The Cost of Delay in Establishing a Market.

Prof. E. C. Branson, one of the South's most distinguished teachers, forcefully states the importance of prompt action in establishing a public market in Atlanta. He says, in a communication to The Journal:

"Every moment of delay will add thousands of dollars of cost to the solution of this problem. The Pennsylvania Railway spent eighty million dollars for terminal facilities in New York City. It would have cost ten million more, had the road delayed twelve months longer. In exactly the same way, Atlanta's delay in setting the City Market question runs up the final bill of cost."

This is emphatically true. Ten years ago Atlanta could have established a public market with little difficulty or expense.

Two years hence the establishment of a market will cost vastly more than today. Available sites will become rarer and rarer. For every dollar now required in this enterprise, ten will be required, if it is much longer delayed.

It is upon the households of the city that the cost of delay falls most heavily. According to Government reports, the price of table supplies is higher in Atlanta than in any other American city, with one exception.

This condition is due mainly to artificial circumstances, for Atlanta lies in the heart of a great agricultural country. The land immediately around Fulton county is capable of producing a supply of truck commodities adequate to the city's needs.

The present burdensome prices are due chiefly to the lack of a public market, with its encouragement to truck farming and its means for direct, economical exchange between producers and consumers.

The longer the market is delayed, the more onerous will become the cost of living, the greater will be the public's problem.

It is gratifying to know that Council and the Chamber of Commerce are at length co-operating toward definite ends in this regard. Their work should be pressed forward as rapidly as possible.

There is no problem of how to do with our baseball stars.

These are the melancholy data when the croquet problem refuses to be put off.

With baseball out of the way we'll have to start a world's series of football games.

Huerta's High Hand.

Huerta seems determined to make the most of his waning opportunities for oppression and intrigue. He has dissolved Congress, thrown a hundred or more of its members into prison and constituted himself dictator of the capital police.

His high-handed despotism, dealt one upon the other in a few hours succession, have left Mexico City trembling with expectancy and have set the entire country gasping in to the surper's underlying motive.

Early this month Dr. Bettino Dominguez, of the Mexican Senate, delivered a scathing attack on Huerta's policies. The story goes that a few hours before making this speech, the Senator drew his wife, bade his family good-by and declared that he expected to pay for his course with his life.

Interestingly enough he did drop out of sight some days later and the only information which a committee appointed to investigate his disappearance could obtain was the statement from the missing Senator's little son that a policeman had taken his father from a hotel.

Members of Congress naturally became suspicious and a large group of Liberals passed and signed resolutions of warning to Huerta. It is they who have been arrested and imprisoned from these incidents, have signed the latest arbitrary acts of the so-called "Provisional President."

October the twenty-sixth next has been fixed as the date of the Presidential election. Huerta thus has only a fortnight left in which to exercise his power, if the election is held as ordered. What he may do in that brief period, however, is beyond prediction. The method by which he gained the post he now holds show that he lacks conscience or scruple.

The Fire Waste Congress.

The National Fire Waste Congress which meets today in Philadelphia marks the beginning of organized public effort in one of the most important, yet hitherto most neglected, fields of conservation. Fire losses in the United States are greater than in any other country of the world and have been so for a quarter of a century.

Since the year 1881 nearly five and a half billion dollars' worth of property has been thus destroyed; yet, virtually no regulations, other than those which the people would voluntarily adopt, have been established to reduce this tremendous waste.

One of the purposes of the convention which opens today is to secure the adoption by every State and city in the Union of "legal minimum regulations, covering the construction, protection, equipment, occupancy and management of property" with a view toward eliminating the causes of fires so far as is possible.

The time is ripe for a concerted, nation-wide movement to this end. Within the past few years much profitable study has been given to the source and the prevention of fires. Forty States have installed fire marshals; they and commercial societies have been conducting educational campaigns on this subject; and the public has been made to realize more keenly the scope and burden of the fire-waste problem.

If these various efforts are now organized, it is likely that much needed legislation can be secured. At the Philadelphia congress a Fire Prevention League will be formed with branches associations in every commonwealth for the purpose of urging persistently upon State and municipal governments the necessity for adequate fire regulations.

There can be no question that better laws in this regard would greatly reduce America's staggering fire loss. The average cost of fire waste and insurance in Western Europe is said to be only about one-tenth that in North America, due mainly to better building construction, more intelligent control of occupancy and better governmental regulation.

In the United States itself there are noteworthy instances of the reduction of fire losses through well-considered supervision. In Cincinnati, for example, the loss has been reduced a third. In Philadelphia, where the inspection force has been increased from six to seventy-five officials and where more careful building regulations have been adopted, the results have been distinctly gratifying.

The New York Post aptly observes that "it is the disparity between what some cities have done and most could do which gives a comprehensive league, with power to urge building regulations, fire equipment, school and factory drills, its opportunity for effectiveness."

The Fire Waste Congress among its delegates, fire marshals and municipal officials, represents a wide cross-section of industrial and agricultural communities throughout the country and officers of insurance companies. The course and influence of such men will doubtless go far toward remedying prevalent evils.

Certainly the cause in which they are called is of vital concern to every community and merits the earnest support of good citizens everywhere.

An optimist is a man who lays up a little sunshine for a rainy day. When a man calls his wife "dear" in public it sounds like an insultation.

The Volturo's Fatal Deficiency.

The Volturo disaster will revive world-wide interest in the ever-important subject of safety appliances for steamships.

The Titanic's dreadful lesson brought many reforms. Both the American and the British governments conducted searching investigations and established strict requirements for vessels within their control. The result has been a distinct increase in the security of ocean travel.

It is, however, the England ship that has grave reason for raising its standards in this respect. The Volturo, which sailed under an inspection certificate given by the British Board of Trade, was conspicuously deficient in firefighting apparatus. It is said to have carried three steam fire pumps, each less than a cubic foot in size, two hand pumps, only four hundred and fifty feet of hose, and no hand extinguishers.

Under American standards, a vessel of this tonnage would have been required to have twenty-five hand-extinguishers together with many other safeguards against fire.

Evidently it was the lack of sufficient protection in this regard that was chiefly responsible for the Volturo's terrible fate.

It is the uncertainty of the weather and women that makes them interesting.

Co-operative Housekeeping

By DR. FRANK GRAY. (Copyright, 1913, by Frank Gray.)

The one institution in which progress lags in American cities is the Home. Notwithstanding its being our bulwark, palladium and so forth, we do not seem to be able to apply to it the modern improvements suggested by advanced economic and municipal science.

The plan that suggests itself as being most up-to-date is some sort of co-operative housekeeping, where drudgery could be reduced to a minimum, waste eliminated and comfort secured with economy. But most co-operative schemes go to pieces upon the rocks of personal independence. We would rather have an expensive and ill-managed household than one in which somebody else interferes.

In the Garden City of Leichward, England, they have been conducting interesting experiments which have created a discussion in the British press. Some twelve or sixteen homes are grouped into a housekeeping unit. The most costly consisting of two living rooms, three bedrooms, with bathroom, etc., and rent for $24; the cheapest a bachelor apartment with sitting room, bathroom and kitchen, a dining room, and rooms for reading, tea, smoking and the like. Three good meals a day cost $10 each. The average bill at the restaurant for two people is $9 a week. By paying a small extra sum one can have meals sent to one's home.

A family of three persons can thus live, in the neighborhood of London, in a comfortable and economical way. The light, cleanly and service are included in the price. Why do not our builders try more experiments of this kind?

The difficulty, of course, is nicely to balance the two opposing demands: First, the demand for absolute cleanliness and comfort, and second, the demand for self-reliance and personal independence. The latter is the more difficult to secure, and generally hinders our own business interests. But the latter is the more difficult to secure, and generally hinders our own business interests.

Why the Currency Bill Should Pass

As to the merits of the bill under consideration, the objections that have been urged by the bankers and others and the counter-proposals that are advanced. I am an unqualified champion of the fundamental principle involved in the bill in its present form, although it does not seem to be supplemented by a revision of our absolute national banking law, that has not been revised for sixty years, before the bill can be considered a comprehensive body of modern law applicable to present conditions in banking and financial world.

All this may safely be left to the experts and the system that is now being created. So too, the minor defects will doubtless be remedied as the discussion proceeds. For the men who have introduced the bill are dominated by the earnest, unselfish and painstaking purpose of presenting the best possible results to the public.

Taking up the objections urged by the bankers and others, it is not surprising that we find them all insistent upon a single matter: That, failing that, they urge a reduction from twelve to five in the number of the reserve banks. It is true, however, that under the Aldrich bill, for private banking control of the central bank, but demand national representation in the federal board, although the bill generally accords them control of all the reserve banks.

Whether there shall be twelve regional banks or only four or five such banks is a serious and debatable question. The arguments in favor of a lesser number are strong, but the arguments in favor of a greater number are equally strong. The question is one of expediency, not of principle.

The importance of the development of such a market cannot be overestimated. It lies at the foundation of the entire currency problem. The subject is little understood in this country. The bill does not sufficiently define commercial paper or protect the character of the paper against which currency may be issued to accomplish the desired purpose, except to "redeem" the difficult problems involved by relegating the whole subject to the Federal Board. That will never do. The question is fundamental.

Do not believe it will in any event be possible to develop this market for bills and acceptance unless the reserve banks are plainly permitted and encouraged to buy bills in the open market. In competition with the banks, as before stated—Samuel Hays, in the October number of the North American Review.

Pointed Paragraphs

But it isn't blind if it is self-love. There are lots "also rans" in the human race. You can't measure the enjoyment of others by your own. Self-interest is the motive power that requires the least oil. The woman who does her own housework has no time to flirt. A woman can jump at conclusions without any display of honesty. Some men never make good because they spend most of their time in trying to convince themselves that luck is against them.

WOMEN'S WEAR

VI—WHAT NEXT? BY FRIDERIC G. HARKIN.

What next? The misereur gown, with its wide neckline, portends the renaissance of the hoop skirt to some extent. It portends the possibility of trousers, not now worn by the butler. It portends the possibility of a gown with the feature of the seasonal "open" and "closed" gowns, the former of which has been a gorgeous procession of beautiful vandyke lace and the latter of which has been a simple, dignified, and very comfortable garment. These processes primarily are designed for the winter, but they are not without their own interesting value. They are seen by us in many cases, can crowd into the store, and frequently are worn every afternoon for a week.

Among the spectators always are representatives of the trade journal, who write detailed descriptions of what will be worn before all of the people listening in the garment industry, wholesalers and retailers alike. This is an important feature of the trade journal, which spreads the fashions so rapidly over the United States.

One of the most notable of this season's fashions was staged in a New York store. It was conducted in a room which had been transformed into a ballroom, so important that the principal feature of two seasons ago, the "open" and "closed" gowns, was the most interesting feature of this particular promenade was the reappearance of the bustle.

In this promenade some twenty-five or thirty models, each wearing a modern, entered upon the scene. The bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple. The bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design.

First of all was a costume called "The Slide, but the bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

Then came the minaret costumes. The first was a bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

The next model wore a recreation of a promenade, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

Not to be outdone by Polka, who ramped the bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

The most striking of the new bustle gown was a bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

Those hardy revolutionists who are combating the bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

It is true much costume are worn in Paris, but are not worn by the kind of women who are used to bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

But, despite these facts and despite the growing strength of the American fashion movement, the great bustle, which had been so common in the past, was the step, they passed slowly along the broad promenade, each with a bustle of a different design. Through an archway they passed in groups, representing the interior of an Oriental temple.

It is not to any desire for the improvement of women's dress, either from an artistic or a utilitarian standpoint, that we are indebted for the threatened revival of the bustle and the bustle. It is rather, to the absurdness of the fashion, as it is, that we are indebted for its revival. It is rather, to the absurdness of the fashion, as it is, that we are indebted for its revival.

Hundreds of New Suits make Their First Bow to the Women of Atlanta

The Most Impressive Display of Suits We Have Made So Far This Season

We must lay particular stress upon the quantity of new suits that have just taken their places on the second floor. It is impressive, and did one stop to reflect on its meaning, it would teach a fine lesson to the woman who has not yet been "suited."

Back of all these hundreds of suits that we will show tomorrow is, a fine amount of CONFIDENCE, of confidence in the women of Atlanta and in the styles, the DESIRABILITY of these suits. We know the suits are right, we know they are such that Atlanta women will want once they are seen!

The suit buyer is now in New York and these are the evidence of his labors. But the suits--- How shall we find accurate descriptions for so many, how shall we give you an idea of what to expect? Only in the most general way, leaving it to your greater pleasure to discover the one most interesting to you. If there is one term that comes closest to describing what the suits are it is

NOVELTIES

These are novelties of the latest moment and the cry is for novelties---it seems an echo to the voice of the good Dame who rules the fashions. It may be a novelty because it is a velvet suit---because it is fur trimmed, because it shows an odd little vest, because of its Oriental trimmings, because of the very graceful and unusual draping of the skirt---the advertising pen has had no such task before it this season, it outlines weakly the picture that you will see here.

Let it attempt another method--- These suits are from New York's STALWARTS in the suit making business, from those men who stand head and shoulders above the ordinary, who do things in a successful way, and to make suits in this fashion means that one must keep in touch with Paris.

The suits reflect Paris---they are copies of Paris models, others are adaptations, toned down a bit for American women. And so we revert to what we said above, This Is the Most Impressive Display of Suits We Have Made So Far this Season And you are invited to make use of it to the end that your fall suit shall be as smart and charming as, coming from this finest gathering of suits Atlanta has known, it could possibly be.

The Price Range Is Most Satisfactory---Beginning at $25.00 It Goes Very Gradually to $75.00

PUBLICITY FOR GOSPEL PRAISED BY HOLDEN

Newspaper Space Legitimate
Field for Churches, if They Pay for It

Modern methods of publicity were commended for the church by Dr. A. H. Holden, pastor of Moore Memorial church in his sermon Sunday morning. He advocated the use of the newspapers in carrying out Christ's command to preach the gospel from the housetop. He declared, however, that the church should not be a "deadhead" but should pay for the space it uses.

"Who Jesus commanded his twelve Apostles to preach what they had learned from Him, from the housetop. He intended to teach them that His gospel was to have the widest publicity," the minister said. "It was His custom among the Jews to have the most important announcements from the housetop and so the disciples must have understood what Jesus meant by His command."

"The telegraph, the telephone, the phonograph, the great daily press, the railroads and the ships that will the seas, all are servants of God and helping to win the world for Christ; unintentionally, perhaps, and unwittingly they are agents for the spreading of the gospel."

"While the newspapers are not published for the purpose of selling the cause of religion," said Dr. Holden, "yet as a matter of fact they are being used by God for the spread of the gospel and they are helping to evangelize the nations. And the great newspaper preaches to thousands the great news of the gospel."

"The minister said it is a disgrace for a church to pose as a 'deadhead,' and get all the free advertisement it can out of the newspapers."

"It is a proper thing to do to use the newspapers for the advancement of the gospel, but this privilege should be paid for by the church," Dr. Holden said.

DECLARES MORMONS SOON MAY CONTROL WORLD

Rev. Jere A. Moore Urges
"Crastic Measures Against
"Greatest Evil"

The Christian population of the country was urged to rise and wipe out the doctrine of Mormonism by the Rev. Jere A. Moore in a lecture to the congregation at the Harris Street Presbyterian church Sunday night. After sketching the history of the Mormon church since its foundation seventy years ago, he declared that unless drastic measures were taken the Mormons will carry out the boasts of the high priests that they will eventually control the world through the church.

There are now in the United States, principally in Utah and the western states, over 1,000,000 people who profess Mormonism, the minister declared, and they are constantly increasing in number through a very effective missionary system.

The Mormons are tremendous political factors in several states of the west, he asserted.

Mr. Moore characterized Mormonism as "the greatest evil of the present day."

"BRER RABBIT" STORIES TO BE TOLD AT WREN'S NEST

Miss Mary Brown, who will formally open the branch library at Wren's Nest next Saturday afternoon, will give Uncle Remus the central place on the program of the day. She will choose one of the most fascinating of the "Brer Rabbit" stories and will recite it in a fashion sure to please the little folk of West End.

The establishment of the branch library at the home of Joel Chandler Harris gives Atlanta three branch libraries, and greatly increases the usefulness of the main library in the city proper.

The program at the Wren's Nest will begin promptly at 2 o'clock Saturday and a number of features will make it interesting. Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, president of the Uncle Remus Memorial association, will present the library room; W. M. Everett, of the Carnegie library board, will make the address of acceptance; and Mayor James G. Woodard, F. J. Faxon, F. J. Spradling and George Boynton also will give brief talks.

The closing prayer will be offered by Rev. John E. White.

SERMON TO FIREMEN IS PREACHED BY DR. WHITE

Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church, delivered a special sermon to the firemen of the city Sunday evening. One hundred men from the various fire companies attended the services in a body.

CHRISTIAN SCHOOL LEADS IN ATTENDANCE RECORD

9,039 Children Attend 21 Leading Sunday Schools. Increase of 2,104

With the best real touch of autumn the Atlanta Sunday schools were filled to capacity with 9,039 children in attendance, showing a net gain over some day last year of 2,104. Hundreds who have come away for the summer months have returned and their footsteps were directed towards some one of the 21 leading Sunday schools in the daily report.
The attendance for Sunday shows an average of 439 to a school against 339 for the same day a year ago or an average gain of 10%. At a meeting of the "Superintendents" arranged to be held at First Christian church Tuesday night, the question as to whether or not these weekly attendance reports will be continued to be decided.
The First Christian Sunday school led in attendance Sunday, with 906 children present. The Central Presbyterian was a close second with 733 present. The reports of all of the schools follow:

Faithful Old Horse Will Not Be Downed By Auto-Competitor

Despite the annually increasing number of automobiles, the horse has not yet been thrown into disrepute. According to statistics compiled by I. N. Reynolds for a year or a dealer's horse stock.
Mr. Reynolds' figures show that there are in use in various cities over the country over 100,000 horses more than there were ten years ago. In Chicago, for instance, there are 72,000 horses, or only 200 less than there were ten years ago. In Boston there are only 87,000 less horses in use more than ten years ago. In Cincinnati there are 100,000 more horses in use now than ten years ago. In St. Louis and in Minneapolis.
The price of horses is increasing despite the number of automobiles, according to Reynolds. In 1902, for example, the price of mules has practically doubled.

SEES IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF BUSINESS

H. M. Atkinson, Back From East, Says Steady Betterment Is Noticed
Improved business and financial conditions were described by H. M. Atkinson, one of the receivers of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, upon his return from a visit to New York City and other eastern points.
"The business situation is getting better in Chicago and New York," he said, "and the steady improvement in financial affairs is nearly perceptible throughout the east."
Mr. Atkinson, who with E. T. Lamb is in charge of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, declined to comment on the rumored chances of the ultimate disposition of the property.

MISS MANSFIELD SCORES IN HER SUNDAY RECITAL

Miss Flossie Mansfield, the Atlanta girl who sang at the organ concert, Sunday afternoon at the auditorium, received enthusiastic applause from the large audience which was present. She also honored with Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., and the concert was notably good.
Miss Mansfield was on the stage for three songs only, but the audience liked her singing so well that she was recalled repeatedly to the stage and gave a number of encores.
Her selections were well chosen and comprised the most harmonious of classic songs and a number of old-fashioned favorites. Especially beautiful was "The Starlight" from "The Tale of Hoffman."
Sheldon's organ numbers were selected with a fine appreciation of classic music and a popular taste. He rendered each with the artistic skill for which he is well known.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb Writes Resume of World's Series Games

Giant Pitchers Could Have Bothered Mack's Hitters With Floaters

But They Didn't Use Them, Says Ty Cobb, Who Now is at Liberty to Tell a Few Things He Knows About the Batting Weaknesses of the Philadelphia Team—Result of Saturday's Game Should Forever Set at Rest the Talk About Prolonging a World's Series to Swell the Gate Receipts, Since Philadelphia Club Must Now Refund $40,000 to Ticket Holders—McGraw Praised for Game Fight and Taking Defeat Like a Good Sport and a Gentleman

BY TYRUS COBB

(World's Greatest Baseball Player.)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—The 1913 world's championship series of baseball games is ended, and the best team win. Cobb, Mack's champion for the third time beyond a question of a doubt their absolute superiority over the best the National league could send against them and for the first time it was the New York Giants who furnished the victors.

Defeat, Mack and Bush were too much for the Giants. The Athletics won because of the inability of the New Yorkers to the masterful veterans, Bender and Plank, and had they been better.

McGraw's team simply could not cope with the great offensive and defensive strength of the Mack team. The "clean" American league was far above that of the National league in every department. After the last game the most fair New York support admitted that the best team was declared the victor.

I admit that before the series was over I feared that the pitching strength of the Giants would more than offset the attack of the Athletics. I gave reason then and during the series for my opinion. I am sure now. I'll only say that I am glad to be able to pay a tribute to the Mack men, and say that their amazing offense, their defense and their pitching were the best the Giants could offer in the way of defense.

THEIR "SECOND GIBBERERS."

Now that the series is over, many are speculating and taking the second game on many points.

Some are criticizing the tactics employed by the two managers, particularly in the handling of the men in substituting the different styles of attack. In the summary of the game, I desire to deal most with the star players—the men who were most important in the success of the two clubs and have little to say about the mistakes of the managers. Because these men were the main reason the game was won, and the second game was won, and the second game was won.

GIANTS DIDN'T SACRIFICE.

In beginning, I might say that the New York Yankees did not sacrifice a run or so if they had more. In this matter series they sacrificed a run or so if they had more. In this matter series they sacrificed a run or so if they had more.

THE GALLERY AND PLAYERS AT BROOKHAVEN SUNDAY

The Englishman at Brookhaven Sunday, while some other clubs teed across the back, which served as a sort of protection and at the same time allowed them plenty of room to swing at the ball. Harry always plays with a club in the gallery, while Vardon carries himself for the links in golf with a stick in the gallery.

The bottom picture shows "Scotty" McKeister in the act of driving, with the gallery ranged alongside watching the ball to its flight.

Vardon and Ray Won Handily in Sunday's Match

Defeated the McKenzie Brothers 12 Holes Up in 36 Holes of Play Over Brookhaven Course, Followed by Large Galleries

Vardon and Ray, the great British golfers, defeated the McKenzie brothers, local professionals, 12 holes up in a 36-hole match of play over the Brookhaven course Sunday.

The match went twice around the course in the forenoon and twice in the afternoon, and was witnessed by large galleries in which there were many ladies. Cloudless skies and pleasant weather combined with a dry course, made it an ideal day for both players and spectators.

The McKenzie brothers did not play their usual form, as the severe breeze, although of course they might have probably would have won had it not been for the dry course.

Aside from some rather indifferent putting in the afternoon rounds they played the same consistent, steady game on Saturday.

Vardon's game was especially noteworthy. Only once Sunday was he out of bounds. His drive went straight down the fairway from the tee and after his drive and Ray's was full of holes.

In commenting on the East Lake and Brookhaven courses the Englishman said nothing but good things of the latter being accustomed to the putting green on the grass in generations ago, as he had been, they claimed to be somewhat pleased by the rather stubby fairways on the local greens.

EXTENDED GALLERY.

The Englishmen may have played a larger gallery than the one which followed them at Brookhaven, but they certainly they have never played in a more intimate and more enjoyable watching their game or more sportsmanlike manner.

It was a gallery made up of prominent men of affairs in Atlanta and Atlanta's leading society women. The "royal and ancient game" has taken hold on the fashionable set and has decided both by the personal of the gallery and the interest they displayed.

Automobiles were banded in front of the Brookhaven club house and the club's new auto bus was left standing throughout the five hours and did not fail to meet the Brookhaven traffic.

So pleasant was the weather that the spectators took both the forenoon and afternoon rounds, and the scene was most interesting in every respect.

The hurrying waters were worthy of the talents of the fine decorative artist. After lunch, when Vardon and Ray came strolling across the links, the galleries found their admiring looks fixed on the two great players.

At the first tee, with a crisp breeze blowing from the west, the firm of the tee was as good as started down the fairway. The ball closed in behind, as they had been at the beginning of the match.

Revolt Feared By Owners In Major Leagues

J. Ed Griffin, sporting editor of the Washington Star, and other recognized authority in this big league, declares there is danger of an open revolt by the members of the baseball fraternity, and that a serious situation in organized baseball is threatened. Griffin, writing from New York, where the big league managers and the national commission will hold their conference this week.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 13.—More than 875 players are expected to drive on Thursday morning for the first eight-holes of the eleven-day tournament of the Western Golf Association, which is to be played over the Memphis Country club course. It will be the first tournament for the premier golfing honors of the west to be played in a southern state. The match of twenty-two holes will be played in two days and will be completed on Wednesday, by a best ball match for which a $500 prize has been provided by the Memphis club. NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—When the New York Giants applied to the national commission yesterday for the share of the world's receipts, they did not get the money. They were informed that the commission would first see the contracts of the players, and that it might be some time before the money was sent to the players.

STAGE OF SERIES.

The great story for the winning club was Schang, Collins, and Baker, McDonald and O'Rourke. In fact, it takes up more of the team, and we cannot have Eddie Murphy out of the Atlanta lineup. In the small centers, when he fooled the crowd, he was the star.

Murphy was on third, and Baker on first. He started in the bottom half, and then when the Giant first baseman took him out.

Veteran Athletic Pitcher Says He Feels Strong for Many More Seasons

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Eddie Plank, veteran pitcher of the Athletics, was victorious in the last game of the world's series against the Giants yesterday, last night Plank reported that he had decided his intention of retiring from baseball.

"I did last year that I was going to retire," Plank said. "I have not done it this year and have no idea when I could start. I feel in fine shape and could pitch again tomorrow. I don't mind working to do so. I had intended leaving today to go to my home in Gettysburg, but later changed my mind and will be the guest of Harry Davis at his home here for five days."

Speedy Events At Motordrome

After a postponement Saturday on account of rain, Lou Castro announces he will stage his first motorcycle racing show Monday night. Castro took charge of the local motordrome last week and has prepared a first-class card for his initial show.

A hundred-mile elongated Marathon will be the feature event, with four teams of two men each entered. This means the riders will circle the saucer 109 times in the course of the race. The teams are Fickenshen and Schwartz, Richards and Lewis, Bruce and Renel, Luther and Glenn.

A force of mechanics and pit men will be on hand to repair any accidents to the machines and put them back in the running immediately anything disables them. Several short sprint races will precede the big race in order that the riders may get their heads in early training trim.

Points to Consider

People say that putting is merely a matter of practice, but there are exceptions to this rule. I know a number of very fine putters who never practice at all, and yet the strength and line of the putt always seems to come naturally to them. Willie C. B. in the World of Golf. To most of us, however, practice alone can give the delicate touch so necessary for holding the four or five-foot putt, and if the practice is made at a small hole (say two and a half inches in diameter, it will improve the player's game enormously.

But the practice must be on some green, otherwise it will do much good, and each putt must be examined carefully studied as if the most important match of one's whole career depended upon it. This does not mean tedious examination of every blade of grass between the ball and the hole, which, as most people know, is no advantage whatever—but just a little careful study until one's mind is made up as to the exact line. Sometimes, on an undulating green, the line is not found so easily. If I think any ordinary sportsman will not mind his opponent's spending his little time, so long as they do not lose their places on the course.

Many people consider that the best plan is to keep two putters, for a change will sometimes have a marvelous effect, but within my own experience I think any ordinary sportsman is usually very good reason for bad puttings and the best thing to do is to go off to some good green and just practice until the fun has been detected.

One of the most important things to notice which side of the hole the ball is missing. If for instance, you find you have pulled your putts on the first three or four greens, a slight adjustment in the stance, method of hitting will often result in sinking a good one within the next hole or two.

By way of final advice, if you practice hitting from following through in his usual free and easy style.

Although they would be the last to put forward such an excuse himself, we have no doubt that this accounts more than anything else for a certain inaccuracy in the matter of direction which has been noticeable in his long game this year.

He hopes, however, that the enforced rest accorded him will have put it all right again by the time he reaches Uncle Sam's territory.

The modern balls are driven so far that it is impossible to mark them down with any precision, and if they are not "rough" it is usually about 100 feet that they are next if they enter water. It is about 100 to 150.

To lose one of six balls in a day's golf is by no means an uncommon occurrence, and so we know by actual experience, one does not need to play very long to do it.

Last week on a well-known course, we met a party who had just had a homebound from the thirteenth hole, as they had both lost their entire stock of balls.

Wolcast and Nelson Meet

(By Associated Press.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 12.—Butch Nelson will tonight attempt to wipe out the sting of defeat inflicted at the hands of Paiglet, Ad Wolcott some five years ago. These former champion lightweight boxers are billed to go ten rounds in a no-doubt contest. They will weigh in at 135 pounds.

Many fans laugh at the idea of these "old has-beens" attempting to pull off a fight. But Nelson is just thirty-one years old, and Wolcott, twenty-eight, according to Dr. Oster, no man in his physical prime until he is nearly through his thirty-fifth year. They will have more or less of youth left, if either shows that he is all in, it can be accounted for by saying that they have gone the pace that kills, in their previous fights. They crunched a furious rate that all the "wits" has been taken away, will be the only way to account for a decided dropping off in form.

Just before the start of their fight any one will be willing to admit that neither in the main, he was three or four years ago. They were in their heyday then, but even now youth has not deserted them. In any other way of their words, they are considered most striking, so if they make you feel something warm, a warm one indeed.

The match is being advertised as a grade affair, and will draw a large crowd, hundreds of Chicago fans crossing the lake to the boat city.

Some time, it was troubling him at Fullert, and at Holyoke it was preventing him from following through in his usual free and easy style.

National Commission Spends $1,000 for Advertising to Help Make Baseball the Great International Game

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The world touring season of baseball will open next Saturday and continue around to the training days of the big league season next spring. Thus will the insatiable appetite of the fans be relieved in part during the usually tedious winter season. A considerable number of big league players have the advantage of practically an all-year-round practice. The roster of the American league players to be taken around the world by James Callahan has not yet been officially announced, but the National League under John J. McGraw will follow, according to the list formally filed by McGraw with the national baseball commission.

Meyers of New York, and Wingo, of St. Louis, catchers; Matherbrook, Texera, Promme, White and Hearn, of New York; pitcher; Morley, of New York; first base; Doyle, of New York; second base; Dolan and Lopez, of Philadelphia; shortstop; and third base; respectively; Snodgrass and Thorpe, of New York; and McGehee of St. Louis, is the outfield.

The American league players, unofficially announced, are as follows: Weaver, of Chicago; Catcher Henry and infielder McBride and Schaefer, of Washington; Pitcher Leverage, of St. Louis; Infielder Pochinghaus, of New York; and Outfielder Crawford, of Detroit, and Lantz, of Boston.

The eastern players will leave New York next Thursday and the first game of the tour will be played Saturday at Cincinnati. The second game will be played at Chicago next Sunday.

The national baseball commission, which voted yesterday a contribution of $1,000 to advertise the tour, believes that the trip will hasten the time when baseball will become a really international sport.

Women's Golf Classic Monday

Three Nations Will Be Represented on the Wilmington Links

(By Associated Press.)

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 12.—Leading women golfers from Great Britain, Ireland, Canada and the United States will contest in the opening round of the National Women's Golf Championship tournament, which starts today on the Wilmington Country club links. Miss Marie Diod, British and Canadian champion; Miss Mabel Harrison, three-time winner of the Irish championship; and Miss Gladys Hansen, last year's winner of the British title, are among those who will try to take the Robert Cox trophy, emblematic of the American championship, home with them.

Alabama has a fast team that has shown well this season.

The Two-Merger game is the gridiron fray that will be played before an Atlanta audience, and although the jackets are favored to win without much danger of having their goal line crossed, the Mercer college crowd is gritty and will fight all the way.

Atlanta and Clemson will look hard at Auburn in a game that ought to be somewhat close.

The outfit starts its hard games earlier than the season's colleges. For next Saturday the Penn State game is the only struggle that promises to be more than a tuning up.

Volunteer Team Has Shown Well

With the football season verging into the middle of October and the college boys' eyes cast toward the hard terms are next on the schedule, the varsity football team is returning to search out what tactics in a section have to be given up, and what to use to dispute for the championship.

Varsity, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Sewanee, Tennessee and Georgia on early seasons show signs of having areas of excellence, but judging by reports made from student correspondents in Dokey Dale, Dan McGugin has far away the best and greatest amount of material to work with as usual.

The route for a good deal of material Vanderbilt is amply able to cope with, but it is almost any member of the team and that a Phyrre victory will be well worth the effort.

Her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Wright, swam with her and also made a new record. The child made the 32 minutes, 40 seconds, the mother in 32 minutes. The best previous woman's record in this distance is 34 minutes and a half in a stretch line, but swimmers always are carried well out of their course.

Harder Games For This Week

The baseball season of 1913 passed into history last Saturday with the finishing of the world's series, and now the football season is just getting under way. On the list of events, several games of more than ordinary interest.

The hardest fought game promises to be between Tennessee and Sewanee as both teams seem strong this year, and about evenly matched. Locally the most interest is centered on the Georgia-Ala. game which will be played at Birmingham. The Red and Black seems to have the advantage in weight, but

Apple Orchards in North Georgia

A great apple crop is now being raised in the north Georgia section of the state...

Many people are sowing their orchards this year in crimson clover, and it is a good thing for them to do...

In addition to this we will be right at a market that will consume and utilize every apple that is grown in this country...

It is a hard matter to get capital and interest enough centered together for these things to look up and give them the kind of attention they should have...

There is a future for the apple in this country and here we have the brains and the money to make it pay...
