THOMASVILLE, Oct. 14.—With T. W. Duane, about 50 years old, held on suspicion, the police are this afternoon continuing their efforts to clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of pretty Miss Dorothy Haug, the 21-year-old Valdosta stenographer who was found slain in her room at the Southern Home, a Thomasville hotel, Monday morning.

VICTIM OF SLAYER IN
THOMASVILLE HOTEL

MISS DOROTHY HAUG.

AGED FATHER CANNOT BELIEVE HIS SON GAVE
DRUGS TO KILL WIFE

The investigation into the mysterious death of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron, wife of Dr. Cary A. Barron who is in the Henry County jail charged with poisoning her, approached its climax in Atlanta Tuesday as the analysis of the contents of her stomach neared completion.

Dr. Edgar Everhart, of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, who is conducting the chemical examination, announced that he probably would complete his work by Wednesday forenoon. On the result of Dr. Everhart's analysis the fate of the accused man likely will rest. If traces of poison are found, it will be proof positive in the minds of the dead woman's relatives that her husband is her murderer and they will press his prosecution with all possible vigor.

Dr. Everhart said any report that he had or had not found poison was pure gossip.

Dr. Everhart will make his report directly to Dr. T. H. Maddox, one of the relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron. It was Dr. Maddox and Dr. Hockaby, of Milner, who hastened to Atlanta with the stomach and other vital organs as soon as the body had been exhumed.

By a Staff Correspondent.

GRIFFIN, Oct. 14.—Dr. J. M. F. Barron, a distinguished physician of this section and father of Dr. Cary A. Barron, in jail in McDonough, charged with poisoning his first wife that he might wed Miss Cora Wheeler, of Conyers, Tuesday morning gave a statement to the Georgian defending his accused son, but at the same time dramatically declaring that should he become convinced that the boy is guilty he would not turn his hand nor spend one penny to prevent the law taking its course. The elder Dr. Barron treated Mrs. Barron in her last illness and diagnosed her ailments as entirely natural.

Dr. Barron is one of the wealthiest and most widely known and highly respected citizens of Pike County, and the first public announcement of his attitude in the poison mystery has brought forth many expressions of admiration and sympathy not only from the community generally, but from the close relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron.

Dr. Barron lives in a beautiful country home on an extensive plantation at Liberty Hill, several miles out from Milner. He owns practically the whole of this settlement. For thirty years he has practiced medicine in Pike and adjoining counties. Every penny of this wealth he told The Georgian would be spent, if necessary, to clear his stigma from the family name, so long as he remains satisfied his son is innocent.

In the event the accused is shown to be guilty, however, he must fight alone the battle for his life. He can not depend on the Barron fortune to save him.

When seen at his home Dr. Barron seemed crushed by the arrest of his son and the accusation against him.

As he asserted his firm belief that his son is wrongfully accused and declared he could not conceive of a Barron being capable of committing such a deed, tears welled in the old man's eyes, and there was a tremor of emotion in his voice.

Prepared to Fight for Son.
"It is impossible for me to believe my boy guilty of such a crime as is charged to him," said Mr. Barron. "I know he must be unjustly accused. Knowing him as I do and realizing that he is a Barron, I couldn't think otherwise. I can't conceive of a boy of his blood and his training stopping so low as to commit a crime and especially take the life of his own wife, the woman who bore him four pretty little children.

"Feeling this way, I naturally will fight by his side through this affair, so long as I can save him and clear the family name which before me never has been besmirched. I will spend every penny I have in this world to save him, but I wish this understood—should the evidence be so conclusive as to convince me that he committed this crime, then I'll wash my hands of him.

"That may be hard to say, but I

Underwood Has Fact Expunged
From Record When It Is Decided at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Oscar W. Underwood's charge that Thomas Portune Ryan contributed $10,000 to the campaign fund of President Wilson when he ran for Governor of New Jersey made on the floor of the House does not appear in the Congressional Record to-day. It was expunged by the Democratic floor leader after he had been told by the White House that Mr. Wilson had received nothing from Mr. Ryan.

It can be said on the highest authority, however, that Mr. Underwood made the statement on information that came to him directly from persons so close to the multi-millionaire Wall street man that Mr. Underwood was justified in placing the greatest faith in its reliability and made the statement in his reply to the charges of Representative Hobson, of Alabama, with a full belief in its truth.

Harvey Sought Gift.
Notwithstanding the denial issued from the White House, the Georgia learned from one of its men chiefly instrumental in bringing about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor of New Jersey that Thomas Portune Ryan did contribute $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign.

Colonel George Harvey, according to this newspaper's informant, sought and obtained the contribution. From the same source it was ascertained that James Smith, Jr., former United States Senator from New Jersey, who at the time of Dr. Wilson's nomination for Governor was Mr. Underwood's "boss" of the Democratic party in his State, contributed to the neighborhood of $1,000 to elect Dr. Wilson Governor.

Over the long-distant telephone James Smith, who is at his home in Elberon, N. J., was asked if Mr. Ryan had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign. "I would respectfully refer you to Colonel George Harvey," he answered.

When a representative of The Georgian called Colonel Harvey's residence at Deal, N. J., on the telephone, a man who answered said:

"This is Colonel Harvey speaking. Questioned as to whether Mr. Ryan did or did not give $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial fund, he answered, 'I am Colonel Harvey's secretary. Colonel Harvey is out dining with friends and will not return until after midnight.'"

PRISONERS CHAINED FOR DAYS IN DARK DUNGEON, HE SAYS

Julian Hawthorne, the novelist, a free man Wednesday, after serving a term in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, told a startling story of his life as a convict, in which he called the Atlanta prison a "living hell," and said Warden Moyer was "unkind."

"With all the emphasis at his command, Hawthorne arraigned conditions in the penitentiary as repressive, cruel, and the equal of the most lurid descriptions in fiction.

"They are starving men in the name of economy," he said.

And Dr. W. J. Morton, of New York, his friend and fellow prisoner, nodded his head in corroboration.

"Prisoners are subjected to treatment that is nothing more than slow murder," said Dr. Morton, who is a practicing physician.

"In the short time they remained in Atlanta after their release, Hawthorne and Dr. Morton talked much of conditions at the penitentiary, jumping from one detail to the other with a dramatic swiftness that made the story harrowing.

"Oh, yes, you hear of the clean cells in which the prisoners sleep," said Hawthorne. "But you never hear of the 'hole,' do you? For the slightest fault, sometimes for breaking a plate, sometimes for a little more or less, a prisoner is sent to the 'hole,' a place under the main building for solitary confinement.

"There the hell is terrific at times, and the stench is bad. There some prisoners are chained by their wrists, and held thus with arms outstretched for hours.

And sometimes confinement in the 'hole' is for days."

Scores Prison Fare.
"But the element of hell is in the feeding," he continued, his eyes flashing. "There has never a man gone into the prison but who undergoes a steady deterioration, maybe slow, but always sure." The doctor will tell you that.

He waved at Dr. Morton, who nodded acquiescence.

"Men are put in prison to be cared for," said Dr. Morton, "not to be subjected to slow murder."

The two accepted the invitation of a Georgian reporter to ride about Atlanta. But once in the automobile, they forgot the city, and forgot to ask of one place after another. Hawthorne gripped the sides of his seat, and vowed vengeance on the system, which he described.

"And the treatment is always that of beasts or criminals," he went on. "There are always 120 guards and the rifles, giving the public the impression that the men in prison are wild men, or desperadoes. And now and then men are clubbed for little or nothing. There is a guard named Dean whom I have seen strike a prisoner over the head, and foe no justifiable offense."

Escaped Harsh Treatment.
The reporter wondered if Hawthorne himself had come in for such treatment, and asked him.

"No," said the novelist. "I have nothing at which to complain as to my treatment. But Dr. Morton and I were given pleasant work and were well treated otherwise. But there is

RE-GRADING OF WHITEHALL INJOINED

The regrading and repaving of Whitehall street between Fifteen and Thirtieth avenue, involving the expenditure of approximately $150,000, was postponed until the morning following the filing of a sensational petition for injunction by W. L. Kelley, proprietor of the Kelley Ice Company at No. 119 Whitehall street.

Judge Bell issued an order restraining the city and county from proceeding with the work pending a hearing next Saturday.

Mr. Kelley charges that the city officials deliberately framed a resolution ordering the work which is "intended to deceive the taxpayers" and which is "a fraud and a device practiced upon taxpayers wherein the city of Atlanta is illegally borrowing said money."

The County Commissioners are also charged as threatening to use funds of Fulton County, which are leased for other purposes in furthering and carrying out the illegal contract.

According to the petition, the resolution adopted by the city and county in by the county authorities provided that the property owners should pay into the city treasury the sum of $7,877.91, which is the difference between the estimated cost and the appropriation, and that this has never been paid, and further that it is not a payment but a loan, which is held to be illegal on the grounds that the petitioners say, "and the silence is a tacit assent to said resolution with reference to repayment of same that the drawing of the resolution was intended to deceive."

JULIAN HAWTHORNE, FREE MAN ONCE AGAIN

Tariff Clause That Aids U. S. Shipping To Stand-Underwood

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The per cent clause benefiting American shipping will be stricken by the clause do not worry Mr. Underwood. He thinks that the United States is well able to care for itself, should European nations attempt commercial reprisals.

Man Afraid to Tell About Shooting

A pistol exploded in the home of A. E. Statterfield, a cotton mill employee, at 21 Carroll street, Wednesday. The man's wife ran screaming from the house. She was badly bruised. To neighbors she declared, "I'll tell anything about it, he will kill me."

Statterfield was arrested. He declared the pistol exploded accidentally.

PRISONERS CHAINED FOR DAYS IN DARK DUNGEON, HE SAYS

Julian Hawthorne, the novelist, a free man Wednesday, after serving a term in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, told a startling story of his life as a convict, in which he called the Atlanta prison a "living hell," and said Warden Moyer was "nuff."

With all the emphasis at his command, Hawthorne arraigned conditions in the penitentiary as repressive, cruel, and the equal of the most lurid descriptions in fiction.

"They are starving men in the name of economy," he said. And Dr. W. J. Morton, of New York, his friend and fellow prisoner, nodded his head in corroboration.

"Prisoners are subjected to treatment that is nothing more than slow murder," said Dr. Morton, who is a practicing physician. "There is never enough to eat. The warden attempts to feed strong men on 9 cents a day, and when he succeeds he brags about it."

In the short time they remained in Atlanta after their release, Hawthorne and Dr. Morton talked much of conditions at the penitentiary, jumping from one detail to the other with a dramatic swiftness that made the story harrowing.

"On yes, you hear of the clean cells in which the prisoners sleep," said Hawthorne. "But you never hear of the 'hole,' a place for a little more or less, a prisoner is sent to the 'hole,' sometimes under the main building for solitary confinement.

"There the heat is terrific at times, and the stench is bad. Three some prisoners are chained by their wrists, and held thus with arms outstretched for hours. And sometimes confinement in the 'hole' is for days."

Scores Prison Fare. "But the element of hell is in the feeding," he continued, his eyes flashing. "There has never a man gone into the prison but who undergoes a steady deterioration maybe slow, but always sure. The doctor will tell you that."

He waved at Dr. Morton, who nodded acquiescence. "Men are put in prison to be cared for," said Dr. Morton, "not to be subjected to slow murder."

The two accepted the invitation of a Georgian reporter to ride about Atlanta. But once in the automobile, they forgot the city, and forgot to ask of one place after another. Hawthorne gripped the sides of his seat, and vowed vengeance on the system which struck him.

The student made every effort to keep the train and after the accident took the body of the boy and backed the train to Rowland Station.

Coroner Donahoe investigated the accident. There being eye-witnesses, no inquest will be held.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Oct. 15.—Roland P. Kelley, a Harvard junior, will lead an expedition to South American waters in search of two uncharted islands in which, according to the will of T. L. Kelley, his grandfather, he had a good dow and pearls.

Escaped Harsh Treatment. The reporter wondered Hawthorne himself had come in for such treatment, and asked him.

"No," said the novelist, "I have nothing at which to equate."

AFFINITY CHARGE IS DENIED BY MRS. PIERCE

Artist's Wife, Sued for Divorce, Calls Husband Weakling—Not to Fight if Given Child.

I am infatuated with no man. My twenty years of married life with Dr. Pierce was enough to last me until I wouldn't even smile at the sweetest man in the world. A child, indeed, would I have?

My husband was a jealous, nagging man—a weakling who would not defend his wife or even try to protect her. Always suspicious, he was ready and willing to believe anything I heard. When I was turned out of the church Dr. Pierce could have cleared my name of the stain, but he never stood by and helped me.

Devoted to Daughter. While Mrs. Pierce was talking her year-old daughter, Leatrice, came home from the grocery, her plump little arms loaded with groceries. Mrs. Pierce, a motherly-looking woman with a checked gingham house dress and wearing glasses, took the groceries from the child.

One could hardly look upon the gingham apron, the eyeglasses and that pretty little child and connect them with a petition for a divorce.

What have you to say concerning the trouble at church? Mrs. Pierce asked.

Mrs. Pierce hesitated, then sent the child from the room and told the story. There were tears in her eyes.

Accuser Now Dead. "A full hour dead," she started, went to the minister of the Poinsett Avenue Baptist Church where I was baptized and said I had seen God's woman, also a member of the church, and myself in company at Peter's Park. An investigation followed and we were asked to leave the church.

On the night I was supposed to have been with that man I was with my husband, and if he had wanted he could have proved my innocence.

If my husband will not try to get possession of Leatrice I do not think I will fight the case. I told him when we separated last year that if he would leave me the child he could get a divorce and I would not fight it. I think he could have had enough to have sent for one without coming to disagree both of us.

Dr. Pierce would not discuss the case and his attorney, Lawson Carey, would say nothing more than the petition charges. Dr. Pierce lives at No. 24 Poinsett avenue and his wife at No. 154 West Third street.

A policeman who stood around was almost knocked off his feet by the vision in the cute trousers, but he required his composure sufficiently to order Mrs. Plimton back to her stateroom to put on a skirt.

The diva protested violently, but the policeman was obdurate. The singer finally retired and appeared in a few moments garbed in conventional feminine attire.

ROME FOLK PLAN WAR ON DRY LAW

Anti-Prohibition Club Proposed to Make Liquor Issue in Next Gubernatorial Campaign.

ROME, Oct. 15.—Six hundred prominent citizens of Rome are planning to organize an anti-prohibition club to make prohibition a state issue in the next gubernatorial campaign.

The indictment of six officers of the "Six" club by the Grand Jury last week has served to crystallize sentiment on both sides. On the prohibition side, Senators Wright is already planning a campaign for the strict enforcement of the anti-liquor law.

It is said that the anti-prohibitionists in this section will be led by Wright Williamson, a nephew of Senators Wright, who recently made a sensational attack on the prohibitionists.

Senators Wright has just been successful in localizing the Webb liquor law, the City Council unanimously passing his ordinance which states that all express companies must report all shipments of whisky in the City Clerk six hours before delivery and that the clerk must in turn report to the Chief of Police, who will act as a liaison test to determine whether the whisky is for illegal purposes.

He had with him a letter of introduction from Superintendent LaDow.

Because Warden Meyer was out of the city other officials would not allow Dr. Richards to make his investigation.

Dr. Richards says Superintendent LaDow is responsible for the neglect of his trip here, and severely criticizes the superintendent.

No wonder the officials in the Atlanta prison did not want to make an investigation, with recommendations to Washington. They already have work enough to do and are underpaid as it is.

HOPE SLIGHT FOR 380 VICTIMS IN BURNING MINE

Flooding of Shafts to Check the Flames Adds Danger of Drowning Survivors.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. CARIBBEE WALES, Oct. 15.—Seven men, huddled together in a sub-chamber in the Universal Colliery, which was shattered by an explosion and fire on Tuesday, were rescued early today, after being entombed 25 hours. This gave hope that scores of the 380 still entombed might be saved.

Twenty-four hours after the fire broke out miners who had been working in shafts succeeded in getting the flames under control by flooding the mine. It is probable, however, that some of the miners may have been drowned.

Clouds of steam and poisonous fumes drove back the rescue squads and strong currents of air were turned into the pit to cleanse it of the deadly after-damp.

Stirred by the pathetic appeals of the families of the entombed men, the rescuers working with frenzied haste expert miners, however, refused to hold out too much hope.

Throughout the night thousands alternately watched and prayed upon the neighboring mountain heights.

Prayermen held a service at the mine head and offered up prayers for the safety of the men within.

DR. BARRON CLEARED OF POISONING CHARGE WHEN CHEMIST MAKES REPORT

covery of no trace of poison when seen by a Georgian reporter Wednesday. The progress of his tests from day to day indicated almost unmistakably that the chemical examination had revealed the presence of none of the poisons, and The Georgian Tuesday predicted as much when it became apparent that the analysis would be concluded by that evening.

The Barron poison mystery which had aroused three counties collapsed Wednesday with the reading of the report of Dr. Edgar Everhart, the Atlanta chemist, which stated that no poison was found in the stomach or other organs of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron.

LITTLE SPENCER, aged 4, one of the four children made motherless and temporarily fatherless by the Barron tragedy.

The following dispatch from Milner, where the disinterment was read, tells the story of the disinterment of a sensation which has stirred Henry Spaulding and Fred Cantelero.

MILNER, GA., Oct. 15.—The official report of Dr. Edgar Everhart, examining chemist of Atlanta, received here at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, showed that no poison was found in the vital organs of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron, whose husband Dr. Carey A. Barron, has been in jail in McDonough since last Friday, when a warrant charging him with her murder.

To Withdraw Charge. W. R. S. Mann, father of the dead woman, told The Georgian that he would withdraw the murder warrant and the release of his son-in-law, Dr. Barron, probably will be freed Friday as soon as Coroner Whitley can arrive from Dalton.

Mr. Mann was disappointed at the report, as he had expected his daughter had been poisoned. The family and friends of Dr. Barron are stated over the news.

"I knew my son was innocent and would be vindicated," cried Dr. J. M. F. Barron, father of the young physician, when the report was telephoned to him. Dr. Everhart in his report explained that he had thoroughly examined the various organs and had obtained only negative results. He searched for the various poisons, such as phosphorus, arsenic acid and strychnine, and for mineral poisons, such as arsenic, mercury and the mercury salt for organic poisons, including the alkaloids.

Expert Corroborates. Dr. Everhart corroborated the dispatch from Milner telling of the disinterment.

Appetite Ho! Ho! 'Tis a Great Joy

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Are the Best Appetite Makers Dyspepsia and Stomach Sufferers Can Use.

Appetite is very largely a matter of signals from the stomach. When one has a running appetite the stomach is empty of food the stomach through its connection with the brain sends out signals which enable it to receive food.

The stomach is healthy and you eat at once your mouth waters and you are hungry from desire—keenly, nervously hungry. If the stomach is sick, then we have no appetite and are actually nauseated.

Water—"How's your appetite to day, sir?" "Great—Bully good. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make me eat like a king."

Appetite makes the glands of the mouth open and send "mouth water" to the brain. This is the first digestive step. It has an important office to perform as all watery foods are partially dissolved by it because one of its ingredients, pepsin, is almost an instant digestive of watery food. This process reduces the stomach to food to digest.

Appetite causes a free flow of saliva into the stomach. By its ability to mix the food eaten with mouth juices which enables it to more readily digest it.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into the mouth like food, are eaten, then dissolved and multiplied by the stomach. This mass then goes into the stomach where quickly reaching the stomach juices so that in a short time food is more readily digested and he is hungry in a healthy way.

shortly, and for this reason the un-forgotten rumor which circulated at McDonough that he had discovered traces of poison, a report which the official announcement discredited entirely.

The early completion of the tests made the outlook favorable for Dr. Barron. It was urged by the loyal friends who are standing by the accused man that if the presence of some alkaloidal poison had been discovered by Dr. Everhart Tuesday it probably would have required him considerable longer to determine just which of the alkaloids it was. Because Dr. Everhart finished so early in the day, his friends believed no poison of any kind had been found.

A report emanated in McDonough, however, that Dr. Everhart had discovered poison, and the excitement there was intense. The alleged murder was the topic on every tongue.

At Milner a crowd stormed the central of Georgia train Tuesday night and bought up every copy of The Georgian to be had. Many were unable to get papers, so great was the demand. The situation was the same at Griffin and Milledgeville.

A tense feeling of suppressed excitement was manifest on every hand in anticipation of the report. Nevertheless could be heard wherever two people met. It was the sole topic. A crowd assembled about the postoffice in Milner last night when Dr. H. H. Kelly, to whom the report is to be sent, called for his mail, and disappointment was seen when the package failed to arrive.

W. R. S. Mann, father of the dead Mrs. Barron, authorized this statement: "I heartily appreciate the interest of The Georgian in this investigation. I believe this is the sentiment of everyone in Milner. The Georgian has brought out the facts. It is the only paper that has published the real news. I feel that The Georgian, by its fair and accurate reporting, is a wonderful aid to justice."

J. S. Littlejohn, one of the managers of the Six Farmers Union warehouse here, said: "The Georgian is the only paper."

WHITE HALL ST. WORK HALTED BY COURT

The upgrading and regrading of Whitehall street between Mitchell and Trinity avenue, involving the expenditure of approximately $100,000, was held up Wednesday morning following the filing of a sensational petition for injunction by W. L. Kelley, proprietor of the Cash Grocery Company, at No. 119 Whitehall street.

The County Commissioners, he also charged, are threatening to sue the funds of Fulton County, which are taxed for other purposes, in furthering and carrying out the illegal contract.

According to the petition, the re-grading, adopted by the city and concurred in by the county authorities, provided that the property owners should pay into the city treasury the sum of $2,000, which is the difference between the estimated cost and the expenditure, and that this fee never been paid, and further that the city of Atlanta is without authority to contract such a debt.

Judge Bell issued an order restraining the city and county from proceeding with the work pending a hearing next Saturday.

HARMON'S GIFT TO UNDERWOOD BARRED BY DEBATE

Underwood is Given Information That Financier Gave Money Through Col. Harvey.

The campaign has now progressed far enough to enable the Democratic voters to know the methods that are being exploited by the Wall street crowd to capture the Baltimore convention.

Mr. Harmon was picked out first, but the big business began to smile on Mr. Underwood as soon as it became known that Mr. Harmon was not making headway as a candidate.

Had I known that Thomas Fortune Ryan, the man whom Mr. Bryan rebuked and named at the Baltimore convention and accused of being the tool of Wall street, had been trying to capture the party in the interest of Wall street, was financing the major part of the campaign of Oscar W. Underwood, not only would I have supported him but I would have fought him, and what is more, he never would have been the choice of the people of Alabama.

False Postures Charged. "Mr. Speaker, the support of the people of Alabama was secured for Underwood by the use of false promises. I here declare that their support of him for the United States Senate shall not be similarly obtained under false promises."

Mr. Underwood replying to Harmon's statement, said: "Mr. Speaker, I will say to this House that no man and no interest, no matter how great or important, has ever used me as a tool or dummy for private career."

There was an animated passage at arms between Harmon and Underwood when the former attempted to speak before the House on an exact statement of his charges.

Hobson is Challenged. Mr. Underwood did not charge me in Montana, or anywhere else in Alabama, with being a tool of Wall street or a dummy for private career. Mr. Underwood will tell the gentleman that during the ten years in which I have been elected to the Congress of the United States I have never been subjected to my Congressional campaign fund except myself or my father, that I have never sought the support of the liquor interests in any State in the Union.

Special Cause to The Atlanta Georgian.
LONDON, Oct. 15.—In the presence of two royal brides, George of England and Hakin of Norway, and their guests, as well as many other notable, including members of royal families, diplomats and members of the State, Alexandra, Duchess of York, was married to Prince Arthur of Connaught in the Chapel Royal, of St. James Palace, at 11 o'clock.

The event, which was the first royal wedding in England since 1850, when Princess Margaret of Connaught became the bride of the Crown Prince of Sweden, was gorgeous in every respect.

An account of the throng of military suffragettes to break up the wedding is a solid line of police and soldiers was drawn about the palace and along the main route, followed by the guests.

Clings to Royal Carriage.
The wife suffragette appeared on the scene in the carriage (literally) under the door, and she was taken away into the Mall near the entrance of the palace and attempted to climb in into a carriage which carried King George and Queen Mary.

The suffragette, being on the door of the royal carriage, screaming "Give us votes for women!" immediately she was seized, but she was not held for more than a few minutes. She was then taken away from the carriage and the carriage did not stop.

When the crowd learned that the woman had done a post was made for her. Her dress was nearly torn off by hitting, screaming and kicking as she was dragged off to the police station with a howling mob following.

After the ceremony, when the party was leaving the palace, suffragettes made an attempt to hold up the carriage containing Queen Mother Alex-

CHAMBERLIN-JOHNSON-DuBOSE CO. ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

Thursday We Will Show for the First Time in Atlanta a Copy of M. Paul Poiret's 1913 Masterpiece The "Minaret" Gown

It is exhibited in a big crystal case in the ready-to-wear section, second floor. Paul Poiret started even Paris very recently when he exploited the "Minaret" gown. It is a season of things Oriental, he says, and this is his interpretation of Orientalism.

This copy that Atlanta folk may see is worked out in white chantly lace and pink charmeuse. The "Minaret" or bodice is of the chantly lace with a silver tinsel braid forming suspender effect front and back, extending below waist line, ending in a beaded tassel.

The underslip—of pink charmeuse, is draped at the side. It is a decided departure from anything the season has brought out, and no one will deny, a charming and graceful departure; indeed the creation of an artist. You are invited to see it.

Among the New Arrivals Are Many Velvet and Velour Suits

The reason is that, as the makers would say, "velvets and velours are strong."

Which is their way of saying that Paris has spoken in the soft tones of velvets and velours.

It is remarkable to note how these skillful men have used rich pile fabrics. We have been accustomed, in former seasons, to thinking of them as rather unwieldy and stiff.

Just the reverse is true now. Velvets and velours are supple, lending themselves to the most graceful tailoring and to the vogue that says things must drape and enfold and cling.

The result is—exquisite tailored suits! There are many models to choose from—in many shades.

Yours may be a cutaway, or it may be a smart, short coat, simulating a cutaway or with a girdled back. It may have a little vestee—most of them have—of a Dresden silk or an Oriental velour—and it will probably have a bit of fur about it—a "chocker" collar or cuffs of skunk.

And still—Velvet and velour suits are but one phase of the suit question as it is seen and answered here.

There are those sturdy chevots and mixtures and serges, smart, trim, tailored to perfection, with style in every line and service in every stitch. The variety inspires confidence. It makes choosing easy.

It robs us—even were we so inclined—of the necessity of urging customers one way or the other. You may have spread before you suit after suit until you light upon the one you want.

Rather satisfactory to have such a suit store to depend on, isn't it?

This Is a Good Time to Select the New Corset that is going to play such an important part in the fashions this season. For the new dresses and suits are built on the supposition that the wearer will be corseted according to very sensible and graceful fashion of this good fall season of 1913.

So we have Miss Jackson, who is up on corsets, an expert in the real sense of the word, here for the week to show the women of Atlanta all about and how it molds the figure to those lines that conform to the lines of the dresses and suits. It is well worth a woman's time to give a few minutes right now to the fitting of a corset—and then it will be done and done right for the whole season.

Johnston Writes on Base Stealing

By Jimmy Johnston. (Former Southern League Player and Leading Base Stealer of the Pacific Coast League.) Successful base stealers owe their success to different qualifications. Some players are very fast and steal bases due to their great speed; others take a big lead off the base and get away to a good start, and still others employ the book and leading side to enable them to slip safely. It is seldom that two successful base stealers adopt the same tactics.

BILLY SMITH HAD BEST BIG SERIES WUNCH

Every Turn Called by Shrewd Atlanta Manager in Articles for the Georgian.

By O. B. Keeler. COMES a letter from Billy Smith which may excite a trifle of overtime gloating on the part of the Atlanta fans who have a partiality for Billy and his baseball ways.

WILL boys as Billy "how do you like my bunch now?" Not only did he win the series, and there were a lot of real exciting moments in the other way. And you may remember that I said as early as Thursday that I looked for the series to end that week, meaning the Athletics would win in eight games, after that had won the series.

BILLY didn't know he would be expected in this shameless manner by the public, but he didn't say so. He said he would be glad to go to print and it's our private business to go to print and get credit for it. He was in the game with MacBeth and To Cobb and Sam Johnson and a lot of chaps that are not a part of the bunch. Billy's dope is to have to hand it to Billy.

BILLY gave his reasons for selecting the Athletics in the series. He wrote for the Sunday American just before the game that he had a hunch that the Athletics were the best team in the world. He said the Giants pitchers were not so good as the Athletics. He said he expected Christy to win the first game and the Athletics to win the second.

And Billy alone of all the dopers called the Athletics to win the series. He said he had a hunch that the Athletics were the best team in the world. He said he expected Christy to win the first game and the Athletics to win the second.

Several hundred fans heard the Athletics were not so good as the Athletics. He said he expected Christy to win the first game and the Athletics to win the second.

BIRMINGHAM'S PLAYERS SUFFER FROM INJURIES

ATHENS, GA., Oct. 15. — It was necessary to call the off at practice yesterday afternoon to see how many Red and Black players are really on the hospital list. It was found that no less than six players were on the hospital list. Three from the game Saturday and three from the game Sunday. The players who were put out of commission in the game Saturday were: Bill Carey, the lightning back, who was injured by the hole left in the center of the line; and three other players. Tech Coach Discusses "On-side Kick"—Reviews Games of Last Week

HEISMAN SEES FEW CHANGES IN FOOTBALL STYLE

By J. W. Heisman. EVERYONE has the football fan's variety of opinions as to what will bring out in the playing of the game. Every fall for the past recent years the rule book has shown more or less changes. It is a very common assumption to think that the playing of the game from year to year.

Vanderbilt's 4-6 against Central of Kentucky looks like a very creditable performance to me, for Central, while not extra strong for a college team, is yet rather more, other, and different again from a prep team. Exactly the same thing may with justice be said about Auburn's splendid victory over Florida. So it is a very hard thing to say whether the Commodore or the Athletes have the inside edge just at present. Both games go further toward showing what I said a week ago—that the game between those two is going to be a very tedious affair in mid-November and will, I frankly admit, decide the championship in my humble opinion.

The Red and Black rolled up another very impressive score against the University of North Carolina, a victory and still those victories of Vanderbilt, Auburn, and even that of Tennessee, too, a shade better than do Georgia's, for the simple reason that Central and Florida and even Maryland are supposed to play better ball than does Davidson. However, that doesn't always tell the tale, for you never know when a team has done its best and when it hasn't—whether it has rolled up the best possible score against an opponent or whether it purposely refrained from so doing.

RED AND WHITE WILD TO BEAT RED AND BLACK

TECH TEAM still Green. The Tech team has football promise and the men will make real players in time, but as I have said before, they are too new to vary too much before the season is over. But what they are going to do on an particular day will depend a whole lot on whether the coaches can succeed in getting them to close their jaws with a snap on that day, or whether their forces are treated in a matter of self-satisfaction.

Michigan Is Turned Down by Conference

URBANA, ILL., Oct. 15.—The University of Illinois Senate rejected the proposal of the Board of Regents of the University of Michigan for the return of Michigan to the conference. Michigan's suggestion would make it possible for one institution to withdraw from the entire conference. The Senate statement said: "The resolution would give any of the schools a precedent for the 'big nine' was organized."

THOMPSON will take up the work at least five yards back of his own rush line in making a punter now operate to get the quarterback's standing close behind his own line, put his foot in it for a quick, short kick, which any or all of the halfback men who were standing behind the line at the instant of the kick are eligible to capture either on the ground or in the air. If they are able to get it ahead of the opponent's line, the trouble about this old-time outside kick as it is used is that since that day the forward pass has come into use, and along with the forward pass of putting the offense has come the strategy of moving to meet it of putting a man out of play and in the meantime line of defense. And these "side backs" now are not only stationed in the best place to get forward passes but they happen to stand just where the old-time outside kick used to go, and they are much more liable to secure one of these outside kicks than they are even a forward pass.

There was one upset to the dope world commenting today. That was Alabama's decisive defeat of Clemson. By this I do not mean to imply that I thought Clemson would win. I expected that they would. But I was surprised to find that Alabama had won. I thought that Alabama would win. I expected that they would. But I was surprised to find that Alabama had won.

The Long, Tenacious Life of the Smoke Nuisance

It Still Hovers Over Atlanta, But Determined Action by Council Could Kill It Quickly.

Atlanta's smoke nuisance is as old as the city itself. For years it thrived on lax laws and polluted the finest air enjoyed by any city east of the Mississippi river.

During the last twelve months the cloud that once hovered over us has constantly become thinner and weaker.

For such work of relief as has been accomplished, the citizens of Atlanta should give the authorities thanks.

Having been relieved partially, however, it will not do for the city to permit either itself or the City Council to think that Atlanta is satisfied, and that the smoke problem, even partially solved, is a thing of the past.

The smoke laws are not all they should be, of course. The work consummated under them, therefore, necessarily would be incomplete, in any event.

A number of office buildings, apartment houses, hotels, and industrial plants have complied with the ordinance. All flagrant violators, with a few exceptions, have been brought within reasonable limits of submission, relatively speaking. Others are making such changes as soon will make submission upon their part more nearly an accomplished fact.

For these things, Atlanta should render thanks and appreciation to whomsoever the same are due. The smoke nuisance has been relieved to some extent—that admission may be made ungrudgingly.

Experts believe that additional ordinances should be passed, AND THE SOONER THE BETTER!

The limits in which black smoke may be released should be cut down from twelve to six minutes in each hour. These same experts say further that residences with 1,000 feet of radiation, or more, should be included within the new ordinance.

The railroads are reported to be "considering" still what they may do to help Atlanta in getting rid of its superabundance of smoke and grime, but beyond "considering," the roads do not seem to have performed extensively.

Finally, the City Council appears to have more or less forgotten the smoke problem, and since last year's agitation—vehement enough, while it lasted—that honorable body has left the Smoke Board to proceed along the lonesome road to reform rather to itself! But for the fact that council had a little more to say than anybody about the smoke nuisance originally, its late indifference might not be so marked.

Over and beyond all that has been done, however—which isn't so very much—the big, compelling, and annoying fact remains that ATLANTA STILL SUFFERS FAR BEYOND HER DESERTS BY REASON OF THE SMOKE NUISANCE!

The mere circumstance that the trouble isn't as acute as it was a year ago—not quite so acute, anyway—doesn't set off the larger circumstance that IT YET IS ACUTE BEYOND REASON.

Atlanta can get rid of its smoke—surely Atlanta CAN do that!

Atlanta must go the limit in the effort, at least!

Appearance, comfort and health demand that this beautiful city be freed of this smoke nuisance—freed utterly and for all time!

The Smoke Board's expressed opinion that it "may be years yet before Atlanta is freed of its unnecessary smoke" will not do. It fails to satisfy in any measure even the most highly appreciative ones with respect to the work already effected.

In one's honest and more or less strenuous endeavor to keep his eye on the good already accomplished, it is still impossible for him not to see that a vast work yet remains to be done!

WHAT WILL THE AUTHORITIES DO ABOUT IT?

The smoke we have with us always—or have had, thus far. What the people want is to see it removed from the attention of their senses generally.

Atlanta should be so everlastingly ASHAMED of its smoke nuisance that the question of its rapid abatement should go unchallenged!

And while duly appreciative, as aforesaid, of what has gone before—the City Council should renew its anti-smoke endeavor. AND SHOW THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY THE WAY TO A QUICK END OF THE LONG AND TORTUOUS ROAD THEY TOO LONG HAVE TRAVELED!

The Red Coats in Boston

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

WHEN I look back upon the two regiments of British regulars landed at Boston, it was written down in the Book of Fate that the War of the Revolution was on. To be sure, the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future and Lexington battle was not to be for nearly seven years, but the coming of the redcoats was King George's challenge to the colonists, which they were sure to pick up, answering the King's arguments in kind, giving him battle for justice and sword-thrust for sword-thrust.

The affairs of men, no less than the phenomena of the material world, are determined by law. Something happens—and then, in consequence of that, something else happens. It is quite possible that but for the sending of the redcoats the Peace of St. Germain would have been the result, and that the North American continent would have been the King's property.

The Invisible Highways of the Air

"Long Observation Has Shown That There Exists Well-Marked Tracks Which Migrating Birds Followed Year After Year and They Evidently Have Landmarks to Guide Them."

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE just learned of a singular thing which happened this autumn on the famous pass of the Great St. Bernard over the Alps.

The hospitable monks in the monastery at the summit of the pass, at an elevation of more than 8,000 feet above sea level, were astonished one evening to see, in the midst of a sudden snowstorm, a black cloud approaching from the north.

The strange apparition soon resolved itself into a vast flock of swallows, which had apparently been driven from their roost near the bedding of their annual migration toward the mountain lands on the south of the great mountains. Probably they had been confined by the driving storm.

The monks instantly opened wide all their doors and windows, and the poor birds, accepting the invitation in the spirit in which it was offered, immediately swarmed into the warm halls by thousands and even these into the hot chambers of the monks, who welcomed them freely wherever they chose to go.

They were fed and lodged for the night, and the next morning when the doors and windows were opened amid a burst of warm sunshine, the birds, joyfully, and we may suppose thankfully, with a multitudinous fluttering of wings, took their departure toward the south, quickly descending into the genial atmosphere of Italy.

Then the good monks went forth and the newly fallen snow, and with heavy hearts, found hundreds of birds scattered about on the mountain side, where they had perished, being unable in the blinding storm to find their way, by their comrades, into the hospitable shelter of the monastery.

This incident, so full of the milk of human kindness, recalls one of the most mysterious of bird life. It is known that few species of birds remain in northern climes during the winter. With unerring instinct they discern the approaching close of the warm season, and start in time to reach more sunny lands before they are overtaken by the invading snows.

Long observation has shown that there exist well-marked tracks which these migrating birds follow year after year on their way both to the south in autumn and back to the north in spring. They go in immense flocks, travel thousands of miles, and only a pelting storm can drive them temporarily out of their aerial roads. Generation after generation the birds take the same invisible way through the air. Many of them fly at great height, and evidently show, and make it their rendezvous for the final flight to the south. Many nations of birds encounter there, as at a great caravansary, where meeting caravans pass the night and refresh themselves. A hundred avian tongues are spoken at once among the flowery gardens and precipitous rocks of the town and citadel.

The Hoopstern is another center of bird routes. They come from Germany, Austria and even Sweden. In our country the Mississippi valley is a great route for bird migration. Other routes lie along the Atlantic coast.

It was long before many naturalists could persuade themselves that birds really traveled so far through the air twice every year. Even the great observer Gilbert White was misled, all his life, by the false notion that many swallows instead of leaving England for the winter passed the frosty months slumbering likeibernic animals in sheltered spots, and even buried in mud.

Those who know most about the life of the inhabitants of the air find the most mystery in it. Says Lord Falbe, the veteran naturalist, whom France has recently honored with honors: "We talk wonderingly about the X-rays which traverse opaque bodies and photograph hidden things. A fine discovery!"

But how insignificant in comparison with the astonishment that the future holds in store for us when better instructed in the reasons of things, and supplementing by art the feebleness of our senses, we shall that, however imperfectly, the sensorial autenses of wild and man of the country that he intends to traverse, without which he would inevitably lose his way. Even with his map he often becomes lost when darkness comes to obscure the land. The birds have no maps, but they do not lose their way. They possess a topographic, or geographic, sense superior to ours. They know the mountains and plains and the points of the compass better than we do.

Sometimes their way lies for long distances over the sea. That does not disconcert them. If they encounter a ship they will, occasionally, rest their weary wings on its spars, but when they resume their course there is no hesitation. They are not troubled, like the man, who looks with equal wonder upon their arrival and departure, with questions of latitude and longitude.

They have no need to consult the pole star, or to "shoot the sun," in order to find out where they are. They carry no chronometers, and their inherent wisdom expresses the knowledge of the Nautical Almanac. There are spots on the earth which are the great crossroads for the aerial travelers. The Rock of Gibraltar is one of these. There are others in the Atlantic, the walled invaders take the impetuous flight over Africa, the north, northeast, northwest. From each star the constant flow of England lying on the Mediterranean;

DEAR FRIEND: "Please permit me to call your attention to a great and serious evil now menacing our insect-eating birds. Millions of small birds in migration are destroyed yearly by the people of the Southern States and used as food. This destruction, now increasing, is having serious effect on the numbers of song birds in the North. Negroes are armed with guns, and many are proficent in other means of destruction. In the North, also, large numbers of foreign laborers coming from Europe kill small birds for food. It is only recently that little birds were sold in large quantities in New York City, and they are still sold by thousands in the South.

The Audubon societies, which have already checked the killing of native birds for military purposes, now propose to stop the slaughter of song birds for food in this country. This is a stupendous task. It must be done by educating the public through the schools, the press and the clergy, and by securing better laws and BETTER ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS now on the statute books. The scarcity of robins, bluebirds and hooligans is becoming noticeable over wide areas. Will you not help us to the best of your ability to stop the slaughter of song birds for food in this country. The Long, Tenacious Life of the Smoke Nuisance

It Still Hovers Over Atlanta, But Determined Action by Council Could Kill It Quickly.

Atlanta's smoke nuisance is as old as the city itself. For years it thrived on lax laws and polluted the finest air enjoyed by any city east of the Mississippi river.

During the last twelve months the cloud that once hovered over us has constantly become thinner and weaker.

For such work of relief as has been accomplished, the citizens of Atlanta should give the authorities thanks.

Having been relieved partially, however, it will not do for the city to permit either itself or the City Council to think that Atlanta is satisfied, and that the smoke problem, even partially solved, is a thing of the past.

The smoke laws are not all they should be, of course. The work consummated under them, therefore, necessarily would be incomplete, in any event.

A number of office buildings, apartment houses, hotels, and industrial plants have complied with the ordinance. All flagrant violators, with a few exceptions, have been brought within reasonable limits of submission, relatively speaking. Others are making such changes as soon will make submission upon their part more nearly an accomplished fact.

For these things, Atlanta should render thanks and appreciation to whomsoever the same are due. The smoke nuisance has been relieved to some extent—that admission may be made ungrudgingly.

Experts believe that additional ordinances should be passed, AND THE SOONER THE BETTER!

The limits in which black smoke may be released should be cut down from twelve to six minutes in each hour. These same experts say further that residences with 1,000 feet of radiation, or more, should be included within the new ordinance.

The railroads are reported to be "considering" still what they may do to help Atlanta in getting rid of its superabundance of smoke and grime, but beyond "considering," the roads do not seem to have performed extensively.

Finally, the City Council appears to have more or less forgotten the smoke problem, and since last year's agitation—vehement enough, while it lasted—that honorable body has left the Smoke Board to proceed along the lonesome road to reform rather to itself! But for the fact that council had a little more to say than anybody about the smoke nuisance originally, its late indifference might not be so marked.

Over and beyond all that has been done, however—which isn't so very much—the big, compelling, and annoying fact remains that ATLANTA STILL SUFFERS FAR BEYOND HER DESERTS BY REASON OF THE SMOKE NUISANCE!

The mere circumstance that the trouble isn't as acute as it was a year ago—not quite so acute, anyway—doesn't set off the larger circumstance that IT YET IS ACUTE BEYOND REASON.

Atlanta can get rid of its smoke—surely Atlanta CAN do that.

Atlanta must go the limit in the effort, at least!

Appearance, comfort and health demand that this beautiful city be freed of this smoke nuisance—freed utterly and for all time!

The Smoke Board's expressed opinion that it "may be years yet before Atlanta is freed of its unnecessary smoke" will not do. It fails to satisfy in any measure even the most highly appreciative ones with respect to the work already effected.

In one's honest and more or less strenuous endeavor to keep his eye on the good already accomplished, it is still impossible for him not to see that a vast work yet remains to be done!

WHAT WILL THE AUTHORITIES DO ABOUT IT?

Will the smoke we have with us always—or have had, thus far. What the people want is to see it removed from the attention of their senses generally.

Atlanta should be so overwhelmingly ASHAMED of its smoke nuisance that the question of its rapid abatement should go unchallenged!

And while duly appreciative, as aforesaid, of what has gone before—the City Council should renew its anti-smoke endeavor, AND SHOW THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY THE WAY TO A QUICK END OF THE LONG AND TORTUROUS ROAD THEY TOO LONG HAVE TRAVELED!

The Red Coats in Boston
By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

WHEN 144 years ago, the two regiments of British regulars landed at Boston, it was written down in the Book of Fate that the War of the Revolution was on. To be sure, the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington battle was not to be for nearly seven years, but the coming of the redcoats was King George's challenge to the colonists, which they were sure to pick up, answering the King's arguments in kind, giving him battle for better and speedier than for ever—that

The affairs of men, no less than the phenomena of the material world, are determined by law. Something happens—and then, in consequence of that something, something else happens. It is quite possible that but for the sending of the redcoats the Cause of St. George would today be waving over the whole of the North American continent. It was the King's attempt to answer the reasonable arguments of the colonies with cannon and muskets that made the breach permanent and the separation irrevocable. It was the way that had been popular for countless ages, the way by which despots had been settling things from the beginning of history, and the stubborn, thick-headed King did not realize that a new time had come, a time in which reason rather than brute force was to be the final judge in all great disputes, and be blindly wedded on to his doom.

As Americans the proud citizens of the world's greatest and noblest nation, we are very glad that the regulars came to Boston, for it has turned out that the separation from the mother country was the best thing that could have happened for America, for England and for the whole human race. Nevertheless, we can not help thinking of what might have been but for the landing of the redcoats through Boston street,

The Invisible Highways of the Air

"Long Observation Has Shown That There Exists Well-Marked Tracks Which Migrating Birds Followed Year After Year and They Evidently Have Landmarks to Guide Them."

By GARRETT P. SERVIS

I HAVE just learned of a singular thing which happened this autumn on the famous pass of the Great St. Bernard over the Alps.

The hospitable monks in the monastery at the summit of the pass, at an elevation of more than 8,000 feet above sea-level, were astonished one evening to see, in the midst of a sudden snowstorm, a black cloud approaching from the north.

The strange apparition soon resolved itself into a vast flock of swallows, which had apparently been driven from their roost near the beginning of their annual migration toward the sunnier lands on the south of the great mountains. Probably they had been confused, by the driving storm.

The monks instantly opened wide all their doors and windows, and the poor birds, accepting the invitation in the spirit in which it was offered, immediately swarmed into the warm halls by thousands, and even flew into the bed-chambers of the monks, who welcomed them freely wherever they chose to go.

They were fed and lodged for the night, and the next morning when the doors and windows were opened amid a burst of warm sunshine, the birds joyfully, and we may suppose, thankfully, with a multitudinous fluttering of wings, took their departure toward the south, quietly descending into the gentler atmosphere of Italy.

Then the good monks went forth amid the newly fallen snow, and, with heavy hearts, found hundreds of birds scattered about on the mountain side, where they had perished, being unable in the blinding storm to find their way, with their comrades, into the hospitable shelter of the monastery.

This incident, so full of the milk of human kindness, recalls one of the great mysteries of bird life. It is known that few species of birds remain in northern climes during the winter. With unerring instinct they discern the approaching close of the warm season, and start in time to reach more sunny lands before they are overtaken by the invading snows.

They have landmarks to guide them. When an aviator starts in his aeroplane on a long voyage he has on a pivoted board before him a map of the country that he intends to traverse, without which he would inevitably lose his way. Even with his map he often becomes helpless when darkness covers the land. The birds have no maps, but night can not lead them astray. They must possess a topographic, or geographic, sense superior to ours. They know the mountains and plains and the points of the compass better than we do.

Sometimes their way lies for long distances over the sea. That does not disconcert them. If they encounter a ship they will, occasionally, rest their weary wings on its spars, but when they resume their course there is no hesitation. They are not troubled, like the mariner, who looks with equal wonder upon their arrival and departure, with questions of latitude and longitude.

They have no need to consult the pole star, or to "shoot the sun," in order to find out where they are. They carry no chronometers, and their laborious science exceeds the knowledge of the Nautical Almanac.

There are spots on the earth which are like great crossroads for the aerial travelers. The Rock of Gibraltar is one of these. There the routes of the birds come to a focus. Before they transit the straits to spread over Africa, the winged travelers take the impressive fortress-rock by storm. From north, northeast, northwest, they essay after the constant lion of England lying on the Mediterranean shore, and make it their rendezvous for the final flight to the south. Many nations of birds encounter there, as at a great caravansary, where meeting caravans pass the night and refresh themselves. A hundred avian tongues are spoken at once among the flower gardens and precipitous rocks of the town and citadel.

The Bosphorus is another center of bird roads. They come from Germany, Austria and even Sweden. In our country the Mississippi Valley is a great route for bird migration. Other routes lie along the Atlantic Coast.

It was long before many naturalists could persuade themselves that birds really traveled so far through the air twice every year. Even the great observer Gilbert White was misled, all his life, by the false notion that many swallows instead of quitting England for the winter passed the frosty months slumbering, like hibernating animals, in sheltered spots, and even buried in mud!

Those who know most about the life of the inhabitants of the air find the most mystery in it. Says Henri Fabre, the veteran naturalist, whom France has recently honored with honors: "We talk wonderingly about the X rays which traverse opaque bodies and photograph hidden things. A fine discovery!"

But how insignificant in comparison with the astonishment that the future holds in store for us when better instructed in the reasons of things and supplementing our shell of ignorance with the perfect, the essential, the scientific of wild animals.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on Protecting Birds

Boys Should Be Taught Not to Shoot Them, and Schools and Mothers Should Combine to This End.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Copyright, 1913. "D" BY EAR FRIEND)

"Please permit us to call your attention to a great and serious evil now menacing our insect-eating birds. Millions of small birds in migration are destroyed yearly by the people of the Southern States and used as food. This destruction, now increasing, is having serious effect on the numbers of song birds in the North. Negroes are armed with guns, and many are proficient in other means of destruction. In the North, also, large numbers of foreign laborers coming from Europe kill small birds for food. It is only recently that little birds were sold in large quantities in New York City, and they are still sold by thousands in the South.

The Audubon societies, which have already checked the killing of native birds for millinery purposes, now propose to stop the slaughter of song birds for food in this country. This is a stupendous task. It must be done by educating the public through the schools, the press and the clergy, and by securing better laws and BETTER ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS now on the statute books. The severity of robbers, bluebirds and bobolinks is becoming noticeable over wide areas. Will you not help us to the best of your ability to stop the slaughter which is now depopulating our fields and woods of feathered songsters? A word of encouragement would be appreciated.

Yours sincerely, "T. GILBERT PEARSON," Secretary. This letter ought to reach the heart and the brain of every man and woman of common sense and common sensibility in our land. It ought to reach the hearts of mothers of young sons who have arrived at an age where they want to express their manly qualities by using a gun. All boys are only a degree less menacing in the hands of young lads than revolvers in the hands of gunmen.

Every year distressing accidents or crippled, and the precious lives of beautiful birds are sacrificed, while the killing instinct in growing children is cultivated and fostered. All because women believe themselves to be "good mothers," and consider they are cultivating the manliness in their little boys by providing them with guns for amusement.

Mothers, if the mother began as soon as her little boy could talk, or understand, to awaken in his heart a love and sympathy for birds and beasts, and if she then stipulated that his gun practice should consist wholly in target shooting under proper guidance and instruction, her boy would grow up skilled as a good marksman and yet humane and kindly in his habits.

Every man should know how to use a gun and revolver. There are occasions when such knowledge is important. But there is no part of a youth's education which needs a more careful and wise preparation, and guidance, than this.

Not one boy in a thousand receives this preparation and guidance.

The average boy teases for a gun, and receives it as a birthday or Christmas gift, and proceeds to use it after being told to be careful by the "loving parent," who goes away and leaves him to his amusement.

At one of the resorts not far from the city, a woman made herself unpopular with her neighbors (members of some of the alien race), by telling the boys they must not aim at or shoot birds of any kind on her grounds. Her action was considered impertinent, and her words of advice to the boys to study bird lore and learn kindness were considered impertinent.

There is nothing our public schools need more than to include this education which the Audubon Society offers in the school courses. If you, dear madam, who peruse these lines, want to help make this beautiful world more beautiful and less sad, if you want to aid in forming higher ideals and kinder instincts in the rising generation, in ordering or trimming your autumn hat try and use good common sense, and a little individual taste, and wear a hat which is becoming and beautiful and entirely devoid of any part of a dead bird. Plumes from the ostrich do not mean the destruction of that bird, for the ostrich is a robust fowl and the plumes grow while the ostrich exists, just as the goose grows new down each year, but heath plumes, there are exquisite grasses and flowers, and leaves and jets, and velvets and ribbons and other trimmings which can make headgear attractive.

Use your good taste and ask old ideas in building you a hat. Remember the crowgey and its grate mean the death and torture of the mother birds, and the slow starvation of their young as a rule. Any refined woman should be ashamed to wear a hat with an algerette. Span glass and preserved grasses and ferns produce quite as artistic effects. Help the Audubon Society save birds.

REACHING
By WILLIAM F. RIRK.

A baby might reach for its mother's hand when it hears the well-known voice: As a pilgrim might reach in a foreign land For a friend with whom to rejoice; Roaming about o'er a desert bare I reach for you—and you are not there. I have tried so long for a second choice That I know 'tis a fruitless quest; I have sighed so long for your gentle voice That I pray for the endless rest. Even in dreams and delirium I reach for you—and you never come. The endless rest! 'Tis the only boon I ask of the powers that be; The rest that follows the mystic swoon This side of Eternity. Out in the Star Land vague and vast, If I reach for you, will you come at last?

Stars and Stripes

Don't hear of any one capturing the price of potatoes, peas since the tariff was lowered. Arkansas compels citizens to give five minutes a day for the Stars and Stripes. Good for Arkansas! Who wants a dearest citizen? How who makes a dearest citizen has been seen in college by the Stars and Stripes. Doubt if the penalty is constitutional.
