

SEEK AGED WOMAN WHO DISAPPEARED SUNDAY

Relatives Fear for Safety of Mrs. W. A. Nelson, Aged Seventy, Years

An all-night search by the city and county police and by her daughter and friends revealed no trace of the whereabouts of Mrs. W. A. Nelson, more than seventy years old, who disappeared from 129 East North avenue Sunday afternoon.

Her husband's death Mrs. Nelson was being buried here Sunday morning. The rain, wet weather that prevailed in and around the city Sunday night, Mrs. Nelson's advanced age, her poor condition of health, and the fact that no report regarding her had been made to the police by anyone seemed to indicate that she had not taken refuge anywhere and that exposure to the weather must have availed her some.

Since her husband's death Mrs. Nelson has been residing here with her daughter, Mrs. G. N. Carroll, her only widow. Mrs. Carroll formerly was employed in the office of Arnold Boyler, clerk of the superior court, but has very long ago been compelled to give up her position in order to be constantly with her mother. The whereabouts of them have been doing light house-keeping in rooms at 129 East North avenue.

SEARCH FOR MRS. NELSON. Sunday afternoon Mrs. Carroll left her mother for a few minutes and was at some task in the adjoining room, but she heard her mother moving about. A few minutes afterward she entered her mother's room and found Mrs. Nelson gone. The only clues were discovered in the fact that her bonnet and crocheted shawl and light wrap were gone, together with her handbag, which contained not more than $2, and a report by a friend who did not know Mrs. Nelson that he had seen her at the corner of West Peachtree and Georgia avenue, about 5:30 o'clock, an old lady leaving two or three times with the daughter. Mrs. Nelson is said to have told her daughter two or three times within the last few months that she wanted to go to the home of her son-in-law, E. V. Mallory, in Vinville, near Macon. But she did not have sufficient money to pay her fare to that city, and no report concerning her has been received from here.

PHONE IVY 216. Mrs. Carroll's telephone number is No. 216. Anyone who can give her information regarding her mother is requested to notify her here.

SOCIETY WOMEN OPPOSE NEW TRAFFIC ORDINANCE

Declare the Provision Against Parking Machines Interferes With Shopping

When Atlanta proposed new traffic ordinance comes up for discussion in council Monday afternoon it will be met with serious opposition from many Atlanta society women who own automobiles and who object to certain features which will restrict the parking of machines on the downtown streets.

The new ordinance will be presented to council by a joint committee of some of its own members and members of the chamber of commerce. It embraces a complete revision of the present traffic laws, but the main feature is that objection has been voted in that which would prevent the parking of automobiles beyond a certain length of time in the shopping districts and would not allow a car to stand there at all unless a chauffeur remained with it.

According to statements made Monday by members of council, a number of the society women have told them that the proposed ordinance seriously interfered with shopping. They claim it is a hardship to have to leave a chauffeur with a car on all occasions and that the length of time during which a car may be left in front of a store is entirely too short.

It is understood that the heads of several department stores join the women in protest, not wishing any interference with the convenience of their patrons.

Others said to oppose the new regulation are doctors and professional men, who are accustomed to leaving their cars in front of office buildings part of the day.

It is probable that as a result of the complaints the proposed ordinance will be referred to a subcommittee in order that a public hearing may be held. Councilman Albert Thompson has stated he would make a motion to this effect at Monday's meeting.

JUMP SAVES MOTORMEN IN STREET CAR CRASH

Cars Derailed at Piedmont and Auburn Avenue Corner—No One Injured

Street car motormen and conductors played the role of passengers in a collision between two trolley cars at 425 o'clock Monday morning at the corner of Piedmont and Auburn avenues. No one was hurt. The motorman of the leading car leaped to safety when he saw the crash was certain, and the motorman and conductor were only jolted. Both cars were derailed, their wheels crushed, broken, and they were derailed by the impact of the collision.

The car from the western part of the city was approaching the barn in a heavy downpour of rain. It was loaded with street car men going to their homes. Another car, with the motorman and conductor aboard, was leaving the barn on its way north. In the same way a switch was "split" or turned wrong and the leading car struck squarely into the track of the outgoing car.

About two hours later both cars were put back on the tracks and were hauled to the shop for repair.

CITY BUSINESS WOMEN TO MEET ON TUESDAY

Red Cross Seal Campaigners Announce Brief Meeting to Plan Work

Atlanta's business women are requested to attend a brief meeting in the interest of the Red Cross seal campaign, which will be held in the room of the Young Women's Christian association on Carnegie way near Peachtree, at 6:15 o'clock, Tuesday evening.

The meeting has been called by Mrs. John O. Bowser, who is chairman of this branch of the Red Cross work. Mrs. Bowser was formerly with the Eckert and was for a long time well known as secretary of the Y. W. C. A. She will be assisted by Miss Genevieve Saunders, who was last year chairman of the business women's committee.

The meeting will be a short one, simply to present briefly the plan of the work to be done and to place a supply of the Red Cross seals with those who are willing to undertake it. All attending will have ample time to get home for their dinners.

WOMAN FRIGHTENED BY ROBER IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Mrs. W. H. Pittman Suffers From Nervous Prostration After Shock

As the result of fright caused by an attempted burglary at her home Sunday night shortly after 8 o'clock, Mrs. W. H. Pittman, 41 Fowler street, is believed to be her bed with a severe attack of nervous prostration.

Sunday evening Mrs. Pittman and her husband were working on one of the Journal's "then-things" puzzles when noise was heard at the window of another room. Mr. Pittman got his revolver and went outside to find a man climbing in a window.

After the excitement Mrs. Pittman averted and it was not until 2 o'clock Monday morning that she regained consciousness.

The attempted burglary marks the seventh or eighth similar effort made in that neighborhood in two weeks.

Child Welfare Exhibit Opened By Mayor Woodward Monday Noon

Children from Cornelia Moore Day Nursery were early visitors at the exhibit and attracted much attention in the social welfare department. In the upper group are little Hattie Sewell, Rawson Rainer, Edwin Allen, Hazel Peters and Janette McNair. The lower picture shows Mrs. Hugh M. Lokey, who is one of the enthusiastic workers at the exhibit, making friends with Edwin Allen on his arrival.

First Day of Exhibit Indicates a Successful Two Weeks as Many Persons Attend Formal Opening

The best thought of the world along the lines of child welfare has been assembled in concrete form in the old Loden house, where the Child Welfare and Public Health Exhibit opened Monday morning, and already hundreds of Atlantians have shown their appreciation of what such an exhibit means to the city by attending on the opening day.

Mayor Woodward, who has heartily endorsed the exhibit by an official proclamation calling Atlanta's attention to it, opened the exhibit at 12 o'clock Monday in the presence of a large number of men and women who are vitally interested in the exhibit.

The attractive arrangement of the placards and models secured the immediate interest of all present, and it was not long before the information so strikingly conveyed was sinking into the minds of the visitors.

Children from the Home for the Friendless and the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery were among the first arrivals and became the center of attention for a while.

One of the most important features of the exhibit will be the clinics for children. These will be in charge of a well known physician, who will be assisted by trained nurses. Mothers may bring their children and secure, without charge, a thorough examination of each one.

The clinic will differ from most clinics in that attention will be centered on the well child, or at least on those who are well.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm stomach, liver and bowels

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without gripping, when cross, irritable, feverish or indigestion, colic—remember, good "tongue, mother!" If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "Fruit Laxative" and in a few hours all the foul, unappetizing waste, sour bills and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little stomach is full of its throat sore, has stomachache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, good "tongue, mother!" should always be the first treatment.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy, because it is so effective today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 6-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company"—(L.A.C.).

RECORDER'S POWER TOO LIMITED, SAYS BROYLES

Longer Terms for Habitual Offenders Would Lessen Arrests, He Declares

Commenting upon the recent criticisms of the large number of arrests in Atlanta and the large amount of fines collected through the recorder's court, Judge Broyles stated Monday that the cause is easily explained. He said:

"The majority of the cases before the court are well known police court characters. They come before the court many of them, a dozen times in a year, each case is counted separately, and 200 or 300 habitual offenders will in the course of a year show up more than 1,000 cases. The recorder is limited in Atlanta to a thirty-day sentence. In Birmingham and other cities where recorders' fines and cases have been compared the recorder can impose a sentence of from six to twelve months. Were this true in Atlanta the number of cases and the fines collected would fall off very materially.

"Then again, in comparing Atlanta statistics with other cities, one must take into consideration the large negro population we have here. Negroes constitute 75 per cent of the cases before the recorder.

"As for frivolous arrests, that is the business of the police department. When a man is arrested for the law and it is proven in court, I am compelled to fine him. The policeman might use the greater judgment in making charges, and thereby bring out greater respect for the law, but to obey the letter of the law, he is often compelled to make cases where there would rather overlook the incident.

"One thing can well be said: Atlanta is far better morally than any city which has been compared to it. The numbers of white cases, eliminating the showing would be in favor of Atlanta by a big margin."

ver had a great deal of wisdom, for it was just as he thought. Sammy was not bright and early every morning. He made sure that Old Man Coyote was nowhere the Green Forest, and then he made himself comfortable in the top of the tall pine tree where he could see all that was going on while Paddy the peaver...

Paddy had finished his canal, and a beautiful canal it was, leading straight from his pond up to the aspen trees. As soon as he had finished it he began to cut the trees. As soon as one was down he would cut it into short lengths and roll them into the canal. Then he would float them out to his pond and over to his storeroom. He took the larger branches on which there were sweet tender nuts in the same way, for Paddy is never wasteful.

"After a while he went over to his storeroom, which, you know, was nothing but a great pile of aspen logs and branches in his pond close by his house. He studied it very carefully, then he swung back and climbed up on the bank of his canal.

"Mr. Jay," said he, "I think our work is about finished.

"What?" replied Sammy. "aren't you going to cut the rest of these aspen trees?"

"No," replied Paddy. "Enough is always enough, and I've got enough to last me all winter. I want those trees for next year."

Sammy looked disappointed. You see he had just begun to learn that the greatest pleasure in the world comes from doing things for other people. For the first time since he could remember some one wanted him around, and it was not to be a guest at a dinner inside. He was just going to say something when his sharp eyes caught sight of something moving very slowly and carefully towards Paddy's pond. With a shrill scream he flew over to see what it was. Paddy didn't wait. He plunged into his canal and then swam under the water all the way to his house.

"There are so many ways to see what it was," Paddy didn't wait. He plunged into his canal and then swam under the water all the way to his house.

ONLY FIVE DAYS IN WHICH TO COUNT THE CIRCLES. THE ATLANTA JOURNAL'S GREAT PUZZLE CONTEST CLOSES DECEMBER 6TH 100 Cash Prizes $2,200 in Gold

THE PROBLEM The problem is to count the circles. Every circle is complete and intersects or touches one or more other circles. There are no parts of circles or shams or deceptions of any sort in the puzzle. In the event that no one counts the exact number the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. Accuracy and patience are the main requisites for arriving at the correct or nearest correct count. Those who display these qualifications to the best advantage will solve the puzzle best.

DECIDING TIES In one of a tie, a second puzzle will be presented. This puzzle will be practicable and solvable. Only those tied will be permitted to solve puzzle No. 2. No money will have to accompany the solution. The second puzzle will be printed but once, and those tied will have a week in which to solve it. Mail subscribers at a distance, if tied, will be allowed a week from the time they receive the second puzzle, the time to be determined by postmarks. In case of another tie, a third puzzle, also perfectly solvable, will be presented. It will be subject to the same conditions as the second. The second and third puzzles will only be used in case of a tie. Their purpose will be merely to decide ties, so that in the event there is a tie, the prize will be awarded without having to divide them or without resorting to chance. However, only three puzzles will be presented, and in the seemingly impossible event of still another tie, the prize, or their equivalent in cash, will be equally divided. If there are no ties, there will be only one puzzle. No prizes will be distributed until the contest is finally decided.

THE PRIZE LIST FIRST PRIZE—$200 in Gold, to which will be added 30 times the amount paid by the subscriber with the winning solution. This prize may be worth $200. SECOND PRIZE—$100 in Gold, to which will be added 30 times the amount paid by the subscriber with the winning solution. This prize may be worth $200. The following table shows what the first and second prizes will be worth, including dividends according to amounts on subscription.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS Should there be any ties, as many prizes will be reserved as there are people tied before any prizes are awarded to those sending less correct solutions. That is, if two people tied on the absolutely correct answer, they would have to count the second puzzle to determine which was entitled to the first prize and which to the second prize. Then, the one who sent the next best answer would be entitled to the third. This rule will apply generally. While the winning of a prize does not depend upon the time solution...

NEIGHBOR ASKED FOR INFORMATION Which was Promptly Disclosed and She Lost No Time in Profiting Thereby. Miami, Okla.—"One of my neighbors, Mrs. Hannah M. Turley, of this town, came to my house last week, and said: 'Mrs. Turley, what did you take to help you so quickly?' I told her it was just Cardui, the woman's tonic, and she said: 'I wish I had looked as well as you do.' I told her if she would only get $2.00 worth of Cardui, and take it, she would. So she sent her husband to town to get the Cardui, and commenced taking it. She looked so pale and sick all the time, but is beginning to look better already.

As to how it helped me—I suffered for about 5 years, with womanly troubles, and became so weak every month, that I could hardly get on my feet. I thought, at times, I would die. Was in such condition that I couldn't do my work half of the time, and would have awful smothering spells. My husband bought me a full treatment of Cardui (4 bottles) and I can truthfully say that after I took the last bottle I was well. Am enjoying the best of health now, and am so thankful to Cardui. Take Cardui for your trouble. You will never regret it. Begin today. Ask your nearest druggist. R. W. Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chamberlain Medicine Co., Chicago, Ill. Army's Victorious Eleven Is Welcomed Back to Camp

Start Training For 6-Day Race

For First Time in History of Event, American Teams Are Outnumbered

Hauled Up the Hill From River in Ancient Coach Used for That Purpose Many Years, With "Navy's Goat" Strapped to the Back of a Genuine Army Mule

(By Associated Press.)—The Army football team, exultant over its victory from the Navy, returned to camp at noon yesterday. The squad was met at the wharf by the 400 cadets of the battalion and hailed up the long hill in the ancient stage which has been used for that purpose for many years. Six hundred pairs of willing hands were ready to help the team up the steep incline. A real army mule took over the heavy load, carrying on its back a "Navy's Goat" strapped to the back of a genuine army mule. The goat, a small animal which is used as a mascot for the team, was held in a wicker basket. The team's victory over the Navy was a record for the service, having won the national championship for the first time. The team will start training for a six-day race on the 10th.

PACKEY M'FARLAND. Packey was about to retire. He had ducked well--on the fat of the ring, in fact, and felt nice and comfortable around the pocketbook, so very comfortable in fact that he had about decided to blow out the linchpin and crowd in between the covers of private life. A glittering caught his eye. A faint figure focused his attention. Yeppes, there in each man's eyes was a "money" all he had to do was to climb in the ring with Tommy, Murphy and it was his. Packey is not about to retire! We shall be sorry if he did. This would lose its most brilliant blow and the game its greatest credit. Packey is without doubt the best pugilist of any class in the world today, and if he did retire he will have carried between the ropes the greatest record of any fighter, past or present. "The only thing I ever got was one my father gave me when I won my first fight," laughed Packey. "As a prize I was given a gold watch and when I brought it home my father thought that I stole it and soundly thrashed me. But with something like $200,000 in the old book the Chicago lad is not working--$200,000 at the age of twenty-five and not a mark or scar to show for it. Easy money, eh? "Yes, I might say that it was easy," replied McFarland. "It did it ever come harder than this?" "You mean the hardest battle--yes," he nodded. "That was with Tommy Murphy in San Francisco on Thanksgiving day, 1911. Say that fellow is tough, isn't he? The best was twenty rounds and I beat him on the count of ten. Well then there is no need of me telling you about it, is there?" And believe us, game reader, it was a considerable battle; Wolgat was champion then, and Tommy and Packey were striving for the chance to meet him, so the result of this fight meant something to the winner.

Jake Daubert, Dodger Star, Led National in Batting

His Average for 139 Games Was .350, With Cravath of Philadelphia, Ranking Second With an Average of .341 and Nieten Home Runs to His Credit

(By Associated Press.)—NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Jake Daubert, Brooklyn's star first baseman, is the National league's champion batsman of the season of 1933. The official batting average of the league, made public yesterday, shows him third in the list with an average of .350 in 139 games. Of the two men normally outranking him, however, only Yngling of Brooklyn, is a pitcher and took part in but forty games, while the other Charles McDermott of Boston, who played in but about half the season's games, is no longer a major leagueer, having been released to an international league team some time ago. Daubert's average is .350, Cravath of Philadelphia, in second among the regulars who played in 100 or more games, batting .341, and is also led in home runs with 218. The pitcher Yngling had a batting average of .341 and hit 217 home runs. Charles McDermott had a batting average of .337 and hit 205 home runs. The other regulars who played in 100 or more games were: Huggins of St. Louis, .331; Williams of Boston, .328; and Dunn of Philadelphia, .317.

Boston American League Club Said to Have Changed Hands

HANK'S FORTIETH DAY---HE THOUGHT KNOBS HAD 'EM

---BY FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

IN RETRACTION.
When you hear that I've authorized T. Raymond Cobb and made Walter Johnson retire.
And setting the griffin free.
When you hear that I've made Jerry Bricksley look awfully good.
And driven the Snake to his den.
As you ponder I over, G. Reader, you'll know
That Cornell has copped one from Penn.

Avast there you Bricksleys and Johnsons and Cobbs, who are pounding the broad trail to fame.
And all of you guys behind serious jobs.
Now attached to the spotlight of fame;
I thought I was playing it safe with this blast—
As safe as a cunny look should be.
But Cornell, dad-bling her, has crossed me at last.
And it's now up to me to make good.

Not taking any credit from Cornell's achievement, still justice and fairness demands that she was working under a terrific advantage—
The dope plucked Pennsylvania to win.

Those guys who used to touch off maxims in the past were generally there with the stuff. Cornell has proved at last that "constant dripping wears away stone."

ABOUT J. TINKER.
We have always carried a good bit of respect and admiration for Joseph Burt Tinker, being adjacent to a good many of his exorbitant qualities. But this respect and admiration has been considerably increased by his latest move. Tinker could have allied along at Cincinnati and held his job as first assistant bat carrier, which is exactly the type of manager Cincinnati owners want. He would still have drawn the pay and the title. But he had enough stuff in him to kick the job aside when the general chairman of the National Commission informed him politely, but firmly, that he could do nothing as manager except to manage. Tinker refused to be something worse than a figurehead and chucked the retentive back where it belongs. When Redland fans decided to leave in return why their ball club is a failure they will know if they should know, about where to look for the answer.

Still you can't blame Mr. Herrmann. A dignitary important enough to be chairman of the National Commission, he could hardly be expected to let any one else run his ball club. The fact that Mr. Herrmann has plotted a joke team and scrambled things up for twelve or nineteen years has nothing to do with the case. This part of it is merely an incident. And yet there are those who rise up to inquire just why it is that the National league has been going back for five or six years.

THE OTHER SIDE.
Over in Boston Jim Gaffney decided that as long as he had a manager around he would not let said manager do a bit of the managing. He turned his club over to the manager and requested him to go to it. As a result of which Stallings promptly took a bad tallied club and in one year flashed swifly on by the receding rocks and Dodge and next year he will slip by some one else. When Herrmann is making a desperate stand to keep out of last place, Stallings will be up there fighting for the top. And if Stallings is at the top in 1914 as the Reds set at last place, he won't be many steps from sending Tyler in for that first world series start next fall.

However, we are forced to make this one admission: It is Mr. Herrmann's club in Cincinnati and it is he who desires fervently to have it wrecked, we feel that by amassing will power we still will be able to eat a couple of meals a day and smatch a few links of sleep each restless night.

THE 1913 WIND-UP.
The Army-Navy battle concludes a campaign that has torn the classic dapper into shreds. In the East especially the upheaval has been abominable. Take a look at a few of the queer turns—Penn. tied the Indians and the Indians beat Cornell. Then Cornell beats Penn. 21 to 0.

Pittsburgh beat the Indians and Cornell, and then Bucknell beat Pittsburgh. After which the Navy ran up over 70 points on Bucknell. Penn. tied the Indians and Dartmouth crushed Penn. Then the Indians chased Dartmouth forty-eight miles off the reservation and lifted every Hanover ship in sight.

It was a badly spotted season for all the big eleven except Harvard. The Haughton-Ricketts combination kept the Crimson sputtering at the same high altitude all the year.

For Yale and Princeton it was a season of disaster. Yale failed to score a touchdown in four of her games and failed to win in five. Princeton failed to score a touchdown in all of her big games, and out of three starts managed to register but three points—a field goal on the 34-yard line, Yale and Princeton, with a good combination of speed and power had no offense at all—nothing even resembling an offense. Good blocking and good fielding made up the other club from winning, but it takes a blocker or a kicker to get your scores. You never happened to see the Athletics winning because they had a good defensive team. They won because they had the old wallop—the old-fashioned blue-bloode and the kick. It might be just as well for Yale and Princeton next season to figure on scoring a trifling upon their own hook in place of paying too much attention to what the other side might do.

This sporting life is a great little institution. Just as we get the football season closed and the debris swept away here come a cluster of magazines swooping down upon the scene to raise the dust again. And just at the time when the approach of Christmas should leave one with a kindly feeling toward all humanity.

Red Sox Club Changes Hands

President McAleer, Secretary McRoy and Manager Stahl Have Sold Stock

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The retirement of President James B. McAleer, Secretary Robert McRoy and former Manager Jake Stahl from ownership interest in the Boston American League club is declared on good authority here today to have been effected through the sale of their stock aggregating a half interest in the club, to Joseph Lammie, a Long Island real estate man, for upwards of $25,000.

On December 10, it is said, the formal transfer will be effected and new officers elected.

The other half of the stock is held by General Charles H. Taylor and his son, John J. Taylor, and it is indicated that the latter will be elected the club's president, from which he retired late in 1911.

Ben Johnson, president of the American league, was active in promoting this deal, it is declared. Lammie owns a small interest in the Boston National club and was recently elected a director of it. President James E. Gaffney, of the Boston Nationals, said that Lammie will sell his stock in the Boston Nationals and resign from the directorate.

QUIMET HESITATED BEFORE ENTERING GOLF TOURNEY

(By Associated Press.)
BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 1.—His golf club set up for the winter, Francis Quimet, of Brookline, the youthful amateur whose victory in the United States open golf championship surprised the golfing world, told friends recently he hesitated to enter the tourney.

"I'm high now to think how I might have had a chance at the championship," said Quimet. "I did not want to compete in the United States Golf association's championship tourney because I felt I had no chance to win. I told close friends I would not enter saying I would rather learn something of the game from prominent golfers who would play."

Later, during the tournament at Atlantic City, President Wagon, of the association, asked me why I had not sent in my entry for the championship. I replied, "What's the use of a player of my standing attempting to compete in such an event? I don't want to make a boob of myself."

"That's all right," the president said. "We are trying to get a good entry of amateurs, so just hand in yours."

"I did so, but as I turned away said to myself, 'I'm doing this under protest.'"

LOOKS LIKE WHITE HOPES HAVE PASSED JOKE STAGE

Whatever sarcastic wits our sports humorists have flung at the white hopes for the last year, and they have been myriad in number and bit cracking in character, for it is a fact that fun, mirth, and a big man when he is not near to avenge the insult always arouse mirth, will now have to be withdrawn.

The day of the white hopes as a reliance on which the sport humorists carry their daily bread, is over a thing of the past. The white hopes have arrived and arrived with the real goods, a punch in either suit, diamond foot, knowledge of the game and other accoutrements that go to make the real thing.

Also the day of the supremacy of the blackies will be gratefully obliterated. The big triumphs which once posed of Johnson, Langford and Jeanette, in the opinion of the real night critics, will now do well to dodge some of our white hopes.

Gunboat Smith is the boy who put on a joke into a thing to be admired. In last Monday's fight with Sam Langford, admittedly about the best of the black race in a twelve-round match in Boston, and Gunboat won hands down. From the first of the ball Gunboat led the dreaded snort. Most him on the defense, most of the way, outboxed Langford and showed him up. Of the twelve rounds Langford attacked only three, the eighth, ninth and eleventh.

It is true the big black carried a knockout punch ready at all times to slip over when the opening offered. And there is where the Gunboat showed he was a real boxer. The opening never came. Gunboat protected himself at all seasons. Sam hamed his jaw eight or ten times, but always too far back never even close to the point of the chin, that vulnerable spot where most knockouts generate. A critic on a Boston paper in writing of the fight, says the bout was unusually fast for heavyweights.

As also thought Referee Dick Fleming and the writer along with many other eastern scribblers declares that Reno was avenged.

Smith used a tantalizing left jab to test advantage, rocking Langford's head away from the Boston man and using that left. When he did deviate from his plan he met the Boston man's right which warned him he was getting in for a fight. The way that Smith got about on his feet and avoided the vicious lunges or Langford was a big surprise. When he saw that right for Langford's jaw he either landed on that spot or the face most of the time. Some of them Langford fell over on his back.

The way that Smith blocked and tied Langford up in his punches was another surprise to the fans. Smith avoided swapping punches with Langford, except in a few instances and one of those times Langford crossed the right to Gunboat's eye and almost sent him lurching under that optic. Another right that Smith did act as a follow-up, for it kept the eye from closing or starting a new cry of agony. He kept it steady and thereby earned much favorable comment. The Boston man's left hand was stung as well as a cleaver as a punch in either suit, diamond foot, knowledge of the game and other accoutrements that go to make the real thing.

Smith's triumph was carried out to see the scrap, probably the largest that classic city has seen so far. The Red Sox football team, some 12,000 strong, found their way into the coffers of the Atlas Athletic association, whose bout was staged and of this amount Smith is credited with receiving $3,500, quite a tidy piece of change with which to buy Christmas presents and indulgences. Langford got away above $2,000, which he will convert into a letter of credit on which to live while in France, challenging the winner of that Frank Moran-Jack Johnson match said to be scheduled for Paris during January.

Yes, it looks like the white hopes have arrived. A thing once expected shortly after that Reno battle in 1910, but later looked on as an impossibility, so recently as to be laughable. But Smith's showing against Langford undoubtedly empties the white hope's incompetency belief into the back row.

It is true that Langford is not as good as he was two years ago. Parity age is telling on him. Jeanette and Johnson are ashamed to tell their age. Jack will be thirty-six in March in actual years. Dispositions of the worst sort have added several years to that, and it is extremely doubtful that the champion is now better than an ordinary third-ranker. Jeanette is thirty-four, and he, too, has gone back. Langford is the youngest of the lot, twenty-seven, but obesity is his greatest enemy and seems to have ruined his boxing skills.

From July, 1910, to November, 1912, the colored boxer was thought to have absolutely no equals, but that theory is exploded. And now, though he is not long in years, the match will be held, it is very probable that several times boxing men will be some. He staged Carl Morris is willing to meet any boxer in the world, and according to present indications either Morris or Smith will hold the world's champion belt within a year.

13 New England Hunters Killed

And 72 Others Injured During Season—Total Number of Deer Killed 5,180

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—The killing of 5,186 deer in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts this fall cost the lives of thirteen persons and more or less serious injuries to seventy-two others. The deer season closed in Massachusetts a week ago and will end in Vermont today, but hunters in Maine and New Hampshire have two weeks left in which to track their quarry.

Maine leads the northern New England states in the number of fatalities, of eleven persons killed in that state, four were mistaken for deer and shot by other hunters, six were killed by the accidental discharge of their own weapons and a little girl was accidentally shot by an older brother. More than sixty persons were wounded.

The New Hampshire and Vermont hunting seasons were accompanied by one fatality each. Four persons were wounded in New Hampshire and two in Vermont. No one was killed during Massachusetts' open week on deer, but four persons were lightly wounded.

If ticketed for The California Limited

You ride in cars of steel, on rails of steel - and it's "Santa Fe all the way"

Do you play golf? Do you enjoy autoing on perfect highways? Or do you prefer a walk down lanes of pepper trees and palms? Spend this winter in California, and you will experience all the charms of outdoor life in a semi-tropic environment. On the way visit the Grand Canyon.

The California Limited is an all-steel Pullman train, exclusively for first-class travel. Runs daily between Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles, San Diego, Oakland and San Francisco, with Pullman for Grand Canyon. Fred Harvey dining-car meals are served.

Four other Santa Fe trains to California. Three run daily; these carry standard Pullman, tourist sleepers and their cars; all classes of tickets honored.

Charles H. Black Asks for Permit for Four-Story Building on Former Trinity Church Site—Permit Asked for $12,000—Ponce de Leon Residence—James Street Sale—Court House Sales on Tuesday—Brookhaven Lot Sales

Charles H. Black on Monday made application for a building permit for his new building on the former site of Trinity church, at Whitehall street and Trinity square. The building will be four stories, occupying an area 50x100, and will be finished in stone, giving an effect something like the Brick building at Peachtree and Harris streets.

Another application is for a residence for Mrs. J. A. Farmer on the southeast corner of Peachtree and Harris streets, which will cost $12,000. This will be two stories and of brick veneer construction.

The sale of a land company lot was included in the real estate transfers of Monday. As the demand just now is for investment property, a large amount of lots sold at the sale. At the November sale there was the largest crowd of the year.

GEORGIA CORN SHOW WILL OPEN IN ATLANTA TUESDAY

Parade Thursday Will Feature Exhibition to Be Held in Capitol

Corn banked up on tables thickly covering the entire lower floor of the state capitol and part of the second floor, with exhibits from twenty-eight girls' county clubs completely filling the wing at the Washington street entrance, is the interesting sight that greeted visitors to the statehouse today.

The 2,000 corn club exhibits from more than a hundred Georgia counties are being put in place under the direction of Chairman H. G. Hastings, of the state show committee, and of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, and by night the show will be ready for tomorrow's opening. Mr. Hastings has supplied a special crew of his own men in charge of Roland L. Lyon, to place the exhibits, and an attractive and elaborate arrangement has been secured.

Honors to the champion of commerce from a hundred counties that 244 corn club boys and girls will bring to Tuesday and Wednesday. It is estimated that approximately 700 of these are anticipated that the returns of cards from the high schools and from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the grammar schools will more than take care of the surplus.

In addition to the features of the program heretofore announced, there will be special exercises in the hall of the houses of representatives at 10 o'clock, Thursday evening, December 4, for the visiting boys and girls. President Wilmer L. Moore, of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, will preside, and interesting addresses will be delivered by Chancellor David C. Barrow, of the state university; J. Phil Campbell, representing the United States department of agriculture; W. L. Britain, state superintendent of schools; and J. M. South, president of state college of agriculture, who will deliver his dissertation from that institution to all the boys who have a record this year of a hundred bushels or more. J. D. Price, commissioner of agriculture, will address the boys at the Grand opera house Wednesday evening.

Santa Claus Back on Job At Desk in Journal Office

Ben-Hur One of Dramas Living Year After Year

Another splendid showing is made by Iron Dooly, 12 years old, of Conner county, who put up this year 1,650 No. 2 cans of tomatoes on which her profit was more than $10, or nearly double what she did last year.

One of the girls in Jenkins county, whose name Miss Creswell could not remember, picked all the worms off her tomatoes as fast as they were taken to the fertilizer she used.

There will not be at least forty of the county club girls here for the corn show, and through the kindness of J. H. Bell, provision has been made for them to take part in Thursday's parade. Seats will be placed on his big truck, and they will ride in the parade at the head of the corn club boys.

Frank Harrell, lessee of the Winwood hotel, has notified the chamber of commerce that he will provide rooms at his hotel for twenty of the Corn club boys who will visit Atlanta during the show.

EDITORIAL ROOM Atlanta Journal

Old Saint Nick Begins His Annual Task of Reading Christmas Letters From Boys and Girls

There was a tremendous triple knock at the door of The Journal editorial rooms Monday afternoon, a big voice cried, "Santa Claus is here!" and a pair of twinkling eyes winked at the office boy.

The office boy, being thirteen and a materialist, opened his mouth wide and stared. It was enough to shatter the faith of the veriest iconoclast, for here was the jovial old saint of song and story, Santa Claus to the life!

Pausing at the threshold, Saint Nick surveyed the spacious room before him, shook his head with the city editor and made for a big desk in the far corner. Since December 21, 1912, the desk in the corner had slept away, dusty and dimmed, closed to all profane hands, drawing through a twelve-month shut a pair of red mittens should throw back the roller top.

"Well!" said Santa as he shook an ink pot, brushed his hooves from his chin, and settled in the chair until the rollers creaked. "Well! I'm back on the job. Hope there's a nice bunch of letters from the kiddies waiting for me."

And with that he made a dive with one pudgy finger at a pigeon-hole on the desk and drew out a postcard. "Dear Santa," it read. "I want a Santa Claus choker, marked down something on a long list he carried and sailed in with a will."

For a good three weeks he will occupy the desk in the corner of The Journal editorial rooms. Such has been the custom for years past. So has it been, dictating daily enormous quantities of mail, and ready for as many more letters as Atlanta boys and girls want to send him.

—REMARKS EACH CAREFULLY.

And all he reads carefully, writes down on his list exactly what you want and then has the letters printed every night. The Journal so that Atlanta youngsters can be sure he got them all. The letters will be on hand on the night of the 24th.

He is on the job each morning at 7:30 and works through a long day. From now on until December 29 you can write to him in care of The Journal office, 411 North Decatur, N. E. Write short and to the point, and on one side of the paper only. And that you write about this, for you're after it will miss exactly what you're after if you write about anything else. And he promises he won't put things in your letter that you proudest didn't

Lew Wallace's Religious Play Promises to Keep on Forever Like "Old Homestead" and "Way Down East"

Will there ever be another "Ben-Hur"? Plays are produced by the hundreds each season, yet the desire both to see and to read has not been satisfied.

There have been notable successes both as romances and afterwards as plays. "Ben-Hur" and "The Sign of the Cross" have been read by many thousands of people in every quarter of the globe. It is only a memory. But "Ben-Hur" continues to shine in the theaters of the country, bringing into their doors untold thousands of persons who ordinarily shun and detest the playhouse.

Miss Orford and her three wonderful elephants are in Atlanta to appear this week at the Lyric theater, starting with this afternoon's matinee. This act is the greatest novelty in all vaudeville. The beasts, two large ones and a small one, perform all sorts of wonderful stunts, even standing on their heads. In their acrobatic work, have a mock turkey, one acting as a maid, one as the caller and the other as hostess. They really drink tea out of huge cups and saucers, first mixing sugar in the liquid, stirring with spoons and then removing to saucer.

Robert Campbell's stupendous revival of the Lyric-Campbell's fascinating story of plantation days, "The White Slave," comes to the Lyric tonight for a week's engagement. This will be the first presentation of this beautiful southern life at popular prices. The play never having been produced here except at the standard prices prevailing in the higher priced theater.

In "The White Slave" the Lyric has secured an offering which will be enthusiastically received by its patrons. For it is doubtful if any other American play written within the past fifty years has the combined appeal to the head
