NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, who was ordered to leave this less than three hours after she arrived here today, was given the best possible of reasons for the detention order pending the outcome of her appeal.

With Miss Rheta Childe Dorr, one of the English militants among sympathizers who was "voluntarily detained" in order that she might be with her, Mrs. Pankhurst occupies the commissioner's suite of two rooms in the Metropolitan Hotel.

While Mrs. Pankhurst is being given an appearance of bareness, the rooms are comfortably furnished with the usual furniture, but in the building, they are the only ones in which Cipriano Castro, the Venezuelan dictator, was detained while his case was pending.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18.—Provisional President Huerta has not professed to see how he fled from the capital. When seen at the national palace at 6 o'clock this afternoon he said he had no intention of doing either.

"It will be to seek a resting place for the president," he said. "I will be in the capital in a few days and take my place in the ranks to fight the rebels."

"This was President Huerta's answer to queries as to whether there was any foundation for reports which have been freely circulated in the capital and have found their way to the United States."

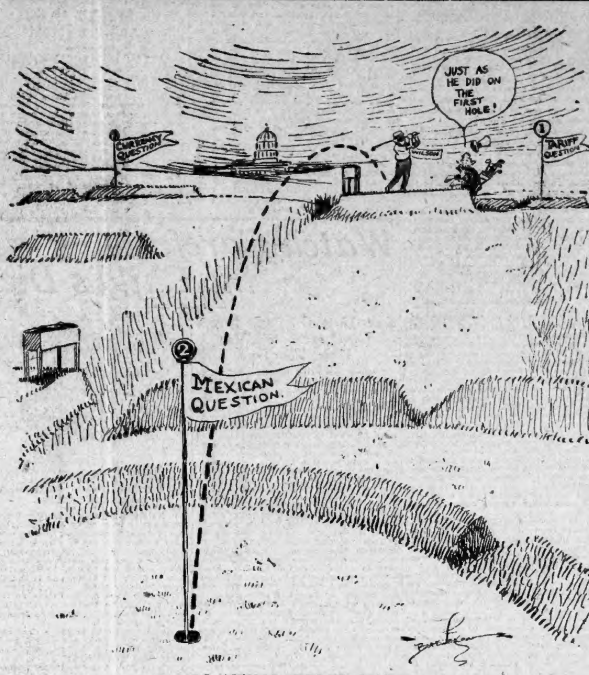

General Huerta looked the picture of health and energy. He greeted the Associated Press correspondents with a cordiality, asked for a cigarette, and listened to the explanation of the motive for the visit.

"I have resigned or intend to resign," he said. "You can see for yourself that I have not left the capital. I have resigned or intend to resign."

310 Mrs. M. L. Bowles, a widow of 315 Rawson street, looked out of her front door to call her thirteen-year-old son Claude about 5:30 o'clock Saturday, she saw a crowd of boys gathered at the foot of a tall pole at the corner of Rawson and Central avenue.

At the top of the pole was her son, and from her front porch she saw the lad's head was loosened and he fell to the ground.

She saw two little playmates, Albert Cheving and William Brantley, boys of about the same age, jump under the pole, and break her son's fall with their own bodies.

Mrs. Bowles and a neighbor, Mrs. Robert Murray, of 222 Rawson street, reached the boy's side in an instant. He was unconscious and the mother, grabbing him by the arms, carried him into the house. He died a moment later.

Dr. J. H. McKenzie, the physician, who was called, did not make a post-mortem examination after he ascertained the fact that the boy was dead. It is said that the little boy was electrocuted.

The boy's body was removed to the "Stimmons" company's shop, and the undertaker, Charles Lee, who was undoubtedly electrocuted. The fall of the boy was so well broken by the two boys that not a scratch was done to the skin was made on little Claude's body.

It was ascertained that the exchange should occur Monday morning. Mr. Rosser, now Solicitor Dorey will discuss the contents of any affidavit in the department, but it is understood that Mr. Rosser has a number of new depositions which charge that Juror H. Henkle was biased when he went into the jury box.

It is also rumored, but unconfirmed, that he has a affidavit attaching a third juror. The only jurors cited in the original set of affidavits furnished by Solicitor Dorey are pronounced to be innocent.

AMPHIENS SENTENCED TO U. S. PRISON HERE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 18.—F. L. Hendon, of Lumberton, Ark., and J. M. Donald, of La Kemp, Ohio, convicted of robbing a train, were sentenced to the penitentiary today in federal court here. Hendon was sentenced to three years in the federal prison at Atlanta, and to pay fines of $10,000 and $5,000, respectively. Donald was sentenced to three years in the federal prison at Atlanta, and to pay fines of $10,000 and $5,000, respectively.

NEGRO REPUBLICAN SOON TO FACE S. COURT?

B. J. Davis May Be Brought to Trial on Indictments Returned Many Years Ago

After about eight years of delay there is a probability that B. J. Davis, the editor of the Independent, a negro paper, and a main proponent in Republican politics for many years, will face trial in the United States court on indictments returned in 1905 charging him with removing whiskey from government distilleries with the intention to defraud the government of the tax on such whiskey.

Davis was formerly a United States revenue collector and later under Henry A. Tucker, the negro collector of internal revenue who preceded Henry B. Jackson, his duties being to remove, cut and other commodities used in the manufacture of whiskey from government distilleries which were stationed throughout the state to keep an accurate record of the amount of whiskey manufactured and to see that it was transferred from the distillery to the warehouse and it was held until the government taxes were paid.

No whiskey was supposed to be removed until the taxes were paid, and it was charged against Davis that he took whiskey away from the distilleries for his own use and without payment of the tax.

The indictments were returned when J. A. Anderson was district attorney about eight years ago and from that time until the case has never been tried in the courts.

Several times illness of attorneys was offered as excuse, and once an negro named Thomas, a mental witness for the state, disappeared and it took the government more than two years to locate him near Little Rock, Ark.

Recently the matter has been brought up again, and it is expected that Attorney Anderson is able to assemble his evidence and secure necessary subpoenas, after so long a time, the records of the indictments will be completed by either a conviction or acquittal in the United States court.

MYSTERIOUS PERSON SAYS HE SAW DEATH OF MURDERED GIRL

It is said that they had heard of the Birmingham rumor.

J. J. Kelly, head of the local Pinkerton agency, which was called in to investigate the case by the Frank defense, declared that he had heard nothing of the rumor. None of the men connected with his office in Birmingham, he said.

Sherrif Mangum and several of his deputies declared Sunday morning that no woman had been seen in Birmingham by them, and were inclined to totally discredit the Birmingham report.

Sherrif Mangum stated only one of his deputies, John Owen, is out of the city, and that he is in Birmingham attending to personal business.

Here Is the Story by Journal's Correspondent

Special Dispatch to The Journal. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 18.—Accompanied by a detective deputized by the sheriff of Fulton county, Ga., the Journal's Atlanta correspondent today says that he saw Mary Phagan murdered and that Leo Frank, the convicted man, left Birmingham Saturday at midnight to tell the whole story of the tragedy.

His confession, made to Chief of Police Hodder here, implicates a prominent Atlanta.

Chief Hodder declines to give the name of the person who made the confession, or whom it favored, saying that he is under a pledge of secrecy.

According to the story told by the chief, the man who told the story is now employed in Birmingham.

Friday afternoon he walked into the chief's office and informed him that he could tell important details of the tragedy with which Leo Frank had been connected.

His story was to the effect that Frank was not guilty.

The man declared that he was an eyewitness to the story.

The chief did not hear the story in detail.

BOB WEEVIL ADVANCED 70 MILES THIS SEASON

Ala. Commissioner's Report Shows Greater Yield in Other Crops Than Cotton

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 18.—Bob Weevil advanced seventy miles eastward in Alabama last season and should they make the same progress this year will cover the southern tier of counties, according to the annual preliminary report of Beuben P. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture, submitted to Governor O'Neal yesterday.

"A quarantine rigid in character has been in force," said Commissioner Kolb, "but it is effective as far as stopping its progress is concerned. It is now in a position just the farmer on his own land, and he is willing to work and fight can hope to succeed in making a crop."

"But Commissioner Kolb's report contained a ray of hope. 'However,' he said, 'if while it makes the farmer very blue on the appropriate and orderly to grow more of the necessities of life, which at the present prices they are making a fortune out of, a farmer who has grown cotton wholly as his money crop.'

"We have been, very active in making the situation clear to the farmer so as to enable any possibility of a profit. Any progressive man who owns his home here has no doubt of the results. Work and fight will eliminate the debt of the farmer who will get soon place him on the road to happiness and prosperity."

Yield of corn and growth of hogs and cattle have increased greatly during the year. "Great strides are being made in the manufacture of the fertilizer," said Commissioner Kolb, "and it is expected that the problems of growing feed stuffs will be solved in the near future."

His efforts have been rewarded fully by the intelligent and active support of the farmers in the state. The increase in the yield of corn and growth of hogs and cattle has been a source of pride to the agricultural department.

Receipts of the agricultural department for the year were $1,157,670 as against $1,149,000 for the year ending September 30, 1912. The registration of hogs and cattle for the year was 1,476 more in 1913, 3,000 more than in 1912, and 480 in 1913, 3,000 more than in 1912.

His resignation, Bishop J. M. Francis, of Indianapolis, agreed to continue his position as president of the conference, which he has held since 1908, having offered him a residence in the city of Indianapolis.

William Oshorn, of Springfield, Ill., declined to remain at the request of the Episcopalians. He had desired to resign because of age and infirmity.

WILSON CUTS WEEDS FROM CURRENCY PATH

President Holds Conference With Republican Senators to Aid Bill's Passage

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—President Wilson has further cleared the path for currency reform in the senate through conferences opened today with the Republicans on the senate committee now in charge of the bill.

As a result of a conference with Senator Nelson, which it is believed will be followed by talks with other Republicans, the president has received assurances that the Republicans are not holding up legislation nor trying to impede action on the currency bill in the senate.

Democratic leaders expressed confidence today that the senate committee would be able to come to such an agreement upon the currency reform measure as would insure its unopposed support by both Republicans and Democrats. This assurance was based on the knowledge that no effort is to be made to draw party lines on the bill, but that the Republicans are to be fully co-operated in amending and restricting the measure.

The opening of direct negotiations with Republican senators, it is understood, was decided on by the president because of suggestions from outside sources that they were endeavoring to delay action in committee while the effort has been made to fix a date for the reporting of the bill. It is understood the president has been assured that progress in the committee will be made as rapidly as possible.

Young Indian Runaway In Washington to See "Great White Father"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Just as thousands of adventurous white youths have run away from home to "fight" in Mexico, a young Indian, a full-blooded member of the Qualla Indian tribe in North Carolina, has run away from the reservation to see the wonders of the white man's world.

Having attained the ripe age of 12 years, the young brave, together with another lad some seven days younger, started from the ancestral tapes and camp north in Baltimore, and were soon separated and Juniper decided to come to Washington to visit the wigwag of the great white father.

His native sagacity apparently failed him for he was viewing the exterior of the police guard when Deputy Marshal Redde came down the steps.

"Up," said the copper-colored young warrior admiringly, "they're the chief."

The official promptly rounded up the young aborigine, who was almost dumb with fright, and escorted him to the white man's expense.

CONVICT SHOT WHILE TRYING TO SLAY WARDEN

Guard Shoots Down Negro as He Attempts to Slash Warden's Throat

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) ROME, Ga., Oct. 18.—One of the guards at a convict camp near here shot Arthur Young, a negro convict, in the hip, just in time to keep him from cutting the throat of Warden J. C. Penn, with a razor.

The negro who was serving a twenty-year sentence for burglary from Floyd county, broke from the guards while he was being dragged and attacked the warden, Arthur Young, sentenced for a diamond robbery in Atlanta, and Ernest Harris, two other negroes, took advantage of the excitement and escaped. The country is being scoured for them with dogs.

Watch Carefully the Child's Diet

Start Them Off Right With a Good Laxative and Then Watch Their Food

RALPH H. PATTEN.

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same foods. The fact is that all foods do not agree with all children, and anything that does not seem to constitute the child or to give it indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this it is meant a physic or purgative for these should never be given to children, nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentles of medicine, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, in the opinion of thousands of watchful mothers, is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation.

So many things do happen to a constipated child that care is necessary. Colds, plums, head-aches, sleeplessness, and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's greatest farmers are never without Syrup Pepsin, because one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands endorse it among them Mrs. M. E. Patten, Valley Springs, Ark., who has never without it in the house. Mrs. Patten says that Syrup Pepsin has done wonders for her boy Ralph, who was constipated from birth but is now doing fine. Naturally she is enthusiastic about it and wants other mothers to use it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value, and it contains proportionately more.

Everyone likes Syrup Pepsin as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also mild and non-gripping and free from injurious ingredients.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postcard with your name and address on it will do.

JACKSONVILLE PAYS TRIBUTE TO MR. PARROTT

Dead President of East Coast Road Honored on Body's Arrival There

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 18.—With his widow, he returned home on a trans-Atlantic steamer from Europe to be present at his funeral in this city, October 23, Jacksonville's Chamber of Commerce has paid its respects to Joseph R. Parrott, president of the Florida East Coast railway system, with a throng of 2,000 people at the well-known railway station.

That he was buried in the place of his birth had where he usually resided. He was a graduate of Yale, a member of the bar, and a member of the professional life and for several years he had been president of the Florida East Coast railway system. He succeeded Mr. Flager as president of the Florida East Coast system on the death of the latter.

His resignation, Bishop J. M. Francis, of Indianapolis, agreed to continue his position as president of the conference, which he has held since 1908, having offered him a residence in the city of Indianapolis.

William Oshorn, of Springfield, Ill., declined to remain at the request of the Episcopalians. He had desired to resign because of age and infirmity.

ADLER-ROCHESTER SUITS—OVERCOATS

We want to show you the models that we declare are the finest tailored clothes that we have ever exhibited.

Their style, their individuality, their "cut" are a rare delight to the eye. This expresses their general character mildly, but—

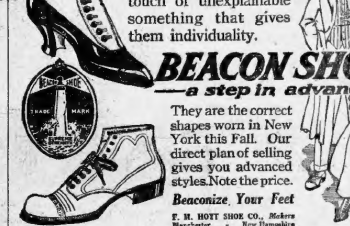

It's the unusual tailoring in these new fad models that we are frankly and wildly enthusiastic in recommending to you. It's the unusual tailoring that gives them their hang—it's the same unusual tailoring that makes the difference in the "turn" of their lapels, the "set" of their sleeves and the smart gracefulness shown in the lines of the coats.

The fabrics we show are a selection of especially designed world-famous wools. These ADLER-ROCHESTER Models mean to those men who care—absolute dress distinction.

MRS. PANKHURST IN DETENTION TILL HER APPEAL IS DECIDED

all in the "cell" in the board room, as a detainee, from women of motherly appearance. Her views are so reported to the formal question was that of a woman of good breeding. Pankhurst, weary after her experience of the day, she retired early, to all appearances composed for a good night's rest and without worry as to the outcome of her case.

English Militants Are Perturbed by Situation

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The order for the deportation from the United States of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, coming on top of the public announcement of her arrest, has caused considerable consternation among the militant suffragettes here. The headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union were open tonight, but only a number of the rank and file reported. In the absence of details, few of them cared to talk for publication. They did not attempt to counsel their militant leader.

The famous "war cabinet" of the militant organization is seriously ill. Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, Mrs. Pankhurst's daughter, while she is absent in the country. Not an official could be found tonight to take charge, and the militant gathered to learn if they could assist in any way their leader here in the United States.

Mrs. Ann Maud Hicks, who has served several terms in jail for window-breaking and "obstruction" during the American immigration authorities should take action which would tend to make the United States, equally with England, the haunts of the militant world wide as regards the treatment of militants, but I confidently expect that the American suffragettes will make such a protest as will result in the rescinding of the deportation order.

At a meeting tonight presided over by the Bishop of Kensington and attended by leaders of all shades of opinion, except adherents of the Women's Social and Political Union, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Lawrence gave an account of the calling off of old scores in an effort to organize all branches of suffragettes. Mrs. Lawrence has without a hint of the violent methods which were formerly employed. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Lawrence were forced out of the Women's Social and Political Union by Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughters several months ago, not contented their advocacy of militancy until today.

The Bishop of Kensington hinted that the church now is ready to become a positive force and would back up the women's movement conducted on the new lines.

Miss Max Scott-Troy, of San Francisco, said: "I know positively that the British government sent an intimation to Washington that it desired Mrs. Pankhurst kept out of the immigration. England does not necessarily involve disgrace or prove moral turpitude, Pankhurst was imprisoned here, but returned properly was warmly welcomed in America."

To deport Mrs. Pankhurst would be illegal and absurdly unbecomingly.

No Decision Expected Before Monday in Case
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Commissioner of Immigration today announced that he had received the papers in the record of the hearing today of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst by the board of inquiry at Ellis Island.

Tomorrow the commissioner and Acting Secretary of Labor Post will take up the record for consideration. Mr. Post said that he would not expect to have the commissioner's formal hearing of the case today.

It appears scarcely likely that final decision of the case will be announced before Monday.

Protests and appeals on both sides of the celebrated case, couched in terms ranging from legal to strongly and gently sentimental, continued late today to pour in on the immigration bureau and began to reach the White House. These addressed to President Wilson were referred to immigration authorities. While house officials pointed out the section of the law which vests the secretary of labor with final authority in deportation cases, suffragettes at headquarters of the National Association of the Deaf, arrested at Mrs. Pankhurst's detention, engaged two attorneys to act with those coming from New York. One of the local lawyers, Miss Emily Gillett, a suffragette, and dean of local law colleges.

Commissioner Cammatt, while taking pains to make clear that Mrs. Pankhurst's case was being treated exactly as that of any other foreigner, pointed out that she was in ill health and that consideration due to a tended to do so; that he had secretly left the capital; and that General Huerta would succeed him. The state department received, as many indications that it called Charles O'Shaughnessy for information.

The receipt this afternoon of the positive statement from Mexico City that Huerta did not intend to resign, and that he would remain in the capital, and which resulted in his liberation. Today there has been communication between the state department and the British embassy over the incident. Protesters pointed out that the suffrage leader might avail herself of a protest in her capacity as a British subject.

Chicago Suffragists Hold Protest Meeting
CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Chicago suffragettes of all factions forgot their differences, and at a hurriedly called meeting united in a protest against detaining Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst in relation to the United States.

Some were in tears as they expressed their disapproval of the action of the immigration authorities. A resolution of protest was adopted and telegraphed to President Wilson. A message of sympathy was sent to Mrs. Pankhurst at Ellis Island.

Disparages from Charles O'Shaughnessy today were on routine subjects. State department advice from elsewhere reflected that the governor of the state of Colima had resigned and that the state congress had designated a military governor, General Juan A. Hernandez.

Comparatively few Americans are left in Toronto, Anasco and Valparaiso, according to information received from this country.

"Sex Discrimination" Says Indiana Women's League
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 18.—The Women's Franchise League of Indiana, at a meeting here this afternoon, passed a resolution that Mrs. Pankhurst, English militant suffrage leader, not enter the United States. A copy of the resolution was telegraphed to President Wilson. It declares that "whatever Mrs. Pankhurst may be to her government, she is manifestly a potential military governor, and she is being admitted to this country as a male offender has been admitted at all times."

Grateful for the News
BOPTON, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Elizabeth Chant, a leader of the peaceful suffragettes of England, today expressed her gratitude to the British government for its action in releasing Mrs. Pankhurst. She called it a "good turn for England."

Four Killed by Wreck of Auto in New Orleans
NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Samuel Jerolimian, her son, and two other persons, were killed and a fourth injured today when their automobile at City Park avenue and Terminal crossing. Mr. Jerolimian was killed by a car which was known in local manufacturing circles, for a patent fuel that bore his name.

Mr. Jerolimian had just purchased an automobile, and Clovis, a driver at lunch, was demonstrating the car for

SIX-SEVENTHS OF TAXABLE PROPERTY IN GEORGIA HIDDEN

to equalize the burden of taxation between the taxpayers of the country; that is to say, where a returns his property of a certain value, and a B, owner of like property, returns it only at half or a third of what his neighbor returned it, to require that B shall bear the burden equally with A. These two provisions constitute the whole aim and object of the new law, to tax all property, and to divide the burden equally according to the ability of the taxpayer to pay, which ability is to be measured by the property he owns, is the essence of justice. No valid reason occurs to me as an objection to the law.

LOCAL ASSESSORS WORK
"I realize that the success of the law depends largely if not entirely upon the character of men who are appointed on the board of local assessors. This I have endeavored to stress whenever opportunity afforded. The county commissioners who appoint them, and when no county commissioners exist, daily from counties of the appointment of assessors, and in every case the information comes that they are men of the highest character. I know some men personally who have been appointed, and I know that it is a great sacrifice for them to accept, and I am pleased beyond expression at the evidence of patriotism displayed in their acceptance of the office."

WILL CONTINUE ADDRESSES.
"I shall continue to go from place to place in the state, meeting the people especially during session of court, and address them on the subject of taxation its importance to the public, its neces-ity if we are to remain a progressive state. At these gatherings I show to the people the amount of taxes which they paid and the way the money is expended, and try to make the situation as plain to them as if each man were dealing with his own private business. I think this is the proper way to deal with this important question. Let the people understand and realize that they constitute the state and that the state honor is their honor and the state's dishonor is their dishonor. In using the word 'dishonor' I don't mean to be offensive, but it is hardly short of that.

All Aboard For The GEORGIA State Fair

MACON, GA.—OCT. 21-31

By all odds the best Agricultural Fair ever held in Georgia. More of all the things that interests farmers. Machinery, Swine, Cows, Mules, Horses and Farm Products.

THE "MIDWAY" at the State Fair this year will be the strongest lot of amusements that could possibly be brought together.

Remember that the good, old time races of other days are coming back. We will have the real thing, covered by the rules of the National Racing Association.

Watch out for the man taking the Moving Pictures of the State Fair Grounds. These pictures will be shown on the grounds each night.

Scene on Peachtree street Friday morning when the parade of Buick cars, headed by Captain Sorcho in his unique outfit, started Atlanta.

Something unique in the annals of Southern motordom was pulled off by the Buick Motor company on Friday morning.

The Buick Motor company had announced Captain Sorcho, who was in command of the parade, was in his motor car.

bringing to Atlanta his Buick called. The machine is principally of Captain Sorcho's own manufacture, mounted on an automobile chassis and known as a Buick car.

This parade was certainly a success, so far as attracting attention to the Buick was concerned. The procession was headed by a 1914 model Buick.

gave his wife and daughter. Then followed one car each of the new 1914 pleasure models, four in number.

Other cars in the parade were four of the new four-cylinder models of Buick.

Marked Improvement Was Shown In Sentiment at the Week-End

INCREASING USE OF OIL FOR WATER NAVIGATION

Navies and Merchant Marine Rapidly Turning From Coal to Petroleum

Wall Street Journal says. Increasing use of petroleum for water navigation may be pointed to as one of the main reasons for the unprecedented activity in oil exploration at the present time.

The increasing use of automobiles, with their gasoline requirements, the greater demand for oil for navigation, for locomotives and the gradually enlarged demand for oil products of all kinds the world over has contributed to the necessity for larger petroleum production.

Probably the chief factor, however, is the gradual replacement of coal with oil on the part of the navies.

It is a well known fact that the world's largest petroleum producer, the United States, has been steadily increasing its production of oil.

ANSLEY'S FORT MYERS, FLA. SUBDIVISION AN OPPORTUNITY FOR BIG PROFIT WITH LITTLE MONEY MCGREGOR PARK

Located Just Outside of the Town Limits of Fort Myers, and Fronting the Beautiful, Paved McGregor Boulevard, Running from Fort Myers to Punta Rassa on the Gulf. Beautiful View of the River From Each Lot. Each Lot Lies Perfectly.

In order that people of small means may have a chance to make some money on Real Estate, we are going to make a proposition that is about the best and most certain of profit to the buyer that we have ever come across in our long experience in the real estate business.

Why Fort Myers? Simply because it has the best future in the next few years of any place we know of, and you ought to double your money on these lots in the next two years.

And the health of the place is as near perfect as anywhere in the world. There are 42 millionaires who own property around and in Fort Myers, and the beautiful winter home of the famous Thomas A. Edison is on this same McGregor Boulevard, just a short distance from "McGregor Park."

The lots on McGregor Boulevard will be priced at from $1,050 to $1,500 and the lots on Royal Palm Ave. will be from $250.00 to $350.00, and the terms on these will be 1/4 cash and the balance one, two and three years with 7% interest.

For further information see us at the office of the Company, 217 Atlanta National Bank Building, Atlanta, Ga., or phone Main 288.

ATLANTIANS ENTERTAINED AT THE NATIONAL CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

An interesting account from Chattanooga, by Miss Zella Armstrong, of the Chattanooga Lookout, gives a sketch of the many brilliant entertainments which have been given in connection with the National Conservation exposition, and in many ways the Chattanooga has been prominent figure.

The article follows:

Each week of the National Conservation exposition in Knoxville seems more brilliant socially than the one that went before. The society women of the exposition city have united and made the great exhibit interesting socially as well as for its commercial and agricultural advantages.

Mrs. Harlan Van Dewater, daughter of Mr. Justice and Mrs. Lorton, and as well known in Washington society as she is at home a president of the woman's board and has added the tact and charm of her individuality to the routine duty of a woman's board president.

She is beautiful and immensely popular and has been assisted by five vice presidents, all prominent Knoxville matrons.

Mrs. Wallace W. Woodruff, Jr., was formerly Miss Ethel Hughes, of Denver, Colo. She has entered into the social and civic life of her southern home with enthusiasm and has made a charming president, on several occasions when Mrs. Van Dewater was unable to be present.

Mrs. William St. Sheldens vice president, was before her marriage Miss St. Sheldens, of Chattanooga, and she has been instrumental in bringing a cordial Chattanooga interest. Her beautiful home has been the scene of many beautiful and brilliant affairs which Chattanooga people have enjoyed.

Reception featured Mrs. Pennington, Mrs. George W. Denney is vice president of the woman's board and is also president of the Tennessee Federation of Women's clubs. She has been hostess of each occasion, therefore when the Chattanooga women were present, as for instance, the day when Mrs. Percy V. Pennington, the national president of the Federation of Women's clubs, addressed a tremendous gathering of club women. Mrs. Pennington was given a reception in the afternoon at the Greenery, the artistic society, where so much social life has centered. Close to the greenery is the Van-Wright, the houseboat anchored close to shore, but floating on the broad lake. The houseboat has been aptly christened Van-Wright to honor President Wright and Mrs. Van-Wright.

Dr. Robert J. Lowry and Mrs. Lowry entertained society people from all over the south who were entertained. Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, of Atlanta, were given a luncheon at the hotel and a party of Atlanta people to Knoxville in a private car for the event.

Mrs. Herbert W. Hall was Knoxville chairman for this day and a luncheon of 200 covers was given at the Van-Wright for the Lowrys, who were both Tennesseeans in their youth, but as

Decorative Silver

There is a strong leaning to the picturesque in the decoration of sandwich plates, platters and trays this season, which makes this practical line of wedding gift suggestion even more varied than usual.

Severe simplicity is good, but it alternates with pierced work, elaborate engraving, the repousse, and even introduces cut glass into very effective pieces.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars smile, but do not compel."

SOROSIS.
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1910.
Work with both power and will means high wisdom.

Anticipate that the stars to date are unfriendly. They counsel caution, also Saturn is in a place of power for evil, while Uranus is in an adverse aspect.

The ill omen due to Saturn is read as a warning for all who desire change of occupation or place of business. The stars will be successful before the end of the year. The judgment is likely to be poor and those who act on impulse will suffer severely.

DR. DYS IS IN PARIS

For thirty years the beauties of the European capitals have assiduously used his marvelous SACHETS DE TOILETTE and other original preparations. For almost the same period have New York society women been served at V. Darsey's exclusive shop, of Fifth Avenue, where all of the Produits Embellisseurs de Darsy are to be had. Women of the South can either write to V. Darsey in New York, or secure Dr. Dys' Preparations direct at neural influences. Subjects of Aquarius are said to be peculiarly sensitive. Slight illnesses in the White House is predicted. This will not cause any alarm.

Persons whose birthdays it is should be particularly careful during the coming year. They have the luxury of ill health and loss of money. Those who are employed should be unusually diligent.

Children born on this day will have bright, keen minds. Boys may not be lucky in commercial life and girls have the forecast of unfortunate marriage.

December 22 and January 30 are supposed to be particularly sensitive dates. Return in their ruling planets.

The culmination of Saturn this month over Dublin is read as indicating the distress of a high official or the outbreak of some political trouble.

The stars will be successful before the end of the year. They will be of short duration but they will produce such suffering.

Uranus presages accidents and other calamities. On this day caution should be exercised by all who ride on electrically propelled vehicles.

McWhorter Makes Two of Georgia's Three Touchdowns Against Alabama

(Special Dispatch to The Journal) BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 18.—With Bob McWhorter in great form, the Red and Black eleven of Georgia defeated the Alabama eleven of the Crimson team by a score of 33 to 0.

Captain McWhorter was the bright and spectacular star of the game. His touchdown was a sensational one.

Georgia's third score came when McWhorter kicked a field goal from 40 yards for a touchdown.

While individually Georgia work was excellent, the team as a whole was a disappointment to supporters.

Boys Hi Swamp Stone Mountain

Atlanta Boys Totally Outclass Opponents, Running Up 52-0 Score

Making eight touchdowns, and kicking four goals, boys high school defeated Stone Mountain yesterday afternoon, 52 to 0. The Stone Mountain team started at the first of the game and proceeded to lose it. In the first few minutes of play they scored the first touchdown on successive line backs and end runs. From then on, it was only a question of how much the final score would be for the high school team.

The line that high school used in the game was well-nigh impregnable, only one Stone Mountain man being able to gain through it when trusted with the ball, and his gains were comparatively small.

A good crowd was out to witness the struggle, among them a large bunch of high school students. The playing of Stone Mountain the playing of Atlanta Chester was the only redeeming feature of the team's playing, as a fast man, good line-backer, and his team well. Flinders and Mack also played well.

For high school the whole team played well and showed good training. They have had at the hands of Coach Wood, who has had charge of the team for many years. The individual stars were James and Wood. Coach, Gann, Starr, Cook and Johnson.

By winning this game high school has a clean sheet in the deep league. In two and one half. They bid fair to uphold this record for the remainder of the season.

WINS $10,000 BET BY TOURING CONTINENT

C. Haven Smith (at left), the novice who won a $10,000 bet by motorcar from San Francisco to New York in thirty days. Mr. Smith made the trip in his Studebaker.

Conquering the American continent in a motor car is no longer considered an impossible feat, but there are conditions when it is as difficult as conquering the world. C. Haven Smith, of San Francisco, has just completed a trip from San Francisco to New York in thirty days, winning a $10,000 bet by motorcar from San Francisco to New York in thirty days.

For the car had to be given by Smith, who had been driving only four months, and by his wife, who accompanied him. There were days when they were nearly out of gas, and Smith had to make a number of detours from the main route. He was forced to stop in various places, and he had to make a number of repairs to the car. He was also forced to make a number of stops to rest himself and his wife.

The trip was just as strenuous as any other of the kind. Smith had to make a number of stops to rest himself and his wife. He was also forced to make a number of repairs to the car. He was also forced to make a number of stops to rest himself and his wife.

allowing wheels to remain out of alignment—these are the ordinary causes of tire trouble.

If the majority of our customers would spare their tires these hardships, they would increase materially the mileage service.

ENORMOUS FORD OUTPUT

When the Ford Motor company closed its business for the year on September 28 approximately 125,000 Model T Fords were in use throughout the world, by far the largest part being driven in the United States of course.

This is amazing, simply dazzling when the concrete figures are considered. It means, if all the machines were owned in this country, that there would be one for one person in each 376 in the nation.

In the year which just closed the company built well up towards the 100,000 mark which had been predicted. No announcement has been made yet regarding the production plans for 1914, but from the active manner in which construction is being rushed on the big additions to the plants at Detroit, and also the number of assembling plants being erected throughout the country, it is apparent that the company is preparing for a big production year.

During the recent national road convention held in Detroit hundreds of delegates visited the plant of the Ford Motor company to see the Ford cars in the making.

The delegates were unanimous in declaring that the Ford car had done more to make up the farmer on the good roads question than any other single agency.

OVERLAND CROSS COUNTRY

Not satisfied with the record he recently set by driving across the continent from his home in Pasadena, Cal., to New York, Dr. Lee C. Dewing is about to undertake the return trip, with his wife and daughter. Dr. Dewing proposes to drive his Overland car on a tour through practically all of the eastern and southern part of the United States, visiting the journey up with another transcontinental drive. He left New York last week on the "Great Tour" through New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, coming back down the coast the party will stop at Boston, cross Connecticut and Rhode Island for a short visit in Philadelphia and then proceed to Washington.

On leaving the national capital, the route lies south to North Carolina and then north and west through Tennessee and a portion of Kentucky. From there the party will head west across Missouri, Kansas, New Mexico and Arizona on the Great Trail. The arrival at Pasadena is set for the last week in November.

COLE TEST PARTY

"Horseward bound" is the slogan of the Cole engineering test party. In the present schedule is maintained the transcontinental test party will be in the West for a number of days.

It will be a pretty weary and homesick trip that pulls up in front of the Los Angeles motor car factory. Almost daily Chief Engineer Crawford, Field Assistant Manager Stratfield and Chief Tester Johnson will have been on the road three months. During this time they will have traversed fifteen states and the province of British Columbia. Already the speedometer has clicked off more than 14,000 miles. Their journey has taken them into the roughest country on the continent.

Gossip of the Gas Buggies

Snappy Sidelights on Happenings in Automobile Circles

The new Hupmobiles, as announced for 1914, will contain no radical changes from the previous years' models. Numerous improvements and improvements, however, have been added which will give the cars a far greater value to the owner.

Mr. C. D. Hastings, general manager of the company, said the following concerning the new Hupmobile: "It has been on the market for two years and it is necessary to improve it a little. When the Hupmobile was first introduced it contained features which were new to American cars."

These same features are now being standardized for the first time on any of America's finest cars. They have been standard on the Hupmobile for two years and in two years' standard work they have fully justified their claims.

Perhaps the most important addition has been made in the new '14 model is the provision for the installation of the Westinghouse electric starting and lighting system on all types of cars. This is furnished at a slight additional cost over non-electric equipment, and is a very desirable feature.

The Hupmobile body design will remain the same. The construction was so designed as to get our cars closer to the ground than any other car, with the exception of the underwing style. The body is built with low straight lines, the front fenders forming a perfect stream line effect with the motor hood and radiator. You will notice for 1914 that this style body construction is being adopted by the leading American makers.

The color scheme of the new cars is slightly changed. The running gear is now, with red and black stripes and this, together with the black body, makes a very pleasing combination.

WRECK TESTS CAR

Through the unintentional kindness of two transcontinental railroads the engineers of the Studebaker corporation have been able to compile, during the past few days, an array of absolutely unique data regarding the resistance to shock exhibited in the materials which go to make up a modern automobile.

The experiment took place one autumn night when both trains tried to pass the intersection at once, one assuming the other square in the middle. At the exact point of the collision was a car carrying a shipment of new Studebaker automobiles.

Backed by a force of thousands of tons, the charging locomotive cut its way completely through this car, and as it entered, it picked a Studebaker car as a battering ram against the turbine side of the car and tossed it fifty feet into a cornfield. The damaged automobile was shipped back to Detroit for a superficial check and total wreck.

Under the direction of the engineers the car was stripped to the vital parts of the chassis. The resulting inspection was amazing.

The rear axle and transmission unit was still perfectly true and the pressed steel housing showed not even a dent. The drive shafts were bent and twisted at the point of first impact, but did not crack. The same was the case of the pressed steel steering arm. Even the frame, bent, buckled and battered, was still intact, cross members and all.

While the motor and its internal mechanism remained good as new, the wheel was gone but the steering gear was otherwise unscathed. Three of the other two tires were undamaged, the other was lost.

When the engineers figured out impacts and stresses and compared the results with the twisted but still integral steel before them, they agreed that automobile abuse had reached its limit, but had fallen far short of absolute destruction. Without the intervention of fire, they confidently declare, no accident within human conception can compress the ruin of a modern motor car.

CASE OF TIRES

No part of an automobile is more abused than the tires. Where one man drives carefully, thinking of them, a hundred will drive heedlessly without consideration for the damage to both the tubes and shoes which is sure to result," said State Manager J. D. Anderson, of the United States Tire company, the other day.

"When we consider the great care the engine receives from the car owner and the trouble he takes to insure proper lubrication, cooling, adjustment and all that contributes to its economical and efficient operation, it is remarkable how seldom one is found who will give the tires on his car a real chance to make the maximum mileage."

"The cars of tires does not take much time now call for arduous labor. Under inflation, neglect of curb, grease left on treads, turning in a car tracks, speeding around corners, braking with needless anxiety, driving with chains (particularly broken or badly worn chains) and permitting the car to be main unlocked when in dead storage difficulty, including a closedburst in Wyoming and a terrific hailstorm on the Colorado-Kansas line, which tore the car's top to ribbons.

"It all looked at the start like a great way to spend a vacation, but now I am glad I have seen all roads and in all weather is pretty good for a man who is practically a novice."

In the past, Smith followed the Overland route through California, Nevada, Wyoming, Colorado, and Missouri. From Chicago eastward he traveled by the way of Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady, Albany and New York.

Better Service makes the Cartercar a better value!

When you pay out your money you are not merely buying a motor car—you are buying motor car service. And it is very obvious that the car that will give the best service is the best value.

This is why the Cartercar satisfies its owners so well. It gives perfect service—over all roads—and for all drivers.

And the Cartercar gives better service than the ordinary car simply because it is made differently—strong where the gear is weak—efficient where the gear car is inefficient.

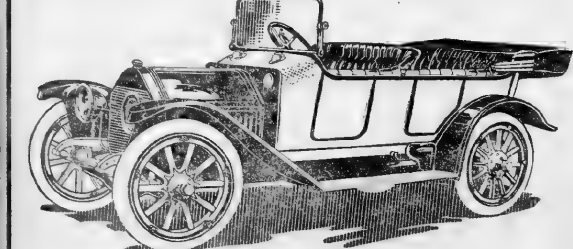

The gearless transmission makes the Cartercar reliable under all possible conditions. There is nothing to break—quite a contrast to the ten or twelve complicated gears of the ordinary car.

A Cartercar will climb hills and go through mud and sand in a surprising manner. The tremendous leverage at low speed makes it almost impossible to stall the motor.

Modern in every way—equipped with all conveniences—and with this extra efficiency and reliability—surely you must consider the Cartercar if you would invest your money wisely.

Our agency proposition is interesting—let us submit it to you.

RED SEAL PLANT HIGH TYPE OF SHOE INDUSTRY

Trip Through Factory Shows How Atlanta Is Marked Large on Shoe Map

A little beyond the corner of the Red Seal shoe plant at the big factory building of the modern "day" type where the Red Seal shoes are made they are putting Atlanta on the shoe industry map and further are insuring it with a large spot and no tiny one.

From the big factory it is not plain to the layman visitor what he would find, and it was a man who was shown through in order to see these few impressions of this particular home of Atlanta goods.

And, certainly, what that is a like, throwing a line of which Atlanta should be proud is perhaps even more forcibly impressed on the visitor than it would be on the manufacturer accustomed to such sights.

To the building comes the leather of men's shoes and from Russia, some from South Africa. Following this leather through the factory, one can understand how being laid out in the hands of skilled workers and the wonders of such perfected machinery and its skillful operation.

From the big, ornate presses that cut the sides in the local machine that jerk back from the last there is a range of machinery that an outsider would never expect. What it realizes, that there are 350 distinct operations in the making of the shoe some idea can be had of a shoe plant's complexity. There are machines to keep uniform the thickness of the soles that correct a difference of an eighth of an inch.

There are presses for molding the heels that exert pressure of forty tons to the square inch. There are cutting machines for doing the sole trimming that make one revolution a minute.

Through the mass of machinery goes the old, Russian, calf, and also a leather four persons know how to work with as well as all leather.

It is in the last eleven days from the time material is cut until the shoe is made in the form of a finished product it is on the last eight days.

Atlanta's shoe plant is developing. There are now 200 people employed there and the output has doubled in the last two years. It is one of the most prominent in the industry that is making Atlanta a manufacturing city as well as a distributing point.

H. L. ATWATER TO AUCTION HIS HOUSEHOLD GOODS

Will Sell His Personal Effects Monday at 90 South Pryor Street

Writing to the recent death of his wife, H. L. Atwater will sell at auction on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, at the auction house of Mr. Atwater, at 90 South Pryor street, all his household goods, including furniture, crockery, etc., and a lot of jewelry, including some very handsome diamonds.

Mr. Atwater, in the year in the oldest member of the traveling salesmen's fraternity in the South, was the first president of the old Southern Travelers' association, and is prominent in both the "C" and "P" A. For the past several years he has been unable on account of affliction, to do any work. He has hundreds of friends among the traveling men in Atlanta who will be interested in attending his auction Monday and helping to make it a success.

WORKING SATURDAY PAYS, SAYS TRAVELER

There is a reason for this in that many more salesmen of the present day are married men than were among the traveling men of the old days.

There is also a reason on the road put in Saturday going after business," says Colonel Johnson.

"Long trips were more common, usually extending into five or six weeks. There are undoubtedly many more married men on the road these days and they cut the week short and so come when I was on the road, we made Saturday a profitable day and I believe it can be used profitably nowadays."

It is many of those who are not working Saturday would be willing to do so if they felt it would increase their income appreciably. They do not because of this general belief that it does not pay.

Give it a trial, is the advice to those from Mr. Harrison.

M'KIE'S SMILE GROWS WIDE OVER SEASON FOR FIRESIDE LUXURIES

OF THE H. L. SINGER COMPANY. DONALD M'KIE.

He Tells of the Delights Which the Season's Sweetmeats Have in Store for Both Young and Old

Friendship! The thoughts of them are what has pleased that expensive smile on the face of Donald McKie, of the H. L. Singer company, when in the picture above.

They are two reasons for Mr. McKie's smile. One is his anticipation of enjoying these things himself, the other is that the near approach of cold weather will start a brisk demand for these "goodies" that will be felt immediately by the retail grocer and by the retailer passed up to the jobber of fancy groceries. And the latter is Mr. McKie's line.

These light eatables are usually prepared as on holiday goods, said Mr. McKie, but I should say they would be more properly termed festive luxuries, for the demand for them does not wait for the arrival of the holidays.

The first real cold snap brings calls for them from the consumer and the retailer in firm volume and his jobber. The consumption of such luxuries in Atlanta is large and grows larger every day. The variety of them is constantly being enlarged with new products and new combinations of old products. Popcorn is put in in many pleasing forms and combinations of nuts and dates are among the most delectable tidbits known.

Already the Singer company has received large shipments of these delicacies and only await the coming of cold weather to supply their numerous customers in Atlanta, and throughout the Atlanta territory.

VISIT TO FRAZIER PLANT REVEALS BIG INDUSTRY

This Company Sends Its Mixed Stock Feeds All Over the Southeast

More and more it is coming to be recognized that Atlanta's greatness is founded on its manufacturing enterprises. The city has attained its present proportions by its unsurpassed location with reference to the southeast, and by the incomparable prospect of progress which its citizens possess. These factors will always militate greatly to the city's advantage. But they are not enough. They must have the help of home industries and this help is being afforded.

With J. D. Frazier as guide, a firing line representative made a trip through the big plant last week and found it a revelation of what Atlanta means to the southeast. The company makes four brands of mixed feed of varying proportions of ingredients, all of which contain a percentage of molasses which is their distinctive feature. These brands are: Mo-grain, Alfalfa, Junco and Crack-corn. Alfalfa is a dry product containing only 3 per cent of molasses, just enough to assure the digestibility of the ingredients. The other brands contain a much larger percentage of molasses—back cane molasses, the best kind known for stock. Mo-grain contains as high as 10 per cent of molasses. In addition to these feeds the company makes all grades of mixed shorts for hogs from brown shorts to low-grade flour.

Alfalfa, besides its small per cent of molasses, contains alfalfa meal, corn, oats, wheat bran and cotton seed meal, all of which are ingredients of the highest percentage. Mo-grain is Junco in compound of cotton seed meal, alfalfa meal, oat chaffage and molasses, and cracker-corn of the same ingredients but in different proportions.

The distinctive feature of all these feeds as has been said, is the fact they contain molasses. The molasses serves several purposes. It is one of the sweetest foods known for stock. Its sweet taste gives the animal a mental appetite for it and increases the flow of saliva, which aids the digestive processes. All the feeds are made so they are bound, making them easy to store and feed and in the pink of health condition they are manufactured of only the soundest materials and being mixed here at home any user can visit the plant any time and see for himself exactly what goes into them.

The grain is brought in cars to the back door of the company's plant, where it is conveyed by elevators to the second floor and there is placed in the feeders which give the proper proportions to each of the feeds intended for mixture. A mill crushes the grain to the requisite degree of fineness. The various ingredients including the molasses, which is pumped from a storage tank below, and then heated, are passed into the mixing machinery and the product is then sacked, ready for use. The molasses is brought in tank to the side and connected to a storage tank in the building, being emptied by gravity. The Crank mixer is a special machine used in mixing molasses when this ingredient is required in the feed. Another one of the company's special facilities is its automatic scale and sacking machine which can handle 1,500 bushels of grain.

The company's building is stacked throughout its great length to the ceiling with sacks of grain and bales of hay and straw. The company puts up a number of private brands for large dealers in feed stuffs. All its products, no matter under what brands, are produced highly successful and when once used bring back constant repeat orders. All its goods are placed in new sacks. No old sacks are used. The new sacks keep the goods in fresh, clean state and make a neat package. The second-hand sacks are sold for waste. The company sells goods all over Georgia, in South Carolina, North Carolina, Alabama and Florida. Its milling in transit rate allows it to reach this wide territory with the utmost facility and promptness.

Mr. Binder, returning from Extensive Trip, Tells of Trade Conditions

A good reception and active business in what the specialty salesman traveling Georgia and Alabama can expect, judging from the comments of N. Binder, of the Binder Frame Manufacturing company, make on his recent trip through western Georgia and southern Alabama.

Mr. Binder called on art dealers, stationers and furniture dealers with his line of mouldings and pictures, and found a general feeling of optimism throughout the trade.

His pictures can be considered a specialty and something of a luxury, the good business this dealer secured can be taken as a fairly dependable indication that conditions are favorable to a good sale of specialties generally—of things that are not necessities and sell only when times are good.

The retail trade handling picture is reported by Mr. Binder to be buying a better class of goods than ever before, the demand being largely for the fine prints and photographs.

E. B. Huguley, of the Huguley Oil Co., would up a several days' sales trip, with a seventy mile drive into Atlanta, Friday afternoon. Mr. Huguley drives both the car and the sales.

Trade Is 'Humpin'

There's been hundreds of good merchants in our sample rooms this week.

Every one tells the same story.

The most active shoe business for five years.

What's it going to be when we have some shoe weather?

Many of our callers came to see if we could help them out on our factory line, in place of delayed orders by Eastern factories.

We have been able to do a lot for them, but they would have missed less business if they had tied up with a close-by factory to start with.

Here's the moral to this story:

When our salesman calls on you in the near future, give him your spring order on this trip.

You'll not regret it.

Our 1914 catalogue is being mailed to our 5,000 customers. Look through it and send us your wants by mail.

Count the Circles

100 PRIZES OFFERED

The Atlanta Journal's Great Puzzle Contest

No Trick or Chance Involved. Only accuracy and Patience Required in Solving This Problem

START NOW

Both Old and New Subscribers Can Compete This Contest Offers Equal Opportunity To All

NOTE CAREFULLY

THE PLAN OF

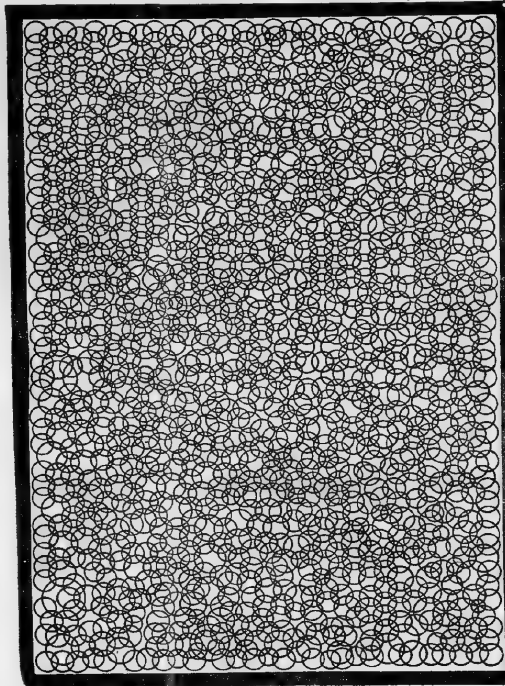

DIVIDEND PRIZES

THE CIRCLE PUZZLE

MAKE THEM WORTH WHAT YOU PLEASE

The Problem

The problem is to count the circles. Every circle is complete and intersects or touches one or more other circles. There are no parts of circles or shams or deceptions of any sort in the puzzle. In the event that no one counts the exact number the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. Accuracy and patience are the main requisites for arriving at the correct or nearest count. Those who display these qualifications to the best advantage will solve the puzzle best.

Copyright, 1913, by the Colburn Co.

Deciding Ties

In case of tie, a second puzzle will be presented. This puzzle will be practicable and solvable. Only those tied will be permitted to solve puzzle No. 2. No money will have to accompany the solution. The second puzzle will be printed but twice, and those tied will have a week in which to solve it. Mail subscribers at a distance, if tied, will be allowed a week from the time they receive the second puzzle, the time to be determined by postmarks.

In case of other ties, a third puzzle, also perfectly solvable, will be presented. It will be subject to the same conditions as the second. The second and third puzzles will only be used in case of a tie. Their purpose will be merely to decide ties, so that in the event there is a tie, the prizes will be awarded without having to divide them, or without resorting to chance.

However, only three puzzles will be presented, and in the event of an impossible event of still another tie, the prizes tied for will be equally divided between those tying.

If there are no ties, there will be only one prize.

No prizes will be distributed until the contest is finally decided.

Special Conditions

Should there be any ties, as many prizes will be reserved as there are people tied before any prizes are awarded to those sending less correct solutions. That is, if two people tied on the absolutely correct answer, they would have to solve the second puzzle to determine which was entitled to the first prize and which to the second prize. Then the one who sent the next best answer to the first puzzle would be entitled to the third prize. This rule will apply generally.

While the winning of a prize does not depend upon the time the solution was registered, the puzzle is more or less elusive, and the best thing to do is to begin counting at once. Send in your solution, and if you find later you have made a mistake, send in another. There is no limit to the number of different solutions that may be registered.

All those entering the contest will, as a condition, be required to abide by the ruling of the Contest Manager. In the event of any question arising, the Contest Manager, if he deems it wise, may appoint a committee to assist him in deciding them, and those entering the contest do so with the understanding that such decision is final.

How to Enter

This contest is restricted to people residing in the states of Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina, Florida and Mississippi.

A payment on subscription to The Atlanta Journal of from $1.19 in 1913 for the Daily and Sunday edition, or from $1.90 to $4.90 for the Semi-Weekly edition of The Journal, entitles a contestant to submit a solution of the puzzle. The amount of money paid will cover the subscription price for the paper, according to the regular rate, whether for city delivery or by mail.

AS MANY DIFFERENT SOLUTIONS MAY BE SUBMITTED AS THE CONTESTANT DESIRES, UPON SUBMITTING AN ADDITIONAL PAYMENT WITH EACH ONE, BUT NOT MORE THAN $5.00 CAN BE PAID WITH ANY ONE SOLUTION.

It is not necessary to pay the same amount with each solution if more than one is submitted. As the main prizes have an added value according to what is paid on a subscription with the winning solution, contestants should familiarize themselves with the dividend schedule before sending in their subscription and solution.

Remit by check, money order, registered letter or in one or two-cent stamps. Solutions unaccompanied by cash subscriptions will not be registered. The contest is open to both old and new subscribers within the territory designated.

Whatever is paid, whether on one or a number of solutions, will apply on a continuous subscription to The Atlanta Journal. No one associated with The Journal in any way will be allowed to enter this contest.

Territory and Subscription Price

Only persons residing in the territory designated below are entitled to compete. No solution from territory outside the prescribed limits will be registered. The states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina and Mississippi.

Lure of the long m waiting and w Cotton picking From the cro the small town

COTTON PICKING TIME IN GEORGIA

In a Baltimore garret thirty years ago a skeleton peeped from the south looked out into the drifting mist and grime of the city's heart and thought of many Dixie. Into the October air there crept a puff of warm air, freighted with the breath of falling leaves and brown fields dotted with bursting bolls.

"It's cotton pickin' time in Georgia now," said Sidney Lanier to himself. And he turned from the sea world outside to the ink-smeared table and the dream of Dixie. And he sat down and wrote the poem called "The Song of the Chastanoochee."

To how many exiles stranded in a strange port have the words "cotton pickin' time in Georgia" brought the picture of white fields mellow in the autumn sunset and the croon of the picker's song? How many must have felt the bitterness and the longing to read again the dry earth between the rows of withered stalks.

Where Cotton Rules

October is home-coming month and the time of cotton picking. To many, perhaps, the month of home-coming brings thoughts of the shamrock or the thistle or of "sunny Italy"; but no heart string can pull stronger than those of the Georgian who has bent his back to the cotton boll and plowed the fleecy threads through the hot days of the waning Indian summer.

Cotton picking time. To a Georgian born and bred it is a season with as much significance as Christmas or Thanksgiving. The cotton is truly long in Dixie and your little southern lad's life has swirled around it from the time he was old enough to romp out to the "cotton house" and stealthily take a delicious dip in the milky white bolls.

He has watched its evolution from the plowing to the picking. (Lanier was one of those who saw the cotton pickers in the field.) He has watched the cotton pickers in the field. He has watched the cotton pickers in the field. He has watched the cotton pickers in the field.

Lure of the Fields

The lure of the fields of cotton and watching are over the top of the hills in at hand. From the crowding cities, from the small towns, from the rivers and the hills come the humble black servants without whom the cotton harvest is impossible. Since the days of "de big house" and "de quarters" (the negro man, woman and little child, has piled his nimble awar' fingers year by year in the cotton fields of Georgia. It may not be a fact, as some assert, that without colored labor the cotton crop of the south would dwindle to a fraction; but it is a surety that without the "quainties" and the "uncles" and the little black pickaninies cotton picking time in Georgia would lose the heart of its color and quaint imagery.

No Georgia cotton field is complete without the bright turbans of a half-score colored manniks bobbing about among the parched and whitening plants; no Georgia road winding long and red through the shimmering sun-lit acres should lack a bent and wrinkled old "bigger" looking along under the burden of a cotton basket bulging with the snowy fiber; no cotton-picking time in Georgia is typical unless it has the weird and melody of the black pickers quavering to the piney woods as they stoop and pick and stoop again.

Light hearted and filled with song, the southern darkey has made cotton picking time in Georgia an epochal picture that ranks with any masterpiece of labor.

Shadow on the Cotton Patch

But already there is a shadow looming 'cross the cotton patch. Ruthless progress is prophesying the end of the picture. "Labor-saving" is tolling the death knell of cotton picking time in Georgia.

Cotton growing, an industry so old that its birth is hidden in the mystic past of India, for many years has been the only phase of agriculture that has changed but little before the schemes of mankind.

Today Georgia harvests her cotton even as did the Hindu in the days of King Rind. The basic has maintained its primitive character. The steam-driven machines which a ready hand have invaded the wheat fields of the west, are encroaching on the realm of King Cotton. It may not be long before the cotton picker, genus homo, will yield to the cotton picker, genus mechanical.

There is in Atlanta a man who has invented an automatic cotton picker, a sort of suction-pipe affair, which, operated by two men, he claims can do the work of many more.

This machine and many others have been the dream of inventors for years; a device that can draw the fleecy cotton from its prison in the boll, set yet most of them are a long way from realization. But the day will surely come when the labor will give way before machine-labor in the Georgia cotton fields even as it has on the forest and the prairie.

With the passing of the darkly cotton picker, there will fade into the vanished country, many another gay relic of cotton picking time in Georgia. Already the quidding party and the corn husking, once jovial occasions throughout the countryside, are wrapped in memory's mists.

And with the coming of steel and steam there will join them the cotton picking frolic, bonny custom of a bonny land.

Full many a rich Georgia planter can smile over the time when he "worked" his sweet heart at a genuine cotton picking by moonlight. When the yellow harvest moon flooded the white fields and the young folks of the county gathered at a neighbor's farm, then were brave and merry doings.

From the time the navy fare of the moon-man peeped over the gauzy pines until he swam high in the pearly zenith, the boys and girls were busy in the rows, stuffing sacks with the fleecy strands that were an costly gathered in the soft light from the heavens.

They worked with a will, and when "gittin' time" came at 10 o'clock, there was ever a monstrous pile to testify to their sturdy efforts. And toward was the jolliest of break-down dances on the spacious floor of the barn, "swingin' partners" until far after midnight, when they would always be the ride home with your best girl through the silent mystic night, with her hand a stolen kiss under the shadows of the rose vine over the front porch.

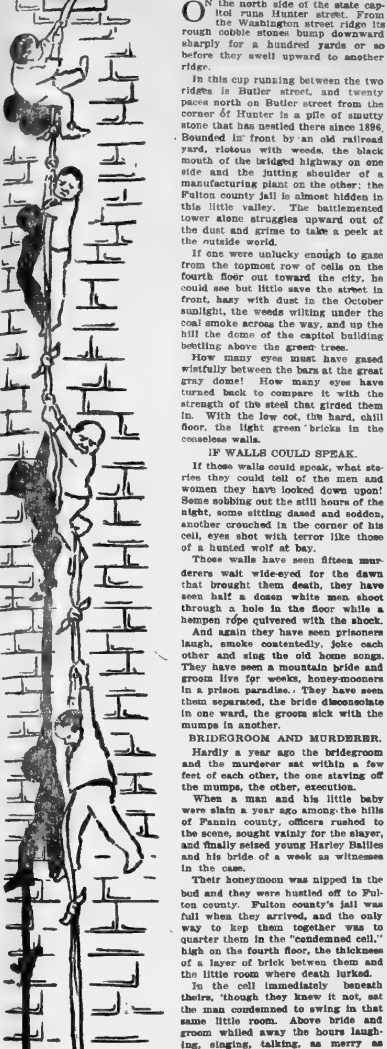

The Great and Pride

No wonder that Sidney Lanier, dying in Baltimore, longed for "cotton pickin' time in Georgia"; no wonder that there is a great mingled with the pride of progress; no wonder should even the white cotton shrink from a steel claw that would usurp the place of a little hand that sometimes strayed over the bolls on the night of a cotton frolic.

FULTON COUNTY JAIL TOWER

THE STORIES OF TRAGEDY, PATHOS AND HUMOR

By Ward S. Greene

though it was all in the day's work to spend a honeymoon in jail. Below the condemned man, after a day and a night after night.

Robert L. Clay, convicted wife murderer, paced back and forth in his narrow cell below the honeymooner's back and forth for six months, and never a word passed his lips.

"He's crazy," said his friends. "He can't talk. That fellow shouldn't hang."

If Clay was feeling miserably he resigned it well. His last night of respite zone, the date of his execution drawing near day by day, his mask of gloom soon left him; only once he said to have broken it. His jailer had brought him the morning coffee, the morning food. Clay stuck his finger in it, looked up with the wistful gaze of a whipped dog.

"It's cold," he said.

WHEN CLAY BROKE DOWN AT LAST

That was the only sentence he uttered in the hearing of the jailer during the seven long months. "The day before the hanging they told me my hope was gone. That night he was taken to the condemned cell, vacated shortly before by the bride and groom.

"At high noon tomorrow," they told him, "you will be hanged by the neck until dead."

And Clay was silent still.

Early the next day friends and relatives gathered to the condemned man's cell. They were singing, with him, praying with him. The hands of the prison clock crawled around the white dial. It was more than human flesh could endure.

The silence of seven months was broken and a moment later Robert L. Clay sobbed out the name of his wife's murderer and his voice rose high above all others in the hymns and prayers. Before 1 o'clock he had paid the penalty.

Clay was the last white man hanged in Fulton county. One negro has been hanged since Oscar Dewberry, who also went to the gallows with a song and a prayer on his lips.

A MIDNIGHT GET-AWAY

From the very cell where Clay spent his long term of imprisonment, a great figure of the few scapes from the Fulton county tower.

In this cell a year or so ago were condemned a pair from Fannin county who has since been hanged. Sitting there in the still hours of the night they hatched an escape scheme. Friends on the outside came to their assistance, a file was secured. Night after night when the wardens finished his rounds they alternated working at the bars, working one minute, watching the next.

It was on a Tuesday that the last bar was sawed. All was ready. Five blankets were torn to shreds and knotted together in a long rope. The bars were hunched away, and one by one the five crawled into the moonlight and slipped down the wall like spiders. A length of blanket, snuffing in the wind, told the last next morning.

Cunningly contrived and executed the escape was, was hatched on one Tuesday they were out; Thursday they were in again. And now a visitor to the tower will find a solid wall where once a group of men were easily wrenched away.

Right now in the Fulton county room awaiting the pot in the kitchen across the way.

Up five or six steps in the middle of the room is a platform. Two doors are swinging downward in the center, leaving an open space; the trap. At one side is a thing like a throttle. One knows instinctively what happens when it is thrown back. Above the opening in the flooring hangs a twisted rope. Once it extended to twelve seven feet of the floor. Now its end is ravelled where it has been cut.

The room is very small and very low. The only two windows in it are covered with glass and the light filters through in a mellow glow. It seems to be always shrouded there.

An one leaves the tower behind him one thought strikes him; that it has the cleanest and most undesirable living rooms he has seen in some town. Your last thought may be of the Hittite cells, perhaps it may be of the yellow room on the top floor; perhaps you will bear in mind the old picture in the building.

It is on the first floor, a vivid chronicle showing an ark making bad gold of it through a heavy sea. Big letters, say, "The Flood"; smaller ones, "The waxes of sin are death."

Perhaps the "only picture" has no significance, for most of those who have aimed and gone to the tower have found something other than death. They have found rest, they have found new courage from some to see them there, new lessons in fortitude from those around them.

indeed, it is. With all the windows open wide, save for the barred gratings, and that spacious spot in the center of the jail, there is no lack of fresh air or light.

As you are shown through the various wards you are struck with the cleanliness and freshness of everything about you. These narrow cells, these grated doors and windows, surely they are hard to keep clean, and with some of the prisoners on the cold side doubt hard to keep sanitary, yet not once does a foul odor or hint of dirt or slime offend you.

The top floor is by far the most interesting in the building. Here are located the kitchen, the federal prisoners, the condemned cell and the death chamber.

Those waiting trial for alleged feeding of Uncle Sam's laws have the most comfortable place in the building. In between their cells there is a sort of runway that allows them ample room to walk about.

"When I can," says the warden, "I take 'em out and put 'em to trusty work. They're the least troublesome and the quietest prisoners I have. A more honest, God-fearing lot I never saw. Most of them are in for making moonshine. They're all mountain men, used to running a road and exercise, so I give them the widest quarters."

NO LIGHT HERE

Across the building from the moonshiners' lodging is the death chamber. It is a small room, its walls painted yellow, its floor now covered with cabbages and potatoes and beans and other packages and whisks away. A automobile driver up, a doctor steps out, he has come to see a sick prisoner. Again, a wonderfully pretty girl smiles at the jailer and is graciously admitted. "Are you in this? You ask him, and perhaps he will tell you who she is and how she daily comes to see her sweetheart and talk over with him the chances of getting a pardon from the governor.

The long corridor from the gateway takes you through the locked door to the rotunda, a wide open place stretching from the first floor to the roof. A stairway winds up to the galleries running in a circle on each floor.

"It is remarkably light and airy in here," you think to yourself. And

A WONDERFUL SCULPTURE AT THE PANAMA EXPOSITION IN FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO.—The sculpture of the Panama-Pacific Exposition will carry out the motto of the exposition in celebrating the opening of the Panama Canal. The spirit of achievement as exemplified by America's work at Panama will be idealized through the works of a number of America's greatest sculptors who have completed many of the models. These are now being enlarged to prodigious size in the sculptural warehouses in the Exposition grounds. Figures of the early explorers of the sea, the sturdy men of the rocky backbone of the continents, masses of glorified workmen, the human bulwarks of the canal, and great groups idealizing the crowning success at Panama will be among the important sculptural works that will bring home to every eye in the world the significance of the Panama Canal.

The statuary is being executed upon a grand scale. In the complete presentation of the plastic art it will carry forward the work of which has marked a distinct advance in the popular appreciation of sculpture.

Key to Comprehend

The sculptural plan will be easy for any one to comprehend. The sculpture is designed to form a sequence from the moment the visitor first enters the main gates of the exposition to the last moments of the closing of the exposition. The sculpture is placed in the center of the main aisle, the visitor will first be confronted with a huge equestrian figure of Columbus, the creator of the Isthmian waterway between the oceans.

The fountain will be outlined against the opening of the 110 foot archway of the sun, the tower 429 feet in height and the dominating architectural feature of the Exposition. An epic equestrian group representing Energy, the Lord of the Isthmian Way, will be the main motif of the fountain. A colossal figure of a splendid youth mounted upon a Homeric horse is depicted as advancing steadily through the waters of the dam. The pedestal itself will be extremely simple, recalling the constructive elements of the canal and will be planned to permit the flowing of water down its sides in four great vertical sheets which will supply large horizontal basins. Grouped in serrated ranks about the piers of the pedestal between the falling waters will be figures of the workers at Panama. In the basin before the pedestal an exultant Victory will be perched upon a huge winged sea monster.

Spanning the lofty arch of the Tower of Jewels the visitor in 1915 will arrive in the vast oval court yard of the Court of Sun and Stars, around which colonnades sweep to the right and to the left. Before the right pier, fifteen hundred feet to the north, will be a vision of the flashing waters of San Francisco bay, seen through the three hundred foot wide entrance to the Court, with the stupendous column of Victory on the waterfront standing out in the center of the court. The arch of the court will be the great triumphal arch, the magnificent Arch of the Setting Sun, larger than the Arch de Triomphe at Paris. 160 feet high and clear by an archway 90 feet in height. On the east side of the Court of Sun and Stars will be a group of equally magnificent proportions, the great Arch of the Rising Sun. The crowning sculptural features of these arches will be massive groups of statuary.

Crowning the arch of the Rising Sun will be a colossal grouping, an equestrian group, a chariot, a plumed warrior, a camel rider, mounted Arab figures suggestive of the mystic spirit of the Orient. The group will be of colossal proportions. The head upon the elephant will be 135 feet above the floor of the Court of the Sun and Stars—the standing figures of the group, the slaves and priests will be 13 feet 6 inches in height. The great figure of the elephant is being made to scale with these immense human figures. The entire group as viewed from the floor of the Court of the Sun and Stars will be seen as a striking silhouette of Oriental character.

From the harbor of San Francisco surmounting the Arch of the Setting Sun will be a huge group with Indians, pioneers, etc., and a great prairie schooner as its main theme, the whole symbolizing the march of the Anglo-Saxon across the plains of America to his final position on the shores of the Pacific. Each of the groups will be in golden tint but without a glaring effect. These groups, inventions of monumental conception and rich texture will replace the form of the old Roman quadriga.

Occupying positions relatively east and west in the center of the court will be two free standing monuments, the Fountain of the Rising and of the Setting Sun. The upper portion of these fountains will be the source of the superb light illumination of the great court which, at night, will set a magic light upon the mystic fairy-land. Great groups surrounded by figures representing a sunrise and sunset and typifying the Rising and Setting Sun, will give forth at night an incandescent glow. Columns of thick white glass seventy feet in height and rising from the center of the fountains will diffuse a soft white light throughout the court, completely illuminating its recesses. At the base of each fountain will be basins in which reflecting figures represent the play of light behind which the water will fall in screens.

Symbols of Elements

In the center of the Court of Sun and Stars (Titanic figures in horizontal compositions of the four elements, Fire, Water, Earth, and Air, will be set in a sunken garrison. These figures, capable of a most symbolical imaginative rendering are being designed by Mr. Robert I. Aitkin. Facing each of the two arches in the court will be vertical groups of figures representing Order and Chaos, Eternity and Change. But perhaps the most beautiful feature of the court will be an encircling colonnade which will screen the walls of the surrounding buildings. Above each of the colonnades, which will be sixty feet in height, will be a hovering figure with a jeweled head, representing a scintillating star. At night these stars, ornamented with quivering flames will shimmer and sparkle with all the colors of the rainbow, reflecting the lights of marked batteries of searchlights on the roofs of the exhibit palaces.

In the entrance of the court upon San Francisco bay there will lie, between the Transportation and Agricultural buildings, a greatagoon which will be reflected the Column of Victory upon the water's edge. The upward spiral of this column will symbolize the indomitable impulse toward achievement. Covering about the square base of the column will be a stream of figures embodying the conceptions of the great spiritual division of mankind advancing to the doorway in the center of the base. At the summit of the column a frisson of figures, 60 feet from the ground supporting by their united efforts the figure of a youth who is launching his adventurous arrow toward the sun.

Women to Work

Throughout other sections of the grounds will be witnessed statuary of all varied nature and of a highly imaginative rendering. In a league before the Palace of Fine Arts, a single reclining colossal statue, representing Ancient Civilization, will occupy the western portion of the lagoons, while a similar group representing Modern Civilization will occupy the eastern portion.

The dominating architectural feature of the Exposition, the four hundred and thirty foot Tower of Jewels, will be decorated with much sculpture of a purely ornamental character, as well as the repeat figure of an armored horseman. Terminating the open colonnades on each side of the tower, grand mural fountains will be created by two talented women; Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney who will design in accord with Mr. Hastings' architecture, the Fountain of El Dorado, while Mrs. Edith Woodman Burroughs will design at the opposite wing of the colonnade the Fountain of Youth.

Paralleling the Court of Sun and Stars on the west will be the great court, designed by Mr. Harry Bacon and known as the Court of the Four Seasons. It will be situated between the Agricultural and Educational buildings. In this court the sculpture and painting will symbolize the benign forces of nature; a group representing nature will occupy a pedestal beneath the archway at the head of the court. Coree, Goddess of Agriculture, will be the subject of a classic Greek design and groups of the Four Seasons. Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter. In plastic form, will occupy positions in fountain basins placed in the four corners of the court.

Use Arabian Nights

In the great east court, the Court of Abundance, which will parallel the Court of Sun and Stars upon the east side, the mystic significance of fire and water will be treated by the sculptors in a romantic style.

Two soufanic styles will open from the main exposition group upon a tropical garden lying between the group and the exposition fence. One of these will be the Court of Flowers to the south of the Festive Court, the other will be the Court of Palms, to the south of the Court of Four Seasons. In the Court of Flowers the subject matter will be founded on tales of the Arabian Nights; this will inspire the composition of the central fountain. The doorway of the court will be flanked by strange winged lions and the attic studded with figures of Oriental slaves. For the Court of Palms the western fairy tale will spur the sculptor to new imagery, with Beauty and Beast as the theme for the central fountain. At the entrance of the Courts of Flowers and Palms on the southern splendor, and in front of the gateway of Columbus and Balboa on the sea, eagles, will be erected four huge equestrian statues.

GIRL'S DREAM CALLS

OUT POLICE FORCE

OAKLAND, Cal.—Dreaming that a man was japing chaos for, seventeen-year-old Ivy Kretion, aroused the neighborhood. Believing chaos was being committed, neighbor telephoned for a police posse. The posse had been summoned when she called down with a shriek. Miss Kretion's sister had a similar dream two months ago.

BREARLED MONKEY

VENICE, Cal.—"Judge," a little monkey owned by Tom Prior, lost his companion, "Bill," a kangaroo. "Judge" loved "Bill" dearly and upon "Bill's" death refused to be comforted. Nothing availing "Judge's" grief until his owner induced him to eat a banana. "Judge" refused to eat a banana until he was stuffed with it. With this new affinity in his arms "Judge" is happy and at peace with the world.

Five Men Crawled In to the Moonlight and Escaped Down Tower Wall

THE PANKHURST WAY AS AN ATLANTA SUFFRAGETTE'S IDEAL

WITH the arrival of Mrs. Emma Pankhurst in America, woman's suffrage, especially militant suffrage, seems but not only to American women who want the ballot, but to all women and to most men. The Pankhurst Way, has been scored here and glorified there. Atlanta suffragists are divided in their opinions of it. Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, president of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association, believes Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers are justified in their militant tactics. Mrs. Amelia R. Woodall, president of the Atlanta Association, disagrees with her.

What these two suffrage leaders think of the Pankhurst Way is given, together with the opinion of Miss Katherine Koch, corresponding secretary of the Georgia Association. What Mrs. Pankhurst herself thinks of her way is perhaps the most interesting view of all. In her speech to judge and jury at her last trial, when she was convicted of inciting English suffragettes to violence and sentenced to three years in prison, she delivered a most dramatic and convincing argument for the "cause" and at the same time an address (terminating with fire and pathos).

She did not mince words. Her views on divorce, on marriage laws, on the way men treat women in general, she laid out. Her speech was in effect an outline of the platform for the English suffragettes. She would know what all the "row" in Great Britain is about and would get a view of the "Pankhurst Way" as the lady herself sees it. There is no clearer exposition than this of the PANKHURST WAY.

Here is the "cause" from its leader's viewpoint. The speech she delivered at the trial. It is worth reading. My lord, gentlemen of the jury, when you were impeached it came into my mind that I might in justice object to each of you as you took your place, because in this country it is an accepted fact that the English gentleman is tried by his peers. No woman is tried by her peers. You are of one sex, I am of another. But I decided not to challenge you because, after all, these trials are not a mere matter of big price, an opportunity of trying to get into the minds of the men who try us—who are human as we are—something of what women feel about their condition. They are something which they have to submit, although they have had no part in making the laws.

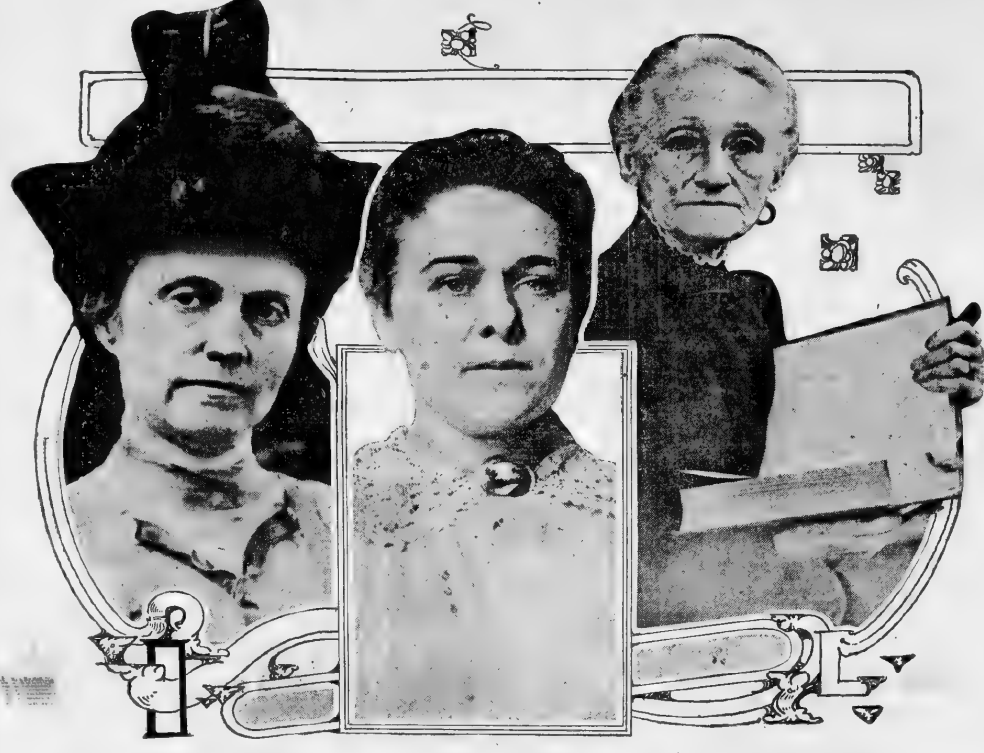

My lord, I propose to say a few words about the prosecution, but I feel I must say, first of all, a little about the speech I prepared for the prosecution. He referred to me—or, rather, his words conveyed the impression—that I am a woman inciting other women to do acts which entail imprisonment and a great suffering, which I think myself protected from serious consequences.

My lord, I have shared the dangers these women have faced that I have seen to arise three times. While there it was treated like a criminal. OWNS NO AUTO.

Now I hate speaking of personal matters, but many suggestions have been made not only here, but even in the halls of common sense. There is no made money out of this movement and, as evidence that I own a motor car, I own no motor car and never have owned one. The union to which I belong is a motor union, and I have inherited property. There is only one trade that I know of in which women are enough to buy motor cars, and that is the automobile trade. I am ministering to the vicious pleasure of my sex.

My part in the movement has cost me a considerable portion of my income because I had to surrender a very important part of my income in order to be free to do what I considered was my duty in this movement. It is hardly fitting for counsel to bring reasons of this kind into so serious a matter. Now I want to address myself to my defense. I pleaded not guilty because in the indictment I am described as having "wickedly and maliciously incited women to do certain acts." I am not indicted on a malicious charge, neither are any of the women who responded, if they did yield, to my incitement. It is a very serious thing, my lord, when a large number of people, respectable people, ordinary people, natural law-abiding people, people of upright lives, come to hold the law in contempt, come to seriously make up their minds that they are justified in breaking the law. The whole of good government rests upon acceptance of the law, upon respect of the law, and I say to you seriously, my lord and gentlemen of the jury, that women of intelligence, women of training, women of upright lives, have for many years ceased to respect the law of this country.

A CHILD OF TWELVE. In the witness box there stood yesterday a little girl of 12 years, Ireland, the kind of child who would certainly be womanly very close to as needing protection against all kinds of difficulties; immature, not fit to take the law on her own account. Yet by the laws of this country—and I find

MRS. AMELIA R. WOODALL.

WHAT MRS. M'LENDON THINKS
Mrs. Mary L. McLendon expresses the following opinion on Mrs. Pankhurst's tactics.
"Women have the right to fight for their rights just as men have. In 1776 the American colonists fought against their mother country because they wanted their rights. In '61 the south seceded to maintain the interpretation of southern rights. It is women's right to have the ballot, and she is justified in fighting for it."
"I do not believe that conditions here will ever be so like those in England that she will be forced to militancy. I do not know the exact conditions in England, but in my opinion they are sufficient to justify Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants in their actions. Their cause is espoused by the American National Woman's Suffrage Association, and their methods, while not condoned, are not condemned either."
"The Englishman is a different man from an American, and perhaps he needs a different treatment to get the same results. I cannot blame Mrs. Pankhurst for militancy, although I think she will never get what she's after that way."

no man either in parliament or outside to alter that law—that little girl is marriageable, considered old enough to be the mother of children, considered fit to accept responsibility. And to women that is a wrong so intolerable, so dreadful, that we feel ourselves justified in using very strong measures indeed in order to get power to alter that law. I may be sent, if you find me guilty, to a very long term of penal servitude. I believe the maximum punishment would be a sentence of 14 years' penal servitude. That is the kind of law that is framed to deal with persons who are found guilty of injury to property. Women are revolted when they compare that law with the law which makes the maximum punishment for certain injuries to the moral and physical well-being of a little girl two years' imprisonment. We think that there is no crime greater than the corruption of the physical life and the moral life of a little girl; and our whole training in America has made us feel like that. We have been taught that our moral integrity and our physical integrity we must hold dearer than all else in life, and yet we find that when men made laws to deal with offenses against children the maximum penalty is two years' imprisonment. Then I want to refer to a law which every mother in the country feels ought to be altered. I am a mother of every mother in the country. I do not intend to alter it. I am a mother of children myself. I have been fortunate in my marriage; I have been fortunate because my husband never invoked the power of the law against me or attempted to interfere with me in my relationship with my children. But it is possible under the law made by men for a mother to be deeply wounded in her tenderest feelings towards her children, because married mothers by the law of this country are not constituted equal legal guardians of their children with the fathers.

Women for many years, my lord, have been trying to get equal power of guardianship with the fathers over the children, and we know that the vote is needed to get that equal legal power. DIVORCED LAW. Then there is the law of divorce. The law of divorce in this country is the most notorious in Europe. Its inequality is intolerable to women. Talk about revolution and rebellion! Why, I tell you, gentlemen, that that law in itself, once women are recognized that revolution is necessary to alter it, is sufficient justification for any revolution that women may adopt. Well, then, that women may adopt laws of inheritance particularly which might give to you as grounds for their impotence which women are feeling. There has been made about Ulster speeches that the men of Ulster are drilling in clubs and preparing for civil war. Threats are being made that Ireland will be forced upon swiveling poles in Ulster. And yet these people, who are being drilled in that way, are not in the position I am in. They are not being drilled for their means of getting redress for their grievances; but women, it is our place, we counsel each to behave like ordinary citizens. We are not ordinary citizens, gentlemen. If we were ordinary citizens, armed with the power that ordinary citizens possess, that men have by constitutional means.

Gentlemen of the jury, I want you to understand how women feel who went before a commission on divorce. I want you to realize how women feel when they read reports of cases of punishment inflicted upon men guilty of corrupting the physical and moral life of their own little daughters. They are sent to terms of punishment very much lighter in many cases than is inflicted on women guilty in this agitation. I was sent to Holloway prison for six weeks for breaking a pane of glass, treated as an ordinary prisoner, while a man in a city I know very well, occupying a high position, was sent for six weeks for having corrupted several little girls. These are the reasons that have made women take part dicts of not guilty on every occasion. We have had the same thing in Ireland quite recently. Now I ask you, gentlemen, looking at the impossibility there is of woman getting redress of the law that affect them very deeply, is it right that you should assist in punishing women who are driven by desperation to take the stand they are taking from the bedside of one of our prisoners in the course of this agitation, and not against one of those women who you find one were that can be said against her character or her own conduct?

FROM DAUGHTER'S BEDSIDE. Over a thousand women have come out of prison injured to health, weakened in body, but not in spirit. I come to stand my trial from the bedside of one of my daughters, who has come out of Holloway prison sent there for two months hard labor for participating with four other people in breaking a small pane of glass. She has hunger-struck in prison. She submitted herself for more than five weeks to the horrible ordeal of feeding by force. She is so weak that she cannot get out of her bed. And I say to you, gentlemen, that is the kind of punishment you are inflicting upon any woman who may be brought before you. I ask you if you are prepared to go on doing that kind of thing indefinitely, because that is what is going to happen. There is absolutely no doubt about it. I think you know that we are no notoriety hunters. We could get that, heaven knows. We could get that, if we sought it. We are women, rightly or wrongly convinced that this is the only law in which we can win power to alter what for us are intolerable conditions. A London clergyman says that 60 per cent of the married women in his parish are breadwinners, supporting their husbands as well as their children. When you think of what this means to the future of the children of this country, I ask you to take this question very, very seriously. Only this morning I have had information brought to me that in this country, in the very city of London, a regulated traffic, not only in women of full age, but in little children; they are being trapped, and they are being taken to miserable, vicious places.

HUNGER STRIKE. Well, these are the things that have made us come determined to see this thing out to the end, let it cost what it may. And if you can, gentlemen, I shall be very frank that, whether the sentence is long or short, I shall not submit to it. I shall, the moment I hear of this court, refuse to eat food; I shall join the women who are already in Holloway on the hunger strike. I shall come out of prison, dead or alive, at the earliest possible moment; and once out again, as soon as I am physically fit, I shall undertake this fight again.

And since the man was not forthcoming, he refused to pass sentence on the girl. This is what I ask you to do in my case. You know, every one of you, that I should not be standing here, that I should not break a single law if I had the rights that you possess, if I had a share in electing those who make the laws I have to obey, if I had a voice in calling them into being. I am called upon to pay. And I ask you, it is a serious matter, that women of upright lives are trying to undo some of the terrible mistakes that men have made, because, after all, men are responsible for the present state of affairs.

ON JUSTICE. You are not accustomed to deal with people like me in the ordinary discharge of your duties; but you are called upon to deal with people who break the law from selfish motives. I have no personal animosity against any of the other women who have gone through this court during the past few weeks, like myself, but I am not. Not one of these women would I care to have as my neighbor. They are women who seriously believe that the welfare of humanity demands this sacrifice; they believe that the horrible evils which are ravaging our civilization will be removed only if women get the vote. They know that the very worst of life is being postponed; they know that homes are being destroyed; that because of bad selection a generation of the unusual standard of morals, even the mothers and children are being destroyed by the vilest and most horrible disease that ravages humanity.

SEARCHED NINETEEN YEARS FOR MISSING BROTHER. SPOKANE, Wash.—The sixteen-year-old son of C. C. James, of Spokane, Va., searched for his brother Fred M. James age forty-two, who is reported to have made a fortune in mining in the Spokane country and to have changed his name to Mountaineer in his youth. "I have gone to all the great search agencies in Montana, looked up the marriage records, searched the deed records for years, and looked up the records, and have gone through all the files I have crossed the files in my search. It seems to be in vain."

FROM MRS. WOODALL. Mrs. Amelia R. Woodall gives the following as her idea on "PANKHURST": "I do not believe in breaking law to establish law. Peace and arbitration is now our slogan, therefore we could not indorse Mrs. Pankhurst's methods, which are just the opposite. The minds of the anti-suffragists being prejudiced against equal rights, we can only grasp the fact of the hatchet, the bomb and the gun, and they claim Mrs. Pankhurst in the same catalogue with Carrie's tactics. I believe the southern woman with her fine sense of justice and right, would never have joined in the movement to gain the citizenship for women, because she would have seen the truth and realized that politics had entered the hall and was being decreed. Our economic conditions are entirely changed, and the preservation of high moral ideals requires an active participation in the public matters. But I do not believe in breaking law to establish law."

MRS. EMMA L. PANKHURST. In this agitation, and I want to say to you, gentlemen, that so long as you have power, so long as you allow these things to go on, women are driven to take the law into their own hands. If there is in the laws and the administration of law so wide a gulf between women's feelings and men's feelings on moral matters, that in itself is a justification for what we are doing. Now, there was a time in the history of this country when the laws became so bad as to be obnoxious to the masses of the people. Men at that time did not have the vote, so it was impossible to find a jury to convict people found guilty of breaches of the law, because the punishments were so vindictive that public opinion, in those days, when the penalty of hanging was imposed for small offenses, justice came to the point when they returned ver-social customs, and the propriety of a visit to the country.

WEDDING GIFTS

Just a little talk today on the subject of wedding gifts. If you receive an invitation to a wedding, you will not wish to receive an invitation to a wedding unless you are invited to a wedding. It is a social custom to send a gift to the bride and groom. The gift should be something that is useful and practical. It is not necessary to send a gift if you are not invited to a wedding. If you are invited to a wedding, you should send a gift. The gift should be something that is useful and practical. It is not necessary to send a gift if you are not invited to a wedding. A Brush Cleanses Well

WOMEN to perform certain daily duties that will keep up the health and beauty of the body. Any one who neglects these is inviting misery to himself. Through carelessness the face is often made unattractive by the appearance of blackheads. Indistinctness in sailing across the skin from doing its proper work, therefore, the pore becomes clogged with fat and dirt, and if these are not removed daily with hot water, soap, and their hair, and become very dry.

Exercise for Agility

Exercise for agility is a very important part of a woman's daily routine. It helps to keep the body in good condition and prevents the accumulation of fat. There are many exercises that can be done at home, and they are all very simple. Some of the best exercises for agility are walking, running, and jumping. These exercises help to strengthen the muscles and improve the circulation of the blood. They also help to keep the mind sharp and clear. It is important to do these exercises every day, and to do them with care and attention. This will help to keep the body in good condition and prevent the accumulation of fat.

Crackers Curb the Appetite

Crackers are a very good food for curbing the appetite. They are easy to digest and provide a lot of energy. They are also a good source of fiber, which helps to keep the digestive system in good condition. There are many different types of crackers, and you can choose the one that you like best. Some of the best crackers for curbing the appetite are whole wheat crackers, oatmeal crackers, and rye crackers. These crackers are all very healthy and provide a lot of energy. They are also a good source of fiber, which helps to keep the digestive system in good condition. It is important to eat crackers every day, and to eat them with care and attention. This will help to curb the appetite and keep the body in good condition.

Do not Forget the Hundred Stripes

Do not forget the hundred stripes when you are thinking about your health and beauty. These stripes are the lines that run across the face and neck, and they are a sign of aging. They can be prevented by using a good skin cream and by protecting the skin from the sun. There are many different types of skin creams, and you can choose the one that you like best. Some of the best skin creams for preventing the hundred stripes are those that contain vitamin E and hyaluronic acid. These ingredients help to keep the skin in good condition and prevent the formation of wrinkles. It is important to use skin cream every day, and to use it with care and attention. This will help to prevent the hundred stripes and keep the skin in good condition.

SUITS for FALL WEAR

Paris Special Correspondence.—Every body is metaphorically sitting on the fence here now and not knowing which way to jump whether ahead or backward, one takes it. Are we going to be patterned up and crinolined all winter, or are we going back to somewhat clinging lines, with long coat effects. No one seems to know for certain and they probably will not until after the beginning of the big race days in October, when the fashionable folk, whether of the mode or the stage, return to the city and commence to wear whichever one of these two styles they will elect to take up. No matter what is said about models, for- eign buyers, the things that are to be worn, and so forth and so on, the real mode is not fixed and sealed until those women who absolutely set the fashion have made up their minds.

Personally I feel sure the patterned and crinolined style is coming in and that gradually it will be more and more worn, but whether or not it will prevail for all kinds of costumes is another question. It is what is known as the street suits that are giving the trouble for the others, such as evening gowns and soft frocks for afternoon affairs and the house, will most certainly be provided with these new draperies, but will women forgo the straight silhouette? That is another question.

At all the large establishments they are showing mainly suit overcoats, or three-quarter coats, that are cut out to a greater or less degree, according to the taste of the designer and these are all intended for the street and are made of heavy materials with tailored finish. In direct contradiction to these, however, almost every woman one sees walking abroad who is attired in a suit that is new, modish, and smart has on a skirt that may be called plain, for it is underpinned by an overcoat, or has a coat the faintest suggestion of crinolins. These may come later, with the advent of fur for trimming, for they give a wonderfully softening line to these spreading garments, or all crinolins effects may be kept for dressy use and fashionable women may decide to keep to simple lines everywhere intended for the street. This will be something that will be interesting to watch.

Materials in Street Suits.

As street clothes are the first necessity of the autumn wardrobe they must be the first things to be considered and written up. Naturally the great materials are what should be thought of first and this year there are so many to be thought of and such beautiful effects in a real sense to look at them. The variety in rainwear, velours, cotton velours, plushes and all fabrics that show a soft raised surface is greater than ever before and these will be worn to the exclusion of all dull or hard surfaced goods.

The latest material of everything intended for the street is a sort of plush which is made to represent fur, baby lamb, minkskin, and ermine, and it promises to have a tremendous vogue all through the winter. The baby lamb and minkskin, however, are only practical ones, for the imitation ermine is only used for trimming, but the other two are simply perfect, and they are both lovely. The suit in light weight, not nearly so heavy as even the real baby lamb, and so it will be used for coats and suits that may be as elaborately fashioned as one wishes and still be comfortable for walking.

One model in the baby lamb that I have seen recently showed this plush material with the most effect that is only to be found in the finest quality of the fur, and so perfect was it that it was only by holding it in the hand that the imitation could be detected. The skirt of it was a general narrow, but there was a shallow pleat in the back that extended from the waist to the hem and was wide enough to reach almost to the point of the hips at the sides. In front there was a little full overcoat which appeared round and met this pleat, the neck of the overcoat being tucked under and so held in place. There was the finest bit of white ermine trimmings, scarcely enough to notice, but it just rippled out the material so that it did not fall straight.

The coat of the costume was a short affair, cut like a bolero in front, but with a basque back that had a point in the center and one also on each side. These three points had fullness and they fell over the wide pleat in the back of the skirt, each being finished with heavy silk tassels. The bolero front of the coat was cut away and showed beneath it a wide folded sash of black satin fastened with three large jet buttons placed a little at the left side, the sash did not have ends, but it extended five or six inches below the waist line and was loose. The collar of the coat stood up in the back with a little bit of wiring to hold it out and it was lined on the outside with black satin, the plush coming next the skin, a new touch on most of the garments that are provided with standing collars. Nothing could have been prettier than this costume, and the coat of it as compared with a real fur outfit was as nothing. It was a dear model, but I have seen the same with different variations elsewhere and all have been smart.

Dark Blue Best Choice.

Of course every woman will have a dark blue costume for the street if she is a wise and far seeing person, for that of all others is the color that gives the most satisfaction, is the most lasting, and if it must be worn for more or less long periods is the least noticeable of anything that can be adopted; but more than the one tailored suit can be afforded then the color of this should be either red or brown. They are fitting the changes on these two colors through a range of shades that is almost endless, and if one or another tint is not becoming there is a third and a fourth, or a twenty-fourth if one will take the trouble to look.

The fashionable shades of red for winter are not so bright as those that have been worn this last summer, and the difference in the quality of the materials makes them seem darker, or rather it gives them a softer, deeper tone. There is nothing more becoming to a vast number of women than some of these gorgeous dull red shades, when the fabric is velour de laine or velour de soie, and this same brilliant color was fitted just across the back of the neck, below the collar, and these two touches made of it a most striking costume, especially when worn with a velvet hat of a slightly darker shade of mahogany trimmed with a pale brown paradise plume.

Rainwear of Soie New Material.

For afternoon frocks there has just been brought out a new material called "rainwear de soie," a stuff that looks like the old-fashioned raincoat, but is of a different nature, or rather it gives them a softer, deeper tone. There is nothing more becoming to a vast number of women than some of these gorgeous dull red shades, when the fabric is velour de laine or velour de soie, and this same brilliant color was fitted just across the back of the neck, below the collar, and these two touches made of it a most striking costume, especially when worn with a velvet hat of a slightly darker shade of mahogany trimmed with a pale brown paradise plume.

A new winter suit style, no less smart because it is practical. The skirt has a small amount of fullness cut into the waistband, this being spread evenly across the back. Otherwise it is cut straight. The pleat is a very large one, the color being a fairly deep shade of green. The coat is of the same shade of green and is made extremely loose, the wide band, which is placed fairly low at the back and raised high at the front, holding it in slightly below the waist. A hat of small flounces the most about the crown. Model from Antoine & Weber. The hat is of black velvet trimmed with orange pom-pom. Model from Lewis.

Gown of velour de soie, brocade, the color being a soft brown. The skirt has a wide pleat drawn down the center of the front, and this is slightly draped up just above the waist. The back of the skirt has a similar pleat to the front, but this falls straight. The bodice is loosely draped and falls over a blouse of finely plaited yellow chiffon. The short tunic draped back into the girdle at each side, is of chiffon, a shade lighter than the frock. Model from Jeanne Halle.

Costume of fine velour de laine in an old world shade. The skirt is cut in a new shape, which gives some fullness just below the hips in the back, but is very close about the lower edge. The coat comes in strictly at the side seams and is almost straight in the back. The pockets are put on the outside and can be used. The collar and cuffs are of matching both being moderate in width. From beneath the coat in front is stretched a wide bias piece of white velvet the same shade as the cashmere which is intended to the sides of the coat and is not on the skirt. This is one of the sort of cash draped overcoats and is being used on many of the latest costumes. Model from Meier.

tones and values. I have seen this same idea of two different materials in skirt and waist carried out in velour de laine and velvet and in velvet with a lovely different sort of velvet for the bodice. These old bodices I think charming and also they are really becoming. They are generally basque shaped and their skirt and sash, either being pretty.

No Radical Change in Hats.

Hats continue to be small, and although there is a radical change in their shape, they are showing more of the hair than during the summer, the hat being more lightly posed or else turning up more. One of the newest shapes suggests a helmet, and it has several popular notes. The brim is rather tall and severe, and toward the top it is slightly bent outward. The crown of the hat is found to be becoming, and it has several there will appear a narrow band of fur or a ruff of ermine, or possibly a little puff of velvet, and an overabundance of feathers will be becoming, or some sort of ornament in the feathered line. This shape made in a shade of brown is especially smart, and I have seen in a real golden color, as well as in some dark shades, and it is equally good. Powdered hair continues to be fashionable and is frequently seen women even in the morning with their entire head will be left unpowdered except a slight touch of the head is so treated, one strand of hair will be in the center, or else one that covers the entire crown of the head, or the center of the forehead, which is made more soft and is probably tucked into its place. With blue and brown hair this fashion is lovely, although an occasional trouble, and I think as long as powder, or rather, as long as hats were in it, it will continue to be smart.

Winter Sports for Women

MISS ATLANTA, summer girl, has packed away the rose leaves of the summer flirt in the gray jar of happy memories and is beginning to sharpen her weapons for the winter campaign. But, as Samuel W. Fox would have it, it had to be an Atlanta miss and not an English beauty. "Life on the pink sea and turkey trot" and Miss Atlanta isn't the sort of young lady at all that spends the holiday days of fall and winter in a continual round of matinee, dances and auto rides.

The lure of the woods and fields and health courses call to her and she must be up and done. There is no girl in the city who are not lucky to have a gulf there are basketball gymnasiums, even that stand out from the rest.

Atlanta girls schools basketball season for what promises to be a successful season for this year's sport of basketball is at a new place in Atlanta.

A few years ago there were only two girls schools in Atlanta that wanted to have basketball teams. Something familiar about the game will sound a chord away back in your memory.

"Why I believe that's that old game of croquet!" you murmur, started to yourself.

And indeed it is. The nurses at a local sanitarium have found out that the only sport they have time for is croquet. So they constructed a croquet field, reconstructed balls, wheels and mallets some where, and found that it wasn't such a bad sort of sport after all.

They have even managed to expose quite a bit of rivalry among the bunch. But whether it's croquet or basketball before long to prove that all Atlanta girls have found out that all pleasure and no play makes Jill a dull girl. One can't get along without something besides pretty clothes and pretty places to exercise in as essential to

if you should happen to ask them, yet they are aching to get revenge on that out-of-town school.

This year every girls' school in the city has a basketball team. Some of them have coaches, some of them have received good training at the Y. W. C. A., schedules have been arranged, basketball for women is at least a game, no longer a fudge party.

Out at Brookhaven and East Lake other Atlanta girls have found out that golf is a more interesting game than basketball. They have learned to "keep their eye on the ball," to drive and putt with the best of them, and really isn't such a bad game, even in Piedmont Park, in many other places over the city. And tennis really isn't such a bad game, even in February, if you never tried it.

A NEW-OLD GAME. If you'll stroll out on the south side of town some day you will see a new-old sport in progress in a side yard of an institutional-looking place. Something familiar about the game will sound a chord away back in your memory.

A NEW-OLD GAME. If you'll stroll out on the south side of town some day you will see a new-old sport in progress in a side yard of an institutional-looking place. Something familiar about the game will sound a chord away back in your memory.

"Why I believe that's that old game of croquet!" you murmur, started to yourself.

And indeed it is. The nurses at a local sanitarium have found out that the only sport they have time for is croquet. So they constructed a croquet field, reconstructed balls, wheels and mallets some where, and found that it wasn't such a bad sort of sport after all.

They have even managed to expose quite a bit of rivalry among the bunch. But whether it's croquet or basketball before long to prove that all Atlanta girls have found out that all pleasure and no play makes Jill a dull girl. One can't get along without something besides pretty clothes and pretty places to exercise in as essential to

if you should happen to ask them, yet they are aching to get revenge on that out-of-town school.

This year every girls' school in the city has a basketball team. Some of them have coaches, some of them have received good training at the Y. W. C. A., schedules have been arranged, basketball for women is at least a game, no longer a fudge party.

Out at Brookhaven and East Lake other Atlanta girls have found out that golf is a more interesting game than basketball. They have learned to "keep their eye on the ball," to drive and putt with the best of them, and really isn't such a bad game, even in Piedmont Park, in many other places over the city. And tennis really isn't such a bad game, even in February, if you never tried it.

They have even managed to ex-

the debutante as it is to her little sister. Of course the debutante can't scandalize the neighbors by sliding down the front walk on a pair of roller skates, but if she will look around her a little she will find that one can do just "odder" of things in the way of sports.

Blinded From Forest Fire

BY W. H. ALBURN.
(Staff Correspondence.)

ABBY, Mont.—"Old Tom Running" lives by himself in a little cabin on the edge of the town.

Tom is lonely, poor, sick and blind. That is what he got for saving 100,000 acres of Uncle Sam's best forest timber.

Ten years ago there was no trapper in the Bitter Root mountains the equal of Tom Running. He was 40 years old, tall, straight and strong and lived the clean life of the mountains and feared nothing.

In May, 1905, when Tom brought his winter traps to Elk City, Idaho, Homer E. Fenn, in charge of the forest district there, hired him as a trapper for the summer. He was to go back to his trapping grounds and patrol them, building trails and guarding against forest fires.

Tom was responsible for 200,000 acres of big timber. He was absolutely alone.

It was a dry summer. On July 4 there was a big thunderstorm. Lightning started fires all over the mountains.

Tom's troubles started July 5. From a hilltop he saw the smoke and heard the hiss roaring toward him with the noise of a hundred express trains as the big white pines and red firs crashed down and the flames whipped through the tree tops at nearly a mile a minute. And beyond were other smoke clouds.

Tom was "on the job," as he had promised. For three months, day and night, with little sleep, often without food, he fought the fires in that vast, hroiling wilderness, without ever seeing a human face.

Every night he toiled, all night, for that is the time to fight, when the flames drop from the tree tops beat out the flames with wet blankets. With his axe he cleared "fire lanes" through the woods. With his shovel and mattock he dug trenches and laid bare the sod, circling the burning districts. He started "backfires" to burn out strips before the conflagration swept over.

In February three trappers came upon Tom's cabin in the woods. They were Harry Shinsler, an outlaw convicted of murder, Fred Shinsler, his brother, and Billy Wiley.

They found Tom Running crouching helplessly around his cabin, alone.

"We can't leave him here to die," said the outlaw.

They made a stretcher of pine poles and carried Tom over the divide to Darby, forty miles, on snow shoes, far up over the perilsous, snow-bound pass of the Bitter Root range.

F. A. Slicer, district forester at Missoula, is trying to get a pension for Tom. But it would take a special act of congress. And congress hasn't any time to bother about Tom.

ALL KINDS OF TRICKS TO ENTER NAVY

SPOKANE, Wash.—Rejected at the naval recruiting office here for being too pounds underweight, Thomas R. Bolton underwent a strenuous ten days of feeding, in which he gained a pound a day. When he again reported for enlistment he was half a pound under, but a few glasses of water bridged the gap. Samuel T. Steele, rejected for a physical disability, had a minor operation performed to remove the cause, and was then accepted.

HOW TO DANCE the NEW STEPS

Correct Position Showing the Man's Hand Guiding the Girl With Thumb and Forefinger.

Miss Elsie Janis Begins Today a Series of Articles Teaching Our Readers How to Dance the Tango, the Heaviness Waltz, the One-Step, and Their Variants. Miss Janis Has Studied the New Steps Both at Home and Abroad. She is an Expert Dancer and She Can TELL HOW She Dances as Well as She Dances. One of Her Lessons Will Appear Each Sunday as a Special Feature of This Paper. The Series Will Run for Some Time.

By ELSIE JANIS.

I HAVE been asked many times to write on different subjects that "know nothing" about. For instance, "How to Be Beautiful," "How to Hold Your Husband," "Should Actress Marry?" etc., and I have refused firmly.

Now at last I have a chance to write about something that I really love and have been interested in all my life—dancing. The very word means a great deal to me, and apparently there are a lot of people who are right with me in this.

Dancing is not a craze. It is here to stay because it should stay. So far it has done a great deal for America, and all these people who are condemning it had better turn their attention to bridge or anything that like and say "On with the dance," because the more they talk the greater the desire for dancing will be.

I have traveled quite a bit and have made it a point to see the dancing of all the different countries, and in this series of articles I am going to try to describe everything that I saw in the way of new "one-step" to London, Paris, Berlin, and the fashionable watering places last summer. But before I do this I have a few little items in my head about the much abused dance of today that must come out.

The One-Step Will Live for Years.

The people who like dancing have quite a fight on their hands to live down all the terrible crimes, illnesses, and even murders, that are laid at the door of the poor old turkey trot, bean, hug, Texas Tommy, baby slide, tango, and all those other amusing names that seem to crop up with every new variation of a perfectly nice dance known as the one-step. There you have the dance that will be here fifty years from now because it is practical, just as the waltz and two-step are practical.

In the waltz you take one, two, three steps each way; in the two-step two; and in the one-step one. That is tempo, and the thing that makes all dancing tempo.

Have taken two music lessons a week all year, so when you hear me say I work some musical expression on you. When I really mean "time," tempo sounds like I really know A lot from A sharp. So you must know me.

There are many theories about where this one-step came from. Some say the Marbury coast out in San Francisco, and others say places that I am too much of a lady to mention. But I say it is a great dance if you care to make it so, and we should worry about "where it came from."

Think of the crowd it has done. Take, for instance, the "one-step" who have been paraded, we will say, eight years, and have received the stars where you see at these dancing schools. I had married the other day, and my wife is at the club, and on a long drink and wishes. At the club she is promised to be home by 11 o'clock. When I am in a taxi, she is in a taxi. My wife leaves to dance. My wife, having been firmly convinced that she could not even keep time, let alone walk, sits in the room of the ballroom, where the dancing wives' husbands sit, and wishes that Strauss had never written "The Blue Danube," while wifery dances madly with the lady of the village, who insists she has been out to powder her nose and rather like other ladies' husbands, is about to pass. She steps and says, "Don't you do this wonderful dance?" Hubby, who by this time is rather a heavyweight, says no—he is too old. Debutante says, "Don't be silly, any one can do it. Come on and try." Well, what happens? Hubby gets the bug and becomes the Marikin of the village.

Hubby Becomes a Marikin.

Every few minutes between dances hubby comes and stands in the doorway with a "will she never get tired?" expression on his face, while wifery buries her nose in her partner's shoulder so she cannot see him standing there. Now the plot thickens. One time while he is lingering near the door a debutante, who has been out to powder her nose and rather like other ladies' husbands, is about to pass. She steps and says, "Don't you do this wonderful dance?" Hubby, who by this time is rather a heavyweight, says no—he is too old. Debutante says, "Don't be silly, any one can do it. Come on and try." Well, what happens? Hubby gets the bug and becomes the Marikin of the village.

All the girls fight over him because he has such "cute little" steps all his own. Mr. and Mrs. Married Couple go to every dance there is to go to, and even might be found at a cabaret together (if the mayor would allow them) to when there is no place else to go and dance. They begin to live again. Hubby is the best long distance dancer in capturing and wifery is very proud of him, even though by this time it is she who stands in the door with aching feet and reminds him that he has to go to work in the morning.

Now, this is a fact. I know many couples who have played this little comedy, and successfully, too. Why stop dancing anywhere? You can't stop your partners getting close together! You can't stop them doing it to music.

There is another little item I know of. Lots of women go without food, but take T. eat bath, and don't lose a pound. And I know personally one charm that goes to every dance just 210 last summer and this summer weighs 46, and she has done nothing to lose it but dance. How's that? There is a chance for a battle between wifery and dancing. At bridge lots of women who cannot afford it lose 10. In dancing one can only lose weight, and with the fashion as they are, surely any one can afford to lose weight. So there you are.

This summer was for me one long dance. At Deer-ville, New York's favorite watering place, for instance, I danced after lunch, after tea, and after dinner. Q.

The Strange Hold Must Go.

Wrong track and would like to know the one-step—alias turkey trot, Gaby glide, Texas Tommy, grizzly bear, and other animal-like names, but, after all, a perfectly decent dance—the one-step as it is done in many different countries in the last year.

There has been a great change in these dances and all for the best. When "Alexander's Ragtime Band" was being played it really suggested moving from side to side like a bear under the strain of some great excitement. And the same with a lot of other good "rags" of a year or two years ago. But now think of the popular tunes, "In My Haven," "Maiden's Wedding Day," "Salvation Nell," "Adam and Eve," "In fact, all the new dancing tunes are in regular march time, and there you have the evolution of the dance. That shows that we no longer wiggle, O, believe me, when the wiggling was good I was right there in the midst of it, wiggling busy, but I have learned better.

Relaxed Hands and Stiff Knees, Instead of Clutching Hands and Dipping Knees, is going to be the New Idea.

Remember, no dips, at least no deep dips. The one-step is not a wiggle. It is more of a glide, a few steps and a very small dip, but always upright. No bending at the knees. That is not being done in the best (sanities) this year. Personally I never could see any joy in knocking my knees against my partner's. My own are much too thin for that.

Admitting that there surely is a dance called the turkey trot, I want to say that I have discovered the reason (O, I am so foreign, aren't I?) for these different names for the dance. Every one loves to write new steps. It is my favorite pastime. First, then you find a good, unassuming step, then you put a turn of the heel on it, dip backwards, and that makes it a new and a new step. Now, that is where the crab crawl, the horse trot, etc., come from.

Some rising young dancer stumbles on to a new step. He teaches it to some innocent girl. She says, "What is that?" Then the villain thinks quickly of the most damning name, preferably connected with some poor, well-meaning animal like the turkey, and with no sense of shame he calls it the monkey mouch, or the centipede slide, or something equally ridiculous. Then she poor little "nut," teaches it to her next partner and tells him the name of it. And so it goes. That's where they come from. But after all we cannot complain, for they do give us something to talk about. The newspapers are perfectly good for a time to which we writer one can tear off a knee-step.

How to Hold Your Partner. Now, another thing about the bands. The average girl will sit at a dinner table and pose with her hands pressed against her Hylike cheek or toy with a nearby fork, and all the time thinking whether or not they will ever see each other. Trust some girl, but because I think there may be some people who are on the tune, will dash into a ballroom and clutch the shoulder of her partner as though it were a prop, or while she is falling, and whirl away in a dance.

Now, girls, think it over. When you place your arms in the arms of a handsome stranger, just for fun look over his shoulder at your Hylike for myra, the only hylike dance, and see that they are not in an unattractive position. There is no excuse for it! The man might very well take notice too. The average girl will spread her enormous hands all over his back and not mean to do so, but he is so busy making his feet believe that he cannot be bothered with your grip, his eyes. But he should. I have seen many couples that I knew were perfectly nice people look like two barbers' assistants because of the way they held each other.

The next time you dance with some one you know, well, just try a graceful position. You will get it like it is. The man rests his thumb and forefinger against the lady's back, quite a good way above the waist. He will find it very easy to guide with his thumb and forefinger, and will incidentally give the lady more chance to get her breath. The lady will lean over and take a good look at her hand and try to make it as graceful as possible, and at the same time hold on to the usually elusive dancing partner.

Control is the greatest thing in all the new dances. If you feel yourself dipping, take a brace and shift the tip instead of doing it. It is just as much fun as not half as wearing.

All these old steps that we have been doing on are retained in the one-step, but done gracefully and with the thought, "I must remain standing."

Feels Like a Child Again.

Perhaps other people do not have my experience. Being a professional dancer, I am supposed to be quite good, and when I go to a dance any man who has a step figured out in his mind will try it out on me. So far I have had no bones broken, but the man who stepped in the middle of a perfectly nice dance and says, "Do you know this one?" and proceeds to throw you about like a bag of meal has caused me to be anxious to do it. I do not mind being tired and my mind is very good in fact when the average man is panting and opening all the windows in an attempt to get the band to strike up another rag. But I do love it, so I want every one to love it. I would like to see exhibition dances to all these poor old busybodies who talk about those dances of which they know nothing and make them think that they are doing it. I would like to see those dances of which they know nothing and make them think that they are doing it. I would like to see those dances of which they know nothing and make them think that they are doing it.

People make vulgar dances. If I wanted to I could take a perfectly nice waltz and make it look just as vulgar as any turkey trot or tango that you have ever seen. But I don't want to, and I do not see any more wonderful feeling than when you are danced about by some one-step without stop (as you don't care whether your nose shines or not). Your little curls that it took you an hour to make are pulled back, and all you want to do is to get water to make life divine.

Do you not often find that a really wonderful dance? There is only one thing I can think of that does it, and that is the same sort of feeling. I had when it was used to play "prisoner's base" at school, run, with a lot of boy cousins at the age of seven. That feeling used to vanish when other world appeared in the doorway and say, "Remember that you are a girl!"

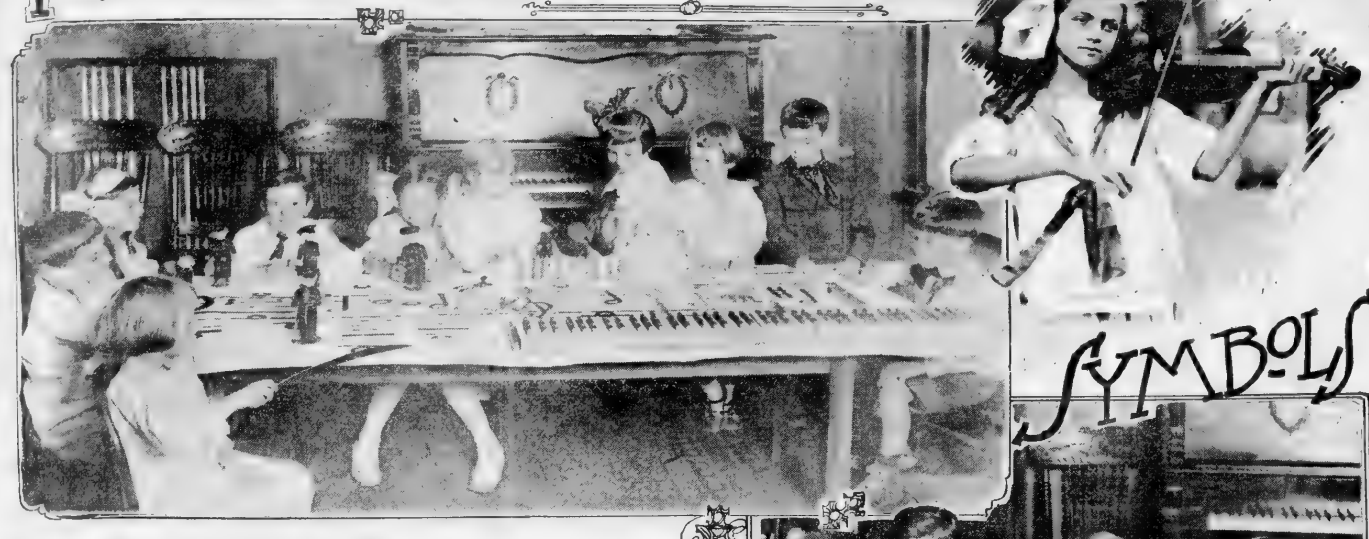

Now that same love of life feeling washes out of a dance when mother appears and says, "Remember that you had made tomorrow's dress." The "day" is added because I am some years older, and I do not see always playing with my boy cousins, and it is

Dancing Has Lessened Drinking. Now, I have had back my big pants in favor of the dance, and here it is. Drinking has lost a great deal of its allurements. In all these years of my life who need to sit about telling stories we girls are not allowed to hear and drinking drink we girls are not allowed to drink are now much too busy dancing about the room in what they think is a correct imitation of the "Castle Walk," to stop and get the afternoon drink.

I will let some of these anti-dance movement papers step forward and tell me that dancing has not done a great deal for America. I was told I could not write, but I feel that it is "out time" to do so. In the theater, such happily, and so the "little" in the melodrama, I go, but I shall return. Marked in my mind, I shall be glad to see the "little" in getting a few more ideas out of my dancing experience. I shall be far more specific next time I write.

Remember no dips, or at least not deep dips, and the magazine writer says, to be continued in my next

TEACHING CHILDREN MUSIC WITH

Atlanta Children Learning Music By Means of the Symbols Employed in the New Fletcher Method Now Being Taught At the Atlanta Conservatory of Music

A FEW years ago in Atlanta's public schools experienced teachers in the "black" variety of the field were charged with the difference between the "white" and "black" scales and the scale spaces.

Some of these teachers were very good, but they didn't know the difference between the "white" and "black" scales and the scale spaces.

It helped a little, but as soon as the notes were on the scale, it was all over. By the same principle, but in a different way, the Fletcher method of teaching music to children is being taught at the Atlanta Conservatory of Music.

MISS FLETCHER'S IDEA

Some years ago a young girl named Miss Fletcher, a young girl, attended her usual education in Boston and came home to teach. She found it hard. Why not put music on a scale like a ruler? Why not have a real live line into young people's heads of making them travel the way of the scale? It was the Fletcher method.

CLASSES OF SEVEN

She has been upon a class of young people who have just passed the six-year mark. These are the youngest that have ever been in a music class. They are from the city and the country, and they are all beginners.

THE FLETCHER KEYBOARD

The Fletcher keyboard is another interesting equipment. In appearance it is just like the black and white keyboard on the piano, but it does not sound. It is a collapsible board, and it is collapsible. Also, on its keys are the pitch notes, thus directly connecting the staff with the keyboard.

RESCUE NOTES

Because the keyboard is collapsible they play a game called "rescue notes." The children stand a little way from the keyboard and play that it is a house on fire and that all the notes are people that must be rescued. But to rescue them they must be able to call each by name.

What a terrible thing if all those people should burn just because one didn't know their names! No self-respecting girl or boy will allow it. Rather learn their names and see if you can't rescue more people than the other.

And once rescued, all the people must be put back in their proper places. And it simply wouldn't do you know, to get them mixed up.

And the result is that your pupil knows his keyboard as he could never get to know it otherwise.

A year or more of instruction in this method prepared a Fletcher pupil for larger things. Twelve and thirteen-year-old boys and girls can begin to take up modulation. And the Fletcher modulation board is unique, characterized as a glorified cribbage board.

TANGIBLE TIME BLOCKS

Other phases of music, some of the most difficult ones, are shown in the same natural and easy way. Time has ever been a stumbling block to pupils old and young. The Fletcher time apparatus consists of thin, oblong strips of wood like rulers. There is a long strip for the whole note, one just half as long for the half note, a quarter as long for the fourth note, and so on down to the thirty-second note.

THE FLETCHER METHOD

The Fletcher method is supposed to be of great benefit to the children. It is not confined to any age, although it is customary to teach children between the ages of six and sixteen. Nor is it confined to any single piece of music. The same system is applied to voice, piano, violin and various other instruments.

"WIRELESS EYE" IS INVENTED

By JACK JENNEYER.

ALLEN, Cal.—A great wireless eye which sees through darkness at night and fog over a radius of several miles, reproducing with faithful detail upon a mirror a picture of everything within its range of vision, is the latest miracle of the scientific world.

It has just been perfected here by Samuel Spitz, formerly wireless expert for the government at Mare Island yard, after seven years of experimenting.

So impressed were Mare Island navy officers that they urged him to reserve the instrument exclusively for use by the army and navy.

This the wizard perceptively refused to consider.

"I didn't make this apparatus to destroy lives, to add to the horrors of war. During the seven years I spent in perfecting the spitzscope I had in mind the safeguarding of helpless and their preservation from unseen perils," he said.

"I'd rather be set down as a humanitarian than a great inventor."

Nor could he be shaken from his determination by hints of fabulous royalties from the government.

"But think of its possibilities in warfare," argued the naval officers. "Night eyes for battleships, spying out the enemy's craft. As soldiers his search beam! Reserve this for the government!"

"No," answered Spitz. "I will not do it. True, I made it to give blind ships an eye, but first of all it shall be used to increase the security of the men who go out to sea on peaceful missions."

A group of Uncle Sam's men stood in his basement workshop. Outside the night was doubly dark with a pall of fog. The inventor threw a switch and from a strange black cabinet on a table an aperture glowed with phosphorescent light. A humilis filled the room.

Peering in the officers saw from the mirror dial the huge steel cranes of Mare Island, warships swinging at anchor, squadries pecking their boats two miles away.

Presently a launch stole out from one of the jetties. Immediately an indicator swinging free across the dial began following the launch, retreating.

Another part of the room a rifle mounted on a pivot moved on the indicator, training on the boat.

The officers exchanged amazed glances, as the little civilian stood back smiling.

"It could be made a terrific engine of destruction," he admitted. With an eye like this hung at the mast head of a man-of-war, connecting with his guns in the turret, the spitzscope could convert a battleship into a terrible night-fighting monster.

"But to restrict its use to that purpose—I would regard that as a failure on my part, and a betrayal of the best interests of humankind."

Under Sam's fighting men went out into the night marveling as much at the make-up of this quiet prophet of peace as at his remarkable invention.

Undaunted by a succession of failures, the covert sneers of scientists who said he was wasting his time by disregarding the laws of physics and the open ridicule of his townfolk, who referred to him as "the man with bugs in his head," Spitz persisted.

They were married. Life seemed to blossom at last for the lonely lover of mankind.

At last she went home.

John Otto is still there, living alone, among his ransoms and monuments, building trails in sun and storm for the use and pleasure of the people.

Although long taught in the schools of the north and east, its advent in the south was a new thing. It is still an innovation for Atlanta. Miss Marie Duke, who studied under Fletcher herself in Boston, is in charge of the conservatory, while other Atlanta girls who pursued the Fletcher study abroad have returned home enthusiastic to discover it to their friends and their friends' children.

Already Atlanta mothers are sending their boys and girls to the Fletcher school, and it may not be long before a true, surer musical generation of young Atlantians will be taking first rank among the world's great musicians and composers.

NATIONAL PARK COWBOY'S GIFT

Special Correspondent.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col.—To one man, John Otto, Builder of Trails, America owes one of its finest national parks.

Coming from a cultured eastern family, Otto yielded to the westward for years lived the life of a cowboy. He was silent about his own affairs and generous toward his fellow "ponchers."

One day he came into Grand Junction alive with enthusiasm for the beauty of a region to the southwest. But to pioneers struggling with young fur farms a barren land would hold no beauty. So Otto's tales were met with ridicule. In silence he bought supplies and disappeared.

Months passed. Occasionally Otto came to town, quietly procured tools and provisions and withdrew to the wilderness. Then reports began to come in from ranchmen who had gone far in search of straying cattle.

Otto was building trails through his Pool's Paradise, building them alone, often under cruel difficulties.

Finally the Grand Junction chamber of commerce sent a committee in to investigate and found the rumors true. Otto's "paradise" was a land of rare natural beauty. There were vast areas of natural "monuments" of rock rising from 10 to 500 feet sheer from the canyon floor. Lowly waterfalls, deep caves and virgin forest.

Opening it up to the people, along the national roads was John Otto, building his trails.

After the investigation, which led to no civic action, John Otto sometimes asked for help. Quietly he would suggest to a business man that he contribute a dollar to his work. Never did he ask more than that, and he never asked the same man twice.

This money was spent wholly on tools and engineering supplies. When Otto needed money for himself he went to work for some ranchman, earning enough for clothes and provisions for a while and returned to his trails.

And city or country would receive at least $15,000 for labor alone to complete the miles of trail now finished by John Otto.

Four years ago Otto brought the best interests of humankind.

Under Sam's fighting men went out into the night marveling as much at the make-up of this quiet prophet of peace as at his remarkable invention.

Undaunted by a succession of failures, the covert sneers of scientists who said he was wasting his time by disregarding the laws of physics and the open ridicule of his townfolk, who referred to him as "the man with bugs in his head," Spitz persisted.
