jolts the money out of his pocket and you get it! As Aristotle used to say to his pupils, 'When you see a bonehead, trim him!'"

Outdoor Life Brings Power to the Race
 Instructive Open-Air Amusement of Both Children and Grown-Ups
 Increases Nation's Vitality and Mentality.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

THE Mothers' and Teachers' Club of Baxley, Ga., meets to discuss subjects of mutual interest, and I am asked to read a paper for discussion on "What Should Be the Social Amusements of Our Children From Ten to Sixteen Years of Age, and the Hours and Why?"

All kinds of outdoor games and sports should form a part of the social amusements of children. Parents and teachers will be benefited personally if they arrange their time in such a manner that they can study such amusements and act as guides and instructors for the children entrusted to their care.

The tendency of the time is more and more toward outdoor life; and this means increased vitality and more power, mental and physical, for the race.

Horseback riding, basket ball, tennis, golf, croquet, water sports, running races, skating—all of these amusements are encouraged and taught.

Every Child Should Be Taught Dancing to Develop Body.

Every child should be taught to dance. It gives grace of motion, ease of deportment, and develops every muscle in the body, and causes good circulation of the blood.

Every home where there are children should encourage a half hour or an hour of dancing every evening before the retiring hour, or just before the last meal.

In small cities, where neighboring children live at convenient distances, it can be arranged that these dancing entertainments occur at different homes alternately. In this manner, at least three times a week, the amusement can be indulged in under agreeable social conditions.

Clubs organized for the study of natural history are excellent methods of entertaining children. After awakening the interest of the children in nature, in plant life, in insect life and sea life by reading from good and instructive books on these subjects, picnic parties in the woods and on shore, arranged with the object in view of studying nature in its own haunts, will prove of great value and pleasure to the older people as well as to the younger ones.

Each child after the first few weeks of study should be asked to bring some item of information regarding an animal, an insect, a bird, or a fish, a plant, or tree to the club.

A Social Information Bureau in the Home Is Excellent.

There was once a home where the host inaugurated such a plan for each member of the family. He felt valuable time was wasted at the dinner hour by idle talk, so he asked each member of the circle and each guest who remained for more than one repast, to consult his large and exhaustive library and bring some fact to relate at dinner time; some fact in history or science.

A remarkable fund of information resulted.

The hostess propounded the question at the next meal: "Does any one here know what is meant by the scientific term THE DRIFFT?"

No one did; and then she proceeded to tell them. She had found her information in Ignatius Donnelly's remarkable book, "Ragnarok."

A book she would never have thought of reading save under these circumstances.

Another one of the household unearthed a book all about trees; and each day she brought a new item of information about curious trees.

Still another found a book containing "One Thousand Curious Facts."

The host told historical facts which are not generally known. And so the little social information circle proved a success.

Instruction in Music Will Be of Value Later in Life.

The Natural History Picnic Club could be made a wonderful organization if this feature were introduced and the children given an hour weekly to visit the library and hunt for information.

A penny fine for one who failed to bring an item would not be an unwise feature. Such a fund (if one resulted) should be given to help the societies for kindness to animals.

Fancy costume parties, where the dresses are representative of some period of history, are advisable pleasures for children to indulge in once a year. The child should take part in the study which the planning of the costume demands, and should be instructed in the deportment and mannerisms of that period.

Music ought to enter into the social pleasure of children.

If a child has no musical talent or taste, it should not waste time in expensive study of that art; but every child should have the opportunity to hear good music, and should be taught to listen to it, and so form a taste and an understanding which will prove of value later in life.

These are but a few suggestions; but those who have the great privilege of caring for children, as parents and teachers, ought to be able to amplify them and turn them to practical use.

PHARISEES

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WHAT does he know of life
 Who never was hurt in the bruising strife,
 With luxury smoothing his every turn,
 With no grim reason to toil and earn;
 Who never has seen the dead souls whirled
 Hither and yon in the underworld;
 Who never has mingled with other men
 Than the smug and sanctified citizen;
 Who never was hungry, never was cold,
 Never was tempted by tainted gold,
 Never once strayed, with passion rife?
 What does he know of life?

What does she know of life—
 The painfully proper desecration wife,
 Who dwells secure in her righteous home
 With neither the wish nor the chance to roam;
 Who never was swept by Passion's waves
 To a crust of bread or a moral grave;
 Who never has known the wild unrest
 Reigning in many a girlish breast;
 Ready to judge and quick to spurn,
 Scoffing at things she can never learn,
 Ever unyielding and unforgiving—
 What does she know of life or living?

The Return of Prosperity

Visible evidence is at hand of the prosperity which high-priced cotton, and plenty of it, is bringing to Atlanta.

The prosperity has been predicted often and confidently in The Georgian. By most Atlantans, the forecasts were accepted jubilantly, and as accurate predictions.

Still, a few Thomases said, "We hear, but we do not see. Where are the proofs?"

The proofs have come forward. First, the bank deposits swelled to an unprecedented total, with huge clearings, and every item in clearings means a "trade" of some sort.

On top of this, it becomes plain that there is a great revival in the real estate market. "Business is picking up," to use the homely and expressive phrase.

Good-sized parcels of land are changing hands. Inquiries are numerous. Long-delayed deals are going through.

In Atlanta, the real estate market is a barometer of unusual accuracy. Atlanta has no Astors or Vanderbilts, who gained immense fortunes through the blindness of others. Here, the many, not the few, have profited by the marvelous growth of the city. The percentage of residents who are investors in "Atlanta dirt" is almost incredibly large.

Atlanta is like the great co-operative corporations. Every citizen, like every employee of the industrial and commercial corporations, has a share in the profits, through pinning his faith to the rise of values created in part by his own activities.

So the lively real estate market must be taken as a genuine sign of the times, a proof of prosperity, reawakened after a mid-summer siesta.

Jury Trials in Georgia

Editor The Georgian: Replying to the suggestion contained in your recent editorial, relative to jury trials, inviting subscribers to a discussion of the subject, I desire to make a few comments.

Mr. Atkinson, in his very able and timely article, called attention to the few searching questions which are put to jurors in felony cases. It would seem that a juror who would qualify on the voir dire (as it is spoken of by the profession) would be a fit person in every respect to act in that high capacity of deciding on the liberty or life of his fellow-man, if he be an honest man, and yet does it not happen that men of undisputed integrity do qualify and whose impartiality is often questioned?

Referring to the Frank trial, which provoked this discussion, it was freely predicted before the trial that it would perhaps take days to secure a jury, and doubt was even expressed whether a jury could be impaneled at all in Fulton County to try the case. But when it came to selecting a jury only a few hours were consumed. This may have occasioned some surprise to the layman, but to the practitioner it is only what might have been expected. Mr. Atkinson in his article published in full the questions put to the juror, except one other, which is only asked in capital cases and which is, "Are you conscientiously opposed to capital punishment?" These questions are the only ones put to the juror to test his fitness or qualification.

How different from the rule in other States, where the impaneling of a jury often takes as long as the main trial! In the Thaw case, the McNamara cases and other noted cases of recent memory it will be recalled that it took weeks to select a jury. To us, with our simple and easy method of impaneling a jury, it would seem that a system which allows the examination of a juror for hours or days would serve no good purpose, and incur an expense altogether unreasonable. But this brings us to the query whether or not in our practice and laws we have not gone to the other extreme.

Would it not be wiser to allow a more liberal examination of a juror to test his impartiality? Ask him whether he has read any account of the crime, and if from that he had formed an opinion; whether he had talked to anyone concerning the case and to whom, and whether he had expressed any opinion—and other questions which would readily suggest themselves to the practitioner.

It is hardly conceivable that anyone who reads page after page in the papers for days about a case should not form an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, and yet such an opinion does not disqualify from sitting on the jury. Is it not also true that such a person would be subconsciously affected by his newspaper knowledge, and could he dismiss from his mind all preconceived opinions, acting solely on the testimony admitted on the trial? Hasn't it happened that many persons accused of crime have been acquitted or convicted mainly on account of a juror's private knowledge of the man or the case? Those who have had to do with the courts know that this is true. But it may be said in reply that the question, "Have you any bias or prejudice resting on your mind for or against the prisoner?" would thoroughly test the juror's impartiality. Does it? How few of us are willing to admit that we are prejudiced? Do we ever think that we are? Is it not true that the more prejudiced a person is the less willing he is to admit it?

I do not subscribe to the view, so often expressed in print, that there is something radically wrong with our courts. I believe that justice is meted out in Georgia more speedily and effectually than in most of the States. Compare the impaneling of a jury in Georgia with other States; also compare the record of the higher courts of review, where by law cases must be decided within a limited time, with other States, where it takes years, perhaps, for a case to be reached in its order. Neither do our reviewing courts reverse cases on technicalities where substantial justice has been done. This is the law, and our courts of review have strictly observed it.

As a whole, we should be proud of our judicial system. There is little to complain about, and it is far superior to others. It is not perfect. It cannot be. As pointed out by Mr. Atkinson, the law jealously guards the purity of the jury in all its stages, and what imperfections exist are due more to the defects of human nature than to weakness in our laws. It is doubtful whether any change would be advisable even in impaneling a jury. Call attention to the simple, expeditious way a jury is selected in Georgia, compared with the cumbersome and tedious process of other States.
