MISS WILSON WED IN GREAT POMP

$18,500,000 Gain in City Tax Returns

THIRTEENTH PAIR TO WED IN WHITE HOUSE

MR. AND MRS. F. B. SAYRE.

FINLEY, SOUTHERN RAILWAY HEAD, DEAD

Robbers Blow Safe In High's Store, but Fail to Get $8,000

When Miss Dora Gibbs, cashier for the J. M. High Company, went to the safe in the office on the second floor Tuesday morning, she was startled to see a great pile of bedding on the floor in front of the tall steel box. Then she noticed that the combination had been torn off, and a closer inspection showed the door to have been drilled and otherwise damaged. The safe had been "blown" nearly but inside it, protected by a special lock, was $6,000 in money and $2,000 worth of jewelry and other valuables. The money and the valuables were safe—so safe that the company itself

SUDDEN END RESULT OF PARALYSIS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway, died suddenly of paralysis at his home here this afternoon.

Rose Rapidly in Railroad Business.

William Wilson Finley was born in Pass Christian, Miss., in 1853. He entered railway service in 1873 with the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern and the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans roads, as a stenographer. Ten years later Young Finley found himself assistant general freight agent for those companies, having been promoted in a single jump to that position.

In 1883, Finley was made assistant general freight agent of the Texas and Pacific division of the Missouri Pacific Railway, which position he held until 1885. Then he was made assistant general freight agent for the receiver for the Texas and Pacific Railway.

A year later President Finley was made general freight agent of the T. and P. and two years afterward was promoted to general freight agent of the Pan Handle Route, comprising three great Texas roads.

Did Association Work. In 1889 Finley entered association work and became chairman of the Trans-Missouri Traffic Association with offices at Kansas City, Mo. From this position he went to the chairmanship of the Western Passenger Association at Chicago.

He gave up this position in 1892 to become general traffic manager of the Great Northern and Montana Central Railway. Three years later he became a member of the Southern States Passenger Association.

During that same year—1895—Mr. Finley became connected with the Southern Railway as third vice president. He was made second vice president in 1896 and was elected president of the road in 1906, succeeding President Samuel Spencer, who was killed in an accident on his own road.

Included in the Southern Railway system of more than 10,000 miles of track, of which Mr. Finley was the head, were the Alabama Great Southern; the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific; the New Orleans and Northeastern; the Alabama and Vicksburg; the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific; the Mobile and Ohio; the Georgia, Southern and Florida; the Northern Alabama; the Southern Railway in Mississippi and the Virginia and Southwest Railway.

Encouraged Farmers.

Likely Howard Elliott, President Finley devoted much attention to acquainting the public with the place railroads fill in the life of the nation, and in his own territory he was brilliantly successful in encouraging more scientific methods among farmers. He was an LL. D. twice over, a good orator and a clever writer.

T. C. Powell, vice president at Cincinnati, is likely to succeed Mr. Finley as president. He is the active head of the Queen and Crescent system, a Southern Railway subsidiary, although Mr. Finley was president of that system also.

Third Rail Head to Die Recently.

The death of President Finley marks the passing of the third great figure in railway circles of the South during the last few months. Henry M. Flagler, the head of the Florida East Coast Railroad, and projector of the extension to Key West, one of the greatest engineering feats of modern times, was the first to die. His end came at St. Augustine, Fla., after he had reached the age of 83 years.

Joseph R. Parrott, president of the Florida East Coast Railway, and the man named by Flagler in his will as best fitted to carry on the great development work he began in the early eighties, was the next to die.

PROSPERITY PROVED BY REVENUE

Municipal Treasury Will Have $25,000 Unappropriated Surplus at End of the Year.

Impressive evidence of Atlanta's prosperity is shown by the record increase of more than $18,500,000 in tax returns for 1913 over 1912. It not only is a greater amount than any former year's increase but exceeds by approximately $2,000,000 the increase anticipated in the final revision of the city budget. With city officials winding up the business of the year the figures show an unappropriated surplus of about $25,000 in Atlanta's income.

A compilation of the figures was completed Tuesday by City Tax Receiver George Beauchamp. The total assessments aggregate $178,327,427, against $154,827,487 in 1912. Of this amount approximately $159,320,000 is made up of real and personal assessments of private citizens and corporations, and $14,000,000 in real and personal assessments of public utility corporations.

The increase in assessments on private property is $16,514,672; $159,320,000 for 1913, and $142,805,328 for 1912.

Public Utilities' Increase.

The increase on public utilities, assessments on which are made by State Comptroller Wright, is approximately $2,000,000. The assessments on the utilities for 1912 were $12,022,159. He has not made a final addition of the assessments for this year, but a conservative estimate is that they will exceed $14,000,000.

Mayor Woodward and the Council anticipated a substantial increase, but the figures have gone beyond their expectations. When the January budget was made up, Mayor Woodward prevented the committee from following the old custom of appropriating a conservative estimate of the increase. No increased revenue was added to the budget until it was revised in June, and then only the amount actually in sight. When in October it came time to revise the budget again, the Finance Committee attempted to include the total of the increase in revenue. The figures to-day show that they failed by about $25,000, although there were demands far in excess of the amount made available for expenditure.

The city treasury, therefore, is found in a condition never known before. Since the year is so near a close, it is likely the money will be carried over to the new Council to spend.

In fact, Tax Receiver George Beauchamp is making every effort to keep the figures secret. He has shown them to Mayor Woodward and a few friends, but only a few of the Council members know of the situation.

Try to Keep Figures Secret.

Receiver Beauchamp Tuesday refused to give out the official figures. When he completed them Tuesday he looked them in his desk and left the City Hall. He said that Mayor Woodward had advised him to keep them secret for fear members of Council might attempt to appropriate the money for needed improvements.

Mr. Beauchamp, however, is making his last show of authority. A measure passed by the last General Assembly abolishes his office as a separate department and makes of it a clerkship under the three Tax Receivers, J. L. Harrison, C. D. Meador and J. N. Malone.

The figures given above, while not Mr. Beauchamp's official figures, are correct within a few dollars of the actual amounts. The phenomenal increase and the assurance from the Tax Assessors that next year also will show a big gain will develop an interesting situation when the new Finance Committee meets to make the new budget. Mayor Woodward will insist that no anticipated revenue be appropriated, but there will be such a heavy demand from the schools and other city departments that the committee will be sorely pressed to loosen the purse strings.

Atlanta Owes Big Welcome to Boys Who Build State

As a simple recognition of their service in the development of the State, Atlantans whose city profits by their efforts, owes it to the victorious Georgia Corn Club boys to take them into their homes for their two days' visit here next week.

Earnest and prolonged effort on the part of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has succeeded in finding homes for less than 450 of these boys; every one of the 1,000 who are coming is entitled to the same generous Atlanta hospitality. Will you take two? Telephone or write your reply at once to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Standard Oil Again Denies It Is a Trust

MERIDIAN, MISS., Nov. 25.—The Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey, Kentucky and Louisiana are separate concerns and have no connection in their business relations, according to arguments here in chancery to-day on a demurrer to an anti-trust suit filed recently by the State of Mississippi.

Husband Refuses to Talk, So Wife Sues

Asserting that her husband, M. K. Seals, had a habit of refusing to speak to her for two and three days at a time, Mrs. Essie Kate Seals filed suit for divorce Tuesday morning.

She asserts that they were married June 14 of this year, and she left him on November 22, after he had become enraged and struck her with his fist. Mrs. Seals alleges also that her husband failed to show any affection for her even when she arose at 5 o'clock in the morning to cook his breakfast.

Morgan County Boy Best Corn Grower

The grand prize winner of Georgia in this year's Corn Club contest is Edward J. Wellborn, of Morgan County, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wellborn.

Young Wellborn has made this year 182.72 bushels of corn upon the same acre upon which he raised 161 bushels last year. He went home from last year's corn show with the declaration that he was going to beat the record of 177 bushels, and he has done it.

Conference Sends Chicken Prices High

Macon, Nov. 25.—The committee meetings preliminary to the annual conference of the South Georgia Methodist Conference, which opens here to-morrow, are being held here to-day. Already more than one-third of the 200 ministers have arrived. Prominent among them is Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, who will preside.

Texas Stages Its Own Wilson-Sayre Affair

ORANGE, TEXAS, Nov. 25.—By a strange coincidence Miss Jessie Wilson and Francis Sayre, residents of this town, were married here to-day. The bride is a farmer's daughter and the groom a merchant.

BRILLIANT COMPANY SEE PAIR UNITED

Second Daughter of President Bride in Historic East Room of White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—In the presence of a brilliant assemblage of distinguished guests, Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of the President, and Francis Bowes Sayre were married in the famous old east room of the White House to-day.

Miss Wilson, leaning on the arm of her father and attended by her maid, entered the east room from the main apartment of the White House. On a dais erected before the altar near the east window Francis Bowes Sayre, his attendants and the Rev. Sylvester W. Beach, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Princeton, N. J., awaited the arrival of the bride party.

In almost the very spot where took place the weddings of Miss Nellie Grant and Algernon Sartoris and Miss Alice Roosevelt and Representative Nicholas Longworth, Miss Wilson became the thirteenth White House bride.

Brilliant Gowns and Uniforms. The east room presented a magnificent picture, the brilliant gowns of the many fashionably dressed women and uniforms of the diplomats contrasting with the somber black of the frockcoats of the Senators, Representatives and friends and relatives of the Wilson and Sayre families.

Velvet and plush cords roped off the room into sections and formed an aisle along which the bridal party proceeded to the altar. The Marine Band played the wedding march. None of the guests were seated.

Invitations were handled in a way typical of President Wilson. Washington residential society, which received great recognition at the hands of Colonel Roosevelt, was almost totally ignored. The reason given for this was the fact that Miss Wilson and the members of her family have not been in Washington long enough to become extensively acquainted. Besides the diplomatic corps, some of the leading members of the Senate and the House, the members of the President's Cabinet, the members of the Supreme Court and a few department and bureau heads, almost all of the guests present were personal friends of the Wilson and Sayre families.

Police Closely Guard. Every precaution was taken to protect the President's family and the wedding guests. Secret service men were freely scattered through the White House and about the grounds of the Executive Mansion.

Every entrance to the White House grounds was guarded by a line of police. Guests on arrival passed through a parallel line of police at the main entrance, and only those having invitations or authority were permitted to enter.

From early morning a crowd had surrounded the White House, standing close to the great iron railings, in the hope of catching a glimpse of Miss Wilson and members of the wedding party. As the guests arrived the White

WIDOW THRASHED BY MASKED MEN

STATESBORO, Nov. 25.—The entire community of Metter, near here, anxiously awaiting developments following the unmerciful whipping of Mrs. M. J. Rollerson, a widow, and her son, night before last by a party of seven masked men, for the arrest of whom Mrs. Rollerson has asked and obtained warrants charging assault and battery. Mrs. Rollerson, an attractive young woman, came to Statesboro yesterday, and, weeping passionately in the face of the warrant deputy, demanded redress for her wrongs. She said that at 1 o'clock the night before seven masked men came to her home, entered it, took her and her son from their beds and beat them unmercifully, "till fainted unconsciousness," Mrs. Rollerson said, "and they became alarmed. They removed their masks and recognized them all. Then they poured bucketfuls of water over her to revive me." After the whipping the men departed, and Mrs. Rollerson, dressing hastily, followed the men to the Statesboro and telephoned to the Sheriff.

THANKSGIVING

By LILIAN LAUFERTY. THE spirit of Thy heart, oh, God, is Liberty. To-day, as evermore, we thank Thee for this glory; And from the souls where her winged feet have trod Surges our story In frosted breath beneath November's sky. Like incense hoary. To-day our thanks to Heaven above ascend through Winter's chill-touched air. Divided millions join to-day—there rises all our nation's prayer; For all we are and long to be—for failure linked with hope to rise. To Thee, oh, God, we send to-day Thanksgiving past November's skies. We thank Thee, God, because the day must ever follow darksome night; We thank Thee that our bleeding feet still bear us onward to the fight; Because we'er may try again, because of hope that does not die, Because of joy the sunshine gives—our thanks to-day rise to the sky. The spirit of Thy heart, oh, God, great Liberty Has taught us how to write a nation-honored story; Freedom we knew to rise from hampering clod. For all this glory Thanksgiving surges from our hearts to-day Like incense hoary. Later in the day she came to Statesboro for the warrants. Mrs. Rollerson has been employed as a clerk in a store at Metter for several months. Her version of the affair is the only one heard thus far, and she denies emphatically having given any occasion for the treatment accorded her. The warrants are expected to be served to-day. The affair has caused a sensation, and threatening talk was freely circulated to-day.

Liquor Enemies in Savannah Win Point

SAVANNAH, Nov. 25.—The anti-saloon element in Savannah won a victory in the new war against alleged violators of the prohibition act when the Grand Jury recommended the closing at once of two saloons near Fort Screven. Sheriff Dixon has raided six county roadhouses.

Parcels Post Blow To Express 'Trust'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Under competition following the inauguration of the parcel post system, express companies have sustained heavy losses in earnings, according to Representative David J. Lewis, co-author of the parcel post law. HUNTING SAFEBLOWERS. WILMINGTON, N. C., Nov. 25.—Officers in eastern North Carolina are searching for robbers who blew open the safe in the postoffice at Parkton and secured $500 in cash. Entrance into the bank was attempted, but failed.

'OBEY' IS OMITTED FROM WILSON CEREMONY; BRIDE 'NEW FREEDOM' DISCIPLE

House ushers escorted them to the places assigned them in the east room. At the Roosevelt wedding guests were placed in the order in which they arrived, with the result that many important official guests were all but offended. Not so today, however. The space division of the east room left a place for each guest.

Bride Enters With Father. In the bridal party, as Miss Wilson entered the room, besides President Wilson, were Miss Margaret Wilson, eldest daughter of the President, who was maid of honor for her sister, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, youngest member of the Presidential family, and the several girlhood friends of the bride who had been selected as bridesmaids.

Miss Mary G. White, of Baltimore, was a chum of Miss Wilson at Goucher College, Baltimore. Miss Angeline Mitchell Scott, daughter of Professor William B. Scott, of Princeton University, was a girlhood friend of the bride, and Miss Marjorie Brown, daughter of Colonel F. T. Brown, of Atlanta, Ga., is a second cousin of Miss Wilson on the maternal side.

The attendants of the bridegroom were chosen from among friends he made at college and in philanthropic work. Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the best man, famous explorer and philanthropist, of the Grenfell Mission, Labrador, met Mr. Sayre when the latter on his vacation visited the Labrador coast and aided Dr. Grenfell in his missionary work. The Rev. Sylvester W. Beach, who performed the ceremony, is a personal friend of the President, who, while connected with Princeton University, attended the Rev. Mr. Beach's church.

Perfect Day for Nuptials. Clear skies arching a perfect Indian summer morning, pleasant and warm and with scarcely a breath of wind, favored the wedding day. It was another instance of the proverbial Wilson fortune, bringing smiles to the faces of the invited guests at the ceremony, and crowning the event for the happy couple with the best of omens.

The crowd of people gathered around the White House got a close view of Miss Wilson when she, with a number of young friends, drove up shortly after noon. The party had been driving about the city in taxicabs and as soon as they had entered the White House reporters and photographers were allowed to inspect the result of the decorator's work in the interior.

Up early to observe the signs of the heavens, nearly a hundred policemen—the pick of the metropolitan force—prepared to hold in check the surging crowds that began with the breakfast hour to gather about the White House grounds. Uniforms were never so neat, brass buttons never shone so resplendently as upon this occasion of marriage festival. Everywhere the crowds were good natured, chaffing the disappointed who sought entrance to the Executive Mansion, and frankly envying those who passed in by special right of invitation or errand.

Up at the Capitol the House of

MISS MARJORIE BROWN, WILSON BRIDESMAID

Miss Marjorie Brown, of Atlanta, cousin of the White House bride, who is one of the bridesmaids.

Representatives failed for once to meet. It had adjourned for the day out of compliment to the President's family. The Supreme Court justices were similarly absent from their chambers. Only the Senate, burdened with its responsibilities for the currency legislation, went on with its work, noting the absence of a few members who had accepted invitations to the great function.

'New Freedom' for Bride. That Miss Wilson would share the advantage of the "new freedom" in her marriage and would not promise to "obey" was revealed to-day by the officiating clergyman, the Rev. Sylvester W. Beach, when he announced the ceremony to be used the modern wording of the service from the Presbyterian book of common worship. It follows:

Jessie, wilt thou have this man to be thy husband, and wilt thou pledge thy truth to him in all love and honor, in all duty and service, in all faith and tenderness, to live with him and cherish him, according to the ordinance of God, in the holy bond of marriage?

I will. I, Jessie, take thee, Francis, to be my wedded husband; and I do promise and covenant, before God and these witnesses, to be thy loving and faithful wife, in plenty and in want, in joy and sorrow, in sickness and in health, as long as we both shall live.

Gifts Still Arriving. Gifts from distant parts of the world continued to arrive during the day, among the notable late arrivals being one from the President of Guatemala, the first to be sent by the head of a foreign government. Heads of other nations have refrained, at a hint from Mrs. Wilson, that the wedding should not be considered a national affair. Diplomats have sent their personal gifts.

The Guatemalan President's present is a wrought silver center piece in a design of American beauty roses. Senor Don Joaquin Mendez, the Guatemalan Minister, presented it with a rare vase, the gift of himself and Senora Mendez.

The White House kitchen presented a busy scene to-day. Caterers' wagons rolled to the domestic officer's door, bearing supplies for the wedding breakfast throughout the morning. A corps of chefs invaded the kitchen at an early hour and held sway throughout the day.

tion tendered to Miss Wilson and her girl friends by Justice and Mrs. Joseph R. Lamar at their home in New Hampshire, avenue. At the same time Mr. Sayre, his ushers and his best man, Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, were luncheon guests at the home of Justice and Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, on the Avenue of the Presidents. Both homes were especially decorated in honor of the occasion.

Following the luncheon at the Lamar home, Miss Wilson returned with her house-guests to the Executive Mansion and was at once placed in the hands of the expert dressmakers for the draping of her wedding gown.

The bridesmaids also began final preparations for their appearance in the East Room.

Mr. Sayre and Dr. Grenfell appeared at the Hughes luncheon in their wedding clothes, black dress coat and waistcoat, new gray trousers, patent leather shoes, pearl gray gloves and a tie of the same color.

Mr. Sayre and his best man remained at the Hughes residence in company with Charles E. Hughes, Jr., until the hour for the ceremony.

Kitchen Busy Scene. A floral gift sent by the Minister from Ecuador, Dr. Don Rafael Maria Arizaaga, came to grief while being carried into the White House by workmen. It was taken in at the main entrance on the Pennsylvania avenue side and being too large to pass horizontally was "tipped up."

The operation resulted in partly wrecking it.

So far the wedding journey plans have been kept a secret. Whether the couple would go to Florida or to Canada, to some secluded spot in Virginia or to New York was known only to a small circle of trusted intimates of both. The favorite guess is that they will spend their honeymoon in some Gulf resort.

Three Entrances for Guests. Three entrances to the White House grounds were left open to-day to admit officials and guests at the wedding ceremonial. At the gate on the northwest the members of the President's cabinet, ushers, aides, officiating clergyman and Secretary Tumulty had to present red cards for admittance. Blue cards gave the right of way at the southern entrance for the diplomats, Supreme Court justices, leaders of the two houses of Congress, Admiral Dewey, Major General Wood and invited members of Congress. White cards admitted other guests at the east gate.

Mr. Sayre was practically the first caller at the White House to-day, arriving shortly after breakfast.

Miss Wilson spent the morning making final arrangements for the packing of her personal effects. They will be sent to the Union Station at 5 o'clock.

Luncheon at the White House to-day was spread for members of the Wilson and Sayre families, the bridesmaids and ushers. The Marine Band played during the repast. Miss Wilson conferred with the leader of the band concerning the program which she selected. Both the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches will be played.

HUNDREDS PAY LOVING TRIBUTE TO DR. ROBINS

Methodist Pastor Who Died at Elberton Conference Buried With Impressive Ceremony.

Beautifully impressive services conducted from the pulpit from which he had preached the Word of God marked the funeral Tuesday of the Rev. John Bradley Robins, whose dramatic death at the North Georgia Conference in Elberton shocked people throughout the State.

Persons in many lines of endeavor gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to the distinguished minister. Every seat in Trinity Methodist Church was filled. Business men and professional men joined with the ministers of the State and with the sorrowing family in mourning his departure.

Banked up back of the simple black casket were floral offerings of exquisite composition and design. Relatives of Dr. Robins, attired in deep mourning, quietly entered the auditorium just before the services were begun.

Tribute to his manly, likeable qualities, to his indomitable fighting spirit, which was tempered with gentleness, was paid in eloquent words by men associated with him many years of his life.

Services Were Simple. The speakers gloried that Dr. Robins "died in harness" as he always had expressed a desire to do.

An impressive moment came at the conclusion of the heartfelt eulogies when the great pipe organ softly sounded the sweet strains of "Home, Sweet Home," and the large body of mourners quietly filed from the building.

The services were simple, in keeping with the last request of Dr. Robins, and the solemn knell over the departed soul, those who had known and loved Dr. Robins in life wept unrestrainedly.

Dr. A. W. Quillian, pastor of the Inman Park Methodist Church, a classmate at Emory College and a lifelong friend of Dr. Roberts, led the services, and in a voice broken with sorrow he paid tribute to his dear friend, to the love and unwavering devotion to duty that had characterized his entire life.

Masons Take Part. "Once in a great while," he said, "There rises among us a man whose sole thought is of God and God's work. What more can be said of Dr. Robins than that he was such a man."

Dr. Quillian was assisted by the Rev. W. P. King, of Monroe; the Rev. C. R. Cleckler, of Elberton, at whose home Dr. Robins died, and Rabbi I. H. Fox, of Atlanta, who represented the Masonic bodies of the city. Music that Dr. Robins had loved to hear was played by Charles A. Sheldon, the church organist, including "Home, Sweet Home," which Dr. Robins only a week before had requested Mr. Sheldon to play at his funeral.

Dr. Robins' body was buried beside that of his wife, which died nearly 29 years ago, in Westview cemetery. The pallbearers, four of whom represented the church organization and four the Masonic organizations, were Ernest Adair, J. C. Greenfield, John Gilmore, W. A. Foster, the Rev. J. S. L. Sappintown, the Rev. Lane Ware, Lewis Gregg and John W. Hardwick.

Large Crowd Meets Body. Besides the pallbearers, there were honorary escorts composed of Methodist preachers, stewards and trustees of Trinity Church, and of members of the Masonic organizations to which Dr. Robins belonged, and a delegation of 25 ministers from the North Georgia Conference.

The body of Dr. Robins was brought to Atlanta Monday afternoon from Elberton and was met at the Union Station by a hundred members of his church and many of his personal friends.

Fifty of the stewards and officials of the church were there, and representatives of the Knights Templars, the Shriners and the Scottish Rite Masons, of which branches of Masonry Dr. Robins was a member.

The body was removed from the train by the stewards of the church, headed by John A. Manget, chairman of the board, and taken to a house. The members of Dr. Robins' family, including Misses Mae and Victorie Robins and the Rev. J. T. Robins, went directly to their home at No. 171 Capitol avenue.

Preparation of Flowers. A path was cleared through the traffic that surrounds the station, and walking two abreast the church members and others who had gathered escorted the hearse to Trinity Church, where the body lay in state all night, guarded by a special watch of a dozen members of the Knights Templars.

Another large crowd had gathered at the church, and as the stewards carried the body slowly to the altar, Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., the church organist, played "Home, Sweet Home," with tears blinding his eyes and at times almost preventing his playing.

Floral tributes in such profusion as to almost fill the church, filled the air with their fragrance. Among them was the cross and crown of the Knights Templars.

Beautiful wreaths had been placed on the altar by the stewards and trustees of the church, and the mothers' class of the Sunday school sent a beautiful design. The Shriners, the Scottish Rite Masons and many personal friends added to the mass of flowers.

The funeral of Miss Nira C. Wilson, a pioneer Atlanta who died Monday at the home of her niece, Mrs. A. N. Baldwin, 152 Whiteford avenue, Inman Park, took place Tuesday afternoon. Services were conducted at 1 o'clock at the residence by Rev. Virgil Norcross and Rev. W. B. Bell. The interment was in Hollywood cemetery.

Miss Wilson was sister of Mrs. Ann Ray and Mrs. Kate O'Shields of Atlanta, are sisters of the deceased. Miss Wilson also is survived by six nieces and three nephews. Mrs. A. A. Lyon, Mrs. R. A. Cash, Mrs. Laura Aschbacher, Mrs. Neil Baldwin, Mrs. Chesley Bishop, Miss Lela Burford, B. F. O'Shields and George Ray of Atlanta, and Stephen Ray, of Birmingham, Ala.

BOARD TAKES UP BOOKS PROBLEM Conflicting Opinions on Renewal of Present Contracts Cause Lengthy Discussion.

The State Board of Education, sitting as a text-book commission considering contracts to be awarded for next year's books, was in executive session at the Capitol Tuesday.

Thirty-odd publishing houses are bidding for the new contracts.

There are two opinions in the commission—one holding that the present contracts should be temporarily renewed pending the present legislative investigation into the entire book situation. This side claims that to renew would avoid many possible changes of books within the next few months. This side is headed by the Governor.

The other side holds that all present contracts should be abrogated without quibble and a new deal had all around.

The impression is that the situation as it at present exists will not be materially disturbed at this time.

Father Trailed to Son's Hiding Place

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 25.—G. A. Nolls, a prominent merchant of High Point, came here to-day to see his son, wanted there on a charge of manslaughter. The elder Nolls was followed here by a detective, and local officers shadowed him for several months.

When Nolls met his son, who was boarding in a cotton mill district, officers arrested the boy. He was carried back to High Point, and a preliminary hearing will be held to-morrow.

ATLANTA'S POOR KIDDIES DEMAND YOUR PRESENCE AT XMAS FUND TANGO TEA

You tired business men who are always complaining of the monotony of the grind:
Here's your one best chance!
There's going to be a tango tea given in your midst.
Of course you won't have a chance to see any of those young fellows who are there. But the pretty girls will smile at you as you sit in the chairs, watching the mango and orange tea. And an Atlanta girl's smile is worth the price of admission. Which is $1.

It may bring back a time not so long ago when another pretty girl smiled at you and made you what you are to-day—a tired business man, perhaps, but also a successful one. Then you won't think your life such a grind after all.

Takes Place Next Monday.
This fountain of youth is going to be in the ballroom of the Piedmont Hotel, which is just a step from your office.

The date is December 1; the music will start at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will swing right on through until 7.

You can hear the latest tunes; see all the society buds and beaux dance the latest innovations in the tango-shorean art, and get a thorough rejuvenation all for—
One dollar.

And that is not all. The dollar you give will go into the Empty Stocking Fund which will provide a Merry Christmas for the thousands of poor children in Atlanta.

Will Be Informal Affair.
That is why you are coming to the Tango Tea. It doesn't matter whether you can stay or not, you are going to bring your dollar up there and hand it over to the committee of business men who will be expecting you. But when you get there you won't leave.

DONT DRESS UP.
It is going to be a merry little informal party. And it is going to help make a thousand other merry little parties in the homes of the poor when Christmas comes.

"Don't you see?" You are under obligation to come. You are under obligation to come.
The most prominent people in Atlanta are going to be there.
Joe Brown Connally is going to be master of ceremonies and chief singer and abettor to the tangoers. And scores of leading society women have endorsed the idea and are working night and day for its success.

Will Be Done Right.
Here are some of them:
Madames Robert J. Lowry, J. G. Olesby, Henry Jackson, W. A. Spear, Frank Ellis, William D. Ellis, Jr., John B. Murphy, Edwin P. Ansley, Harry Harman, James Akers, Nym McCullough, W. B. Green, John Hull, Hugh McKee, George M. Brown, Rutherford Locomomb, John Moore, Warner Marlow, Edna Avery Jones, Hudson Moore, Ronald Ransom, Charles Sisson, James L. Dickey, Jr., Robert L. Conway, John Kiser, Edwin Johnson, James T. Williams, William Schroeder, Forrest Adair, Jr., Hughes Spalding and Roy Collier. From Fort McPherson will come also Mrs. George Martin, Mrs. B. T. Simmons and Mrs. Jack Hayes.

This thing is going to be done right. The people working for it guarantee that much.
And they are working for it because it is an object worthy of their attention.
And that is why you must come.
REMEMBER, at 4:30 o'clock, December 1, in the ballroom of the Piedmont Hotel.
Put it down in your date book.
You Must Donate, Too.
Don't forget also, that cash contributions to this fund are being sent in every day to the Christmas Editor, whose address is No. 29 East Alabama street.
Some people are not waiting for the Tango Tea to give their share to the Empty Stocking Fund. They are sending in their donations through CASH OR CHECK.
Have you sent in a contribution? If not, go out into the districts of the city where the wolf lurks at the door and hollow-eyed children press their sad little faces against the window panes to gaze in awe and wonder at you as you pass.
Remember, those same little kiddies will be there Christmas eve, waiting and wondering if Santa Claus is coming. Are you?

Letter Is Delivered After Eleven Years
PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Nov. 25.—A letter mailed by Mrs. Hugh Wilson eleven years ago to a friend in Syracuse has just reached her.

SOCIETY WOMEN TO HAVE CHARGE OF TANGO TEA FOR XMAS FUND

Top, Mrs. John Kiser, and, below, Mrs. Robert Cooney, who have pledged their efforts to make Empty Stocking Fund benefit a success.

MARRIAGE HELD PREVENTIVE OF VAGRANCY

Judge Pottle Rules That Woman With Husband Can Not Be Convicted of Charge.

The Georgia Court of Appeals, Mr. Justice Pottle, has planted itself like a Gibraltar between all married women and charges of vagrancy when said married women having husbands living and not shown to be unable to support their wives even though separated from them.

The case on appeal came up from Mitchell County, and was brought by Mrs. Ethel Brown, convicted of vagrancy and sentenced to twelve months in the chain-gang of the county, failing the payment of an alternative $50 fine.

In reversing the court below and remanding the case for retrial, Mr. Justice Pottle, for the court, held: "A married woman whose husband is not shown to be unable to support her can not be convicted of vagrancy upon proof alone that she is able to work and does not work. And this is true though she and her husband may be living in a state of separation.

"It is unfortunately true that some husbands do not comply with the legal and highly moral obligation imposed upon them to support their wives. It is punishment enough for a woman to espouse a man unwilling to support her. If he can and won't the law will compel him, and will excuse the woman for not doing that which her husband is bound to perform for her.

"Certainly she is not to be classed as a vagrant merely because she relies upon compliance by her husband with the obligation imposed upon him by law.

"Married women are often compelled to supplement the income which the ostensible head of the family can earn, but they do this from stern necessity, and not because the law compels them to do it.

"Sometimes married women support worthless or helpless husbands, but to hold that they were legally bound to do so would put an unwarrantable burden upon the holy estate of matrimony and make undesirable for the woman a relation into which the law encourages her to enter.

"In the present state of the law the burden of supporting a family falls upon the husband, in return for which the law crowns him with the proud but sometimes meaningless title of 'head of the family.'

"If he would wear the crown he must bear the burden.
"Some day all this may be changed, but we are dealing with present-day law, and sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

"The undisputed evidence shows that the accused was a married woman, and that she lived with her husband and about half the time. The evidence is silent in reference to the husband's ability to work or as to whether he actually contributed to his wife's support. At any rate, this is not the proper proceeding in which to determine the respective obligation of husband and wife or to fix the blame for separation.

"It is enough that the woman is married and the husband is in duty bound to support her. This represents the 'visible means of support' to which the law refers.
"Judgment reversed."

Sheriff Spirits Negro From Jail; Evades Mob

MACON, Nov. 25.—Charged with attacking the wife of a farmer of Twiggs County 12 miles from Jeffersonville, Cleveland Gaffmore, a negro, has been brought to the Bibb County jail for safe-keeping.
Gaffmore was spirited out of Jeffersonville by Sheriff Wimberly just in time to evade a mob. The Sheriff also brought another negro prisoner, charged with murder.

Malvern Hill's Death Brings Sadness to Scores in Atlanta

News of the death of Malvern Hill at Grady Hospital Monday night brought sorrow to a host of his friends. Well known as an attorney and leader in lodge circles, Mr. Hill had a large political following as demonstrated in the last race for Recorder.
He was taken ill at his home on Kuhns street, Inman Park, Monday night with acute nephritis and rushed to the Grady Hospital. At 10:30 o'clock he died.
His wife and two sons, Malvern Hill, Jr., and Gordon Hill, survive him. Mr. Hill was 49 years old and had resided in Atlanta 25 years.

Nicaragua Asks U. S. To Send Zelaya Back

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A request for the extradition of former President Zelaya of Nicaragua reached the State Department to-day. The application for the arrest and deportation of the former dictator was signed by the President of Nicaragua, who asked that Zelaya be detained on a charge of murder and embezzlement.
The application was sent to the Department of Justice.

M. RICH & BROS. CO.

New & Fashionable $30 & $35 Fur-Trimmed Suits $17.85
One of the Results of Our Buyer's New York Purchase --- Shown To-morrow for the First Time.

They are suits that earlier in the season we would have been glad to get hold of to retail at $30 to $35. At $17.85 we expect to sell them all in a day. Developed in the smart short and medium cut-away styles. Various belt and frog trimmed, finished at collar and cuffs with the fashionable skunk fur. Built of such fine materials as all-wool broadcades, velour de laines, poplins, matelasses and failles.

Suits Not Fur Trimmed

Of course, everyone doesn't want a fur-trimmed suit, so in the same lot at $17.85 we have $25 to $35 suits of broadcloths, boucles, serges, chevots, failles and sponge. All new, smartly made and smartly trimmed.

In the two lots one has choice of a big color assortment, including black, navy and lighter blues, wine, brown, plum, petrol, etc. Sizes and styles for all. Choice, $17.85.

$35 to $45 Suits at $25

SINCE the most of these splendid suits are just in from New York, they embody the very latest style touches. That they are true $45 values is evidenced by the fact that we have had to reduce many of our $45 suits to $25—we knew they would not bring their real price when these newcomers were selling at $25. Developed of fine broadcloths, Bedford cords, sponges, serges, chevots, boucles, etc. Many are fur trimmed; all are very smart and wonderful values at $25.

$23.50 Boucle Coats at $15

THE rich and stylish curly, kinky black boucle coats. Smartly made and handsomely trimmed with deep plush collar and cuffs. Not the least mark of their excellence is the fact that they are lined throughout with Skinner Satin. Getting the maker's reserve stock accounts for the modest price. Just eleven (11) in all, and this announcement is in two papers.

Splendid $15 Coats at $10

HERE'S a rich, handsome coat to snuggle in! Beautifully built of beautiful chinchilla. Rich Oxford shade in a handsome model. Warmth-without-weight, soft and luxurious looking. Full three-quarter length, slightly outaway at bottom. Richly trimmed in large black velvet buttons. A splendid $15 value captured by our buyer in New York. They will go like hot cakes at $10.00.

Columbia Records Are Ready For December

We invite you to visit our Grafonola Department to-day and hear the first playing of the Columbia Records for December.

The December list is unusually attractive and covers a wide range of vocal and instrumental selections.

For lovers of Grand Opera and the classical in music there are splendid double recordings by Bonci, David Bispham, America's foremost baritone, and Henri Scotti, the sensational Metropolitan bass.

We offer also several splendid vocal numbers typical of the Christmas season, and two records made particularly for the little folks.

The usual run of popular, up-to-the-minute hits, and four splendid numbers for the new dances.

Be sure you hear the Columbia December Records to-day. Remember, they play on both Columbia and Victor instruments.

Give us your name for future record lists and phone, call or write for the present one.

A Keen Creative Brain

Has value far above money alone because such a brain can win not only money, but—what money often fails to win—SUCCESS.

Brains are built—same as other parts of the body—from the food one eats.

The ordinary diet often lacks certain elements essential to the well balanced nourishment of both body and brain. Especially is this true of white bread flour, which, to make it white, is deprived of valuable mineral salts in the milling process.

Grape-Nuts

made of finest whole wheat and barley, retains the mineral salts (grown in the grain) and other nutritious elements, and thus supplies perfectly what white flour bread lacks.

This lack is often the difference between a weak body and dull, ineffective brains and the strong, keen, creative kind.

Grape-Nuts comes ready to eat direct from package—fresh and clean. Delicious with cream or good milk.

It is a concentrated, easily digested food, and as the cereal part of the usual meal has helped thousands toward a new and successful life.

2,000 Lunatics Turn and Beat Keepers

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN.
ROME, Nov. 25.—Nearly 2,000 lunatics in an asylum at Ponte Seveso, near Milan, mutinied to-day and armed with broomsticks attacked and overpowered the keepers and smashed the windows.
The police and firemen turned a hose on the mutineers, who are mostly young people of both sexes.

Train Kills Father; Babes Sue Saloons

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Nov. 25.—As sequel to a recent fatality in which Frank Wiseman, of Delevan, was killed by a train while intoxicated, his two children filed suit for $10,000 each against four saloonkeepers of Pekin, claiming that they sold Wiseman liquor.

NEW CURRENCY BILL TO BE PASSED BY JANUARY, HOKE SMITH IS CERTAIN

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—I am fortunate to have found Hoke Smith, the massive Senator from Georgia, in a communicative mood on the currency. Hoke Smith is as close to the currency bill as Owen himself, and as close to Wilson. He said to me: "Currency legislation is now assured. It should certainly pass by the latter part of January."

"The Senate has before it three measures—the bill as it passed the House, the House bill with the amendments proposed by the six Democrats of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, and the House bill with the amendments proposed by Senator Hitchcock and the five Republican members of the committee. The entire committee approved the most important provisions of the House bill. They are:

"First—The creation of regional Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Second—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Third—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Fourth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Fifth—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Sixth—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Seventh—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Eighth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Ninth—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Tenth—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Eleventh—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Twelfth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Thirteenth—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Fourteenth—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Fifteenth—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Sixteenth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Seventeenth—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Eighteenth—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Nineteenth—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Twentieth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Twenty-first—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Twenty-second—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Twenty-third—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Twenty-fourth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Twenty-fifth—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Twenty-sixth—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

"Twenty-seventh—A provision for elastic currency by the issue of national treasury notes through the regional banks, to be used as currency.

"Twenty-eighth—The control of the entire system by the Government through a national board of supervision.

"Twenty-ninth—The concentration of the Federal reserve banks, with capital stock subscribed in part by national banks and banks generally.

"Thirtieth—The concentration in these banks of a large part of the reserves of the stockholder banks and of Government bonds, that both may be available for use in business.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

"It is evident enough," said Game Warden Charles L. Davis to-day, "that the present hunting season is to be the best and most widely licensed of many years."

"In any number of counties the supply of licenses sent out from headquarters has proven to be far short of requirements, and a number of licenses have been delayed in issuing because of the fact that local wardens did not have the necessary blanks. I think there is not a county in the State to-day, however, that is not able to take care of all demands made upon it."

"There is, of course, one primary reason why this is such a popular season, and that is that birds are really and truly much more plentiful than formerly. The season has been too dry for very good hunting so far, but the birds are in the fields, nevertheless."

"The reason why the total number of licenses has so greatly increased over calculation is because so many hunters who thought their hunting days a thing of the past have taken up the sport again with all of their old-time enthusiasm. They know of their own knowledge that conditions are relatively what they were ten years or so ago, and that has made them all over again."

"I find, too, that the law is being administered most admirably throughout the State, and I ascribe much of this to the fact that the hunters themselves are doing all they can to make the law a success and a real protection, not only to the birds but to the sport."

"The department on the whole is highly gratified at the way the hunting season is opening, and we anticipate nothing but co-operation all the way along the line, so far as enforcing the law is concerned. It is a good law, and the people favor it, hence there is not likely to be a very great deal of real trouble in enforcing it in any season."

Swift & Company U. S. A.

State. It generally is agreed that this law is a good one, and its success is assured, if only the right sort of men are put on the jobs of enforcing it in the counties.

The Macon Telegraph, in Monday's issue, sums up the average editorial view entertained by the press of Georgia, when it says: "The law is probably the most important act of the Legislature in a generation. It fills a crying need, and will be of incalculable use IF CAPABLE MEN ARE PUT ON THE BOARD OF TAX ASSESSORS. And this is a question which is up to the County Commissioners in the 148 Georgia counties. These assessors must be freshholdings and shall not receive less than $2 a day while actually at work. This work will not last long. There is no limit to the amount that may be paid. It can be $5 or $7 a day, if it will require that much to get good men. With good and competent men on the board of assessors the law will prove a great blessing. If it is badly managed it will prove a distressing failure, and a clamor for its repeal will come up from all over the State. The possibilities for wonderful good in this new law are great. The converse of that proposition is lamentably dangerous. The law will be a great success or a great failure. It all depends on the kind and character of men selected for its enforcement by the several Board of County Commissioners. Those selections, if not already made, must be made soon."

The resignation of Judge Thomas A. Parker, of the Waycross Circuit Superior Court, and his probable candidacy for Congress, coupled with the further entry of Senator W. L. Converse, of Lowndes, into the same race against Representative Walker, is still further complicated, it seems, by the probable shying of Grover Edmondson's hat into the ring.

Indeed, if all the "dope" given out in Congressional matters down in the Eleventh holds good, Congressman Walker is going to have plenty to keep his legs straight in the primaries next year, and seeing to it that his Congressional bonnet, as yet young in years, does not get awry.

Mr. Edmondson, whose first names, significantly enough in this Democratic year, read Grover Cleveland, is the youngest member of the present Legislature. He has just turned 23, and he hails from Brooks County, one of the most important and largest in the State.

He, with a number of Georgians from his immediate vicinity, has been over the situation, particularly with respect to the judgeship appointment in succession to Judge Parker. All of these visitors, whether supporters of Bennet or Quincy for the judgeship appointment, predict a lively time in Congressional matters next year in the Eleventh.

It is sure that Walker will run again, and it is equally sure that he will have opposition. Converse is considered a practical certainty, Parker almost as sure, and now Edmondson! The latter, asked about his probable candidacy yesterday, would not say whether he will run, but the impression he gave undoubtedly is that he will.

Miss Appleyard, Martha Home Nurse, Loses Fight for Life

Miss Edith Peil Appleyard, one of the best known social settlement workers of Atlanta, Monday afternoon lost a fight of four months against death, at the home of the Rev. A. R. Buford, No. 121 Capitol avenue. She was 41 years of age and was a trained nurse.

Miss Appleyard was closely connected with the Men and Religion Forward Movement, and even while confined to her bed by sickness she assisted in the work. After being employed at various hospitals Miss Appleyard became matron of the Agnes Scott College. Then she gave this up to take up the Men and Religion Forward Movement work. She took the position as matron of the Martha Home.

The work of Miss Appleyard was praised by Marlon Jackson, head of the Men and Religion Forward Movement. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the English Lutheran Church and interment will be at Westview Cemetery. Miss Appleyard is survived by two sisters, Miss Nellie and Miss Mary Appleyard.

Held as Blackmailer Of Rich U. S. Widow

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. MILAN, ITALY, Nov. 25.—A man known as David Chevallard, said to be a French adventurer, was arrested here to-day charged with blackmailing a rich American widow, residing in Paris.

The widow says she paid $20,000 to a confederate of Chevallard to avoid arrest over an incident which occurred in a public park. Chevallard's fellow conspirator was disguised as a gardener.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because it works so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

How to Get Money for the Holidays

What Sort of Christmas Gift Would You Give?

Here's a Chance for Men and Women Readers of The Georgian to Reap a Golden Harvest.

CHRISTMAS is coming. The great day will be here very soon. And it is none too early to begin to consider Christmas gifts.

I do not mean by Christmas gifts the useful or useless article that one friend may give to another or the gifts that a mother or father may give to their children. Santa Claus will attend to the children as he always does, in a generous way.

But how about husbands and wives? Every husband and every wife gives something to each other as a reminder of the great day.

But how many wives give a useful thing, something that the husband really needs, something that he will appreciate, something he can not do without, something that will make him know his wife was thoughtful and considered seriously her Christmas gift?

And the same may be said about husbands. Every husband gives his wife a reminder of the Christmas season. Very often they are useless and vain things. Sometimes they are expensive. Frequently they are of no value, although the cost may have been large.

It is a perplexing problem, and that is the reason I am going to offer to the husbands and wives of Atlanta an opportunity to do some serious thinking about Christmas gifts to each other.

And to stimulate this thinking I will give away some gold pieces to husbands and wives who furnish brief letters telling Georgian readers what is the most appropriate gift for the husband to give his wife, and the most appropriate gift for the wife to give her husband.

I will distribute these gold pieces as follows: To the wife who writes the best short letter telling what is the most useful gift for a husband one $10 gold piece.

Three awards of $5 each will be given the wives whose letters are adjudged the next best.

Also, I will award the same prizes to husbands who write brief letters outlining the most appropriate gift for a husband to give his wife. To the husband's letter that is adjudged the best the writer will receive a $10 gold piece. Husbands who write the three next best letters will receive, each, a $5 gold piece for their thoughtfulness.

Send your letters addressed to MARY LEA DAVIS, Editorial Department The Atlanta Georgian.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

SEE that Mister Carnegie is back from abroad & that he is very fond of the Kaiser, sed Ma last time when she was reading the paper. That makes it nice all around, sed Pa. Ever since the beginning of time, Pa sed, kings & rich men has been chummy. It always made the rich men throw out there chests, sed Pa, & it often calm in handy for the king wen the palace rent calm due. I haven't the remotest idee that the Kaiser is friends with Mr. Carnegie for any such purpose, Pa sed, bekausa he knows that if he ever tried to touch Mister Carnegie Andy wud say Hoot mon, & give him a lot of books to read. But it is nice to have prominent pepul get together & pass the time away.

DOES ALL OF HER OWN WORK

And is Glad to Do So, as She Was Denied this Privilege For Two Years.

Richmond, Ky.—Mrs. N. V. Willis, of this place, says: "I suffered for over three years with womanly trouble, and tried many different treatments, but none of them seemed to do me any good. I had almost given up to die, when a friend of mine begged me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I got a bottle, and began to feel a great deal better after the first few doses. I then got four bottles, and after taking these I was cured. "I don't know what a female pain is now, do all of my work, eat anything I want, and feel like a 16-year-old girl. "I never expect to be without Cardui in my house as long as I live, as I firmly believe it saved my life, and I will praise it to all of my suffering lady friends." Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy containing no harmful mineral products. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution. It has been relieving womanly troubles for over half a century, during which time it has proven more than ordinary value as a tonic for weak women. You can rely on Cardui. It will do for you what it has done for thousands of others. Begin taking it today.

And only be here our cup of happiness wud be full, & I suppos Andy's little Scotch caddy & the Kaiser's little German caddy got chummy, too, & told lies about how far they cud jump & how well they cud fly. & I can imagine the two grate men dining together afterwar'd & Andy giving a toast like

We two shall drink the flowing cup And toast each other's grate necks up As long as your mustache sticks up And my gray beard hangs down!

Yes, indeed, sed Pa, I know just about how the old sports passed away three time until it was time that even kings and millionairs shud go to the hay. I know just how they felt, sed Pa, bekausa I used to have just such times, as that with the Prince of Wales, only we was yunger & there was near speed attached to our sessions. It is different when men get as old as these two, Pa sed. When a man is yung he puts moor stuff on the ball, & me & the Prince was speed boys for fair. I never knew that you knew a Prince of Wales, sed Ma. You didn't know that? sed Pa. Oh, yes, we were quite friendly. I went oaver there with Tod Sloan. Pa sed, & wen he was winning all his races with my horses we naturally calm in contact with the Prince. From there we went to India, Pa sed, & was made much of by royalty. I wassent fat in them days, Pa sed, & herd a lot of peopul say that I had a kingly bearing myself. But I always sed that I wudnt talk a job as king if it was handed to me on a silver platter, so here I am, a sold citizen of America, with my wife & child around me, living back on my oars, calm & content.

I guess you are living all rite, but not back on yure oars, sed Ma. Yure brother is cunning in now, I am going to ask him. Pa's brother Henry calm in & Ma sed Henry was my deer husband ever in England? Not since I was born, sed Unkel Henry. & how old are you? sed Ma. I am two veers older than he is, sed Unkel Henry. "Why, sed Pa, dont you remember?" I was in England the time you was being entertained by the King of Sweden. "Oh, sed Unkel Henry, yes, now I remember. Of course, you remember." Bobbie, sed Ma, I am afraid yure mother married into a family wate truth was stranger than fikshun.

Up-to-Date Jokes

During a lecture a well-known authority on economics mentioned the fact that in one country the number of men was larger than that of women, and he added, humorously: "I can, therefore, recommend the ladies to emigrate to that part of the world." A young lady seated in one of the front rows got up in great indignation and was leaving the room rather noisily, whereupon the lecturer remarked: "I did not mean that it need be done in such a hurry as that."

An Englishman and an Irishman made a bet as to which could swim the longest. On the day of the race the Irishman came to the shore in a bathing suit and a large satchel on his back. The Englishman asked what he had in the bag. "Provisions for three days," coolly answered Pat. "The bet's off," said the Englishman as he handed Pat the money. A few days later he heard that Paddy could not swim a stroke.

"I don't want to appear boastful," said the artist, "but the beauty of my pictures renders people absolutely speechless." "Ho-ho!" exclaimed the weary-looking visitor. "I must bring my wife to see them."

My Own Beauty Secrets BY ANNA HELD

By Anna Held

HAVE you not often noticed how charming a plain woman manages to look if only she arranges her hair becomingly? Herein lies a bit of very deep philosophy. To arrange your hair well, you must have soft, plentiful locks. To have soft, plentiful locks you must give them plentiful care. Hair that is dank and greasy falls with a lifeless droop that is just as unbecoming as the words I have used to describe them. It arranges itself with unbecoming indifference to all your desires to arrange it. Give but half the effort that you waste on un-cared-for hair to caring for it scientifically and, even if you are a plain woman, you will soon grow from adorably plain to plainly adorable. I have a little hair drill that I practice every day. Will you follow my example, Madam?

THE DRILL. On rising I wash my scalp with water. Water bad for the hair? Mals

Miss Anna Held.

son. That is not so. Water is good for all growing things. Of course, if your hair is wet and you dress it so, it will be harmed. If you fold wet garments and lay them away they will mildew, you know. But I wash THE SCALP, and so cleanse it from dust and foreign particles that might clog its pores. First, then, wash the scalp. Feed the roots of your hair with a wee drink of water. Then, even if at first it pains you a bit, brush the hair with a stiff brush that will penetrate to the scalp. BRUSH THUS FOR TWENTY MINUTES. Brush your hair continually, constantly. Always brush it for several minutes at a time. Comb as little as possible. Stimulate the scalp. Do not irritate it. Now perform the rest of your toilet with your hair hanging loosely, open to the air. If you can, sit at a sunny window for ten minutes each morning. Water, air, sunshine—all in moderation—are the best, because the most natural, tonics for the hair. If your hair is very dry, buy some simple oil—olive oil, oil of coconut, crude oil, or even vaseline will do. Part the hair carefully when you apply oil, so that the scalp may be fed, but the hair shall not be made an oily dust-collector. Never apply oil more than once a week. The hair cells are tiny and can take up but a small amount. If this is carefully applied and rubbed in once a week, and the shampoo indulged in but once a month, dry hair should soon have a natural gloss and lustre and new life, too. If you are a victim of dandruff, apply this simple tonic three times a week: Four ounces imported bay rum, ten grains of quinine and one tablespoonful of witch hazel. Apply with a medicine dropper and rub well into the scalp. One night a week wipe off the scalp with absorbent cotton dipped in warm witch hazel. The dandruff persists consult a reliable hair specialist. If your scalp is diseased you must have the germ of sickness killed. A SHAMPOO. For healthy hair I recommend a fortnightly shampoo. And be sure that occasionally just before your shampoo you have the split and broken ends of your hair singed or cut. It makes little difference which—for I am trusting that you are above the superstition of our bourgeoisie. Not train your hair to fall in a CONSTANT CURVE. In hair as in dress the unbroken line is always prettiest. Of course you will not dye your hair. Nature sends snow in winter.

"Well, I had to keep her quiet, you know. As it was, she suspected me. I suppose my messages hadn't the proper ring in them. And—what the deuce is a Blue Atom?"

Dr. Seath was even more interested than he. "Blue Atom? Blue Atom is a nobler specimen of a dog than yourself. He is a prize toy Pomeranian. You are a mongrel!"

Greiner, for an instant, grew confused again. He sighed deeply. "A dog?" he murmured. "A blue Pomeranian? Who would have guessed it?" Philip turned to Mason.

"If I leave you alone with this man, Greiner, will you keep him out of mischief?"

Jockey gave his associate a glance which caused that worthy to sit down suddenly. "And yourself? Promise that she will remain as you are until I return?" "I promise."

Philip's Plan. Anson led his friends from the room. He thanked the manager for the assistance he had given, and told him the affair might be arranged without police interference.

Long and earnestly did he confer with Mr. Abingdon. It was a serious thing to let these men off scot free. Greiner's case was worse, in a sense, than that of Mason.

There were three banks involved, and forgery, to a bank, is a crime not to be forgiven. There was a dubious way out. Philip might accept responsibility for Greiner's signature for his. Surely the local institutions would accept his for Greiner's.

Mr. Abingdon was wroth at the bare suggestion. "You will be forging your own name," he protested, vehemently. "Very well, then. I shall write checks payable to self or order, endorse them, and I will pay them into my account."

"I dare not approve of any such procedure." So Philip, though sorely tried, again labored his arguments that the trial of Greiner would be a cause celebre in which his (Anson's) name would be unpleasantly prominent. Evelyn would be drawn into it, and Abingdon himself. There would be columns of sensation in the newspapers.

Moreover, it was quite certain that Jockey Anson would commit suicide unless they captured him by a subterfuge, and then the whole story would leak out.

It ended by Philip gaining the day, for at the bottom of his heart Abingdon was touched by Mason's story, thorough-paced ruffian though he was.

They re-entered No. 41. The pair were sitting as they were left. Greiner was not even smoking. The affair of the Blue Atom had deeply wounded his vanity.

Philip walked straight to Mason and took him by the shoulder. "Now, listen to me," he said. "I gave you one crack on the head, and you have given me one. Shall we say that accounts are squared?"

"Do you mean it, sir?" "Yes, absolutely." "Then all I can say is this, sir. During the rest of my life I'll make good use of the chance you have given me. God bless you, for my boy's sake, more than my own."

"And you," went on Philip, turning to the disconsolate Greiner. "Will you leave England and make a fresh start in a new land? You are young enough, and clever enough, in some respects, to earn an honest living."

"I will, sir. I swear it." The utter collapse of his castle in Spain had sobered him. The gates of Portland were yawning open for him, and the goodness of the man he had wronged had closed them in his face. Never again would he see their grim front if he could help it.

He readily gave every assistance in the brief investigation that followed. Mr. Abingdon looked on as chance as he wrote checks for three thousand pounds and five hundred pounds on the York and Leeds banks respectively, but even Philip himself gave an astonished laugh when he saw his own signature written with quiet certainty and accuracy.

Do You Know That

At the wedding of Henry Aubrey, an ex-servant of the Royal Household, at Seamer, near Scarborough, the old custom was observed of breaking a plate over the head of the bride on entering the church.

Four brothers, named Max, Herbert, Berthold and Richard Klingenstein, attended a family gathering at Basel, Switzerland, wearing the French, German, Italian and Swiss uniforms, having enlisted in the armies of the four respective nations.

"But you will marry me, Kitty?" "Marry you?"

Kitty turned so that she faced him, so that she was looking into the glowing eyes of her young lover.

"Kitty May marry Charles Nelson's son? I'd like to do it, but I can't. I haven't got the nerve."

"Why? I love you, dear." Reason enough, this love of his, for anything, thought the undisciplined boy.

But discipline and nature, the silent dispenser thereof, waited.

"Reasons enough. One of them is we couldn't live. You couldn't earn $10 a week, and your mother wouldn't stand for me."

"She would! She will, when she knows you, when she finds out all about you."

When Emily Nelson found out all about Kitty May? Kitty knew well what that day would mean, for Emily Nelson knew bitterly much about Kitty Claire.

She answered a bit wearily. This thing was getting unpleasant. It was beginning to hurt her. She had never meant to hurt herself—only to get Charles Nelson.

"I guess not, Ken. She wouldn't stand for me if I had always been a good girl—and she'd soon find out—that I have not."

Kitty's voice trailed off wearily, hopelessly. Kenneth cried out in horror.

"What are you saying? Kitty! My God! Kitty! Why did you say that?" He arose, with blighting fear coming for a moment to his eyes—and then he banished it somehow—hope that he had not heard aright. This thing could not be—Kitty—the girl he loved—the girl he wanted—Kitty—his little, sweet, helpless Kitty.

"I said it because it's true—and I'm tired of lying. You asked me to marry you. I had to tell you why I couldn't. That's the reason."

So Kitty May's second supreme moment came to her. Honest, when a "he would have given her what she had fought so hard to gain. Honest, when honesty hurt so much. Honest, when "it's better to lie a little than to be unhappy much" perhaps the Angel of Records heard her—and marked one page in white—in shining white—to offset the heavy crimson debt of Kitty Claire.

Keneth sank heavily to the couch and buried horrified eyes in trembling hands. This thing should not, could not, must not be. Soon he would wake—as he had always waked from bad dreams when he was a little boy.

"I don't believe it," he gasped from a dry and aching throat that would scarcely express his words.

For the moment Kitty Claire was perfectly honest. There was no stage affect of remorse in her tone—just real regret—just real pain.

"You're a dear boy. I'm almost sorry I ever knew you." It was true. Kenneth felt now that it was absolutely, horribly, bitterly true. He crunched in pain, waiting his next blow.

"Well, I had to keep her quiet, you know. As it was, she suspected me. I suppose my messages hadn't the proper ring in them. And—what the deuce is a Blue Atom?"

Dr. Seath was even more interested than he. "Blue Atom? Blue Atom is a nobler specimen of a dog than yourself. He is a prize toy Pomeranian. You are a mongrel!"

Greiner, for an instant, grew confused again. He sighed deeply. "A dog?" he murmured. "A blue Pomeranian? Who would have guessed it?" Philip turned to Mason.

"If I leave you alone with this man, Greiner, will you keep him out of mischief?"

Jockey gave his associate a glance which caused that worthy to sit down suddenly. "And yourself? Promise that she will remain as you are until I return?" "I promise."

Philip's Plan. Anson led his friends from the room. He thanked the manager for the assistance he had given, and told him the affair might be arranged without police interference.

Long and earnestly did he confer with Mr. Abingdon. It was a serious thing to let these men off scot free. Greiner's case was worse, in a sense, than that of Mason.

There were three banks involved, and forgery, to a bank, is a crime not to be forgiven. There was a dubious way out. Philip might accept responsibility for Greiner's signature for his. Surely the local institutions would accept his for Greiner's.

Mr. Abingdon was wroth at the bare suggestion. "You will be forging your own name," he protested, vehemently. "Very well, then. I shall write checks payable to self or order, endorse them, and I will pay them into my account."

"I dare not approve of any such procedure." So Philip, though sorely tried, again labored his arguments that the trial of Greiner would be a cause celebre in which his (Anson's) name would be unpleasantly prominent. Evelyn would be drawn into it, and Abingdon himself. There would be columns of sensation in the newspapers.

Moreover, it was quite certain that Jockey Anson would commit suicide unless they captured him by a subterfuge, and then the whole story would leak out.

It ended by Philip gaining the day, for at the bottom of his heart Abingdon was touched by Mason's story, thorough-paced ruffian though he was.

They re-entered No. 41. The pair were sitting as they were left. Greiner was not even smoking. The affair of the Blue Atom had deeply wounded his vanity.

Philip walked straight to Mason and took him by the shoulder. "Now, listen to me," he said. "I gave you one crack on the head, and you have given me one. Shall we say that accounts are squared?"

"Do you mean it, sir?" "Yes, absolutely." "Then all I can say is this, sir. During the rest of my life I'll make good use of the chance you have given me. God bless you, for my boy's sake, more than my own."

"And you," went on Philip, turning to the disconsolate Greiner. "Will you leave England and make a fresh start in a new land? You are young enough, and clever enough, in some respects, to earn an honest living."

"I will, sir. I swear it." The utter collapse of his castle in Spain had sobered him. The gates of Portland were yawning open for him, and the goodness of the man he had wronged had closed them in his face. Never again would he see their grim front if he could help it.

He readily gave every assistance in the brief investigation that followed. Mr. Abingdon looked on as chance as he wrote checks for three thousand pounds and five hundred pounds on the York and Leeds banks respectively, but even Philip himself gave an astonished laugh when he saw his own signature written with quiet certainty and accuracy.

"But you will marry me, Kitty?" "Marry you?"

Kitty turned so that she faced him, so that she was looking into the glowing eyes of her young lover.

"Kitty May marry Charles Nelson's son? I'd like to do it, but I can't. I haven't got the nerve."

"Why? I love you, dear." Reason enough, this love of his, for anything, thought the undisciplined boy.

But discipline and nature, the silent dispenser thereof, waited.

"Reasons enough. One of them is we couldn't live. You couldn't earn $10 a week, and your mother wouldn't stand for me."

"She would! She will, when she knows you, when she finds out all about you."

When Emily Nelson found out all about Kitty May? Kitty knew well what that day would mean, for Emily Nelson knew bitterly much about Kitty Claire.

She answered a bit wearily. This thing was getting unpleasant. It was beginning to hurt her. She had never meant to hurt herself—only to get Charles Nelson.

"I guess not, Ken. She wouldn't stand for me if I had always been a good girl—and she'd soon find out—that I have not."

Kitty's voice trailed off wearily, hopelessly. Kenneth cried out in horror.

"What are you saying? Kitty! My God! Kitty! Why did you say that?" He arose, with blighting fear coming for a moment to his eyes—and then he banished it somehow—hope that he had not heard aright. This thing could not be—Kitty—the girl he loved—the girl he wanted—Kitty—his little, sweet, helpless Kitty.

"I said it because it's true—and I'm tired of lying. You asked me to marry you. I had to tell you why I couldn't. That's the reason."

So Kitty May's second supreme moment came to her. Honest, when a "he would have given her what she had fought so hard to gain. Honest, when honesty hurt so much. Honest, when "it's better to lie a little than to be unhappy much" perhaps the Angel of Records heard her—and marked one page in white—in shining white—to offset the heavy crimson debt of Kitty Claire.

Keneth sank heavily to the couch and buried horrified eyes in trembling hands. This thing should not, could not, must not be. Soon he would wake—as he had always waked from bad dreams when he was a little boy.

"I don't believe it," he gasped from a dry and aching throat that would scarcely express his words.

For the moment Kitty Claire was perfectly honest. There was no stage affect of remorse in her tone—just real regret—just real pain.

"You're a dear boy. I'm almost sorry I ever knew you." It was true. Kenneth felt now that it was absolutely, horribly, bitterly true. He crunched in pain, waiting his next blow.

GREATEST MONSTER OF ALL CAPTURED

After Suffering From Ravages of Horrible Parasite, Little Woman Weighing Ninety-Six Pounds Expels a Tapeworm Ninety-Seven Feet Long

Mrs. J. C. Lalley, living at No. 4 Ethel street, near High, this city, is now happy. Four years ago this lady was in excellent health and weighed over 130 pounds. Later she became a weak, pale and discouraged woman, and her weight was only 26 pounds. What was the cause of the great loss? When she was seen she said: "I began to have stomach trouble about four years ago. I would bloat and belch after meals. Headache and dizziness were frequent. I would nauseate at the sight of food some-times. Again I had a ravenous appetite, often having to get up at midnight to eat. Pains in my stomach and a sickness in the back and around my sides kept me in misery. I treated for indigestion but got no relief. I kept getting weaker and thinner, until I had to stop most of my housework. I used many of the remedies, but was really worse after them. My friends told me I must have lung trouble. Four years of this suffering reduced my weight over 20 pounds. I was discouraged and thought there was no cure for me. I called at Courtesey & Munn's drug store. I explained ed my trouble, and they recommended the use of Quaker Extract. I began using it, and after four days' use felt a slight dizziness come over me, after which I expelled this horrible parasite, which is over 97 feet long. I have eaten the first meal that I can say I enjoyed in four years and feel like I have a new stomach. I will always praise the wonderful Quaker Extract."

This death-dealing monster was brought to the drug store. The several parasites brought were, in many instances, large, but this

BRICKLEY WOULD GIVE HARVARD AN EDGE ON CHICAGO

Outside of Fullback Position, Rival Teams Appear To Be Evenly Matched.

By Frank G. Menke.

JUST because the gentlemen football rule-makers failed to provide for a world's series battle between the winning football teams in the East and West, the question arises to-day: Which team is better—Harvard, the Eastern champion, or Chicago, the Western winner?

The question is one that will never be answered by a test, nor in any other satisfactory way. The persons east of the Alleghenies will tell you that Harvard is the better team. But that's because they never have seen the Chicago Maroons in action. But Western folks who have seen the wonderful Chicago aggregation trample all its rivals, but never have seen Harvard, of course, make Chicago their choice.

CHICAGO, like Harvard, went through the season without defeat. It rolled up big scores in the weaker teams that it engaged in "practice games," and then obliterated Minnesota, its rival for the championship honors. It followed this feat with a final victory of the year over Wisconsin, 19 to 0, although the Wisconsin college sent a powerful aggregation into the field.

Harvard engaged in nine combats during the season, and won them all. It rolled up 235 points against 21 for its opponents.

Those who have seen both teams in battle say that, outside the fullback position, the teams stack up nearly even in ability. Pierce, the Chicago fullback, is one of the greatest men that ever played the position, yet he does not compare with Brickley, regarded by everyone who has seen him as the peer of any fullback in the game's history.

Gray and Norgren, the Chicago backs, are a wonderful pair. They demonstrated their open-field running ability a hundred times during the past season. Both seem to be superior to Bradlee, the Harvard back, but neither is looked upon as the equal of Mahan, the clean hitting halfback of the Harvard squad.

Russell, of Chicago, and Logan, of Harvard, the rival quarterbacks, both showed wonderful generalship, and it was their brains that resulted in many of the greatest plays that resulted in victory for their teams.

HARDWICK and O'Brien, the Harvard ends, are being chosen by the Eastern critics as candidates for the all-American team. Huntington and Baumgartner, of Chicago, are given similar distinction by the Western critics. Shultz and Gortler, the Chicago tackles, made a wonderful record during the season. So did Hitchcock and Captain Storer, of Harvard. Storer stands out as superior to either of the Chicago men, but the Maroon tackles made even a better showing during the year than did Hitchcock, despite his great playing.

Scott and Harris, the Chicago guards, and Pennock and Gilman, of Harvard, were about on a par. Des Jardien, the Chicago center, however, outclassed both Trumbull and Soucy, the outstanding centers, and made a record for himself that would give him first choice on an all-American team.

GEORGE DUNCAN FASTEST PLAYER, DECLARES EVANS

He Asserts That Americans Have Learned Much by Watching English Expert's Game.

By "Chick" Evans.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—British golf publications are simply crammed with pictures and accounts of George Duncan's victorious season. One magazine has called him "the man of the year," for after a bad start in the British open, he has gone from one victory to another, giving joy to the heart of Scotland and in a measure breaking up the great triumvirate. It is true that Duncan's play fell off in the Belgian championship, for he finished fifth and lost his title, but he merely exchanged it for the French open, which he played in his very best style.

It's Up to McConnell, Now Great Stunt With 1912 Sox

By O. B. Keeler.

HERE'S the dope on Ambrose McConnell, fresh from headquarters. It has been announced duly that Atlanta was trying to get Amby for second baseman next season. There was a little misunderstanding as to whether the hitch, if any, lay with the Toronto ball club of the Eastern League, or with Amby himself.

It is not believed there is any hitch but if there is, it is not with the Toronto club. The purchase papers went forward Monday night, and Amby belongs to the Crackers.

Now it is up to Ambrose. Of course Amby may get fussy and decline to move South. People have done that before. In that event, the sale would be considerably null and void, under the existing ruling by the National Commission—and a very proper one, too.

But there is no intimation at present that Amby will pull anything like that. Amby knows this is a good town—anybody will tell Amby that it has it on Toronto four to five ways from the Jack.

Still, as has been remarked, it's up to Amby.

NOW some more dope on Ambrose. Since it looks as if he's a Cracker.

We looked up some data on Mr. McConnell's career with the White Sox, and we find it to have terminated in a blaze of glory in the Chicago city series of the fall of 1911. Just before Amby got an attack of housemaid's knee, or something like that, that beat him out of his job the next year.

HERE is part of what Amby did in the four straight games which American Leaguers licked the shatteringly Cubs that year.

Game No. 1—McConnell, batting in the lead-off position, collected two hits off Mordecai Brown, one of them producing the first run the White Sox were able to get off the three-fingered wonder, in the eighth inning. Game No. 2—McConnell was the hero of a terrific swiftest, getting four hits, one a double, in six at-bats. His batting was fearfully timely, in a game that was won, 8 to 7, and a spectacular double play, unassisted, shut off a threatening rally by the Cubs in the ninth inning.

Vanderbilt Team Has Captured Sixteen Battles From the Ever-Scrapping Tiger.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Nov. 25.—Now that the all-absorbing question of the S. I. A. The argument between the Tiger and Commodore is one of long standing. The Thanksgiving struggle will be the twenty-fifth meeting of these old foes and only six times in the past have the Tigers returned to their mountain plateau with a full meal.

SPORTING COMMENT

By Ed W. Smith.

IT is not generally known that a great general public, that takes an interest in such things, but it is a fact none the less, and freely admitted by the man most concerned in the matter, that Billy Evans, one of the best umpires in either major league, was the real force that made Johnny Kilbane champion featherweight of the world. Johnny thinks so, and perhaps Evans is a bit too modest to admit it. Here's the story as it was told to me by a close friend of Kilbane and substantiated in every way by the close friendship between the umpire and fighter.

JOHN PATRICK KILBANE was a young man around Cleveland with a reputation for being a sprightly and clever person in all that pertains to ring matters, but he hadn't made his presence felt during the first two years or so of his career, excepting as a ready opponent for his namesake, Tommy Kilbane, whom he battled four times in all. This decided the championship of Ohio battling Billy all right, but it didn't furnish more than ordinary amusement for the fight fans.

JOHN PATRICK had higher aspirations and signed for the usual worlds to conquer, but they seemed far away and he had difficulty in convincing the fight promoters that he was worth spending transportation on. So for a while the worlds seemed far away and Johnny remained in the little precincts of Ohio battling those who came within range. At last he got to Boston, and there found engagements with Bobby Tickle, who hasn't been heard of much since, and Al Belmont, a young fellow who had boxed the best of them with considerable success. Now, for the Tickle battle Johnny was handed the luscious sum of $10, and for Belmont, but little more, and by the time he had beaten both of these boys he discovered that he just about could get back to Cleveland. When he did land in the home town he was crying mad at himself and at the fighting game. Then and there he decided to renounce the whole thing and pass up boxing, get himself a job and settle down to the safe and sane if narrow and prosaic life at home.

THAT was in the early part of 1911, and Johnny went to Billy Evans, then a Cleveland sporting writer, with his troubles. Evans thought he saw tremendous possibilities in the young fighter, and in a fatherly talk tried to dissuade him from quitting. This he partially did, and a little less than a year later, in the ring at Vernon, Cal., Johnny Kilbane fought and defeated Abe Attell for the featherweight championship of the world. This title Johnny still holds and is liable to for some time to come. Johnny now is 24 years old, and undoubtedly at the very top of his ring power.

Prep League Teams Clash on Gridiron Thursday Morning

Boys' High and Tech High tie up in the final game, and also the deciding game, of the Prep League Thursday morning.

Boys' High has lost only one game so far this season, and that was against Riverside in the early part of the season. Boys' High defeated Stone Mountain and Donald Fraser by the large score of 62 to 0, while Tech High defeated the former 32 to 0 and the latter 27 to 0. Both teams defeated Georgia Military Academy 6 to 0. According to the above comparison, Boys' High should be the favorites, but it must be remembered that Tech High defeated Riverside and Louisa Grove, two of the strongest prep teams in the State.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region, it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and lousy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, remove the body's uric acid waste, else you have a backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, chances often get sore, water seals and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life-saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. —Advt.

Hair Grew 4 Inches In a Few Weeks

A St. Louis Lady Increased the Length of Her Hair Four or Five Inches in a Few Weeks With This Simple Home Recipe.

A well-known St. Louis lady, after using a simple recipe on her hair which she mixed at home, made the following statement: "Without exaggeration, my hair has grown four or five inches, and any lady or gentleman can mix it at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of boys rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the scalp two or three times a week with the tips of the fingers. It not only promotes the growth of the hair, but removes dandruff, scalp humors and prevents the hair from falling out. It darkens streaked, faded gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. These ingredients can be obtained from any drug store at very little cost and mixed at home.

SURE WAY TO END RHEUMATISM

Ease Stiff, Sore Joints and Muscles.
Makes Pains and Backache Promptly Vanish.

"Most all rheumatism is due to one cause—weak kidneys," says a noted authority. The kidneys become clogged up, get sluggish and filter or strain out only a part of the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, all the rest remains in the blood and circulates through the system, where it lodges in the joints and muscles, and causes all the trouble.

The only way to overcome this is to make your kidneys work properly. You can easily and surely do this by taking a little Croxone, which never fails to act promptly.

Croxone not only cleans out the clogged up kidneys, strengthens them and makes them active, but it neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous waste substances, and uric acid, that scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, so the kidneys can filter it from the blood and drive it out of the system.

Croxone is believed to be the most remarkable preparation ever known for the prompt relief and cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and bladder disorders. It is entirely different from other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. Relief follows the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly stiff, sore, swollen joints and muscles, rheumatic pains, and all such misery ends.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and every druggist recommends and sells it on a positive money-back guarantee. Three doses a day, for a few days, is often all that is ever needed to overcome the worst backache or most annoying urinary disorders. —Advt.

Mrs. Swift Waives Claim to $30,000 to Obtain Her Child

Relinquishing her claims to $30,000 in order to gain possession of her three-year-old daughter, Lena, Mrs. Jacques Bradley Swift, formerly an actress, has effected a settlement with her husband, Charles T. Swift, a prominent Atlanta society man, of what promised to be a bitter court struggle.

The agreement was placed on file Tuesday afternoon. It throws out of court the habeas corpus and injunction suit brought September 22 by Swift's attorneys and the bill by which Swift attempted to get the child from possession of his former wife and place her in the custody of his mother, Mrs. Lena Swift Huntley of this city.

Mrs. Swift got a divorce from her husband April 1, 1912, on a petition which charged statutory offenses.

"Pape's Diapepsin" Settles Sour,
Gassy Stomachs in Five Minutes—Time It!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief. Its harmlessness, its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs, its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach troubles have made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if any one should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eruptions of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Advt.

Weak Lungs Often Lead to Serious Illness

If you have weak lungs, you are generally subject to colds or throat trouble and easily susceptible to serious Lung Trouble. In many cases pneumonia or bronchial troubles leave the lungs in a much weakened condition. Kofman's Altitative is a medicine for the throat and lungs which has been found to be very beneficial, even when a change of climate and other treatments failed to bring relief. Read of this case—

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. As I had begun to raise sprouts, and my physician told me to go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Kofman's Altitative. I stayed at home and continued taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Kofman's Altitative too highly."

Kofman's Altitative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Asthma, Stomach Colds and in supporting the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by all Jacobson Drug Stores and other leading druggists. Write The Kofman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for full telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

C., Nov. 25.—At a special session of the Spartanburg grand jury three more men were included in the list of those indicted for implication in the attack and alleged dynamiting of the jail here August 18. They are Sam Ford, O. M. Thigpen and Wik Hinnicutt. Warrants have been issued for their arrest.

The list now includes seven men, three of whom surrendered and were released on bail.

Millionaire Deering, Ill in Miami, Better

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—James Deering, son of William Deering, retired millionaire president of the Deering Harvester Company, is on his way South to see his father, who is ill in Miami, Fla. The condition of the manufacturer is reported improved.

The elder Mr. Deering is 84 years old. He has been in a wheel chair since his arrival in Florida. He is attended by his wife and his son, Charles.

Women Win Contest For Monument Site

WILMINGTON, N. C., Nov. 25.—Daughters of the Confederacy in Burgaw won out over business men of that place in a spirited contest over the location of a monument to be erected to the Confederacy.

The fight was carried into the courts, and Judge Rountree decided in favor of the U. D. C. There was an array of counsel on both sides.

Hospital Patients Carried From Fire

SELMA, Ala., Nov. 25.—When fire started on the roof of the Union Street Hospital here to-day firemen of the East Selma and Central fire stations responded and carried all the patients to safety on a lower floor.

Damage to the building was $2,500, covered by insurance.

Postoffice Safe at Douglasville Blown

DOUGLASVILLE, Nov. 25.—The safe in the Douglasville postoffice was blown open to-day. The safe was wrecked and the building damaged, but the burglars did not secure any money, except a small amount in the cash drawer.

The California Limited

All-Steel Pullmans

Newly equipped with all-steel Pullmans, and is exclusively for first-class travel

Take that California outing this season. Play golf, and auto on royal highways. Stay at luxurious resort hotels. Visit the old missions. All the joys of outdoor life are possible here in mid-winter. On the way, stop at Grand Canyon of Arizona.

The California Limited is an all-steel Pullman train, exclusively for first-class travel. Runs daily between Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles, San Diego, Oakland and San Francisco, with Pullman for Grand Canyon. Fred Harvey dining-car meals are served.

Four other Santa Fe trains to California. Three run daily; these carry standard Pullmans, tourist sleepers and chair cars; all classes of tickets honored.

The Santa Fe de-Luxe, between Chicago, Kansas City and Los Angeles, runs once a week in winter; America's finest train—"extra fast, extra fine, extra fare."

The only railroad under one management through to California; double-tracked half way; safety block-signals "all the way."

PEPSIN GUM

THE FLAVOR
LASTS

CAUTION!

The great popularity of the clean, pure, healthful WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT is causing unscrupulous persons to wrap rank imitations that are not even real chewing gum so they resemble genuine WRIGLEY'S. The better class of stores will not try to fool you with these imitations. They will be offered to you principally by street fakirs, peddlers and the candy departments of some 5 and 10 cent stores. These rank imitations cost dealers one cent a package or even less and are sold to careless people for almost any price. If you want Wrigley's look before you buy. Get what you pay for. Be SURE it's WRIGLEY'S.

We are inserting the above caution solely to protect our customers, who are continually writing us that they have been deceived by imitations which they purchased thinking they were Wrigley's.

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN

Published by THE GEORGIAN COMPANY At 20 East Alabama St. Atlanta, Ga.

How to Put Money in Your Pockets--Who Wants To?

Every Thousand Increase in Atlanta's Population Means $2,346,246 of New Money in Circulation.

Everywhere Atlanta is regarded as one of the fastest growing cities of the country.

To-day no city of its proportions in the United States offers finer inducements to home seekers and manufacturers.

But have you any idea regarding the real growth of Atlanta? Do you know in dollars and cents what every 1,000 new citizens means to the city?

The United States census reports indicate that the sum of the gain to Atlanta is $2,346,246 increase in business for every added 1,000 to the city's population.

These figures are inspiring, to say the least. The method of computation, based on the census reports, is illustrated in the following, showing the increase in the butcher trade:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Wholesale dealer $18,480, Retail dealer $33,960.

New money in circulation $52,440

That is, for every 1,000 increase in the population of Atlanta there will be a sale of $33,960 worth of meat at retail and of $18,480 at wholesale, putting into circulation $52,440 in all.

Another summary may be given:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Building construction $37,000, Commerce, exports and imports $35,000, Electric light and power 2,020, Express 1,590, Gas, illuminating and heating (manufacturing price) 1,810.

To show that the figures are conservative, the estimate for hat sales is given:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Wholesale dealer $ 902, Retail dealer 1,804.

New money in circulation $2,706

At that figure, it is estimated that the average expenditure for hats of each of the new 1,000 would be $1.80 a head, which is small enough annual allowance for anyone.

A criticism might be made that the totals included in "new money in circulation" do not all come from the new residents and that the amount received by the wholesaler has already been included in the receipts of the retailer.

Put YOUR shoulder to the wheel. Boost for all you are worth. Help to bring new population. It means money in your pocket!

Un-American Calmness

An esteemed contemporary declares that President Wilson in face of the defiance of Huerta and the rebuff of Carranza remains "quite calm."

Surely an amazing if not altogether admirable calmness. President Huerta has torn up some half-dozen absolute ultimatums and metaphorically flipped them in the face of President Wilson's envoy.

General Carranza has insolently informed President Wilson that he wants none of the United States support—evidently preferring to continue murdering his helpless prisoners without accepting President Wilson's amiable proffers of assistance.

The people of the United States are humiliated and the office of the Presidency is humbled, but President Wilson remains "quite calm."

There are other American citizens of less importance and more patriotism who are not quite so "calm."

The families of the American men who have been murdered in Mexico are not "calm."

The husbands and fathers of American women who have been subjected to insult and infamy in Mexico are not "calm."

The weaker American citizens in Mexico who have been disregarded by their own Government and despoiled and derided by the Mexican marauders are not "calm."

Neither are their fellow citizens in this country "calm," provided they possess a spark of human sympathy or a grain of patriotic sentiment.

Many ordinarily calm American citizens are beginning to feel quite intensely that the country would be better off if it had a President with less self-control and more self-respect.

MONEY FOR SALARIES

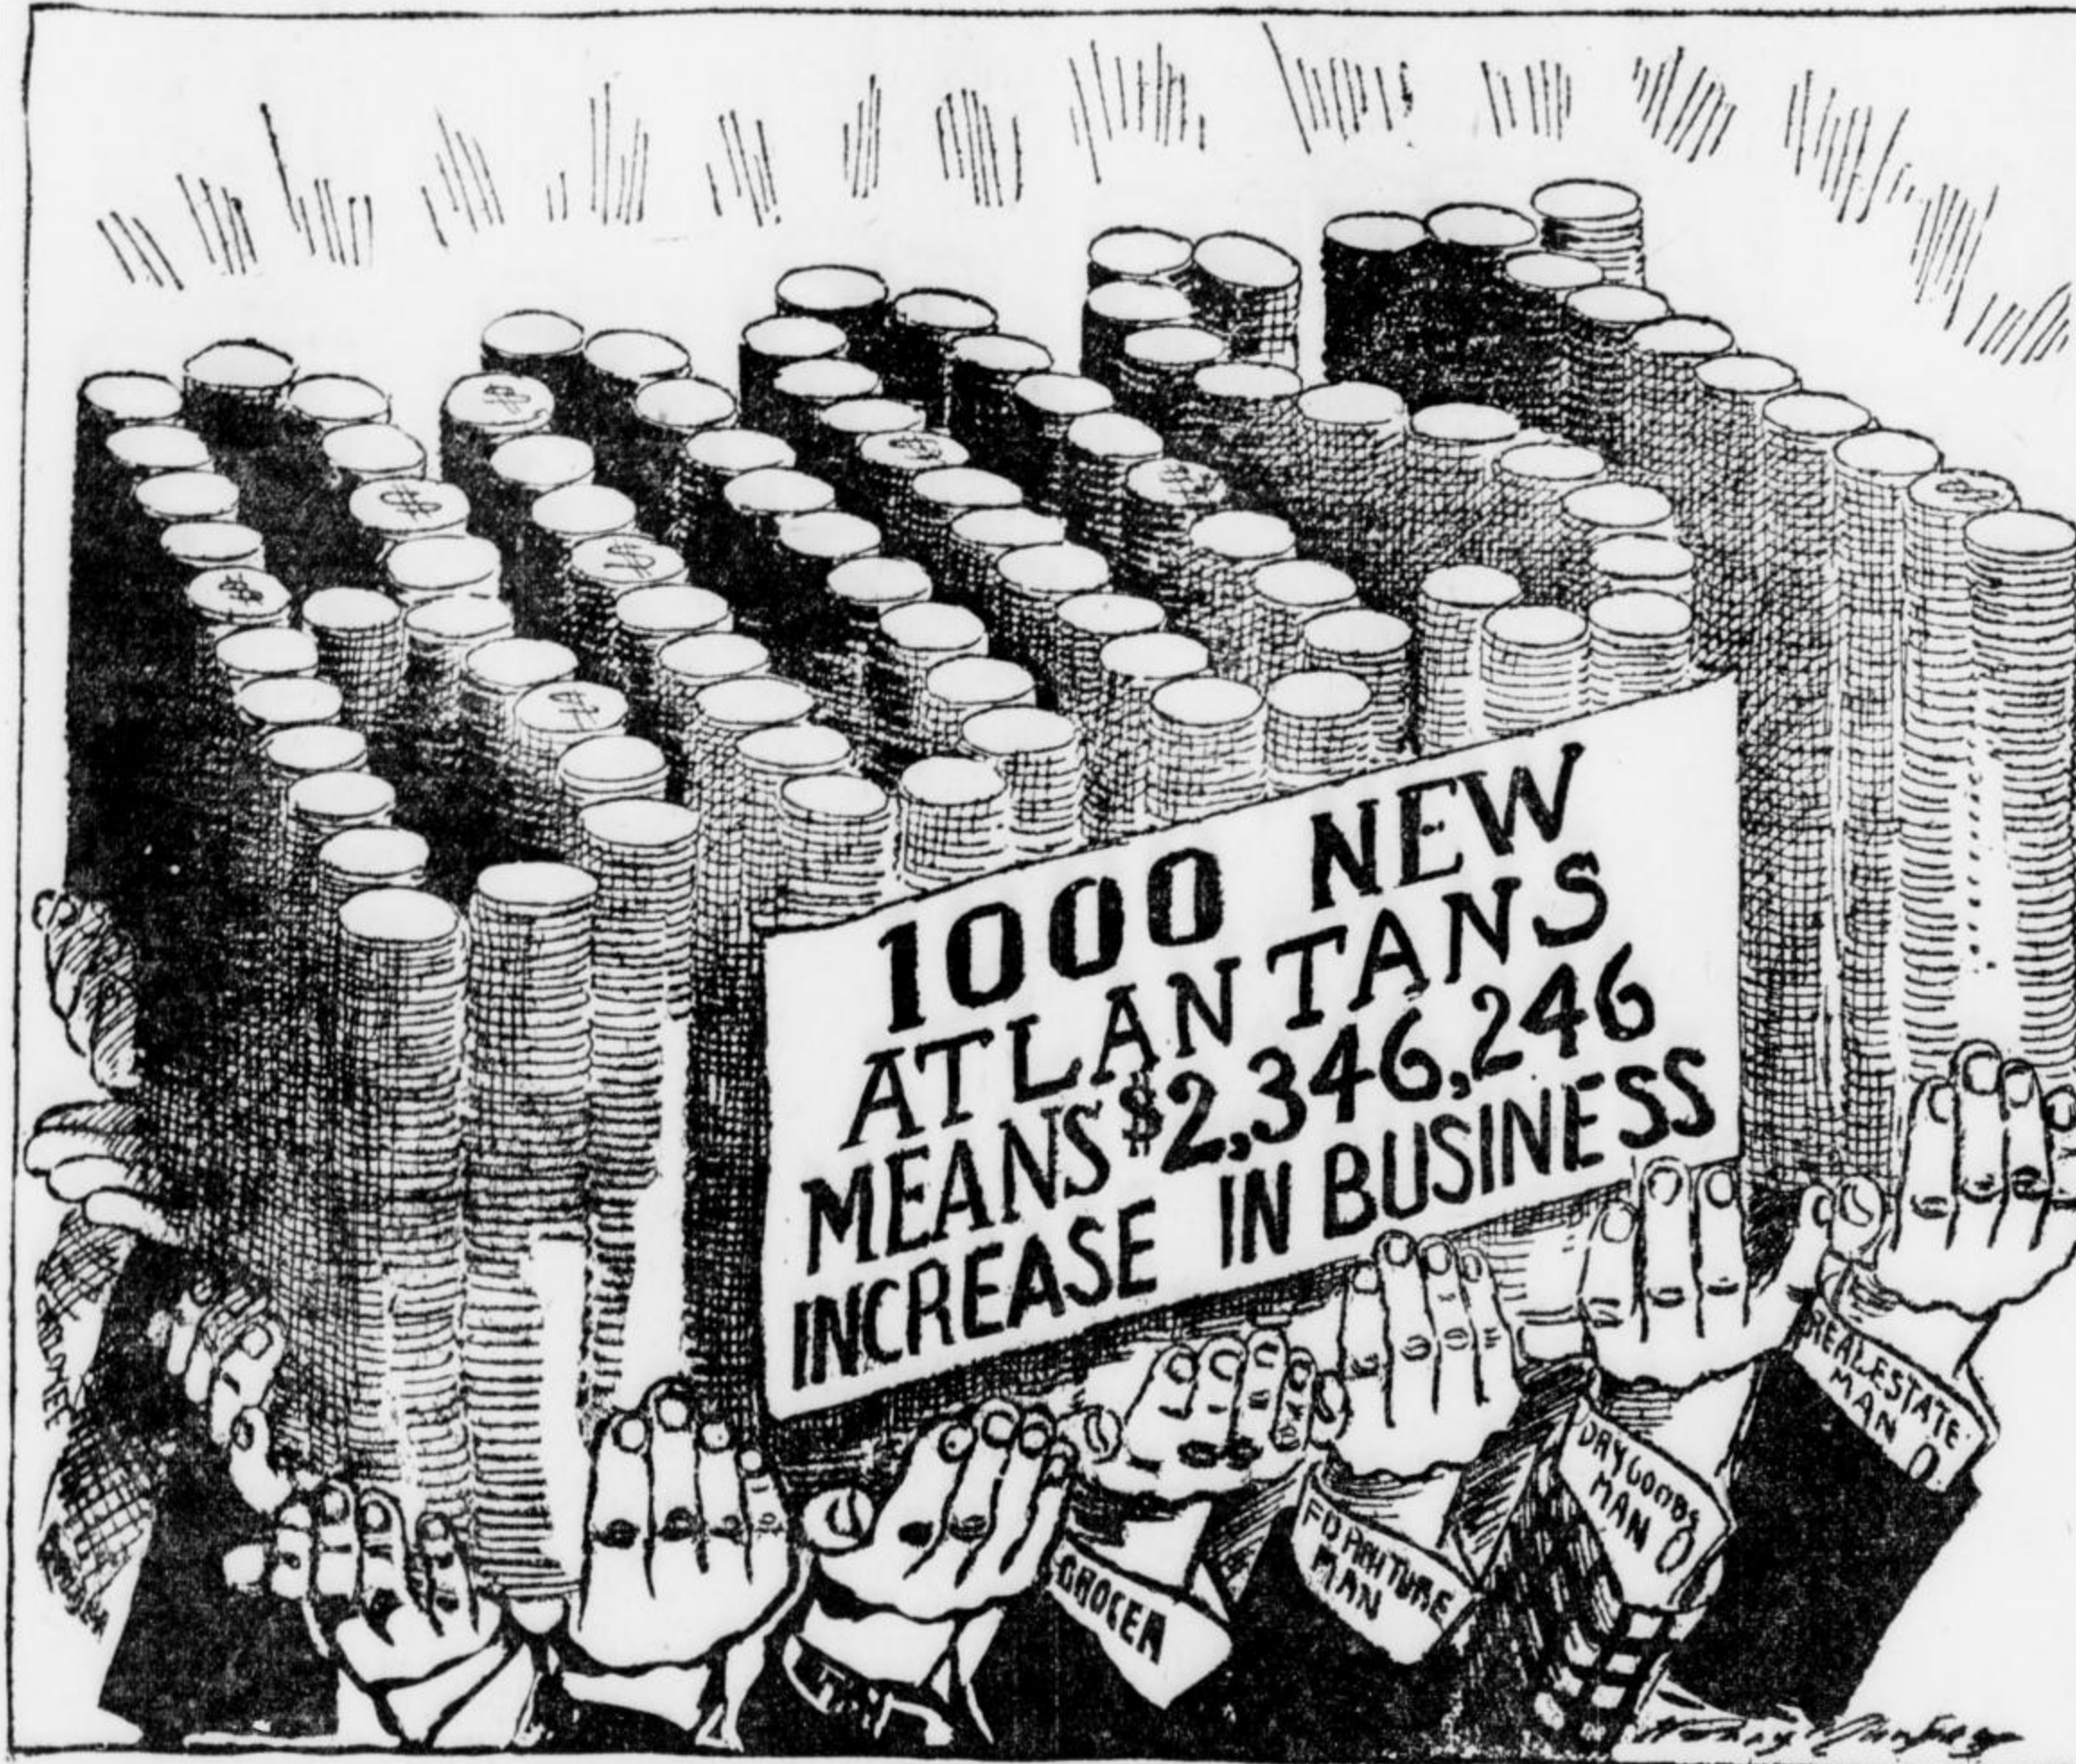

Editor The Georgian: Many citizens of Georgia will agree with your recently expressed editorial views about increasing the salaries of the Judges of our Superior Courts, and if the new tax equalization statute shall operate within the next few years to produce adequate revenue to the State Treasury, the increase of such salaries can be made.

But the growth of all our public institutions in Georgia, as population and industries increase will demand an increase of expenditures in every branch and item of the whole civil establishment.

As Georgia has no "reserved public lands" like Texas and all of the "admitted States" leased out for "school purposes," and has only one source of income independent of public taxation of all kinds, namely, her Western and Atlantic Railroad, would it not be wise policy, looking to the future, to multiply its producing power by extending this railway to our Atlantic coast by or before the year 1920? The record of the revenue-producing power of this railroad, looking back no farther than the past 43 years, shows that it has brought more than $15,000,000 to the State Treasury with no more trouble and expense than talking about it, passing two legislative acts and executing two leases. And if you will balance this sum against the aggregate of all the salaries of all the judges and solicitors, together with the salaries of all the Governors and every other "Statehouse officer," together with the pay of every member of both houses of every General Assembly for all those 43 years, you will find that this railroad has more than defrayed all the expense of Georgia for making all her laws and superintending their enforcement. Something for All Hands

Helping Those Who Need Help

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

HERE and there are human beings so utterly ill or so depraved they must be sent away to the hospital or to the correcting institution for a time. But only the very ill and the very depraved should be so treated.

It is, of course, an easy way for the indolent-minded man and woman to escape further responsibility toward their erring or alluring kind to bundle them off to some institution and pay their board by subscription or tax.

But it is not the highest ideal of Christianity or humanitarianism.

Many an ailing person could be helped quickly and positively into health if taken into the fresh air, with cheerful surroundings, and given the bright, happy companionship of those dear and near, and many such are driven into melancholia and prolonged sickness by being shut in hospital wards where only sights, sounds and thoughts of illness and death enter.

No more dreadful place can be imagined for the reformation of a woman who has made a misstep than an institution where all the inmates are women of her own class and where all the thoughts rising from all the minds under one roof are thoughts of remorse, regret, sorrow, shame, despondency, or rebellion and revenge.

Sickness, disease, immorality, sin are unnatural conditions. Health and morality are normal states.

One who keeps himself in good health and obeys all the laws of nature can be exposed to all sorts of contagious maladies and not contract them, while he can give health and vital force to the weak by his presence. This is occurring daily where nurses maintain perfect health in caring for the sick.

Good people who are really "good" (clean in their secret thoughts and acts, and filled with high aspirations) should have no fear of being contaminated by the presence in their midst of some unfortunate sister or brother who has made a misstep in the road of life and fallen into the dust.

They should be so strong in their own morality, so broad in their ideas of usefulness, so sympathetic in their understanding of human weaknesses, that their influence acts as a tonic on others who are near them.

The trained nurse does not fly from the presence of sickness with fear of contagion.

The trained moralist has no right to call himself or herself a good individual who is afraid to be in the neighborhood of some fellow being who has erred.

Darkness goes out of a room when we let in light. Cold is banished by introducing heat.

Wrong thinking goes out of brains when right thinking is substituted. The time must come when all wrongdoers will be taken into the close companionship of right thinkers and will be given constructive work to do, and when every moment of time will be occupied with wholesome and uplifting tasks and studies until the whole mental structure is remade and new morality cells awakened, and the evil cells atrophy for lack of exercise.

This can never be done while unfortunates are herded together. It can only be done when our present order of Christianity is changed to a system of BROTHERHOOD.

The Iron Horse in India

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

THE first railroad in India was opened just 60 years ago. Over the subjects of the Moguls and the Rajahs the remorseless Car of Juggernaut had rolled and crunched for countless generations, and now, at last, had come the Czar of Progress, drawn not by lazy bullocks, but by the mighty though invisible power of steam, and destined to completely sidetrack Juggernaut and all the superstition and cruelty for which he had so long stood.

Then the vast Indian land, with its venerable past, its teeming millions of people, its cloud-piercing mountains and majestic rivers, its ancient philosophies and hoary religious cults, its marvellous forests and jungles, its wealth of animal forms, and its innumerable royalties with their barbaric gold and pearl, there is not upon all the earth a more interesting region.

And the wonder only grows when one stops to think that this stupendous empire is governed by a few thousand Englishmen!

For 150 years the little handful of Anglo-Saxons have impressed their will upon the mighty mass of Asiatic humanity, and with a few trifling exceptions, no attempt has been made by 250,000 to stay the conqueror's hand or "say unto him, 'What doest thou?'"

It is one of the most astounding miracles that is made known to us in the whole course of history, and perhaps affords us the most striking instance known of the omnipotence of will power and moral courage. To the student of psychology there is a perennial interest in the subject of British rule in India—why it is, and how it is, that the little corporal's guard of Englishmen living in the midst of the millions of Orientals are able to maintain their splendid sovereignty over them!

And equally wonderful is the fact that the railways, of which there are now thousands of miles in India, do not seem to make any difference with the security of the Englishman's grip.

Comment on Frank Case

Editor The Georgian:

I herewith inclose a communication for publication, if you see fit to accept same. There is really some doubt in my mind as to whether you will publish this article for the reason that I have failed to see a single article in your paper defending this court trial of Leo Frank. However, I am going to assume that you will be fair enough to allow both sides of the case to be presented to your readers. I have been a constant reader of your paper practically from its first issue, a good many things have been published in your paper that I heartily approve of, and I refer more particularly to some of your editorials, and, on the other hand, quite a few editorials that I did not approve of, but I am fair and will always pick out the best and leave out the others.

Very truly yours, W. D. BEWLEY, Anderson, S. C.

Editor The Georgian:

In a recent issue of your paper I note an article by Mr. Simon Wolf, of Washington, D. C., "A Comment on the Frank Case." I should like to offer a few reflections touching this case and a criticism or so on this article of Mr. Wolf's.

First, as touching the opinion of Judge Roan, whether it is discreet or indiscreet on the part of the presiding judge to express an opinion on a jury trial has nothing to do with the verdict of the jury. If the opinion of the judge as to the guilt or innocence of the accused should cut any figure with the jury in their finding a verdict, then by virtue of that fact, the judge has overstepped his prerogative and robbed the jury of their rights under the law. In making this statement of course we refer to the passing on the facts in the case. The judge has nothing more to do with the facts in a criminal case as given to the jury than a spectator in the courtroom.

been said touching Leo Frank's nationality, and because he was a Jew there was a prejudice existing against him. I feel sure that such a statement is utterly untrue, and many who have made such a charge know it to be untrue.

Again, Mr. Simon Wolf makes this remarkable statement: "And in the case of Frank there can no longer be any question but that reasonable doubt was denied him, and that the spirit that pervaded the courtroom during the trial was anything but orderly or civilized." Upon what assumption, we would like to ask, does Mr. Wolf draw the remarkable conclusion that Frank was denied the "reasonable doubt"? The fact is, Frank was given the benefit of the "reasonable doubt" if we are disposed to believe what the twelve jurors say. He, not only misstates the facts in this regard, but he reflects upon every one of those twelve jurors. They swore they would give the prisoner the benefit of any "reasonable doubt" and logically they did so for each juror had to pass that dead line, so to speak, before they could write a unanimous verdict of guilty.

Then, again, this sage of Washington, D. C., makes the further reflection that the "spirit that pervaded the courtroom during the trial was anything but orderly or civilized." Does he suppose the people of Georgia and elsewhere will swallow any such statement? The writer happened to be in Atlanta during most of the trial and was in the courtroom, and we assert that we have never witnessed a more orderly trial. It seems that some newspapers have just thrown down the fences, and allowed almost libelous articles to be published against Judge Roan, Solicitor and the people of Georgia as touching this Frank case.

The Law of Paradox

It Doesn't Much Matter What Your Condition in Life Is, He Says, All Things Are Equalized.

By ELBERT HUBBARD

WALKING through the gallery of statuary of the Luxembourg I saw the white, carved nude figure of a man—a man in all the splendid strength of youth.

Standing behind him on a higher part of the pedestal was the form of a woman; and this woman was leaning over, her face turned toward him and her lips about to be pressed upon his.

I moved closer and to one side, and saw that on the face of the youth was an expression of deathly agony, and then I noted that the muscles of that splendid body were tense with awful pain.

And in that one glance I saw that the woman's body was the body of a tigress—that only her face was beautiful—and that the arms ended in claws that were digging into the vitals of the man as she drew his face to hers.

Suddenly feeling the need of fresh air, I turned and went out upon the street.

That piece of statuary gave Philip-Burne Jones the suggestion for his painting, "The Vampire."

Played and Helped.

Now, one might suppose from that awful sermon in stone that woman was the cause of man's undoing. But for the benefit of henpecked and misunderstood husbands I'll call attention to the fact that the men who have achieved most in literature, music, painting and philosophy are men who knew from sad experience the sharpness of woman's claws—Socrates, Dante, Shakespeare, Rousseau, Milton, Wagner, Paganini, and so many more that were it to name them all the world would not be large enough to contain the books in which they are printed.

Of course, I'll admit that the men who have been flayed by women have usually been greatly helped by women, and this sometimes accounts for the flaying. But the point that I make is that all experience is good—the law of compensation never rests, and the stagnation of a dead-level "happy married life" may not be any more to a strong man's advantage than a long course of stupid misunderstanding.

Not Power to Ruin.

Milton bewailed the fact that he could get freedom from marital woes on no less ignoble grounds than violating his marriage vows.

Milton did not get his freedom. His wife sat on him, silent and insensate, and so did her whole family of seven persons. Her father and mother, her sister and brother, and all the family were there. And his sharp cry made him the butt of gibes and jeers innumerable.

Milton was an obscure school-teacher and clerk; but if any of those great men who sought to humiliate and defeat him are mentioned nowadays in history it is only to say "they lived in the age of Milton."

"His life ruined by a woman"—pish! You flatter her; she hasn't the power.

And the end of the whole matter, brother, is, it doesn't much matter what your condition in life is, all things are equalized. Even pain, grief and loss are good, if you are big enough to take your medicine. When the prophet said, "God is good, and His mercy endureth from everlasting to everlasting," he certainly understood himself.

Our Ancient Beliefs

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN.

WOULD you not really wish to know of the origin of nearly all you think, say and believe?

Then turn up with pick and spade and modern dredgers and excavators a strip entirely around the Mediterranean Sea, at least ten miles wide and in some places from twenty to thirty. And dredge out the bottom of the sea a mile from shore in several instances.

And in the Eastern Libyan desert go raise submerged cities and temples of the long ago. And let the sun shine into primitive adyta. Let every page of that huge mass, so long admired as classic mythology, be freed from accretions and turned to history. Would we be pleased to dig down into many libraries entire rooms filled with inscribed steles, tiles, tablets, plates and cylinders in burned clay and on stone walls, sepulchers, sarcophagi, obelisk and pillar?

Nations and races once lived around and about the Mediterranean whose names are lost or transformed into other names of archaic terminology. Dredge the bottom of Lake Moeris, in Egypt; excavate the labyrinth of Arsinoe, in Egypt; the labyrinths of Crete and Lemnos. Dredge the bottom of the Gulf of Tunis. Upturn Southern Italy and quadruple excavations in Greece and Thrace. Clear Asia Minor to Tadmor and Palmyra and strip Palestine to the original rocks.

"At Cannatello, near Girgenti, I discovered a Minoan sanctuary. I had discovered a sacred place among the hut foundations within prehistoric villages; the libation table was in its place upon a layer of gravel. Near the sanctuary were pavements of the cells of the priestesses who performed the rights of Minoan religion as in the sanctuaries of Paestum and Knossos, where there were three rooms together. Now, the Minoan was a civilization so ancient that the Aryan is comparatively modern."—"Dawn of Mediterranean Civilization," by Angelo Mozzo, p. 342.

Here is, then, an altar of the oldest cult and belief in Europe. And it is as old as the oldest Asiatic or Egyptian. But many of our beliefs came from just such shrines as these. The inscriptions and symbols are priceless and their translation into modern languages fascinating indeed. They reveal the workings of the mind that is in man when he was beginning to think.

Go dig up Eridu, excavate white cities and whiter temples, pillars, shrines and altars, from Babylon even down all along Eastern Arabia, all made land, to the Persian Gulf. And clear away 120 miles of river deposit. For the silt has filled each cut inscription and preserved each letter intact. A literary mine is now saved in the silt of the Euphrates from Borsippa to the sea.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition should secure a quantity of recent Minoan finds in Crete, and even from the wilderness of Seir. And a greater than the Tel el Amarna tablets. For Moses surveyed a censer in the sanctuary of the new submerged Eridu, west of the Euphrates. And hieroglyphs centuries before Moses, down from the time of Job.

Questions Answered

THE OYSTER.

H. L. P.—You are away off in thinking that the oyster was unknown in Europe before the discovery of America. Your oyster is a very ancient institution, and a most honorable one. From time immemorial poets have sung of him and orators have dwelt upon his charms. Juvenal, the most illustrious of all satirists, enlivened the literary charms of the reigns of Trojan and Hadrian with his comments on the oyster; and the comments were not satirical either, but warmly commendatory. The oyster, the true cosmopolitan, is found pretty nearly upon the world for ages upon ages before the man from Genoa found the shores of America.

MEXICO.

J. P. F.—Mexico consists of 27 confederated States, and the total area of the country is 762,600 square miles. Mexico is, therefore, almost three times the size of the State of Texas, and the country has a coast line of 6,000 miles, 1,800 on the Atlantic and 4,200 on the Pacific. In natural resources Mexico is one of the most favored countries on earth, especially in mineral wealth. You are mistaken in thinking its climate universally bad. Along the coasts there is, of course, a plenty of malaria, but the hill climate is as fine as there is in the world. The people of Mexico is its chief drawback, the greater part being Indians, far below the Indian of North America in intelligence and character.
