GIRL TELLS ACCUSED DOCTOR'S LOVE STORY

Bride Collapses as Alleged Poisoner Goes to Jail

COWARDICE OF VOLTURNO CREW CAUSED DEATH OF PASSENGERS

CHAUFFEUR HELD FOR ACCIDENT TO GIRL

Says He Saw Young Woman, but Thought She Would Stop for Machine.

W. E. Brin, the chauffeur who ran down and seriously injured Miss Mary Hughes, No. 11 West Cain street, Saturday afternoon, was placed in custody late Monday morning after an order had been issued by Assistant District Judge Jett that he be found guilty of the crime. Jett's order was not given until Otto Von B. Dingelhoff, an attorney in the Chandler Building and owner of the automobile, had failed to make his promise to produce the driver. Brin, who is 17 years old, said he was at No. 234 South Ashby street when the police had admitted that he saw Miss Hughes, but thought that she would stop to let him pass. He denied that he was speeding.

Deplores Publicity.

Brin was brought to the police station by Dingelhoff. Both refused to give out any statement for publication. The attorney deplored the publicity that had already been given to the young woman's accident. "There has been too much said about the accident already," he declared.

The chauffeur was charged with reckless driving, and is being held pending the report of Police Commissioner, who was sent to Miss Hughes' home to ascertain the extent of her injuries. The amount of his bond will be determined by this report.

Arrested by the long string of automobile accidents resulting from reckless driving, Assistant Chief of Police Jett issued strict orders to the men in his department Monday to arrest and make case against every automobile driver whom they observed exceeding the speed limit or in any other way violating the traffic regulations.

Holds His Identity.

The identity of the chauffeur was not learned by the police at the time of the accident. They relied upon the word of his employer, Attorney Dingelhoff, that he would guarantee his presence at police headquarters Monday morning, where a case might be made against the chauffeur and the hearing set for a time when Miss Hughes will be able to testify in respect to the accident.

When Dingelhoff and the chauffeur failed to appear early Monday morning, Assistant Chief Jett ordered Captain Mayo to have a policeman meet after the chauffeur, after allowing a reasonable time for him to show up. Special Officer Arthur was detailed to get the driver.

Must Stop Speeding.

Chief Jett declared that he was not going to take any chances on the chauffeur getting away, and for this reason ordered an officer sent for him. Reckless speeding must be stopped on the streets of Atlanta, he said. "It develops that the chauffeur was careless or violating any traffic regulations, this department certainly will make every effort to have him punished as he should be. The policeman here orders to make a complete search for the speed machine, and they may be depended upon to do it."

POWERS OF DICTATOR SEIZED BY HUERTA

Powers Prepare to Act as Mexican President Overthrows Constitution in Proclamation.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. MEXICO CITY, Oct. 12.—Victoriano Huerta, provisional President, today proclaimed himself dictator of Mexico and overthrew the constitution.

Huerta issued a decree announcing that he has assumed all the former powers of Congress relating to war, finance and the domestic affairs of the nation. He says he will permit the Department of Justice to exercise its usual functions "unless it interferes with his desires," which will be issued from time to time. The constitutional exemption of members of Congress from arrest is revoked by the decree, and the dictator proclaims that he alone is the supreme power in Mexico.

Quick Action Expected.

He declares himself to make a full report of his actions to the next Congress, to be elected on October 26.

All of today's papers carry dispatches from Vera Cruz stating that British warships have been seen in the Gulf of Mexico, and the belief is growing that quick and decisive action is to be taken by the powers in the present crisis.

The Government is expected to rush the trial of the accused Democrats, but this is expected to be a farce in view of Huerta's decree, which virtually says the Department of Justice must do as he says.

U. S. Warns Huerta Not to Harm Foes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The United States today served notice on President Huerta, through the Embassy at Mexico City, that the Mexican Government must protect the imprisoned deputies, and that this Government will continue no violence or extreme measures against the political prisoners.

F. Diaz Told Huerta Plans to Slay Him.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. F. Diaz Told of Plot. General Felix Diaz, now returning to Mexico from Europe, has been warned in a cable dated Sunday to have that General Huerta has arranged to have him assassinated.

The dispatch was sent today by friends of Diaz after they had learned that two members of the Mexican secret service had been sent to Vera Cruz.

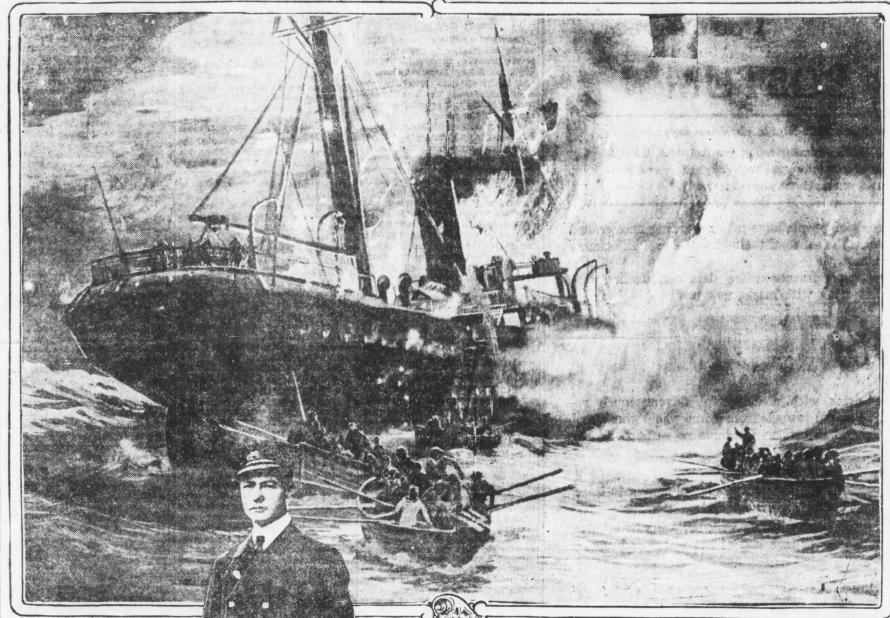

The situation here was unchanged today, with troops and machine guns held in readiness in case of any outbreak.

Bryan Gives Time to Situation in Mexico.

ASHEVILLE, Oct. 12.—Secretary of State William J. Bryan passed through Asheville early this morning en route to Washington, declaring that developments in the Mexican situation demanded his presence there. Further than that Secretary Bryan would not be asked. He can read several magazines that he has in Virginia to rush back to Washington.

Graphic Stories of Rescue of Passengers Told as Survivors Land.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. BRISBANE, WALES, Oct. 12.—All the passengers of the burned Uranium liner Volturmo could have been saved but for the cowardice of her crew.

That more than 500 persons, the bulk of the passengers, were saved was due alone to the heroic behavior of the Volturmo's captain, Captain Thomas Inch.

These facts were learned here this afternoon on the arrival of the Cunard liner Carmania, the first ship to pick up the Volturmo's survivors and rush to her assistance. The Carmania was delayed several hours because of a storm that was raging in the Atlantic.

The charge of Walter Tintopohl, a stevedore passenger, who was picked up by the Carmania, that members of the crew fought for places in the lifeboats until Captain Inch drew his revolver was borne out by other facts.

Twenty-five members of the crew of 50 were saved. Thus, of those who perished 60 were women. According to Tintopohl six sailors were killed while fighting the flames. The rest died as a result of their own cowardice.

Sailors in Wild Panic.

Most of the women on the Volturmo were Germans and Belgians. When they became panic-stricken. After Captain Inch had given orders to lower the boats and had instructed his officers to see that women and children were served first, the cowardly women made a dash for the boats and scrambled in. The officers

AUTO TRIPS OF BARRON WITH GIRL PROBED

Physician Declared to Have Been Out Riding as Wife Lay on Deathbed.

By a Staff Correspondent. GRIFFIN, GA., Oct. 13.—Investigation into the Barron poison mystery took a sharp turn Monday morning into the courtship of Dr. Cary A. Barron and Miss Cora Wheeler, of Conyers, his bride of a week, which the authorities declare is a mystery.

Dr. Barron, that his motor made love to Miss Wheeler prior to the death of his wife and his hasty marriage to the Conyers girl the day following the funeral.

This inquiry is being conducted in Henry and Rockdale Counties with the view of obtaining evidence of clandestine meetings to refute statements of Dr. Barron that his motor made love to Miss Wheeler prior to the death of his wife and his hasty marriage to the Conyers girl the day following the funeral.

While the accused physician insists that he was never in the company of Miss Wheeler but one time after he met her first of September, relatives of the dead wife and the authorities are in possession of positive proof, they say, that he was not out riding with her the whole of Friday afternoon a week ago while his wife lay dying with convulsions.

Efforts also are being made to verify information that Dr. Barron took the girl to a show in Conyers that same night or afternoon before his return to the bedside of his wife. Relatives of the dead woman and officers brand as ridiculous the doctor's story that he had never made love to Miss Wheeler and did not love her at the time of his marriage.

After Secret Meetings.

They declare there must have been clandestine meetings, and the whole of the two counties is being scoured for persons who may have seen them together. Sheriff A. C. Rowell of Henry County, where Dr. Barron is held in jail, has received numerous reports concerning the accused man's conduct. He wrought up the people in this section over the possibility that everyone who chances to hear a rumor immediately conveys it to the Sheriff.

Sheriff Rowell late Sunday morning drove seven miles in an automobile to White House, the scene of the tragedy, and questioned Miss Lucy Gleason, a 15-year-old girl friend of the doctor's bride. Miss Gleason was in Kelly's Church, Henry County, at the time Dr. Barron first met Miss Wheeler, and later was in their company on an auto trip to the dam of the Central Georgia Power Company near Jacksonville. Miss Gleason denied there was any love-making between Dr. Barron and Miss Wheeler on this trip, and declared the physician paid no attention whatever to the girl.

REASON FOR THE DOCTOR'S OWN STORY

Remarried Day After Wife's Funeral 'For Children's Sake'

PHYSICIAN DECLARES HE WILL LIVE ONLY TO CLEAR NAME OF CRIME

By a Staff Correspondent.
M'DONOUGH, GA., Oct. 13.—Sitting on the side of his bunk in the Henry County jail, Dr. Cary A. Barron, accused of poisoning his wife that he might wed another, Monday gave to the Georgian his first statement of the incidents that have brought against him a charge of murder.

Calmly and coolly, the young physician protested his innocence, and smilingly declared the case against him would fall and that he would be free within less than a week. In the same calm tones, he gave a remarkable recital of his reason for hastily marrying Miss Cora Wheeler, of Conyers, Rockdale county, last Tuesday, the day following the burial of his wife in Liberty Hill cemetery, Pike county, and of an instantaneously born love for the new wife.

He declared that he had never loved or even thought of loving Miss Wheeler until after the death of his wife. Now he loves her dearly. It was a love that came after marriage, he said. His loved his first wife and still loves and cherishes her memory, also was his declaration.

He had known Miss Wheeler but a few weeks, since the first part of September, and had seen her but a few times. He had never spoken to her of love, he said.

On the day his wife was buried, he drove to Conyers in an automobile and asked Miss Wheeler to be his wife, and she consented. He had the ceremony performed the next day, he said, for the simple reason that he wanted a new mother for his four little children, and because he wished to continue them under his care without even a temporary break. His statement follows:

"I am innocent of the charge of poisoning my wife. I am satisfied that no poison will be found, and that I'll be vindicated and restored to my normal life and my darling children. I'm simply a victim of strange circumstances."

"I loved my wife better than anything in the world, and would not have harmed her for my life. She died of natural causes. Her illness started with congestion of the stomach and liver, and then developed complications that resulted in organic poisoning or kidney trouble."

"Tried to Save Wife."
"As to Miss Wheeler, I met her a short time ago, about the first of September, at Kelly's Church, near my home at White House. I paid her no attention at that time, and saw her only once or twice afterward."

"I never spoke one word of love to her. Of course, I liked her, as she seemed to be such a nice girl, but this was all."

"When my wife died I thought of the welfare of my children and decided to marry again if I could, in order that they might have a mother and might be under my direct care. I didn't want anyone else to have them, even temporarily."

"The Miss Wheeler had impressed me favorably. I thought she would make a good mother for the children, and so, after the funeral, I drove to Conyers and asked her if she would marry me. She said she would, declaring that she would love me. I then planned the wedding for the next day. I saw no reason under the circumstances for waiting longer."

"I never once thought this move for my children would cause me to be suspected of murdering my dear wife. I had never loved Miss Wheeler before the death of my wife. But I loved her from the moment we were married. I have grown to love her more and more every day. My whole thought now is to clear my name of crime."

TAXES AND SCHOOLS SUGGEST WOMEN

Radical Reforms Asked in Big Meeting to Change Present Deplorable Conditions.

Indorsement of a special school tax plan and the inauguration of a campaign to abolish public schools in Atlanta to demand an improvement of public school conditions were the features of the meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs at the Atlanta Woman's Club Building Monday morning.

After a general discussion of the poor buildings and the overcrowded conditions of Atlanta's schools Mrs. J. K. Otley offered a resolution setting forth a definite plan of action. Among other things the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, are:

"Because children in these schools are our children and as the schools are so well the future of these children is in our hands, we demand that the city of Atlanta be formally informed of the aid of women citizens of Atlanta in this department alone of the city's life by establishing the Board of Lady Visitors of the public schools, be it."

"Resolved, That a lookout committee be appointed by the president of the city Federation of Women's Clubs consisting of a number of women from each ward of the city to keep in touch with their own schools and report upon them from time to time."

Suggesting a line of work for the lookout committee, the resolutions continue:

"The need of more space for the proper seating and distribution of Atlanta's stray school children, both white and colored."

"Urges Special Tax."
The power to demand increasing quality of personal fitness and professional efficiency in our growing corps of teachers."

The resolutions suggest a special school tax and urge that the Board of Education or whatever body has charge of the schools be held free from interference from Council and all other official bodies. "Then hold the board responsible for the results," the resolutions add.

The meeting opened with the reading of a letter from Walter R. Daley, president of the Board of Education, urging a special school tax for the normal maintenance of schools and a sufficient bond issue for permanent improvements.

Mrs. Hamilton Douglas commented that no permanent solution of the problem could be expected until our local government was reformed, but she urged that for the immediate future the meeting petition Council for an appropriation for an English-Commercial Girls' High School building.

"For the young women of our city who are striving to fit themselves for work." A resolution adopted for such a petition was signed by unanimous vote.

Indorse Mayor's Plan.
The meeting then considered the Girls' Night Sobol. The need for improved quarters was referred to the lookout committee.

It was suggested that for immediate relief the plan of Mayor James G. Woodward to make new school districts be indorsed. A resolution to this effect also passed unanimously.

Mrs. Charles J. Haden, president, said that she had been informed by a high city official that the redistricting of schools likely would start within a few days.

The climax of the meeting came with a short talk by Mrs. Hugh Willet, ex-president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Congressman Joins In Plea for Slayer; 'White Man's Negro'

A delegation of nearly 100 men, headed by Congressman William Schley Howard, Attorney L. J. Stone and the Sheriff of DeKalb County, asked Governor Slaton to commute the death sentence of George Oliver, a negro, on the ground that he was a "white man's negro."

The fact that he was known as a "white man's negro," they said, made George unpopular among other negroes, several of whom were witnesses against him.

The negro was convicted of the murder of Oscar Green, another negro, Governor Slaton withheld his decision.

DEATHS IN SHIP FIRE

Volturno's Captain, Pistols Drawn, Halted Mad Rush of Cowardly Sailors to Lifeboats.

Ship's Owners Fix Death List at 144

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Cable dispatches received by officials of the Uranium line to-day indicated that 144 persons perished in the Volturno disaster. There were 361 passengers aboard and a crew of 53. The rescued passengers number 485 and 25 of the crew were saved, leaving 78 passengers and 58 of the crew unaccounted for.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.
LONDON, Oct. 13.—All the passengers of the burned Uranium liner Volturno could have been saved but for the cowardice of her crew.

More than 200 persons, the bulk of the passengers, were saved as due alone to the heroic behavior of the Volturno's captain, Captain Thomas Inch.

Some facts were learned here this afternoon on the arrival of the Curonia, the first ship to reach the Volturno, which was sent to the assistance. The Curonia was delayed several hours because of a storm that was raging in the Atlantic.

The charge of Walter Trintopoff, teenage passenger, who was picked up by the Curonia, that members of the crew fought for places in the lifeboats until Captain Inch drew his revolver was borne out by other facts. Twenty-five members of the crew of 53 were saved. Thus, of those who remained on the Volturno, 28 were killed while fighting the flames. The rest was a result of their own cowardice.

Sailors in Wild Panic.
Most of the seamen on the Volturno were Germans and Belgians. When they saw that the ship was doomed, they became panic-stricken. After Captain Inch had given orders to load the boats and had instructed his officers to see that women and children were extra for first, the cowardly seamen made a dash for the boats and scrambled in. The officers used their fists, but were overpowered. When Captain Inch saw the performance reported in the second boat, he drew his revolver and threatened to kill the first sailor who attempted to board the passengers.

Salvors were needed, however, to man the oars, and when the call was given for men to take charge of the fourth and fifth boats there was a dash forward which overwhelmed the officers in charge.

The hull of the Volturno was awash and this bell and intensified the heat of the fire. The hull became red hot from steam to step above the water line and after deck, and was so hot that all the survivors suffered from scalding burns.

The waves dashed on the heated hull caused clouds of steam to arise, which made the passengers fear they would be scalded.

Captain Barr, commander of the Curonia, which served as the flagship of the rescue squadron, said there was no hope that either of the lifeboats that left the Volturno before he arrived, could have escaped.

30-Story Building For North Pryor Capitalists' Plan

Atlanta soon will have a 30-story skyscraper at the southeast corner of North Pryor street and Edgewood avenue, if a counter proposition of the estate is accepted within the next few days by New York capitalists. Albert Thornton, representing the estate, was in conference with the capitalists in New York last week, and W. W. Austell, one of the heirs, expects a telegram at any hour telling of a decision.

"We were approached recently by agents of the New York men, who had been here inspecting the Pryor street property," said Mr. Austell, "and I expect the acceptance of a proposition of the Austell estate to erect a 30-story building and to lease to this large commercial concern the basement and first three stories. The proposition is in definite shape and only depends on the size of the lot."

"If that lot is not of sufficient size, we are prepared to offer the northeast corner of North Pryor and Decatur streets."

wreaks of her home, suddenly cut her short before the end of the second week and permitted Dr. Barron to take her to the city back to Georgia. She died, and her husband, Miss Wheeler, found her in the street and took her to the city and laid her out.

Doctor Came During Visit

Dr. Barron and Miss Wheeler in Keokuk, Iowa, said Miss Wheeler, "The doctor merely said, 'I'm glad to meet you, Miss Wheeler. I never saw him speak to her again at that time. This was about the first of September. Shortly after this Miss Wheeler asked me to allow her to come and spend two weeks with me during the month of October. I told her I would go for her to come. While she was here, Dr. Barron never came to see her, although he passed the house frequently in his to go. She replied she would be ready in 15 minutes and giving up the apartment, ran back to the house and dressed. I begged and pleaded with her not to go with the doctor, that she would take her home, but she would not listen. He drove her away in the car, and I have not seen or heard from her since."

Bride Heartbroken, Physician Is Stoical

At intervals she became delirious. In these moments the physician cried out: "Take me to him. Oh, take me to him."

Went Against Her Protest

She was not expected to leave until after Sunday. The next morning we were walking down the road to get some apples, and Dr. Barron drove up and stopped his car. He asked Miss Wheeler if she was ready

WIRELESS OPERATOR ON RESCUE SHIP DESCRIBES BOY OF THE VOLTRUNO

Through a sale almost as severe as that which he related to the rescue of the burning ship, the wireless operator Carmaria spent slowly into this part this morning.

Rescue 75 Miles to Aid

At 7:30 p. m. the flames burst out amidships, near the forward funnel, lighting up the surrounding sea. In a few minutes all the ship from the forward funnel to the foremast was on fire with the flames leaping high into the air. Through the flames and the smoke the bridge was visible now and then. The wind dropped slightly about this time, which was a good thing for it prevented the flames from being carried into the faces of the crew in the after part of the vessel.

ium liner Volturino is searching the seas for two lifeboats that left the doomed vessel when about 100 persons. A wireless message received today from the liner Kron Prinsen, Seattle, bound from New York, said that the vessel had turned southward from her course in search of the boats, but at the time the message was sent had not yet traced them.

Wireless Operator Had Premonition of Disaster

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—A story of premonition of such a disaster occurred in the burning of the ship.

Mrs. F. W. Alexander, of the ship, who made many trips on the United States steamship, has reported to the company's officers here that C. J. Livingston, wireless operator on the Volturino, told her about a month ago of a terrifying dream he had had in which the bridge of the ship was on fire and the bridge was visible now and then. The wind dropped slightly about this time, which was a good thing for it prevented the flames from being carried into the faces of the crew in the after part of the vessel.

Use POSTUM. If Coffee Don't Agree. A prominent Philadelphia physician says: "If, on discontinuing coffee, you feel tired, languid, and 'out of sorts,' the coffee had better be forever discontinued, for you are on the verge of inebrity."

Thousands of people have taken warning and proved that coffee was the cause of their headaches, biliousness and nervousness. A great many former coffee drinkers, feeling the need of a hot drink with meals, now use POSTUM.

crowds of curious sightseers called at the jail Sunday to get a glimpse of the prisoner. Interest in Mrs. Barron and Henry County is intense, and groups of men stood in the streets throughout the day, discussing the details and speculating as to the guilt of the doctor.

Asks Calm Judgment

Colonel J. P. Wall, one of the oldest and most prominent lawyers of this section, is looking after the interests of the young prisoner, although as yet he has not been formally retained to fight the murder charge. While he would not discuss the merits of the case, Colonel Wall made the following statement:

"Through The Georgian, I wish to state to the public to withhold judgment in this case until the facts come out. Wrong and damaging impressions have been formed on the reports of this matter, and a great injustice thereby done to the accused. In all fairness a verdict should not be entered by the public at this time."

Should poison sufficient to produce death be found in the organs of the dead woman, the charge of murder against Dr. Barron will be pushed vigorously and a great legal battle will result.

Should no poison be found, the case is expected to collapse, although the exact course that would be pursued is problematical.

W. S. Mann of Milner, father of the dead woman, Monday is as strong as ever in his belief that Dr. Barron administered fatal poison.

The case against Dr. Barron is unusually strong for the reason that he was the motive. He isn't afraid to face the matter. He doesn't have to search for it," he said. "The fact that he married again the day after his wife's death is a fact which is conclusive in my mind that he was guilty of the crime. He was simply in such a big hurry that he bungled the whole business."

of the burning ship, a lifeboat was hoisted. After being hoisted the lifeboat was lowered to the Volturino and left the sea to get close to the Volturino and to give it up. The lifeboat returned with all the cars save three smashed. The men were so exhausted that they had to be carried on deck. Shortly after 3 p. m. Thursday the Volturino arrived on the scene. Later, more ships put in an appearance. Nothing could be done on account of the wind and waves. Nothing could be more heartrending than our enforced idleness, standing by in sight of the destruction of the ship with our only being able to give any assistance.

"Captain Inch all the time kept signaling, 'Don't anything be done to help us.' We must abandon the ship. The plates are bucking. Stand by, for we will have to jump soon."

About 7 p. m. the flames burst out amidships, near the forward funnel, lighting up the surrounding sea. The wind dropped slightly about this time, which was a good thing for it prevented the flames from being carried into the faces of the crew in the after part of the vessel.

Shortly before the arrival of the Volturino the wireless operator on board that ship sent a message saying that 52 passengers of the Volturino have been saved and 136 lost. The reason of the tragedy, given by the Volturino's wireless operator was as follows:

Rescue 75 Miles to Aid. The Volturino was received a call for help from the Uranium liner Volturino, which reported that she had 52 persons awaiting a crew of 98 on board. The operator on the Volturino said the vessel was afloat and the flames were spreading rapidly through the hull. The Carmaria was 75 miles away at the time. Captain Barron gave orders to crowd on the steam. Despite the heavy seas which were running at the time and a heavy sea which was blowing, she made 75 miles in about four hours.

"When we arrived within sight of the Volturino we saw clouds of smoke issuing from the ship. When we got close enough we could see flames spurting from her ventilators. The entire inside of the Volturino was afloat. Two sets of falls were used to hoist the lifeboats. The situation was so serious that the extent of fearing the vessel doomed.

"All the occupants were either killed or got away, but were not heard from. The Carmaria was steamed slowly by the Volturino, going as close as she dared.

"We could see the passengers huddled on the deck, and we saw them get away, but were not heard from. The Carmaria was steamed slowly by the Volturino, going as close as she dared.

Prosperity Sale

A Week of Profit Sharing With Our Friends

GEORGIA enters upon her greatest era of prosperity. Bank clearings are the greatest in our history. Bank deposits are heaviest on record. Crops are phenomenal. Cotton will bring in about one hundred and fifty millions of dollars into the State. The corn crop breaks all previous records. We have been beautifully blessed. Georgia—and Atlanta most of all—will benefit by this unparalleled prosperity. All the merchants will profit greatly; the large department stores possibly most of all. Wishing our friends to share our blessings, we have set aside this week as

Prosperity Week in Which to Share Our Profits

The sale opens Tuesday with upwards of 200 well selected bargains at 30% off the regular price. Many of them are in special lots and we are offering them at 50% off the regular price. It is the greatest opportunity Atlanta has ever had to get reasonable goods this early in the season at such low prices. No space here to go into detail; just these few hints of what to expect:

VOLTURNO CAPTAIN KEPT COWARDS IN CREW FROM SEIZING LIFEBOATS

Artist's sketch, from wireless descriptions, of the burning of the Volturmo at sea, with the loss of 144 lives. Below is Thomas Bush, the heroic captain of the Volturmo, who saved the lives of hundreds of passengers by fighting the panic-stricken crew from the lifeboats.

The sea was so high that they probably went down in a few minutes, he said.

There was a great cheer as the vessel, through which the Captain had sailed, the Volturmo, came to the aid of the stricken Titanic.

For several hours the ship cruised about, trying to get a grip on the missing boats before proceeding on their way.

A wireless message from the Carmania said that she was unable to put in at Queenstown because of the heavy weather but would proceed to Port to this port.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

Huerta issued a decree announcing that he has assumed full the powers of Congress, retaining the executive and the domestic affairs of the nation.

The constitutional exemption of members of Congress from arrest is provided by the Mexican constitution, but Huerta proclaims that he alone is the supreme power in Mexico.

He pledges himself to make a declaration of the actions to the next Congress, to be elected on October 25.

All of Huerta's papers carry dispatches from Vera Cruz stating that British warships have been seen in the Gulf of Mexico and the belief is growing that quick and decisive action is to be taken by the powers of the present crisis.

The government is arranging to rush the trial of the accused Huertistas, but this is expected to be a farce in view of Huerta's decree which provides for the Department of Justice must do as he says.

General Villa, who is returning to Mexico from Europe, has been named in a cable dispatch sent to Havana that General Huerta has arranged to meet him en route.

PROSPERITY FOR GA. HERALDED BY COL. PEEL

Prosperity in Atlanta and throughout the State was heralded in glowing terms by two prominent Atlantans Monday. Both of the men—Colonel W. L. Peel, president of the American National Bank, and Harry M. Atkinson, co-receiver with E. T. Lamb, of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad—are in close touch with the money situation here, but even are anticipating the date of their notes in many instances," said Colonel Peel.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism and Serous Diseases Follow. There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worried feeling, weak bladder or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected, may develop into the deadly Bright's disease, dropsy or diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for cures promptly ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy for kidney, bladder trouble and rheumatism than Cascarets, because it reaches the cause. It works right into the kidneys, cleans out the clogged-up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles, and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

"I'll Never Leave Him Again." Mother Cries as She Greets Boy at Pier. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Accompanied by her counsel, John Kelly, her manager, Morris Kessel, her dancing partner, Jack Clifford, and a private secretary, Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw reached the Grand pier in an automobile hours before the Louisiana boat in sight, and it was all because her little two-year-old son, Rus, with his English nurse had reached New York.

When the grandstand was lowered, Mrs. Thaw, with a wail, ran up to the ship to grasp what she saw in the "most precious thing in the world—my boy."

"I am afraid they have gone," she answered, "but I shall find out." With a sobbing cry, "right through the bow," Mrs. Thaw rushed the ship, 5000 feet up the pier, and grasped the boy up to her heart. And all within minutes she remained in the cabin with the child, and from came out carrying him in her arms.

Hundreds of New Suits Make Their First Bow to the Women of Atlanta

The Most Impressive Display of Suits We Have Made So Far This Season.

We must lay particular stress upon the quantity of new suits that have just taken their place in the second floor.

It is impressive, and did one stop to reflect on its meaning, it would teach a fine lesson to the woman who has not yet been "suited."

Back of all these hundreds of suits that we will show to-morrow is a fine amount of confidence, of confidence in the women of Atlanta and in the styles, the desirability of these suits.

We know the suits are right, we know they are such that Atlanta women will want once they are seen!

The suit buyer is now in New York and these are the evidence of his labors. But, the suits How should we pen accurate descriptions to so many, how shall we give you an idea of what to expect?

Only in the most general way, leaving it to your greater pleasure to discover the one most interesting to you. If there is one term that comes closest to describing what the suits are, it is

Novelties

These are novelties of the latest moment, and the cry is for novelties---it seems an echo to the voice of the good Dame who rules the fashions.

It may be a novelty because it is a velvet suit, because it is fur-trimmed, because it shows an odd little vest, because of its Oriental trimmings, because of the very graceful and unusual draping of the skirt---the advertising pen has had no such task before it this season, it outlines weakly the picture that you will see here.

Let it attempt another method--- These suits are from New York's stalwarts in the suit-making business, from those men who stand head and shoulders above the ordinary, who do things in a successful way. And, to make suits in this fashion, means that one must keep in touch with Paris.

The suits reflect Paris---they are copies of Paris models, others are adaptations, toned down a bit for American women. And so we revert to what we said above

This is the Most Impressive Display of Suits We Have Made So Far This Season and you are invited to make use of it to the end that your Fall suit shall be as smart and charming as, coming from this finest gathering of suits Atlanta has known, it could possibly be.

The Price Range is Most Satisfactory--Beginning at $25.00 It Goes Very Gradually to $75.00

No Cowardly Repeal of Our New Shipping Policy! No Surrender to Foreign Threats!

American shipping is for the future to have a preference of 5 per cent on all cargoes. That is the most significant fact for international trade in the whole apparatus of duties and schedules.

There must be no striking of the American merchant marine flag! There must be no repeal of the 5 per cent discrimination provided by the new tariff law in favor of American shipping!

Of course the foreign protests will come. They began coming the instant foreign governments learned of the existence of this provision in the earliest drafts of the tariff bill.

But it is worth such a struggle by foreign interests, it is worth a greater struggle by America. What was effective and constitutional and honorable in the presidencies of Washington and Jefferson is equally effective, constitutional and honorable today.

The policy that gave us for seventy-two years the carrying of 80 per cent of our entire foreign commerce will restore us again to the position of a dominant merchant marine power on all the oceans.

The fight that early began over this section in the tariff—the most significant fact in it, as the Tary Pall Mall Gazette so frankly admits, and therefore the most profitable for America—has already been waged bitterly.

But already, within a few days of the passage of the bill, there is talk of repealing THE BEST PART OF IT.

IS IT THE LAMENTABLE BUT OBVIOUS FACT THAT OUR PRESENT ADMINISTRATION WOULD DO NOTHING AT ALL THAT IS DISPLEASING TO ENGLAND?

Is it that Germany has gone so far as to declare that she will not even consent to an interposition by United States courts of the scope of this discriminating section of our tariff?

Or is it that France, paying her vessels a navigation bounty of 31.5 cents a ton on each hundred miles outward and homeward—a bounty that drove many an American ship of the Pacific—has threatened to retaliate?

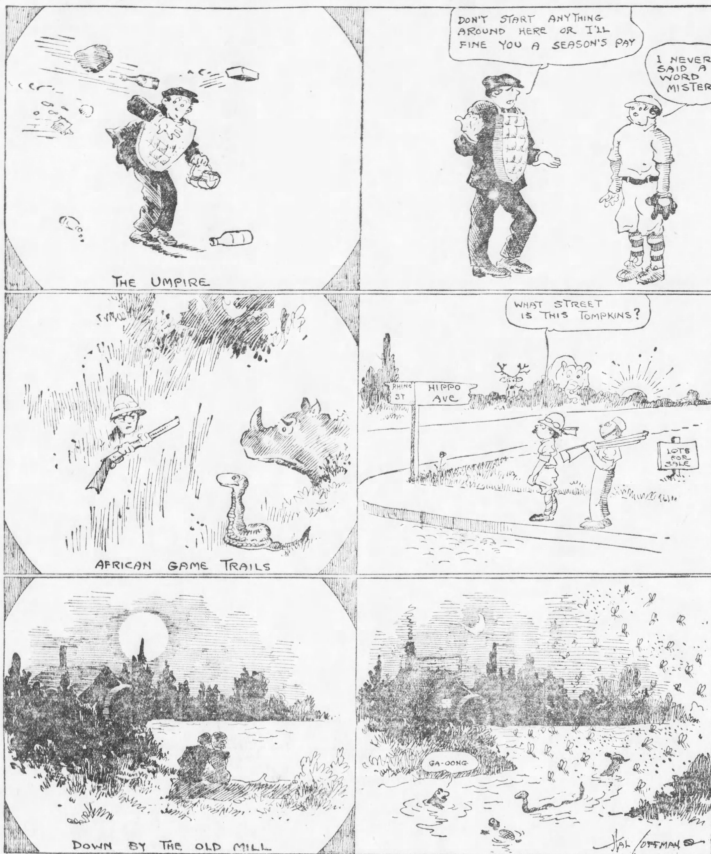

Or if it be true that France and Russia and Brazil are the only countries that will be especially hurt, is not the answer plain? That if we must begin by building up our merchant marine at the expense of France and Russia and Brazil, it is a perfectly legitimate commercial policy, which this small beginning will enable us in due time to use with England and Germany and the rest.

Or is this talk of a panicky retreat due to the begrudging of ten million dollars from the new tariff revenue, a sum which it is claimed will be temporarily sacrificed? What are these ten millions against the three hundred millions we pay annually to foreign ships? What are these ten millions against the first real effort in half a century to re-establish a merchant marine that has been starved almost to death?

This tariff bill has been passed without any provision for

In "Reel" Life & In Real Life

A Book for Every Citizen

By REV. C. F. AKED, D. D.

Jack London's "John Barleycorn" is a book which every citizen should read. It is more than a book; it is a living thing. It is a confession. It is a challenge. It is an instruction.

Jack London says that two years ago he voted with the majority that gave the vote to the women of California. He was halfhearted when he did it, or, at least, when he got home and told his wife about it.

While the system remains here and men will fall victim to it—of that he is very sure. He says that it is like an uncovered well in a small where children play.

Human beings, holding their way along into knowledge of life that they must not play near the uncovered well. They will play near it. Any parent knows that.

As relentless a war should be declared upon Alcohol as society is here and now waging against tuberculosis or typhoid, says Jack London. And he knows what he is talking about.

At last is Jack London who is the avowed author of the most thoroughgoing and enthusiastic plea for prohibition issued within the memory of this generation!

DOROTHY DIX

Writes on Things to Look for in a Wife. Health Comes First: After That a Sense of Humor, "Faculty," Liberality of Spirit, Sympathy and Lovableness.

The fourth thing that I would consider would be the line of conversation that the lady carried. If I were looking forward to an uninterrupted season of about 25 or 40 years of a woman's society, I would really try to find out if she interested me to such an extent that I wouldn't be liable to yawn my head off.

Heades which I should not look forward, with any degree of favorable anticipation, to spending my life paying doctors' bills or sending my fragile Marie to the sea-shore in the summer and Florida in the winter, and to coming home at night after a hard day's work to a house where I would have to walk on tiptoe for fear of disturbing my suffering spouse.

The third quality that I should look for in a wife is what some folks call "faculty." That means being equal to any situation that arises and knowing how to do things. It means the kind of a wife who can cook, and wash and sew, and trim her own hair, and help her husband make his fortune, and then, when he's got it, she can help him spend it as if she never did anything in her life but transmit orders to an English butler and wear hats from Paris.

You Don't Want a Selfish Wife, Nor a Critic on The Hearth. I shouldn't want a selfish little beast for a wife, one who would take the best of everything, and regard me as only good for a shopping ticket.

No Cowardly Repeal of Our New Shipping Policy! No Surrender to Foreign Threats! Continued From First Column. That "reciprocal interchange of tariffs by which untold millions might have been saved to our people." It seems small and weak and contemptible, now, for the sake of a questionable loss of a few millions, to throttle this hopeful step toward the saving of multiplied millions and commercial freedom for America on all the seas.

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN

Entered as second-class matter at postoffice at Atlanta, under act of March 3, 1879

No Cowardly Repeal of Our New Shipping Policy! No Surrender to Foreign Threats!

"American shipping is for the future to have a preference of 5 per cent on all cargo. That is the most significant fact for international trade in the whole apparatus of duties and schedules. AMERICA IS PREPARING TO CHALLENGE THE SUPREMACY WE SO LONG ENJOYED AS CARRIERS FOR THE WORLD. It challenges it by the same measure whereunder the wide air supremacy in the open trade and other industries a King of the past"—from the FALL MAIL GAZETTE OF LONDON, ENGLAND.

There must be no striking of the American merchant marine flag! There must be no repeal of the 5 per cent discrimination provided by the new tariff law in favor of American shipping! There must be no interpretation of that clause—the most important and about the only beneficial clause in the new tariff bill—that will nullify the expressed intent of Congress to begin the restoration of the American merchantman on all the seven seas. There must be no frightened retreat in Washington BECAUSE THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION HAS DECIDED TO DO NOTHING THAT MAY BE DISPLEASING TO GREAT BRITAIN!

Of course the foreign protests will come. They began coming the instant foreign governments learned of the existence of this provision in the earliest drafts of the tariff bill. Now they are being repeated and pressed. The million dollars a day that America is paying foreign shipowners for carrying its overseas commerce is now protesting about. It is worth fighting for by every method of intimidation, by every sinister influence that can be brought to bear on an American President and Congress.

But if it is worth such a struggle by foreign interests, it is worth a greater struggle by America. What was effective and constitutional and honorable in the presidencies of Washington and Jefferson is equally effective, constitutional and honorable to-day. The policy that gave us for seventy-two years the carrying of 80 per cent of our entire foreign commerce will restore us again to the position of a dominant merchant marine power on all the oceans. The Fall Mail Gazette, as quoted above, recognizes the potency of the tariff bill. The flood of foreign protests proves the power of the weapon.

The fight that early began over this section in the tariff—the most significant fact in it, as the Tory Fall Mail Gazette so frankly admits, and therefore the most profitable for America—has already been waged bitterly. First the section was left in the bill, then it was dropped, again restored, and at the last maintained only by the most sturdy courage of Chairman Underwood and two or three other stalwart champions of American progress. This newspaper and its allied newspapers have fought incessantly and unflinchingly for the very life of our shipping. Only a few days ago we declared that the fight of foreign governments representing foreign shipping interests would be continued even after the passage of the tariff law carrying this hope to our life adrift. And the pressure has come swiftly, imperiously, and menacing.

The "free ships" which we are told we have guaranteed by more than twenty treaties, nearly all negotiated before 1860, long ago became a dead phrase owing to the devious methods of governments which have made little or no effort to live up to the spirit of the agreements. Great Britain subsidizes its vast merchant fleets in many ways, going so far as to lend its millions for the construction of Cunard merchant vessels on the easiest possible terms. Germany, with its government-owned railroads, grants preferred rates on these railroads to all merchandise for export in German ships. Japan is subsidizing its Pacific merchant fleets to an extent which has left only five American ships regularly in the trans-Pacific trade.

But already, within a few days of the passage of the bill, there is talk of repealing THE BEST PART OF IT. In this talk the Administration and the State Department appear to lead. But it was understood that the President and the State Department fully concurred in the settlements at the final tariff conference. WHAT IS THERE TO JUSTIFY SO SUDDEN AND COWARDLY A SURRENDER?

IS IT THE LAMENTABLE BUT OBVIOUS FACT THAT OUR PRESENT ADMINISTRATION WILL DO NOTHING AT ALL THAT IS DISPLEASING TO ENGLAND?

Is it that Germany has gone so far as to declare that she will not even consent to an interpretation by United States courts of the scope of this discriminating section of our tariff? Does Germany, one of whose steamship companies sold to Spain, during the Spanish-American war, a number of its vessels that had been trading with America, think that the United States has no rights upon the seas? Has the "mailed fist" the same sinister influence in Washington as it has in Peking?

Or is it that France, paying her vessels a navigation bounty of 315 cents a ton on each hundred miles outward and homeward—a bounty that drove many an American ship off the Pacific—has threatened to retaliate?

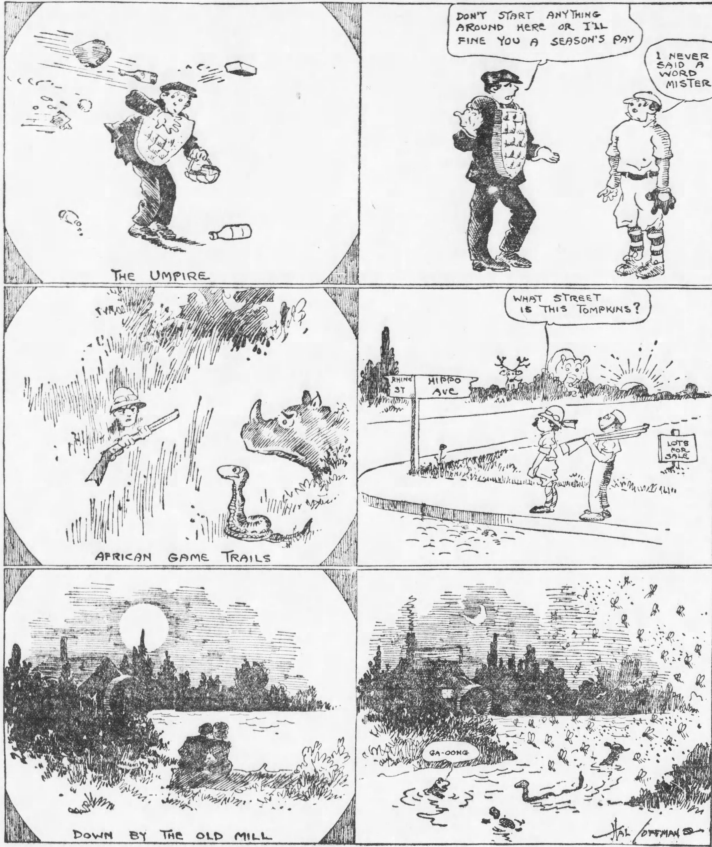

Or, if it be true that France and Russia and Brazil are the only countries that will be especially hurt, is not the answer plain? That if we must begin by building up our merchant marine at the expense of France and Russia and Brazil, it is a perfectly legitimate commercial policy, which this small beginning will enable us in due time to use with England and Germany and the rest. That ultimately existing treaties must be amended or abrogated so that the American ship shall not rot in its dock.

Or is this talk of a panicky retreat due to the begrudging of ten million dollars from the new tariff revenue, a sum which is claimed will be temporarily sacrificed? What are these ten millions against the three hundred millions we pay annually to foreign ships? What are these ten millions against the first real effort in half a century to re-establish a merchant marine that has been starved almost to death?

In "Reel" Life In Real Life

A Book for Every Citizen

By REV. C. F. AKED, D. D.

Jack London's "John Barleycorn" is a book which every citizen should read. It is more than a book; it is a living thing. It is a confession. It is a challenge. It is an inspiration. In such a world as this we have to deny ourselves many things, but few of us are so bankrupt of money or time that we need to deny ourselves a personal of this vivid and palpating human document.

Jack London says that two years ago he voted with the majority that gave the vote to the women of California. He was half-drunk when he did it—yes, at least, when he got home and told his wife about it. And he gave that vote because he believed that the women would make it impossible for him or for the like of him hereafter to get either drunk or half-drunk.

For twenty years, he says, the system under which we live has been plugging in his blood a desire for alcohol. It took ten years for the desire to fester upon him with anything like a forcible grip. At first, and for many years, he did not want alcohol. He tried to resist. He tried to make himself take it; tried to persuade himself that he could like it. And for a long time failed. But the customs of all our world—what I have just called "the system"—were too strong for him. He was driven to drink. He could not help himself.

"The system" is ubiquitous, omnipresent, universal—anything you like to call it. The "system" is omnipresent. It got him at last. And the system gets other men. And will continue to get them—all women sweep the system away!

As a boy he did not like the drink. As a youth he did not want it. As a man he would do without it—till the years came when it mastered him, when he needed the "kick" he got from it, the stirring, the stimulating, the passing vitality, when he waited with impatience for the hour when he could have a cocktail, and another, and another, when he looked eagerly for some caller to drop in to give him the excuse of hospitality for another, when at last he could not do his day's work, which consisted of less than two hours' writing, without a drink to begin with, a drink in the middle, and a longing for more at the end! Society everywhere is engaged in a conspiracy to force boys and men along the cocktail route. And he confesses that to-day he is not strong enough of himself to turn off that route. The system must end. Men ought to smash it, but they will not. The women must do it. And Jack London wants them to begin.

The drinking customs are everywhere. The brightness of the saloon attracts a street boy. The youth finds there the company of men. For millions of reasons, the saloon is the social life they know. Club life is impossible without drink. One can not be in a man's world and live a man's life without meeting John Barleycorn everywhere. Whether you are a street Arab, an oyster pirate, a sailor man home from all the seas, a flaneur on the Paris boulevards, or a shipman in the large city you are dogged and harassed and coerced and bulldozed by the system—and you have to drink. This is Jack London's account of things, not mine. And the whole ghastly business is a relic of barbarism, he says; the twentieth century must make an end of it forever.

While the system remains boys and men will take a victim to himself that he is very sure. He says that it is like an unbroken yoke in a wretched children's play. And:

"It is small use to tell the brave little boys toddling their way along into knowledge, and that they must not play near the un-covered well. They will play near it. Any parent knows that. And we know that a certain percentage of them, the fittest and most daring, will fall into the well. The thing to do—we all know it—is to cover up the well. The case is the same with John Barleycorn. The only rational folk for the twentieth century folk to do is to cover up the well; to make the twentieth century in truth the twentieth century, and to relegate to the nineteenth century the things of those centuries, the witch-burning, the intolerance, the fetters, and, not least among such barbarism, John Barleycorn.

As relatives a war should be declared upon alcohol as society is here and now waging against tuberculosis or typhoid, says Jack London. And he knows what he is talking about. He knows the drinking game from A to Z—he says, and he looks proved it. Like a survivor of old Red War who cries out, "Let there be no more war!" Jack London cries: "Let there be no more polo-fighting by our youths. The way to stop war is to stop it. The way to stop drinking is to stop it. The way to stop the general evil use of opium, by stopping the cultivation and importation of opium. The philosophers, priests and doctors of China could have preached themselves breathless against opium for a thousand years, and the use of opium, as long as opium was ever accessible and obtainable, would have continued unabated. We are so made, that is all. We have with great success made a practice of not leaving arsenic and strychnine, and typhoid and tuberculosis germs, lying about for our children to be destroyed by. But John Barleycorn the same way. Stop him. Don't let him lie

The fourth thing that I would consider would be the line of conversation that the lady carried. If I were looking forward to an uninterrupted session of about 19 or 20 years of a woman's company, I would really try to find out if she interested me to such an extent that I wouldn't be able to yawn my head off. When I had found for steady company, I would try to ascertain if she had any proposed marrying had any breath in her head, if she was educated, and had some ideas about what she read, and if her taste was sympathetic to mine.

For I should know that two people can't spend years and years and years asking each other "how does it go?" nor handing each other hot-air love talk. I should know that no man on earth is so lonely as he would be married to a woman who can't understand the subjects in which he is most vitally interested, and to whom he has always explained things in words of one syllable, as if she were a child. I should want to know if she were as cheerful as Venus, and as rich as Croesus, and a model of every other virtue on earth. For I should know that the sort of a woman that the marriage constitutes a wife her husband's father and entitles her to be a wife to his children, and that makes him afraid to call his wife's name, I should know that such a wife insults every one of his old friends, that she makes his own mother afraid to come to see him, that she smokes his breath every time he comes in the house to see if she's had a drink, and that she is decently polite to a strange woman for fear of the curtain lecture she will get when he returns home.

And lastly, and above all, the thing that I would most in the girl, is a sense of humor. I should think of asking to see if she had a drink, and I should prefer a home where the sun shone on my face, was always damp and foggy. Believe me, son, the woman who she can make a merry adventure of the ordinary mishaps of life is the one I would like to have. If she has been equal to any situation that arises and knowing how to do things, it means the kind of a wife who can cook and wash, and sew, and trim her own hair, and help her husband make his fortune, and then, when he's got it, she can help him spend it as if she never did anything in her life but transmit orders to an English butler and wear hats in Paris. So, if I were picking out a wife, I'd choose a girl who knew how to bobbed up, who could cook a dinner or order one in a restaurant; who could pick out a dress that suited her, who could mend a hat, or who could check her trunk, and run a bank account, and give me aid to the lady when any accident happened in her vicinity. No, believe me, doll-baby woman for me that would be like a million from my neck and prevent me from ever winning in the race for success.

And it is Jack London who is the avowed author of the most thoroughgoing and enthusiastic plea for prohibition I ever read in the memory of this generation! He declares that prohibition will save the world from the horrors of a drunk and senseless generation. He declares that if the woman kills the saloon, she will save the world. He says that the saloon is the only place where a man can get a drink and still be a man. He says that the saloon is the only place where a man can get a drink and still be a man.

And lastly, and above all, the thing that I would most in the girl, is a sense of humor. I should think of asking to see if she had a drink, and I should prefer a home where the sun shone on my face, was always damp and foggy. Believe me, son, the woman who she can make a merry adventure of the ordinary mishaps of life is the one I would like to have. If she has been equal to any situation that arises and knowing how to do things, it means the kind of a wife who can cook and wash, and sew, and trim her own hair, and help her husband make his fortune, and then, when he's got it, she can help him spend it as if she never did anything in her life but transmit orders to an English butler and wear hats in Paris. So, if I were picking out a wife, I'd choose a girl who knew how to bobbed up, who could cook a dinner or order one in a restaurant; who could pick out a dress that suited her, who could mend a hat, or who could check her trunk, and run a bank account, and give me aid to the lady when any accident happened in her vicinity. No, believe me, doll-baby woman for me that would be like a million from my neck and prevent me from ever winning in the race for success.

No Cowardly Repeal of Our New Shipping Policy! No Surrender to Foreign Threats!

Continued From First Column. that "reciprocal interchange of tariffs by which untold millions might have been saved to our people." It seems small and weak and contemptible, now, for the sake of a questionable loss of a few millions, to throttle this hopeful step toward the saving of multiplied millions and commercial freedom for America on all the seas. The country will stand against its cowardly repeal of any American act of surrender, and will not forgive the men who would strangle the most vigorous American policy of a decade.
