TARIFF BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

Jim Conley Indicted for Part in Phagan Killing

MAXIMUM FOR NEGRO IS FOUR YEARS

One Count Charges Misdemeanor in Protecting Slayer, Another Felony in Concealing Body.

Another chapter was written in Georgia's most famous criminal case Tuesday when Jim Conley, the negro whose story played a star part in the conviction of Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan, was indicted by the Fulton County Grand Jury on two counts, calling for a maximum penalty of four years imprisonment.

The counts charge, in the first instance, a misdemeanor committed when the negro concealed knowledge of the crime from the authorities, and, in the second, a felony in the concealment of the little girl's body after she had been slain. The misdemeanor charge is punishable by one year in the county chain-gang, while the felony calls for a maximum of three years imprisonment.

The evidence submitted to the Grand Jury on which the indictment was returned included the sworn confession of Conley made in his fourth and final statement accusing Frank of the crime, together with the testimony of Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who worked on the Phagan case. Assistant Solicitor General Stephens appeared for the State.

One Count Misdemeanor.

The formal indictment on the misdemeanor count read as follows:

That on the 26th day of April, 1913, and with force and cause, Jim Conley did then and there, knowing that Leo M. Frank had unlawfully killed and murdered one Mary Phagan, conceal said knowledge from the magistrate and did harbor, assist and protect said Leo M. Frank.

The felony charge read:

That on the 26th day of April, 1913, and with force and cause, Jim Conley did then and there, knowing that Leo M. Frank had unlawfully killed and murdered one Mary Phagan, conceal her body from the officers of the law and from the magistrate.

Conley did not appear in the Solicitor's office during the proceedings, but remained in the jail, where he has been imprisoned since he appeared as a witness against Frank.

Likely to Plead Guilty.

The Grand Jury's action had been anticipated by the negro and in all probability he will plead guilty to both the counts and take his punishment.

Since the Frank trial the negro has kept his lips sealed, hardly speaking even to his fellow-prisoners. His conduct now brings out in striking contrast his actions before the trial, when he recounted to all who would hear him in the police station the part he played in the sensational crime. Since the conviction he has been ordered kept secluded from visitors.

Conley probably will be tried some time in September.

FATHER AIDS ACCUSED STUDENT

Young Timothy Held in Bond of $1,000 by U. S. Court as Swindler.

Hugh W. Timothy, the medical college student arrested on the charge of using the mails to promote a clever swindling scheme, appeared before United States Commissioner W. Colquitt Carter Tuesday afternoon in company with his father, M. E. Timothy, wealthy Chattahoochee dry goods merchant, and waived a preliminary hearing.

Bond was fixed at $1,000, which was furnished by his father and John T. Lynch of No. 429 Capitol avenue. Young Timothy's case will come before the Federal Grand Jury at its session in October.

The father was greatly affected by his son's plight and declared that if Hugh had taken any part in the alleged fraud he was a tool and cat's paw of some other person. Clifford Anderson, of the firm of Felder, Rountree & Anderson, represented the young man before the Commissioner.

Timothy is charged with running a fake school of instruction for would-be Pullman porters. He is said to have informed applicants that he would mail them a complete set of instructions and regulations for $5 which he would refund if they failed to pass their examination. It is asserted by the Federal officials that he had more than 250 victims in the five months he had been operating under the fictitious name of W. E. Poliere.

Attorney Anderson, in the office of the Commissioner, asked Postal Inspector Graham if he knew there was no such man Poliere. Graham said that he and the same person, Anderson replied that he would be prepared to prove that Poliere existed. Graham laughed at this and asserted that the postal and bank clerks could identify Timothy as the man who had gone under the name of Poliere.

The penalty for the crime with which Timothy is charged may be $5,000 fine, five years in the Federal prison or both.

Pattern Church After Atlanta Tabernacle

COLUMBUS, GA., Sept. 9.—The membership of the First Baptist Church of this city will spend about $25,000 in making improvements on the church. The object in making the new improvements and increasing the size of the building is to make it a great institution, somewhat on the same order of the Baptist Tabernacle in Atlanta.

CHARITIES BOARD GIVES 197 POOR PUPILS BOOKS

Expected That Two Hundred and Fifty Will Be Enabled to Attend School Through Free Texts.

Joseph C. Logan, secretary of the Associated Charities of Atlanta, announced Tuesday that 197 poor children had been enabled to attend school the first day by means of the textbooks provided by the Associated Charities.

With those who had been provided for before the opening of school and the others who will receive the aid of the charitable organization within the next few days, it is estimated that the number of children assisted in obtaining an education at the opening of this school year will total nearly 250.

Used Books Sold Out. All of the stock of second-hand books in the possession of the Associated Charities had been exhausted by 10 o'clock Monday forenoon. The children then were given orders for second-hand books at the book stores. In a little more than an hour this supply also was gone and it became necessary for Mr. Logan to authorize the purchase of new books for the children.

A number of the children who were aided last year showed their appreciation this year by returning the books they had been given so that they might be turned over to the other children who needed them.

Gives Dead Son's Pennies. One woman whose young son had died during the year brought back the books he had received and also the contents of a little savings bank which he had been filling with pennies and nickels.

The parents of one family of six children told a tale of misfortune, but said that all they wanted was books for their children and they could get along all right without any money.

It developed that their home and household belongings had been totally destroyed by fire and that the father of the family was left virtually penniless. Though he was not a shoemaker, he had made shoes for all his children from scraps of leather he had bought and collected.

1,000 AMERICAN DEATHS LAID TO MEXICO

Texas Governor's Report of Massacre and Pillage Across the Border to Go to Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Senator Penrose, it was learned to-day, will charge on the floor of the Senate that more than 1,000 Americans have been killed in Mexico since the present "reign of terror" began. The Senator will cite as his authority Governor Colquitt of Texas.

Governor Colquitt's amazing charges as to what has occurred in Mexico are in the hands of several Senators and members of the House. He says: "With scores of American women mistreated and 1,000 American citizens murdered; with pillage, blackmail and ransom on every hand in defiance of American citizenship, the situation in Mexico is beyond endurance."

"If Huerta tells President Wilson to play his next card it means he will have to invade Mexico or stultify himself or his State Department. President Wilson will have to fight or make a joke of his State Department and a rag of his nation's honor."

"When I say scores of American women have been ill-treated by Mexicans, I speak the truth absolutely. I personally know of such instances in which the victims were acquaintances of mine or my personal friends. Texas has 900 miles of border on the Mexican frontier. It has been my business to protect Texas citizens from Mexican outrages, and I have done so with a firm hand. I got more satisfaction from President Taft than I do from President Wilson."

"The handling of the Mexican situation is a farce. Texas will take care of her own citizens at all hazards, and the United States can do as it pleases. But let the Mexicans keep their hands off our citizens and our women."

Refugees Flee To Galveston.

GALVESTON, Sept. 9.—The steamship Mexicana arrived here to-day with 170 American refugees from Tampico and Vera Cruz, Mexico. They were aided in leaving Mexico by the Red Cross and the United States officials. They declared that more Americans would arrive here soon.

SLATON WILL NOT SNUB GOV. BLEASE

Georgia Executive Ready to Honor South Carolina Requisitions in Meritorious Cases.

Declaring that he would honor requisition papers signed by Governor Cole Blease, of South Carolina, regardless of any refusal of the latter to honor similar papers from Georgia, Governor John M. Slaton Tuesday morning defined his position in regard to the rumored strained relations between the two State executives.

"I want to say that I will not hesitate for one moment to grant requisition papers from Governor Blease if the case warrants it," said Governor Slaton. "I intend to treat the State of South Carolina just as I would any other State."

"It would be a very bad condition of affairs, indeed, for any one State, especially a neighboring State, to be an asylum for the criminals of the other State, and vice versa, by common consent of the two Governors."

Governor Slaton's remarks were the result of rumored statements attributed to Governor Blease to the effect that he would not honor requisition papers from the Governor of Georgia because of Governor Slaton's recent action in refusing to grant the extradition of Attorney Zachry, of Augusta.

Shriner Officials Delayed; Coming to Plan 1914 Conclave

Because the New Orleans Shriners were showing them such a good time, or some equally as good excuse, the delegation of Shriner officials, who were due to arrive in Atlanta at 10:45 o'clock Tuesday morning, will not reach the city until midnight. A great reception had been planned for this morning.

The delegation arranged the details of the national convention in Atlanta in 1914. They had just returned from Panama, where they installed a new temple.

Those in the party are W. W. Irwin, imperial potentate, Wheeling; Frederick R. Smith, imperial deputy potentate, Rochester; J. Putnam Stevens, imperial chief rabban, Portland, Maine; William S. Brown, imperial treasurer, Pittsburg, and E. A. Curtis, imperial captain of the guard, Savannah.

CLAIMS HUSBAND ROBBED HER TO MARRY AGAIN

Mr. Osborne Also Didn't Do Mr. Hightower a Favor by Wedding His Mother-in-Law.

Alleging that her husband had obtained money from a local department store in settlement of a suit over an accident that left her paralyzed, and used it to marry again and take the second woman on a honeymoon trip through the West, Mrs. E. L. Osborne No. 1 appeared in Police Court Tuesday morning against E. L. Osborne, of No. 216 Central avenue, whom she charges with bigamy.

According to the first Mrs. Osborne, she was injured in an elevator accident about two years ago and has since been paralyzed. A few months ago her husband settled the suit for several hundred dollars. He used some of the money to send her on a visit to relatives at Columbus, Ga. Soon after she left, she says, he married Mrs. M. E. Kidwell, of No. 107 Avon avenue, and took her on a long trip through the West.

The first Mrs. Osborne returned to Atlanta Monday, and learning that her husband had married again during her absence, had him arrested.

Osborne was bound over until Wednesday under $2,000 bond. The second Mrs. Osborne remarked as she was leaving the courtroom that she would not appear in court again. She was placed under $100 bond.

Soon after the case was tried a man giving his name as Hightower called the police station and asked what had been done with Osborne. On being told that he was bound over under $2,000 bond, he said:

"I guess that will hold him for a while. That man married my mother-in-law, and I thought he had done something for me, but it looks now like he hasn't."

"The assertion that I hugged her or kissed her is absolutely false, and I can conceive of no reason for its foundation. I am ready to answer the charges before the board to-night, and do not doubt that I will be acquitted."

Family Rallies to J. W. Norman's Defense, and Woman Involved Denies Flirtation.

With his wife and daughter standing loyally by his side, Captain J. W. The husband of the woman in the case believes his wife and the police officer innocent, and the woman ridiculed the stories as absurd.

Captain Norman admitted that he was acquainted with the woman, but declared that their acquaintance had never extended beyond conventional bounds.

"For several years the lady has been coming to the park with her two children," said the police officer. "Following my custom of being friendly to those who frequent the park, I spoke to her. Occasionally a few words of conversation would pass between us and sometimes I played with her children."

CURRENCY BILL IS TAKEN UP IN HOUSE

Credits Extension, Currency Bonds Retirement and Aid for U. S. Bankers Abroad Features.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Glass currency reform bill was formally reported to the House today, Chairman Glass presenting a report signed by all the Democratic members of the House Banking and Currency Committee, in which it was claimed that the fundamental features of the bill are:

Creation of a point mechanism for the extension of credit to banks which possess sound assets and which desire to liquidate them to meet legitimate industrial, commercial and agricultural demands.

Ultimate retirement of the present bond-secured currency with the substitution thereof of a more flexible medium of exchange.

Provision for the extension of American banking facilities for foreign countries.

Coincident with the presentation of this report, a report was presented on behalf of the Republican members of the committee condemning three of the leading features of the bill.

The minority members claimed that the powers conferred by the bill upon the Federal reserve board were too great and there was extreme danger that the board would be used for corrupt partisan purposes.

The majority report predicts that the twelve Federal reserve banks provided for by the bill will have joint resources of about $550,000,000 with which to begin business. Of this amount compulsory subscriptions of stock from the capital stock of over 7,000 national banks will be $100,000,000. Transfer of Government deposits in Federal depositories to the Federal reserve banks, it is estimated, will be $130,000,000.

$300,000,000 Federal Reserve Fund. From this statement it is deduced that the Federal reserve banks will start business with cash resources of about $300,000,000. The remaining $250,000,000 would be made up of reserves which under the terms of the bill would be transferred to the vaults of the reserve banks. The majority members admit that "it can not be predicted confidently how many State banks would apply for or be granted admission to the new system."

The majority report discusses the inadequacy of the present disposition of the bank reserves to provide liquid resources for the business of the country and declares the only way of solving the problem is by placing the reserves in duly qualified institutions which shall ask the primary interest.

The transfer of reserves from the banks to the Federal reserve banks can be accomplished, according to the Democratic members of the committee, without embarrassing any financial interests, but on the contrary will have the beneficial effect of permitting the banks to develop longer lines of useful credit.

The provision in the bill providing for the retirement of the Government 2 per cent bonds, which have the circulation privilege, and exchanging for 3 per cent bonds, without the circulation privilege, is declared to be "an excellent business policy for the Government."

Bonds Cost U. S. $7,500,000. The circulation privilege, the report declares, is worth at least 1 per cent, and "the banks get no undue consideration from the Government."

The cost to the Government of the conversion of these bonds will be $7,500,000, or about 1 per cent of the value of all the bonds concerned. The report asserts that the "compulsion" features of the bill, that is, the features requiring national banks to subscribe to the stock of the reserve banks, is not unfair to the banks.

CHARGE DOCTOR WITH UTTERING BAD CHECKS

Arrested Here on Complaint of Columbus Dupes, Who Believed His 'Love Stories.'

A stylishly dressed young man, who gave his name as Dr. M. L. Harrison when arrested by Atlanta detectives in the lobby of a local hotel, was sent back to Columbus, Ga., Tuesday, where there are some highly enraged individuals who claim they cashed bogus checks for him before he left there Saturday.

The young man, according to the stories from Columbus, came there a few days ago and made an immediate impression by his modish clothes and polished manners. He came presumably to see a well-known young society woman of the city and through her he met a number of the prominent people of the city, among them several physicians.

Being of a prepossessing appearance, he easily made friends, and as the acquaintance between himself and his newly formed friends ripened, he became confidential with them and informed them that he was going to wed the young lady whom he was visiting. Friday the young woman came to Atlanta to visit friends. "Doctor" Harrison thereupon informed some of his new-found friends, it is said, that he carelessly had allowed himself to run short on funds and asked them if they would not cash some small checks for him.

Being of an accommodating nature, four of his newly-made friends were eager to oblige him and indorsed the checks, which were on the Bank of Tampa and the First National Bank of St. Petersburg. It was then that Dr. Harrison informed his friends that he was going to Atlanta to see the object of his affections, and on Saturday afternoon he came to Atlanta.

The checks, which amounted to $125, began to come back Monday with the announcement, "No funds. Such a man not known." Those who had been duped proceeded to get busy and had warrants issued. The Atlanta police were notified and late Monday afternoon Dr. Harrison was arrested.

MISSING WOMAN CALLED 'CASSIE CHADWICK'

Life of Wilmington, N. C., Society Leader, Accused as Embezzler of Thousands, Bared.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 9.—With society circles of the State stirred as they seldom have been before by the reopening of the case against Mrs. Elizabeth Van H. Nichols, indicted as the embezzler of thousands of dollars, confidence was expressed by the authorities to-day of their ability to prove that in the accused they have a second Cassie Chadwick.

The State officials also continued to dig into Mrs. Nichols' past life to-day.

Mrs. Nichols returned to Wilmington to make her home a few years ago following a divorce from her second husband for incompatibility of temperament. Until the death of Mr. Sands she received a considerable sum as alimony.

She was a close friend since girlhood of Mrs. Lemassena, who had great confidence in her ability as a financier, and who is now her accuser. All told she turned over to Mrs. Nichols about $27,000 to be invested. It is stated that Mrs. Nichols would pay over to Mrs. Lemassena certain amounts at stated intervals, which were supposed to represent the interest or dividends on the investments. This continued, it is certain, until about six months ago, when Mrs. Nichols suffered a nervous breakdown and was taken to a sanitarium in the North for treatment.

Indicted on Three Counts.

An investigation by John D. Bellamy, engaged as counsel by Mrs. Lemassena, resulted in the return of indictments by the Grand Jury a few weeks ago charging Mrs. Nichols with embezzlement in three cases. The amount alleged in the indictments aggregated $14,475.

The indictment of Mrs. Nichols created a distinct sensation on account of her prominence and high social standing. For several years she lived in Wilmington, where her relatives formerly resided, and was recognized as a leader in exclusive social circles of that city and section. She entertained lavishly. She is a woman of charming personality and was a great favorite in fashionable circles in which she moved.

Mrs. Lemassena came here from Philadelphia and appeared before the Grand Jury. She has been brought to hard circumstances by reason of operations of her friend, she says.

HAD TO SUPPORT HUSBAND, SAYS LILLIAN BELL

Former Atlanta Authoress, Preparing Divorce Plea, Charges He Smoked 60 Cigarettes Daily.

DELAWARE, OHIO, Sept. 9.—Lillian Bell Bogue, well-known authoress, of Atlanta, announced to-day that charges of extreme cruelty and gross neglect on the part of her husband, Arthur Hoyt Bogue, a Chicago promoter, would form the basis of divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Bogue's petition alleges she has for some time paid $200 a month rent and maintained an apartment in Chicago and that she has always supported her husband. She further charges that he smoked as many as 60 cigarettes a day.

One of the peculiarities of her husband, the petition avers, is that he is addicted to the use of strong coffee. At 5 each morning, she says, he makes his beverage by filling a cup full of a certain brand of coffee. When he travels, the coffee is carried by him in a thermos bottle. Certain irreligious tendencies also are alleged.

BLACKHEADS AND PIMPLES ON FACE

Would Itch and Burn. Caused Great Disfigurement. Also Had Dandruff on Scalp. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Perfectly.

R. F. D. No. 2, Box 46, Matthews, Ga. "For three years or more I was troubled with pimples and blackheads. At first my face would itch and burn and then the pimples would break out. They looked almost as if I had measles, causing great disfigurement. They would make my face very red and sore. Then they festered and came to a head and large boils would come on my chin and nose.

"I also had dandruff which caused my scalp to itch and burn. It itched and burned so that I had to scratch it until it was irritated. The dandruff scaled off and showed plainly in my hair. It also caused my hair to break off and become very thin. I used several remedies which did not cure and gave but little relief. After I received a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I began using them according to directions.

I secured two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment which cured me perfectly." (Signed) Miss Willie M. Walker, July 31, 1912.

When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made in addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant. It is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. Every Tooth is a "Pearl of Great Price" --- You Haven't One to Lose

Our National Weakness

Not so long since an eminent surgeon startled the nation by prescribing "teeth" to cure dyspepsia and indigestion. To-day it is the only recognized remedy.

As long as there is a tooth missing—a loose tooth—a hollow tooth in your mouth, you are not masticating your food properly. You favor the sensitive weak part—you are bringing on chronic dyspepsia.

Indigestion, dyspepsia and malnutrition—thinness, weakness and continual distress all arise from bad teeth, from making the stomach "chew" the food.

There's no reason why you should let this danger confront you.

Let me make your teeth sound and whole. That will make your health the better. No matter how many are missing, or how many are hollow, aching or loose, I can put them in proper condition by

FARMERS ASSIST IN PURE MILK PROPAGANDA

Agriculture Commissioner Shows Dairymen Unhealthy Samples From Their Own Wagons.

Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price, insuragator of the campaign against impure milk products, has unearthed a startling condition of affairs among the dairies of Fulton County, according to information received at the State Department.

Officials working under the direction of the State Commissioner declared Tuesday that tubercular cows, open wells, filthy cow stables and other almost indescribable sanitary conditions had been found to exist throughout Fulton County. Each violation is sufficient for an indictment and either a sentence or a heavy fine, under the State pure food and drugs act of 1910.

Although bad conditions have been discovered, the work of the State officials thus far has been purely educational. Since the campaign for pure milk was inaugurated about ten days ago more than 100 dairymen, principally of Fulton County, have been summoned to appear before Commissioner Price, following an inspection of their premises by the State inspectors. In each case the dairymen have been told of the existing conditions at their farm, has been shown the actual bacteria which exist in samples taken from his dairy and has received, in addition, a warning to clean up immediately in lieu of being indicted for a violation of the law.

Without exception, the dairymen have promised Mr. Price to be good. A second inspection by the State officials will determine whether they have carried out their promises. Dr. Kenneth Atkins, bacteriologist under Mr. Price, has issued an informal warning to mothers and consumers of milk in general to purchase only pasteurized milk, in view of the present bad conditions.

WEEK'S BILLS AT FORTY FIVES ABOVE PAR

Good Vaudeville at Forsyth and Lots of Entertainment at Other Local Theaters.

By TARLETON COLLIER.

Should your fancy direct your feet toward any one of the city's show houses this week, you may be sure of a very pleasant occasion, you folks that stayed at home yesterday. This, at least, is the verdict after a sitting-in at the Monday opening of the Forsyth and the Lyric, and after a consideration of the promises that the other houses hold out.

At the Forsyth, now, there is a good bill. If you like dancing, there is a revelation for you at the Forsyth; singing, it is there. And even if you are a hardened vaudeville goer, with the spiritless eye of a catfish for the daring of the vaudeville acrobats, you must confess a thrill at some of the things they do at the Forsyth this week. All with much comedy.

Perhaps you will notice the lack of those little play sketches that usually are put on a vaudeville bill to give it a substantial tone. You make this note with something of relief, most likely. The brain-weary person who goes to the vaudeville show is not so very eager to wait and watch for the development of anything that bids fair to be complex.

Something New in Dancing. All this is by way of telling that Frank Hart and Inez Patterson, a slender, handsome young couple, who are billed as "The World's Greatest Turkey Trotters and Tango Dancers," have something new and unusual in their exhibition of the new dances, which becomes things of pretty rhythm under their interpretation. It is a notable fact that the audience at the first show, after sitting appreciatively through the first part of the bill, straightened in their seats, leaned forward, and breathed faster when the Hale and Patterson act was announced. Here was something to interest everybody—the famed turkey trot and the tango, heretofore and abused from coast to coast. Abused no more in Atlanta, it is safe to say, or, at least, far less than heretofore.

Three sisters—Doris, Dot and Almie Wilson—have a pretty act. Beyond the fact that they can sing and dance, they look alike and are enabled thus to perform a mirror act in which one sister, singing and making up before the mirror, seems to be reflected in the glass. At least the image follows faithfully every movement, even to eyes and hair and graceful swaying. Then the girl leaps through the open space, showing that there was no mirror at all, and that there really were three persons in the supposed reflection.

Comedienne Makes Big Hit. Miss Lottie Barr, market maker and singer, had a real, not that tolerable—or near intolerable—wit of the usual comedienne. One of the biggest hits of the first show was that scored by her songs and interpolated monologue.

As to the aforementioned acrobats—don't be alarmed, because three of the acts are those of hard-working, clever gymnasts. There is Paul Gordon and Ame Rica, by far the best bicycle pair of the season; Delmore and Lee, with a spectacular study in black and white on a flying ladder, and Wentworth, Gesta and Teddy, a team the least of which is not Teddy, the dog, a tabloid minstrel show, Russell's Minstrel Comedians they are called, completes the bill.

Human Appeal in "Call of the Heart."

You probably were frightened from even considering the Lyric last night because of the too sensational name of the show there. It is to be confessed that "The Call of the Heart" as a name is not the best asset a show can have, but this week's attraction at the Lyric rises above its name, revealing occasional real strength.

DIGS GRAVE FOR HERSELF, THEN ENDS HER LIFE

Mystery in Suicide of Wife of Wealthy Chicago Broker in Lake Michigan.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Mystery today shrouded the death of Mrs. Walter B. Smith, wife of a LaSalle street broker, granddaughter of Marvin Huggitt, railroad builder, and wealthy in her own right.

Mrs. Smith, clad in a costly silk dress and wearing several hundred dollars worth of jewels, left her home in the fashionable suburb of Lake Forest, went to the shore of Lake Michigan, molded a grave in the sand, placed a bouquet of roses on it and plunged to her death in the water.

A coroner's jury of neighbors of the beautiful Lake Forest society woman did not attempt to clear the mystery. Byron L. Smith, president of the Northern Trust Company, one of the largest financial institutions in Chicago, father-in-law of the dead woman, said his son's wife must have been temporarily demented. He said there was no trouble in the household of his son and that Mrs. Smith had not been ill.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY

If Little Stomach is Sour, Liver Torpid and Bowels Clogged.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow. If your little one is out-of-order, half-sick, listless, eating and acting naturally—look, mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that his little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of his little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mother, can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

Leprosy Cure Found; It's Origin in Doubt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Dr. Victor G. Heiser, of the Public Health Service in the leper colony in the Philippine Islands, reports an apparent cure for leprosy. Two patients showing distinct signs of leprosy have been discharged as cured.

The physician is uncertain as to which of two remedies effected the cures—a vaccine treatment or chaulmurga oil taken internally and also injected hypodermically.

Don't Bat the Bats; O. K.'d by Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—"Never bat a bat for he's battling for humanity," is not the title or refrain of a popular song, but in effect, the title of a warning issued to-day by the experts of the Department of Agriculture.

"Bats are a benefit," the statement declares, "as they destroy mosquitoes and a number of other insects that harm crops and orchards."

Posses Hunt for Girl's Assailant

No Clew Found to Identity of Tramp Who Attacked Utoy Farmer's Daughter.

Posses of policemen and citizens Tuesday were still searching for the tramp who attacked a 16-year-old girl near Utoy Monday afternoon.

While the young girl, a daughter of a farmer, has recovered from the shock, the feeling of outrage in the district is unallayed, and there is threatening spirit of a mob wherever the men congregate.

No clew as to the identity of the tramp has been found since bloodhounds lost his trail late Monday night. The man, described as roughly clad in overalls and with an unshaved face, followed a small stream with a strength of terror that caused them both to topple into the stream.

County Police Chief Zack Rowan rushed to the scene with an automobile full of officers.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

The Boxes From Paris and Estelle Mershon 20 E. 46th St. New York Are Open

And Now Atlanta Shall See What Are the True and Authentic Millinery Fashions for Fall

The initial display of the true and authentic millinery fashions for Fall to-morrow!

It marked a fine day for the women of Atlanta when Chamberlin - Johnson - DuBose Company so perfected its millinery organization that now it can make such an announcement as this. For here are hats that you would spend days in finding in Paris and others that Estelle Mershon has adapted from Paris originals and has modified better to suit Atlanta tastes.

That they are beautiful, exquisitely beautiful, is a matter of course, but how are they beautiful and how do they differ from those that Paris sent us last Fall?

You shall see! You shall see that the originality of knows no restrictions except those that define grace, harmony—beauty. And yet throughout there seems to run a style-motif that will strike favor in Atlanta—shapes are small and medium, colors are rich, soft-toned; materials are rich, plushes and velvets favored.

But though we have had small and medium hats before and soft-toned colors, plushes and velvets—never such hats, never so many novelties.

Daring Jeanne Lanvin sends a black velvet toque of the Hindustan type on which she has put a stiff black tuft of ostrich in front and a string of rhinestones beneath the chin.

One of the Maison Lewis novelties is the use of patent leather; a rosewood hat with vulture quills has a brim faced with black patent leather.

Marie Louise sends another exquisite shade of blue this year—developed by her artist-husband. The hat itself of this shade has been adapted by Estelle Mershon. It is a soft "tam" of duvetyne.

Reboux narrow ribbons and small pointed wings (tete de nege) cover the crown of a gold colored hat.

But we are speaking of these details, glorious and wonderful in actuality, too much, as a matter of fact.

See them to-morrow as they are, the lines, the grace (for more than ever hats are to be fitted and poised and set this year—the bandeau is used in many), the colors, the gold, the dark greens, the corbeau blue, the rose, the shades of purple, the pastel shades, these particularly as Madeline has used them in ostrich on a black velvet hat.

To-morrow is the day, the hats are ready and you are invited to the ushering in of the authentic Fall styles by Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company.

LESSONS IN UNNATURAL HISTORY BY DOROTHY DIX

THE PEACH is a cross between the apple that Eve ate and an American Beauty rose. It is composed of equal parts of sugar and ginger, and possesses a flavor of which men never tire, from the cradle to the grave.

The Peach is at its best when it is about eighteen years old, and served up with a garnish of French millinery, although some people, with simple tastes, prefer their Peaches au naturel.

Where the finest Peaches are raised is a matter of grave dispute among the best horticulturists. Some contend that none have the same sweetness as the common, or garden, variety that are grown in the country.

It is Freaky. A strange peculiarity of this delectable fruit, however, is that it can not be grown to order, and that it is freaky in choosing its habitat.

Sometimes a Peach isn't as luscious as it looks, but owes its attractiveness to the pink mosquito netting with which it is covered, and when a man gets it home he finds that instead of being sweet and tender it is sour and hard.

Although, as has been said, Peaches are the favorite masculine fruit they do not agree well with many men, causing internal trouble and disagreement in the domestic regions.

Peaches are found in all parts of the country, but the finest selection in the world is to be seen along Peachtree street.

Latest in Gowns Seen at Newport Tournament

Miss Roberta Willard. Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden.

The tennis tournament at Newport was the mecca for the gathering of fashionables, and incidentally gave the visitors to the gala summer capital an excellent opportunity of viewing the latest designs in the dressmaking art.

HER STREAK OF LUCK

"I KNOW you won't believe me," plaintively began the young woman who was crocheting the bedspread. "Nobody with a particle of common sense would believe me, but that dinner party I gave on the 13th of the month was a real party.

"The diner thrust the tip of his knife into the yellow disc which the waiter had brought him. He held it up to the light and examined it, while the waiter stood by anxiously. Then the diner resolutely returned the yellow disc to his plate and scraped some of it upon his bread.

"The second girl in some manner, in endeavoring to help, had thrown out the soup! It was cream mushroom soup at that! And I had mostly expected it to make a hit with my guest."

"Then I went back languidly to my wondering guests and kept on acting as if everything was going beautifully. I think the hardest possible thing to do is to act as if nothing is happening when people are starving to death before your eyes and staring at you reproachfully.

One Woman's Story

By Virginia T. Van De Water. CHAPTER XXXIII.

GRADUALLY Mary Fletcher's strength returned and she was able to dispense with her nurse and busy herself with her household duties. The baby was not robust, but he was not a fretful child. To care for him was the young mother's delight, and she loved to have his cradle in the room where she sat sewing or busy at occupations that did not make his presence inexpedient.

"I might worry her," she said, timidly. "He tried to laugh her fears away. 'Nonsense!' he retorted. 'Your mother is so innocent that she would never suspect that a man had taken a glass of anything unless he hiccupped and staggered. She has read that those are the things that drinks do, and unless a fellow showed those jolly symptoms she would put him down as sober if asked to classify him besides,' with sudden gravity.

"That was Mary's last protest. She could not resist the repetition of such scenes as this, she said to herself. Perhaps when the baby grew older—old enough to notice—Bert would do better. Surely when he saw his child's clear eyes fixed upon him he would be ashamed to drink.

Meanwhile Fletcher grew daily more proud of his small son. Strangely enough, when the man had been drinking he never touched the child—and his wife noted this hopefully. As she saw her husband look with a tenderness that was almost reverential at the baby who bore his name she was sure that the child would yet be an influence for good in the life of the father. That was her encouragement, her comfort, as the months wore themselves away.

"The summer was a hot one, and the housework was not easy during the burning days of July and August. Yet so long as the baby kept well the young mother bore it bravely. When, as was often the case, her husband told her in the morning that he would not be home that night—as he and a friend had decided to go down to the seashore for a dip in the ocean—she and her mother would discuss with a hearty evening meal, and would have such simple and cool viands as they both liked. On such occasions Mary had the cheering assurance that she was economizing—for when Bert was at home he must have meat, and meat was expensive.

"The younger woman shuddered at the words. Surely, she thought, she might be spared this sorrow for years to come. Her baby was only 8 months old when the daughter knew that the dreaded grief was coming into her life. It was only a few days after Christmas that she returned from the city one evening, his manner showing that he had been drinking, and went to town the following morning, and expressed intention of staying away overnight.

"The next evening, after a day in which Mrs. Danforth was 'so tired' that she admitted she 'would like to lie still if it would not inconvenience anybody,' the lonely widow closed her eyes forever in this world.

"What's the matter, old chap? You look as if you hadn't had a wink of sleep all night." "I haven't. You see, my wife threatened never to speak to me again if I didn't come home last night before 10 o'clock, and I didn't."

Milady in the Morning

By Olivette.

ASCINATING costume du matin this—and the woman who wishes to prove that it is possible to look just as charming at 9 a. m. as at 9 p. m. would do well to copy it. For the cap she put on a comfortably large head size; band this with linc and a half satin ribbon in any becoming pastel shade with a soft bow at the front. To this fasten a shirring of soft lace and catch it up over either eye with a wee bunch of tiny roses. The negligee has a broad belt of shadow lace and flowered net caught at the back and front with single large roses, and the ribbon that binds the neck and forms the wide girle matches that used on the charming "bonnet." The sleeves and lower part of the negligee are of white voile banded with the lace.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

DAYSEY MAYME APPLETON is such a lover of music that a dear man at a concert has only to look at her face to tell the character of the music the orchestra is playing. If dignified and majestic, her jaws move slowly and with regular rhythm over her chewing gum. If the music is rapid, they move rapidly, irregularly, and almost wildly.

"She has cheated her way gravely, slowly and solemnly through three sections from Wagner, closing on selection with a crashing of her jaws that denoted an artist's appreciation of art, when a long-haired man took her out at the piano." Daysey Mayme knew instinctively that he was a great musician, for she

HELP FOR WORKING GIRLS

Two Girls Tell Story of Their Illness and How They Found Relief. NEW ORLEANS, LA.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."—Miss Amelia Jaquillard, 413 Seventh Street, New Orleans, La.

ST. CLAIR, PA.—"My mother was alarmed because my periods were suppressed and I had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed. I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."—Miss Estella Maguire, 119 Twining Street, Saint Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all. If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A certain Midland doctor was one day out sea-fishing with a friend. During operations the medic's sinker came out and was lost. Here was a dilemma. No sinker, no more fishing that day.

"What," inquired the Sunday school teacher of her youthful pupils, "what are divers diseases?" "Bashful or ignorant, the scholars clung tenaciously to the doctrine that little boys should be seen and not heard."

"They say my son is a credit to me." "Mine," said his friend, "has never been anything but a liability."

Who Makes the "Criminals"?

Did This View of It Ever Occur to You?

(Copyright, 1913.)

Much interest just now in CRIMINALS.
Much horror aroused by depravity.
Many plans more or less appropriate for making the air pure.
Many good men, politicians, women and bishops who spend the summer at the seaside are willing to spend a few days wiping "CRIME" off the earth.

What is CRIME? Who are the CRIMINALS? Who makes the criminals?

Do criminals viciously and voluntarily arise among us, eager to lead hunted lives, eager to be jailed at intervals, eager to crawl in the dark, dodge policemen, work in stripes and die in shame? Hardly.

Will you kindly and patiently follow the lives, quickly sketched, of a boy and a girl?

THE GIRL

Born poor, born in hard luck, her father, or mother, or both, victims of long hours, poor fare, bad air and little leisure.

As a baby she struggles against fate and manages to live while three or four little brothers and sisters die and go back to kind earth.

She crawls around the halls of a tenement, a good deal in the way. She is hunted here and chased there.

She is cold in winter, ill-fed in summer, never well cared for. She gets a little so-called education. Ill-dressed and ashamed beside the other children, she is glad to escape the education. No one at home can help her on. No one away from home cares about her.

She grows up white, sickly, like a potato sprouting in a cellar. At the corner of a fine street she sees the carriages passing with other girls in warm furs, or in fine, cool summer dresses. With a poor shawl around her and with heels run down, she peers in at the restaurant window, to see other women leading lives very different from hers.

Steadily she has impressed upon her the fact, absolutely undeniable, that as the world is organized there is no especial place for her—certainly no comfort for her.

She finds work, perhaps. Hours as long as the daylight. Ten minutes late—half a day's fine.

At the end of the day aching feet, aching back, system ill-fed, not enough earned to live upon honestly—and that prospect stretches ahead farther than her poor eyes can see.

"WHAT'S THE CHARGE, OFFICER?"

"Disorderly conduct, your honor."

There's the criminal, good men, politicians, women and bishops, that you are hunting so ardently.

THE BOY

Same story, practically.
He plays on the tenement staircase—cuffed off the staircase.
He plays ball on the street—cuffed if caught by the policeman.

He swings on the area railing, trying to exercise his stunted muscles—cuffed again.

In burning July, with shirt and trousers on, he goes swimming in the park fountain—caught and cuffed and handed over to "the society."

A few months in a sort of semi-decent imprisonment, treated in a fashion about equivalent to that endured by the sea turtle turned over on its back in the market.

He escapes, to begin the same life once more.
He tries for work.
"What do you know?"

"I don't know anything; nobody ever taught me."
He can not even endure the discipline of ten hours' daily shoveling—it takes education to instill discipline, if only the education of the early pick and shovel.

He has not been taught anything. He has been turned loose in a city full of temptation. He had no real start to begin with, and no effort was ever made to repair his evil beginning.

"WHAT'S THE CHARGE, OFFICER?"

"Attempted burglary; pleads guilty."

"Three years in prison, since it is his first offense."

In prison he gets an education. They teach him how to be a good burglar and not get caught. Patiently the State boards him and educates him to be a first-rate criminal.

There's your first-rate criminal, Messrs. Bishops, good men, politicians and benevolent women.

Dear bishops, noble women, good men and scheming politicians, listen to this story:

In the South Sea Islands they have for contagious diseases a horror as great as your horror of crime.

A man or a woman stricken with a loathsome disease, such as smallpox, is seized, isolated, and the individual sores of the small-pox patient are earnestly scraped with sea shells—until the patient dies. It hurts the patient a good deal—without ever curing, of course—but it relieves the feelings of the outraged good ones who wield the sea shells.

You kind-hearted creatures, hunting "crime" in great cities, are like the South Sea Islanders in their treatment of smallpox.

You ardently wield your reforming sea shells and you scrape very earnestly at the sores so well developed.

No desire here to decry your earnest efforts.
But if you ever get tired of scraping with sea shells, try vaccination, or, better still, try to take such care of youth, to give such chances and education to the young, as will save them from the least profitable of all careers—CRIME.

Rich, good men, nice bishops, comfortable, benevolent ladies, every man and woman in prison, every wretched creature living near a "red light," would gladly change places with any of you.

Scrape away with your sea shells, but try also to give a few more and a few better chances in youth to those whom you now hunt as criminals in their mature years.

God creates boys and girls anxious to live decently.
YOUR SOCIAL SYSTEM makes criminals and fills jails.

The Stage Mustache

It Has an Awful Villainous Effect in the Play.

Cormorants==The Winged Slaves of China

How the Followers of Confucius Have Taken Advantage of the Ability of the Bird as a Fisherman.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

THE story of the fishing birds of China throws light on natural history and human history. These birds are cormorants, which, by nature, are great fishers, for fish are their favorite food. All went well with the cormorants of China, and they conducted their piscatorial operations in peace and for their own sole advantage, until, to their misfortune, the idea occurred to the human inhabitants of the land of Confucius, who are not lacking in many small ingenuities or in a certain broad philosophy of life, that it would be a good thing to make the cormorants fish for them.

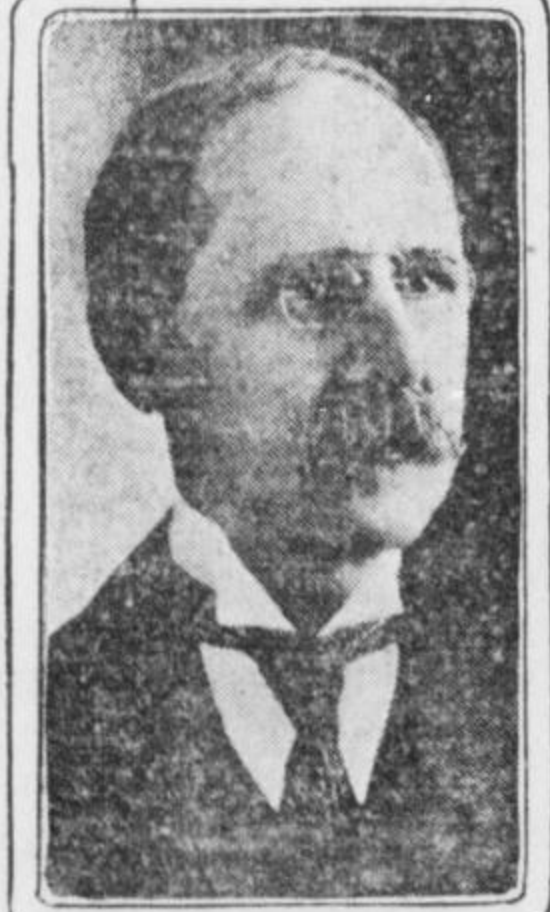

From that moment the cormorant became a slave and joined the great army of serfs, including horses, mules, donkeys and other easily subjected creatures, with which man has surrounded himself for his pleasure and convenience.

Cormorant Spurred on by Hope He Can Keep Catch for Himself.

The cormorant no longer fishes for himself; he fishes for a master, who has more brains than he and who lets him eat just enough to keep him always in good training and eager to work. The cormorant, not having much of a brain, is perpetually misled, when he goes after a fish, by the hope that he will be allowed to keep it for himself, while his master, having more intelligence, takes care that the poor enslaved bird shall never get quite as much as his appetite demands. Thus the receding hope of a good full dinner and a delicious period of repose afterward, is continually dangled before the stupid cormorant's eyes.

The cormorant is a large, awk-

ward bird, with a long bill and capable of diving into the water and catching a fish before it can make a move to escape. When he has captured a fish he emerges from the water, and, if he has no master, he flings it up into the air with the skill of a juggler, in such a way that it always comes down head first and passes straight down the bird's throat, without any entanglement of fins. That is the only way in which a cormorant can safely swallow a fish. But the cormorant slave never gets an opportunity to fling his fish up into the air and catch it on the descent unless his master so wills it. The fish is taken from him before he can get his feet on anything sufficiently solid to enable him to perform the acrobatic feat that is indispensable to his dining. The fish is seized by the master, and the foolish bird eagerly goes after another one.

The best cormorants come from the province of Honan. They are so valuable that a well-trained pair costs about $30, which is a large sum of money in China. A good outfit of fishing cormorants numbers from 20 to 30 birds, and they can earn for their master from $1 to $1.25 a day. Such birds get in exchange for their loss of liberty a certain kind of care, which masters always bestow upon useful slaves. If they fall sick they get a dose of oil of sesame which quickly puts them back into working condition.

They are slaves from childhood—like many unfortunate human beings. Their training begins almost from birth, and at the age of seven or eight months they are set to work catching small fish. For an average of ten years their slavery continues—and then they die, still in chains to superior intelligence.

The management of these winged and beaked slaves is very simple.

Their master ties a long cord to one of the legs, puts a rattan collar around their necks, just tight enough to prevent them from swallowing a fish if their hunger should make them unruly, and attaches a bamboo float to the cord so that they can not escape by diving. He also carries a bamboo pole, ten feet long, with which to beat them, and frighten them by slapping the water when they do not perform their task obediently.

Reward for Bird Is Fish His Master Cannot Market.

Sometimes he places himself near the shore in shallow water, and sometimes governs his fleet of slaves from a curious boat, made by putting a board across two parallel floats, each about three or four feet long. The fishing is done in lakes, quiet streams and ponds. After a good catch has been made the master picks out the little, unmarketable fish and assembles his flock about him, gives the fish a dexterous turn in the air which causes them to descend head first into the gaping throats. But he keeps all the large, fine fish for himself.

The Japanese also employ cormorants for fishing. It is said in Holy Writ that man was given dominion over all the animals of the earth. He has not failed to exercise his privilege, but if the animals were capable of rebelling he would have to work harder himself.

Lesson of An Old Legend

Time---The Human Race Since Its Beginning Has Waged Hopeless War Against This Relentless Foe.

(Intelligent readers, young and old, will be interested in this old legend prepared for modern reading by Mr. John Edward Geary, of Syracuse, N. Y. The most interesting thing, perhaps, is the wrestling match between Thor and the old woman, who turns out to be MOTHER TIME. Every one of us wrestles with TIME, only to be defeated in the end. As you read this article THINK your way through it.)

By JOHN EDWARD GEARY

THOR was the son of Odin, father of the divinities of the Scandinavian mythology. Thor was the god dear to the Norse heart; he was the god of beneficent Summer heat; the thunder was his wrath; the gathering of the black clouds was the drawing down of his angry brows; the flash of fire coming out of heaven before the thunder was his all-rending hammer blow. He drives his huge chariot over the mountain tops; that is the thunder; angry "he blows his red beard"—this is the rustling storm blast before the storm begins.

Thor is the god of peaceable industry; he is the peasants' friend; he is the true friend and companion of Thalf, manual labor. He scorns no work, no matter how lowly; himself engages in all kinds of manual work.

The forces of nature in Scandinavian mythology were pictured as intelligent personalities; the good ones, such as the sun, summer heat, as gods, and the dark and evil ones, such as frost, sea tempest, as demons. The forces of evil were called Jotuns.

The gods lived on high in a place called Asgard, the garden of the divine ones. The Jotuns lived in a dark, distant land of chaos, called Utgard, out garden, Jotunheim, the home of the Jotuns.

In this cold north country a great many of the evil forces were credited to frost and cold. The Jotun Hymer's cattle were icebergs; his beard was the hoar frost; the fierce glance of his eye would rend rocks.

It was most natural that eternal enmity and strife should exist between Thor, the god of summer heat, and the Jotuns, demons of frost and cold. Many were the visits of Thor to Jotunheim, and many were his struggles with the Jotuns.

Thor possessed a sword of extreme keenness. Once on one of his journeys he met a giant Jotun, who laughed at what he considered the assumed power of Thor.

Thor, Angered, Seized His Sword and Slashed at the Giant.

Thor, angered, seized his sword in both hands and cut the giant through the middle. Such was the keenness of the blade the giant did not know that he was injured, the blade leaving a red line of blood where it had cut. The giant started to laugh at Thor and thereupon fell in two. Thor must have been the first "Jack the Giant Killer," a destroyer of demons and their powers.

Thor's chief tool and favorite weapon was his mighty hammer. This was made a present to him by his father, Odin, who decreed that he should be a producer, a builder.

Thor heard that there was a tournament, games and feats of strength and skill to be held in Jotunheim, and he concluded to attend and take part. He did not know the way, only the general direction. He had for companions Thalf and Loke.

Loke was the innate power that dwelt in fire or flame. How simple! How primitive! This is some of the history of the working of the human mind in its infancy that has been handed down to us.

The wonder that exists in fire or flame we hide behind a chemical name. They pictured it as an intelligent will, capable of self-direction from within, the same was credited to all the personalities, both gods and demons of primitive peoples; the mythology of the Greeks, of the Hindus, and others, as well as the Scandinavian.

We know that natural forces act according to a law; given the same conditions they always act the same; that they are not capable of direction from within. Still there is wonder there.

Thor and his party went down through a valley and came upon a giant asleep under some trees. Thor, thinking he might be a Jotun, stepped close and cried into the giant's ear: "Can you please tell me the way to Jotunheim?" The giant did not hear and slept on.

Thor said to himself, "I'll wake you," and gave him a tap on the head with his hammer. The giant brushed his head with his hand and murmured, "I think a leaf must have fallen."

This angered Thor, and seizing his great hammer with both hands he brought it down with all his might on the giant's head. The lightning flashed and the thunder roared through the valley.

The giant again brushed his head with his hand, saying: "There must be sparrows in this tree; I think one has fallen." Thor, now ashamed, went on his way and finally arrived at the gate of Utgard, "a gate so high that you had to strain your neck bending back to see the top of it."

Thor and his companions were admitted. He told of his ambition to engage in the contests. He was told that he might enter the contests, but to qualify he must first drink a drinking horn dry that was handed to him.

Thor Drank Long, But He Scarcely Lowered the Horn Any.

Thor drank long and hard three times; he scarcely lowered the horn any. He was laughed at, "You are a weak child; can you lift that cat you see there?"

Try as he might he could not lift the cat. "Why," they said to him, "none of our men would contest with you, but there is an old woman here who might wrestle you." Thor, ashamed, seized the old woman, but try as he might he could not throw her.

He was thoroughly ashamed of his performance, and made ready to depart. He was accompanied to the gate of the city by an attendant, they politely sending the Chief Jotun as escort.

Feeling compassion for Thor, he said: "You are beaten; yet feel not so much ashamed, for there was deception in it. You were deceived by appearances. The giant you saw sleeping in the valley on your way was the earth Jotun Skrymer. You did not succeed in waking him, but look at what you did."

Thor looked and saw a great rent torn in the mountain through which a mighty river was flowing where no water flowed before. "That drinking horn was the ocean," said the Jotun. "Who could drink the ocean dry? But you did lower the waters along the shore. "The old woman you thought you were wrestling with was Time.

"Who can contend with Time? Gods and men, she prevails over all. That cat you tried to lift was the great MIDGARD SNAKE, which, tail in mouth, holds up the entire world. Had you succeeded in tearing that up the world would have rushed to destruction."

Thor looked at his attendant. He discovered it was the Jotun Skrymer, who thereupon vanished.

Only the Mocking Voice of the Giant Came to His Ears.

Utgard, with its sky-high gates, when Thor seized his hammer to smite them, had gone to air. Only the voice of the giant was heard mocking, "Better come no more to Jotunheim."

The great geologists of the last century struck the rocks with their hammers and a great river of knowledge flowed in upon mankind. They changed time—creation was said to be the beginning of time—from being a kitchen clock of six thousand years into millions of years.

To those who had implicit faith in the story of creation, as then interpreted from their Bibles, to those for a time, it lowered faith and hope and brought much misery to many.

It has come to be the belief of many that "he walks with God," as Thalf did of old, who does useful work, and the best gospel is the gospel of service, "Help ye one another."
