MRS. FRANK SCORES SOLICITOR

"TORTURE CHAMBER" METHODS CHARGED IN GETTING EVIDENCE

In Card to the Journal, Wife of Factory Superintendent Declares Solicitor Dorsey Has Approved Third Degree

"WE ARE SUFFERING NOW, BUT WHO WILL BE NEXT?"

Her Statement in Full—Conley Will Not Be Indicted as Accessory, but if Frank Is Acquitted, He Will Be Tried

Mrs. Leo M. Frank, wife of the indicted factory superintendent, Saturday afternoon sent The Journal a statement in which she accuses the solicitor, J. Edgar Dorsey, of using "torture chamber" methods in getting evidence in the Progan murder case by torturing witnesses into giving testimony.

Mrs. Frank's statement is given out in reply to one issued Thursday afternoon by the solicitor. She declares that her ex-husband, Minnie McCallister, was arrested in violation of the criminal law, because there was no charge against her and she was suspected of no crime.

She does not wish to be in any manner bitter towards Mr. Dorsey, even if he is indicted, because she knows that it is perfectly clear that he has acted in good faith and that he is doing his duty as a solicitor.

She says that she is sure that she will be able to prove her husband's innocence and that she is sure that she will be able to prove her husband's innocence.

TOO MUCH RELIGIOUS SERVICE DESTROYS CONVICTS DISCIPLINE

SAYS SUPERINTENDENT DONALDSON

He Asks Public Works Committee to Bar All Ministers and Evangelists Except Regular Chaplains by County

As a result of assertions made by Captain Tom Donaldson, chief of county construction, Saturday that disciplinary relations between the county and ministers and evangelists were likely to be all but destroyed unless the public works committee of the county board and those who are interested in the public works committee are reformed.

Donaldson stated that he had had no other recourse but to ask the county board to bar all ministers and evangelists except regular chaplains by the county.
