

HELP THESE CHILDREN TO GET AN EDUCATION

Associated Charities Asks for Books and Clothes for 200 Who Are Destitute

The Associated Charities appeal to the generosity of the Atlanta public to provide books and clothes for 200 destitute children who want to enter the public schools, but cannot enter unless they have their things.

The association in the past has accepted second-hand clothes, and will accept them again and be glad to get them. It takes from $1 to $10 to buy the books a child needs.

To illustrate the situation as the association sees it, Joseph C. Logan, the secretary, mentions the following typical case:

A child can always be helped to help himself, and there is no higher duty on the part of the earth than to help one to do so. Surely Sunday school and individuality will help this child in the way of these few little hand-picked children. It will take from $1 to $10 for each child, besides the second-hand clothing which, from experience, we can depend upon.

In one family, in which books and clothes will have to be given the father has died for six years. There are two girls, aged thirteen and sixteen, and a boy, aged eleven, who are all in the work of the house, and the only income of the family is from two other children, aged sixteen and eighteen, who are working for very small wages.

Another case is the eleven-year-old child of a blind mother, who also is blind. She has two other children that work in factories, but they have much time within the past few months on account of slack work, and the family is nearly in debt.

Another pitiful case is that of a little orphan, aged nine and eleven, who live with their maternal grandfather. The grandfather is chronically ill and the husband drinks. They are very poor and have to sleep on the floor, but they have been in school only one year, and unless outside help is given, they will grow up in absolute ignorance.

Channel Must Be Cleaned Out to Prevent Backwater in Sewage Plant

To operate the new Peachtree sewage disposal plant with the channel of Peachtree creek, below the plant, in its present condition, would be to run the risk of the creek, during the heavy winter rains, backing up into the filter beds of the plant and destroying their usefulness, according to E. M. Clayton, chief of the city construction department.

The county commissioners have been asked by the city to clean out the channel of the creek, so that it will not back up over the dam, and the commissioners have promised to do the work as soon as they can possibly get to it.

That the plant is now practically finished and ready to commence operation and the channel of the creek has not been touched by the county. Unless the work is done promptly, the new plant will have to stand idle, when it ought to be purifying sewage.

The sewer committee of council will take the matter up with the county board again next week and urge them to take no time in putting a force on the creek.

Bill's "John Henry" Song Cost Him $21.50

Bill Hendricks, granite cutter, of 585 Simpson street, was accused of disorderly conduct by Mrs. John Meigs and other neighbors in police court Monday afternoon. It was alleged that he came home frequently after partaking of beer, and sang bad songs. On trial Bill maintained he knew but one song. He quoted it for Recorder Pro Tem. French, John Henry was of little or no value, but he said on his father's knee. And he picked up a bit of steel an' sang. Did make or steel drivin' man out of me.

Hendricks added that there was only one verse to the song. It could be repeated by a man who had learned the song on his father's knee and sang it by memory. The defendant was born as they can possibly get to it.

Other neighbors swore, however, that Bill Hendricks was disorderly in other ways and that the song did not sound the same in court as when sung in his home. So Recorder Pro Tem, Preston was fined $21.50, one for $15.75 and another for $5.75.

In the course of the discussion Hargett became so excited that he resorted to profanity. It was testified Wednesday morning.

FOOTE & DAVIES EMPLOYEES BANQUET

Firm Entertains Office and Field Force With Enjoyable Affair Monday Evening

Fifty members of the office and field force of the Foote & Davies Printing Company were the guests at a banquet tendered them at the Hotel Astor Monday night by their employers. Music, bright addresses and good fellowship combined to make the occasion a most enjoyable one.

The dinner came after the annual business session of the sales force with the heads of the various departments of the company, and was given over entirely to social pursuits and genuine pleasure.

Improperly addressed were made by Ralph David Marx and W. G. Foote, president of the company, after which a number of those present put on an informal carol performance that proved one of the most enjoyable features of the occasion.

During the course of the evening resolutions thanking the members of the firm for their kind and considerate treatment of all of the employees were read and received with enthusiasm.

MARION, Ky., Sept. 2.—Letters threatening murder and arson, and signed "Friends," are being received by members of the camp meeting committee at Hurricane camp grounds, near here, where a meeting is in progress. DEALERS TAKE SPACE IN 1914 AUTO SHOW

Applications Prove That It Will Be Biggest in History of Atlanta

That the Atlanta automobile show for the year 1914 will be the largest and most successful in the history of the Atlanta Automobile and Accessory association was made manifest Monday night at a meeting of the organization, which more than 12,000 square feet of floor space for exhibits were taken by the auto and supply men present. There is less than 6,000 feet of available space for others who will want to come.

R. N. Teak, chairman of the show committee on arrangements, estimated that there would be applications for more space than can be secured in the vast auditorium-armory. Preliminary arrangements were discussed and it was decided to bring John Philip Sousa, the "March King" here for fourteen concerts, the attraction costing $7,000.

An additional attraction during the week will be the opening of the automobile, one of the speediest and most spectacular automobile race tracks in the world. The promoter, Jack Frisco, appeared before the association and outlined his plans. He was assured of the organization's hearty support.

Some of the riders so far signed up are DePalma, Burman, Wishard, Endicott and Anderson.

Why the Public Trusts The Currency Bill. In the matter of banking and currency legislation, the average citizen, absorbed as he is in his own business and favored with little time for studying theories of finance, must be guided largely by the judgment of men who are recognized and trustworthy authorities on such subjects.

"SAFETY FIRST" By Frederic J. Haskin. "Safety first" is a slogan heard in every American mine and shop that is keeping abreast of the times. It bespeaks a better appreciation of human life and a recognition on the part of capital and labor that the safety of the worker is the first and most important thing to be preserved.

The Glory of War Is Gone (Frederick Palmer, in McClure's Magazine). The glory, the sport and the romance of war are dead. Heroes are out of date. They interfere with team play. Dashing leaders will please apply for employment anywhere than to an army and a navy.

THE AUTOMOBILE BY DR. FRANK CRANE. (Copyright, 1918, by Frank Crane). The automobile is the most perfect vehicle, for its proper purpose, ever devised by man. Undoubtedly the day is not far distant when it will drive the horse from the city streets.

Our old friend the charter is coming in for another battle. "Atlanta's Realty Gains $12,000,000." No reduction in the high cost of real estate!

A Mosquitoless Town. The happy town of Hartsville, S. C., has earned distinction for its victory over through its effective campaign against mosquitoes. A decade ago this community was in the grip of a plague as troublesome, if not as terrifying, as those that befell old Egypt.

The mining industry has caused the greatest number of fatal accidents, as well as serious injuries. The mining operators realize this fact. Last year the American Mine Safety Association was organized, with headquarters in Pittsburgh on September 22.

ONE INVENTION MAY DECIDE A EUROPEAN. A private corporation may be out of date and keep on doing business for a while. It may travel on prestige, disbanding improvements and letting off dead weight.

Respect for Wives (Chicago Tribune). Over in Japan men are learning to respect their wives. It is not a sudden wave of chivalry that is bringing about this changed attitude on the part of the stronger sex.

The Bird an Air-Made Being. The bird is little more than a drift of the air brought into form by plumes; the air is in all its quills. It breathes through its whole frame and flesh and glows with air in its flying. Its brown flesh is like a sponge, its bones are like a sponge.

These same simple methods consistently pursued will produce equally gratifying results in any community with ordinary surroundings. To be sure, if a town is so unfortunate as to have a swamp in its immediate environs, the problem becomes more difficult. But even in such cases, adequate efforts will bring certain relief. It is interesting in this connection to note a bit of evidence gathered by the Georgia Geological Survey.

The American average man will not understand all the details of the measure now before Congress, but he understands at least that it is the work of sincere statesmanship and that it has the approval of a larger number of thoughtful, disinterested people than any other measure of the kind ever proposed.

Work for safety. Think for safety. Talk for safety. Boost for safety. Ideas for additional safety devices are always in demand. Some plans award prizes to workers who suggest safety ideas for their own protection or that of other workers.

Some of the ways for her to socialize with the women of Japan, for it will bring to her, as it has brought to the women of Europe, a great many advantages. The ill and problems accompanying woman labor will gradually lessen in Japan as they are being lessened elsewhere.

Washington found that he would have to use an old chicken-house for a school room. "Uncle," he said to an old colored man, "I want you to come down at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and help me clean out a hen house."

It is not in swamps alone, however, that mosquitoes breed. A neglected can of water in the back yard or a half-filled vase in an unused room is enough to produce disgusting swarms of mosquitoes from which an entire family or neighborhood may become infected. It is important that the State government and county and municipal governments exert themselves to remove the sources of these disease-bearing pests; but it is equally important that the individual household take careful thought for its immediate safety.

It is an admirable thing for a community to vote bonds for extending or bettering its highways, or for a State to set aside liberal funds for this purpose. But far more essential just now than money or energy is a realization of the truth that road building is "an art based on a science" and that experience and skill are as necessary to the making of a good road as to the making of a good house.

The United States Bureau of mines is entitled to much credit in originating the safety campaign which is now being conducted in the experimental mine in Pennsylvania for the purpose of testing new methods for the rescue and first-aid work. Over 10,000 tests were made last year in analyzing the explosives submitted for examination. The experimental mine is equipped with apparatus for recording the speed of an explosive and the pressure produced. Safety explosives are now used in many of the largest mines in the country.

At Thanksgiving time, when the dairies are being cooked, Walter's mother returned to the kitchen after a brief absence. "Some of you boys have been eating my raisins," she commented. "I see the seeds on the floor."

In the struggling days at Tuskegee Booker T. Washington found that he would have to use an old chicken-house for a school room. "Uncle," he said to an old colored man, "I want you to come down at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and help me clean out a hen house."

Each of the mine rescue cars contains eight oxygen helmets, a closed steel lamp, a field telephone with 2,000 feet wire, a collapsible steel mine cage, a pulley, and a motor, and is provided with a range and other appliances used in first-aid-theory. Each rescue car has a crew of men, and is stopped at different mines and demonstrated to the apparatus. As a result most of the larger mines have within a few months installed modern rescue cars of their own.

Chesterfield's Billiard Game. An amusing anecdote is told of Lord Chesterfield. When staying at Bath he amused himself sometimes at billiards with a well known amateur of the name of Lookop. On one occasion, Lookop, after winning a game of two, asked his lordship what odds he would give to be beaten to put a post over one's eye.

A Batch of Smiles. At Thanksgiving time, when the dairies are being cooked, Walter's mother returned to the kitchen after a brief absence. "Some of you boys have been eating my raisins," she commented. "I see the seeds on the floor."

Quips and Quiddities. In the struggling days at Tuskegee Booker T. Washington found that he would have to use an old chicken-house for a school room. "Uncle," he said to an old colored man, "I want you to come down at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and help me clean out a hen house."

The convention of lawyers in Canada, of course, was not summoned by Thaw.

Dr. Broughton was expressing the marvelous change as a boldness of costume beyond the power of comprehension. "You have to see it to believe it," he said.

The reporter started to leave Dr. Broughton called out. "You can say I'm going to the ball game at Ponce de Leon park this afternoon to help with the attendance crew for Atlanta and root for them to win the pennant. We don't have baseball in England and it is a rare treat to be here where I can enjoy seeing my old home team play."

Dr. Broughton will be here until Saturday when he will visit the town mentioned in a week returning in time for the service at the tabernacle a week from next Sunday. He will leave Atlanta soon after that and expects to be back in his point in London by October 1.

The Evening Story

The Wedding Gown

In her shabby, rented room Nancy Perry sat gazing on a white satin dress which was a golden May morning sun.

It had all amounted to so little.

Light streamed in across the worn matting, the poor furniture. There was a group of jonquils in a cheap vase on the sewing table, meeting the sunshine with their glory. Behind the door and over it were the sounds of a woman's noisy early morning warfare with disorder. Doors slammed, dishes rattled, heavy steps pounded back and forth. Mrs. Cousin was busy with work on the dinner. But oh, far more wonderful must it be to have a true lover—one who raised his eyes, whose heart beat to one's heart as the white gown did. Nancy's beautiful lady had such a lover, and, as if God were not content with that one most perfect lover, had showered her with others—riches, many friends, beauty and the prospect of a happy future. The dress Nancy was making was a wedding dress, and the wedding was very near at hand.

Sometimes Nancy dreamed dreams about herself, which were like transient reflections of something bright and good that had been long ago in her own life. For Nancy Perry, little, workworn, sober Nancy Perry, with her red hair fading at her temples, and her freckle-black cheeks, and her needle-pricked fingers, had once been touched by the divine fire of young romance. One had come into her life and gone, had come with awakening joy and hope and promise, and had gone leaving the ashes of these things behind him. It had all amounted to so little, a hand clasp of two, a few conscious smiles, and glances, a kiss, a vow to return. Then the long, long waiting, at first happily, then hopefully, then despairingly, until at last she knew that she was never to see him again. Had he forgotten or had he not loved her enough, or had there been some other woman? She did not know. She only knew that he had stolen her heart and the best of her life away with him and had not brought them back.

A long time had passed Nancy came to her room. She was very poor and she had had to work if she would eat. There was one thing she could do—she could sew. She hired Mrs. Cousin's front room to work in, and a smaller room behind it to sleep in, and announced herself ready to make dresses. But in the old, indifferently furnished town woman's shop more their clothes a long time and she had to work if she would eat.

"I've been saved from him."

most of these were made themselves. Nancy did not have many dresses to make. But the dresses she did make were exquisite. There was such merit in them that one day the great Miss Ten Broeck stopped Mrs. U. J. Greenberry, who was wearing a gown from Nancy's hands, and asked graciously who her seamstress was.

"Nancy Perry! Nancy Perry!" repeated Miss Ten Broeck, laughing. "I like the sound of that odd little name. And a very much like the looks of your new gown. I think I'll see if your Nancy Perry won't make a dress for me." So she rode alone all the way from her big summer house on the hill, which she had come to enjoy that summer, and asked Nancy to make a dress for her. A simple little silk frock, rather like every other people's clothes, but that dress pleased me immensely.

Nancy had no sewing to do and this order was a God-send. When the mill came she learned that there were very many carrying types of women. Nancy was happy working upon the lovely fabric. She added to the design a touch of her own, a fold of lace, glances of color. And as a consequence she was busy all summer making things for her new patron. So it was no wonder that with Miss Ten Broeck's wedding set for an early June date at the summit house, she should come out in April and ask Nancy to make her wedding gown.

"I've loads and loads of things coming to me," she said, "and I can't do ordinary gowns, but I want you to make this for me. It's a gown that may be only a sentimental fancy, but I feel that you will give it a charm against unhappiness and a guarantee of joy." "Never had anybody said so beautiful a thing to me," Nancy thought, "and I feel that you will never see a gown like this." She had felt so when she received the first of the dresses she had made, a sacred trust.

And now the wonderful dress was finished, save for the few last intricate stitches which she was making now. The long, last, wrought with love and exquisite painstaking, was done. And in a week she will wear it, thought Nancy. "In a week she will get her great happiness. Oh, I've prayed for her! Every stitch is a prayer; and a wish for her. Even though I cannot tell her and she cannot know, she will feel the influence of all those prayers and wishes. I shall like to feel that she is wrapped in them when she puts on her wedding gown."

"Come, come, beautiful lady, to Paradise—in the senses that followed Nancy heard the sound of a horse's feet galloping down the street. Her heart told her that Miss Ten Broeck was coming. She rose with the gown trailing from her hands as the door burst open and Miss Ten Broeck entered. She was the size of Nancy, but she looked taller in her riding habit. Her face was startlingly white. Her violet eyes black with emotion. They shone from the main in Nancy's hands to Nancy's face and lit her there.

"No, I shan't wear it," she said. "But I'm wearing a good deal by not wearing it. I'm going to Europe, I leave Sunday. Some day you may want to wear it. She drew Nancy close and kissed her. There came a ring of gold as something fell upon the floor. Then she was gone. And there was only the sound of a horse's feet flying in the distance.

"Leave, leave, beautiful lady, in my heart's sighs," Mrs. Cousin was again singing. Nancy lifted her head. She felt dazed, faint. There was the dress. There was. And on the other side of the wall was Mrs. Cousin. Yet all was changed. Her beautiful lady was gone. There was to be no wedding, her labor of love had been in vain. She put out her hand and touched the white satin. The lie seemed to have gone out of it. It was like a dead thing. She slipped and sank into a chair. At her feet was the big gold piece Miss Ten Broeck had tried to put into her hand. It seemed the one real thing in the midst of her unhappy visions. And seeing it she burst into sobs.

"Oh, Nancy, Nancy," she said, "that is not to be my wedding dress after all. I have found out something. And I've broken my engagement. I've been disappointed and there'll be no wedding," she said rapidly, while Nancy, who had been waiting for her to make the dress for her, feared all the time, but white pretensions, would bring me the blessing it was as if I was trying to hide behind a ledge of white roses from some evil, following thing." She broke off panting.

"What's a trouble? yet? Who's made a cry?" And you with a letter from your own sweetheart right here in his hand invite and beckon and urge.

"Well, Nancy Perry," she exclaimed, "What's a trouble? yet? Who's made a cry?" And you with a letter from your own sweetheart right here in his hand invite and beckon and urge.

If You Live in Atlanta And Eat Every Day, You Should Read This Bulletin

There are in this town of ours several concerns that manufacture foodstuffs.

Also there are in this town Retail Grocers who have these foodstuffs for sale.

All these folks are doing just what you are doing—trying to make a living for themselves and their families.

They pay taxes, they pay wages, they pay for rent and food and clothing. They pay doctors' bills and dentists' bills and coal bills and shoe bills and school bills—just as you do.

They've got their stake in Atlanta and they're putting their nerve, their time, their energies and their resources into the general fund.

You get the benefit of the money they circulate.

If you are a laborer, you help to build and equip their stores and factories and houses. Perhaps you drive their teams and haul their goods. If you are a salary man, you may be keeping their books, waiting on their customers or conducting their correspondence.

If you are a professional person, you are doubtless selling them your services as doctor, dentist, lawyer, teacher. If you own property, you are collecting rent from them.

The money of these manufacturers of foodstuffs and these retail grocers goes the rounds here at home—here in Atlanta. You benefit. The town benefits.

Now, then, here's a plain, practical, unfilled proposition to you as a sensible man or woman:

Whatever makes business better for these merchants and manufacturers (or indeed for any class of our people) makes it better for everybody. It makes a greater Atlanta; a busier, a livelier town. It brings more folks in. It makes the pay roll swell. It helps you and your holdings.

Isn't it logical, then, that you should take a hand in the game of encouragement?

Is there any reason why you shouldn't lend your influence in a simple and perfectly practical way.

And here's the way:

Use Atlanta-Made Products on Your Home Table

This appeal is not alone to your loyalty. That's a big reason, of course, Loyalty is the keynote of co-operation. But we make our appeal on the straight-out ground of QUALITY in the goods themselves.

See here, people:

If our goods are just as pure, just as wholesome, just as true in quality, and just as delectable in every way as goods made a thousand miles from home, what's the reason for giving them the GO-BY?

What's the reason?

We who sign this bulletin ask you to think on these things. We're in earnest. We believe you will see the justice and the fairness of our appeal. We KNOW you will.

Back of us, standing solid, is the RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION, which, at a recent Wednesday meeting, struck a superb blow for the inauguration of this ATLANTA-MADE FOOD Campaign.

"Every Wednesday," they said, "Shall be ATLANTA DAY in our stores."

They don't mean that ONLY Wednesday shall be ATLANTA DAY. Every day'll be ATLANTA DAY by and by. But they do mean that they are going to feature our wares on Wednesday.

More about the matter as the Wednesdays come.

Are you with us? All loyal Atlanta will be!

Conspicuous Nose Pores

How to reduce them

Wring a cloth from very hot water, later it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face. When the heat has expanded the pores, rub with the soap in every pore.

Repeat this hot water wringing and soap rubbing several times, staying your nose feels tighter. Then finish by rubbing in the pure preparation from Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Woodbury's Facial Soap cleanses the pores, softens the skin, and removes the impurities that clog the pores so that they can contract. But it is not a harsh detergent. It is a weak and a condition resulting from years of neglect. Use this treatment once or twice a week and you will gradually reduce the enlarged pores until they are inconspicuous.

Mobile Club Here for Biggest Series of the Present Season

THE BOYS STARTED FOR THE CLAMBAKE--BUT!

--BY FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

AVE, NON.
A man may drive like an Eddie Roy.
For and straight down the open way;
A man may come to a washup stop
And push it on to the proper spot;
By his hit and done with the fettle upon
He may rattle on to the same old tune,
He may shoot one up to the green's brink--
But what's the use when the putts won't sink?

A man may be on his driving game
And shoot them out to his own's acclaim;
With click and iron and the niblick strip
His staff he uses and his form he keeps;
He may have the eye for a bigger fly
And hold the line on a bird might fly;
From tee to green he may have been a crow,
But what's the use when the putts won't drop?

The Naps wrenched off their last series, three out of four, from the Athletics. The Phillies pocket of their last one from the Giants. But the Standing of the Clubs still furnishes the answer.

Connie Mack figures that Schang is the best young catcher in the game with Schalk second. We knew a ball player once in the Southern league named Schippling. But he was a second baseman. If he had only been a catcher with a minkler like that should have been a cross between Buck Ewing and Johnny Kling, all attached to J. Archer's right arm.

AN INSIDE TIP.
After conversing generally with both Giants and Athletics we are at last in a position to foretell the October results--viz: Four out of five for both clubs in a turkey tour or a Baltimorean Trip--Play it for a pipe.

Prof. McCallidly summons his clan to a morning class every day at 10 o'clock. At these classes certain rules are given, Bakers, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays being to whail the pill out of the lot. Failure to make good brings J. Franklin one large July demerit. So far this season two demerits have been chalked against his name.

CUBS-ATHLETICS.
We refuse to become involved in any argument as to the respective merits of the 1912 Cubs and the 1913 Athletics.
But here's one difference between the 1913 Athletics and the 1913 Cubs. If the Great Zim were winking at Connie Mack and insisted upon getting chased from the field at every other strike he would be on the Mackinac payroll 3 to 4 minutes, or possibly 4 to 5. But not for five. Connie is in the baseball business, not a collector of temperaments.

It isn't a question with Connie as to whether an umpire is right or wrong. It's rather a question of paying his men to stick around the ball field rather than the club house or the bench.

Tip to Walter Johnson on how to break a world's record pitching for the Senators--Kick in with twenty straight shut-outs and it's an even break you land.

Some one has referred to the Mexican outbreak as the possibility of a "trial world series." Since when did a class X club in the bush become eligible to a world series entry? We are willing to offer even money that Johnson could strike out Mexico on three pitched balls.

Speaking of world's records, how about the case of Rollie Zeider? He had bananas on his head and feet and after a pair of operations the boy had recovered was from his feet.

As we approach to press Jerry Travers in the act of rapping one from the tee in Detroit, we are reminded that it matters what happens from the tee as long as his 16-foot putt drops down in par. If he had to do this fellow could put a cannon ball into a thimble from the edge of the green.

Savannah Is Valdosta Club Sally Winner At Last Loses

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 2.—The South Atlantic league, comprising Savannah, Jacksonville, Columbia, Albany, Charleston and Mason, has wound up its tenth season. The clubs finished in the above order. By winning both halves of the divided season, Savannah is the 1912 champion.

President Nick Corch stated last night that the season of 1912 had been the most successful in the history of the league.

The season was opened on April 18. Its best ball terminating June 25, Savannah made a runaway race of the first half and clinched the season race by winning the final game of its series in Charleston last week. Jacksonville, 1912 champion, suffered throughout the season from a series of accidents, but by a combination and Columbus were the only clubs in the league not to profit from the play of Savannah disposed of Pichers, Robertson and Adams to Cincinnati Nationals and Philadelphia Athletics, respectively; McCaskey and Jackson of Albany, go to Boston; N. N. N. and Pittsburgh Nationals; Pichers, Grayson, of Jacksonville, become the property of Detroit Tigers, while Mason won not less than four players to a company.

The Savannah and Atlanta management are now dickering for a post season series between these two clubs, the latter representing the Sally league, the latter the Southern.

A Mental GOLF Needed in the Score

The difference between good scoring and indifferent scoring is more art than not just the difference between playing along easily according to the ability of the player and trying to do the impossible. It is very seldom that even the expert makes his best rounds when engaged in medal play competitions. He is affected by the same mental complications as is his casual competitor.

Nearly every golfer has been surprised to find that he has scored best when for one reason or another he has least expected to do so. Perhaps he has gone to the links with a slight headache or very much tired from business worries. In such a mental attitude he hopes for nothing more than the refreshing exercise of a round to fill his lungs with fresh air and drive away dull care.

On the very first hole, or perhaps the second or third, good fortune overtakes him in the shape of a steady approach or a long putt held from the edge of the green, and the whole world looks differently to him. Things go right with him for the rest of the round, and all recollections of headache or other ailment have departed for that day at least.

On the other hand, sometimes when a golfer goes to the links after a good night's rest feeling stronger and better than at any previous time he has played, things go wrong from the very first stroke. Water simply feels too good and too strong for him to drink. The drive goes wild, perhaps, and the recovery is weak, and so on until all chance of low scoring is gone.

If he requires a high order of mental discipline in addition to skill to accomplish persistent rounds in creditable figures, even the expert is apt to let his mind or imagination wander too far for awhile, only to be wakened up and placed him where it will take all of his skill plus a moderate degree of luck to recover the lost ground.

It is an opportunity to hang up a glorious achievement in the way of cutting down the golfer's record for the links is lost by a failure to hold everything in the expert's mind to let his mind or imagination wander too far for awhile, only to be wakened up and placed him where it will take all of his skill plus a moderate degree of luck to recover the lost ground.

Lookout Fans Kiss Hurler

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 2.—The greatest demonstration by local fans ever seen here occurred at the termination of the game Monday with Mott, which Howell won for the Lookouts in the ninth inning, with a two-base hit, to center field fence after the bases had been filled, with two down. The walkup cheered the Lookouts giving to protest the game in his favor for third place, withdrew it. His action was based on a decision by Kertin in the fifth inning. After Clark had been hit Coraleski walked to the plate to argue with Kertin, stating that the ball had hit the bat. While talking he turned and threw the ball over the fence, but it went over his head. Clark went to second and subsequently scored. Ed Ellersfeld protested on the grounds that the ball was dead, and no advance could be made until Coraleski re-entered the box.

Jim Thorpe Joins Ranks of Binedicts

CARLEISLE, Pa., Sept. 2.—James Thorpe, the champion athlete and member of the New York National league team, today announced his engagement to Miss Margaret I. Miller, a Cherokee Indian, of Otter, Okla. The nuptials will be published in at. Patrick's church here and the wedding will take place in October. Thorpe will take his bride on a honeymoon around the world, as he will be a member of the New York team on its globe-trotting tour.

Grid Players Are at Work

The fall season is here. Not that the boys are turning brown, but that frost has made Mack's nose red and raw. No, a sure sign is given us. Certain husky youths have put aside the things of the summer and donned football togs. Tech has been the first to call the devotee of the plaided god together. With all her last year's team in the city, Coach Heisman called a practice for Monday afternoon, at which time he and Assistant Coach Alexander and Captain Hones took to mind to whip the team into shape.

Just what new men Johnny Heisman has been able to discover this summer, while the traveling agent for Tech, is an uncertain quantity, but it is safe to say that he will have a much huskier bunch of material gathered together this fall than he had last year when he made the "Bab" jackets into a formidable assemblage.

Mercer will be the next team in this part of the country to start working on her football material. On the fifth, their coach, Lewis Hardage will call practice for the orange and black. Mercer reports a fair prospect, with many of her old men back in harness.

Georgia will start under the direction of Coach Cunningham, and Assistant Coach Peacock, Kerton, and probably Deal. Captain Bob's recruits will be called together on the 10th of September to start an erudition which will reach its climax when the big game is pulled between Georgia and Tech.

From then on the far will try to get the county to start working on her football material. On the fifth, their coach, Lewis Hardage will call practice for the orange and black. Mercer reports a fair prospect, with many of her old men back in harness.

Ad Wolgast Loser In Ten-Round Bout

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 2.—Joe Ascho, do fought his way to a decision over Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion, today in their ten-round bout. The going was fast and the younger fighter clearly earned the verdict in the seventh round. Ascho knocked Wolgast down. Wolgast fought almost entirely with his left hand, his right apparently being in no condition to inflict punishment.

First Red Sox Signs
BOSTON, Sept. 2.—George Foster, a pitcher, has the distinction of being the first player to sign with the Boston Americans for 1914 on a one-year contract. Foster wrenched a knee several weeks ago and as the injury continues to trouble him, he decided to return to his home in Bonanza, Ark. Before leaving today he was signed up for next year.
